

Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy

Volume 1 | Issue 1

Article 4

1-1-1995

Editor's Note

Daniel C. Hohler
Suffolk University Law School

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.suffolk.edu/jtaa-suffolk>

Part of the Litigation Commons

Recommended Citation

1 Suffolk J. Trial & App. Advoc. xiii (1995)

This Notes is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Collections @ Suffolk. It has been accepted for inclusion in Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy by an authorized editor of Digital Collections @ Suffolk. For more information, please contact dct@suffolk.edu.

EDITOR'S NOTE

To the Reader:

The inaugural volume of the Suffolk Journal of Trial & Appellate Advocacy represents a fundamental change in the nature of the Moot Court Board. Historically, the Board coordinated the trial and appellate competitions and assisted the Legal Practice Skills Department by researching the first-year writing assignments. After the LPS department reformed, however, the Moot Court Board's research services were no longer required.

The Suffolk Journal of Trial & Appellate Advocacy is a natural evolution of the Board. From its conception almost two years ago, the Journal was proposed not only as a scholarly exercise, but also as a useful tool for litigators. In addition to student pieces, future volumes will contain advocacy-related articles from faculty, practitioners, and judges. Suffolk University Law School is renowned for its advocacy training and Moot Court presence; the Journal will support and enhance this reputation within the law school and the legal community.

The Editors wish to thank Dean John Fenton, Jr., the Associate Deans, the Journal Faculty Committee, the faculty, and Suffolk's other honor boards for their support and constructive comments throughout the entire process. Special thanks to our faculty advisor Professor Richard Pizzano, John Balboni, Nadia Totino Beard, Danielle Cannito, Kim Randall and the 1994-95, 1995-96 Moot Court Boards for their tireless effort in making this journal a success.

Daniel C. Hohler
Editor-in-Chief

