HISTORICAL NOTE

The Ford Hall Forum, the nation's oldest continuously operating free public lecture series, was established in 1908. It began as a series of Sunday evening public meetings held in Boston at Ford Hall on Beacon Hill by George W. Coleman, a prominent local businessman and then-president of the Boston Baptist Social Union. The affiliation with the Boston Baptist Social Union lasted until 1928 when tensions between the Union and Coleman prompted Coleman to incorporate the Ford Hall Forum as an independent organization.

Coleman's unique format, which provided equal time to speakers' remarks and questions from the audience, gave any interested citizen the opportunity to debate issues with some of the most influential figures of the day. According to Coleman's vision, the lecture series would enable the "full, free, and open discussion of all vital questions affecting human welfare." Since its founding, the Forum has gone on to host discussions with some of the most prominent—and in some cases controversial—public figures in the arts, science, literature, and politics. Notable speakers have included Maya Angelou, Louis Brandeis, David Duke, W.E.B. DuBois, Robert Frost, John Kenneth Galbraith, Al Gore, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Henry Kissinger, Margaret Sanger, Eleanor Roosevelt, Malcolm X and many others. Ayn Rand was a noted supporter of the forum and spoke at lectures frequently. The lectures were originally held in Ford Hall which was located on the corner of Ashburton Place and Bowdoin Street in Boston's Beacon Hill neighborhood. In later years, the Forum held lectures in different venues across Boston including: Faneuil Hall, Old South Church, Jordan Hall, Northeastern University, and Suffolk University's C. Walsh Theatre.

In addition to hosting forums, the organization's programming included their First Amendment Award, a radio program, anniversary celebrations, and fundraising events with the Boston Pops. In 1981, the Forum created the First Amendment Award in honor of Louis P. and Evelyn Smith. The award recognizes "those individuals and organizations that demonstrate extraordinary commitment to promoting and facilitating the thoughtful exercise of our right to freedom of expression." Award recipients have included: Maya Angelou, the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), Barney Frank, Anita Hill, Norman Lear, John Lewis, Rosa Parks, and Pete Seeger.¹ From 1987-1991 the Ford Hall Forum, in collaboration with eight presidential libraries and the National Archives, produced its own radio series, the New American Gazette. Hosted by Barbara Jordan, the series featured a combination of programs that included its own speaker series, presentations made at eight presidential libraries and the National Archive, as well as previously recorded speakers from the Ford Hall Forum archives. Much like the Ford Hall Forum, the New American Gazette aimed to encourage public discourse about current affairs.²

The Ford Hall Forum has traditionally operated with a small staff, dedicated volunteers, and its board of directors who oversee programming, fund raising, and other administrative aspects. The organization also utilized partnerships with a variety of local foundations, corporations, academic institutions to support the operations of the Forum. During the late 1980s and mid-1990s the Forum was headquartered at Northeastern University. In 2008, the Forum moved to Suffolk University where it received administrative support and access to an event venue, the C. Walsh Theatre. The Ford Hall's non-profit organization was dissolved in 2014 and it became a programmatic unit of Suffolk University, where its lectures and public programs continue.

Ford Hall Forum's website provides information about upcoming programs, the organization's history, and an online archive that includes a comprehensive lists of lectures and speakers. The following publications provide additional information about the organization's founding and history:

SCOPE AND CONTENT

This collection contains a wide range of materials relating to the Ford Hall Forum's administrative operations, lectures, fundraising activities, partnerships, and its radio program, the New American Gazette. The inclusive dates span from 1908 to 2013 but the bulk of the collection covers the years 1930-2000. The collection is arranged into three series: Lecture, Event, and Program Files; Administrative Records; and Special Materials.

Records and objects related to lectures consist of speaker files, transcripts, news clippings, programs and posters, photographs, audio and video recordings and correspondence. The organization's administrative files include the board of director's records, budget and other financial materials, organizational histories, press and outreach materials, membership cards, and other pieces of memorabilia. Many of recordings and other items are now available online.

CONTAINER LIST

Series I: Lecture, Event and Program Files, 1915-2013, undated

Series 1.1: Lecture, Event and Program Files, 1915-2013

Description: This series contains materials associated with many (but not all) of the lectures and special events hosted by the Ford Hall Forum. The files from 1915 through the 1950s consist primarily of programs, posters and mailers for each season. Starting in the 1960s, the collection includes more detailed event planning files that contain correspondence with the speakers, speaker releases, news clippings, head-shots, bios, and transcripts. Also included are files for speakers who declined to speak or canceled a scheduled appearance. Special events such as anniversaries and the First Amendment Award celebrations are also represented in this series.

Arrangement: Chronological

Sub-series 1.2: New American Gazette, 1986-1991

Description: In 1988, the Ford Hall Forum, in collaboration with eight presidential libraries and the National Archives, produced its own radio series, the New American Gazette. Hosted by Barbara Jordan, the series featured a combination of programs including its own speaker series; presentations made at eight presidential libraries and the National Archive; as well as previously recorded speakers from the Ford Hall Forum archives. Much like the Ford Hall Forum, the New American Gazette aimed to encourage public discourse about current affairs. The New American Gazette aired until 1991. The files include administrative records, correspondence, listener letters, host and guest-host scripts, credit scripts, committee records, and station/ broadcasting information, and audio recordings of the programs. Also included are documents related to the New American Gazette collaboration between Ford Hall, the presidential libraries, and the National Archives.

Series II: Administrative Records, 1910-2007

Sub-series 2.1: Board of Directors Records, 1910-2007

Description: This series documents the activities of the Board of Directors and contains board and committee files as well as strategic planning and outreach materials. The files contain primarily administrative and some personal records that deal with the organization's founding and ongoing business operations. The administrative files contain financial documents, record books, minutes from the board of directors meetings, and several committees (development, program, publicity/marketing, membership, nominating, new media, and executive). The document types mainly consist of correspondence, meeting minutes, memos and financial records, but also include strategic planning, focus groups, audience surveys and by-laws. Of special note are the handwritten record books which contain the earliest administrative records of the Forum.

Series III: Special Materials, 1908-2013

Sub-series 3.1: Audio and Video Recordings, 1923-2013 (bulk 1981-2013)

Description: This series contains a partial set of the audio and video recordings of the Ford Hall Forum's lectures, programs, and the New American Gazette radio series. The majority of the collection's items date from 1981-2013 with the exception of one recording from 1923 and a small number from the 1960s and 1970s. The lectures, which were often broadcast on the radio or distributed to other organizations, have been recorded on a variety of formats including reel-to-reel, VHS, Betacam, audio cassettes, and digital media.

Note: Many recordings are held by the Boston Public Library, WGBH, and Northeastern. Additionally, many recordings have been made available online (indicated on the folder list where possible) via the Boston Public Library, WGBH, YouTube and iTunes.

Arrangement: Chronological

This lecture includes a presentation of video footage of the women's 2005 trip produced by Liz Walker. In February, 2005, Mason, Walker and White-Hammond traveled to Darfur in the western part of Sudan to raise global awareness of the conflict and to raise funds to support the women and children of Darfur. Recent news reports peg the number of displaced people at 2.5 million and estimate 200,000 to 400,000 have died, mostly women and children, in what has been described as ongoing ethnic genocide. Over 200,000 people have fled across the border to Chad. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9ZUXdVIAhHQ&t=3s2
9	199	Nam Pham, Paul Ton That & Trinh Nguyen with Peter Kiang: Finding a Voice in a New Homeland, audio recording, CD, 06 December 2005 Note: Thirty years ago, the Fall of Saigon ended the Viet Nam War and led to the first wave of Vietnamese immigration to Boston and other cities in the United States. 130,000 refugees fled Vietnam in 1975, fearing reprisal from the Communist Party. The exodus continued and as of the 2000 census, there were nearly 1,220,000 Vietnamese Americans living in the US, the fifth largest Asian immigrant group in the country. Ten years after diplomatic relations between the US and Viet Nam were re-established, as many as 20,000 Vietnamese live and work in the Dorchester neighborhood of Boston. Panelists talk about generational issues, homeland politics, cultural barriers and challenges, and the contributions Vietnamese Americans have made to the City of Boston and the country as a whole. Presented in partnership with Carney Hospital, Viet AID, City of Boston Office of Neighborhood Services, Office of New Bostonians, and Dorchester Reporter. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Fm04yAgi1EU2

Can we defend ourselves against another major terrorist attack or developing nuclear threats? How effective are our foreign aid programs? The U.S. State Department increasingly finds itself on the front lines of these critical issues. 9	202	Maggie Gallagher: The Case Against Same-Sex Marriage, audio recording, CD, 06 April 2006 Note: Maggie Gallagher, President of the Institute for Marriage and Public Policy, argues that to the only way to win the gay marriage debate is to win the marriage debate: to emerge with a deeper, richer, understanding of marriage as a social and legal institution. In Massachusetts, the Supreme Judicial Court ruled that there is no rational reason why marriage has been almost universally considered a union of husband and wife. Other courts in New York and New Jersey recently disagreed. Why do we have laws about marriage? What is a "civil union"? The debate is not over. Digital recording available: MS113.0202

"We are aged more by culture than by chromosomes" says Margaret M. Gullette, "and enemies on this front cannot be fought with gyms, Gingko, liposuction, or self-esteem." The way Americans have come to view aging past youth has been affected recently by Supreme Court decisions, movements to counter midlife discrimination, and messages we send to our children and adolescents. Do our cultural norms affect the way we age? How does this work? What are the social and economic implications? Can there be a better way? Digital recording available: MS113.0203

Daley, M.D., Ph.D., Associate Professor of Biological Chemistry and Molecular Pharmacology, Children's Hospital, Harvard Stem Cell Institute; Dan W. Brock, Ph.D., Professor of Medical Ethics, Harvard Medical School; Rudolf Jaenisch, M.D. Member, Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research, and Professor of Biology, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Moderated by Gregory D. Curfman, M.D., Executive Editor, New England Journal of Medicine. Few topics have touched so many areas as stem cell research. It has stirred politics, medicine, business, economics, and religion. It presents much promise – from curing or easing disease and disability, to creating jobs that can energize state economies, to providing financial windfalls for investors. All of that holds great potential, but is surrounded by huge ethical and legal considerations. Where will the road lead? In a program co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Medical Society, medical experts examine two critical aspects of stem cell research: its medical promise and its ethical considerations. Digital recording available: MS113.0204
9	205	Dr. Thomas Payzant: The Role of Public Education and the Common Good, audio recording, CD, 11 May 2006 Note: Dr. Thomas Payzant, Superintendent of the Boston Public Schools since 1995; Assistant Secretary, United States Department of Education (1993-1995), takes a hard look at the role of public schools in serving the common good. Is an increasingly negative view of government that has been growing in American society at odds with the expectations for what public schools must accomplish? Are public school districts asked to do too much? Is there an intimate connection between the compelling issues of social justice and the role of public schools, and is this connection more at risk today than any time in the past hundred years? Dr. Payzant will draw upon forty years of working to improve teaching and learning in public education to examine these and other questions. Digital Recording available: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5E_ntxt8Lo42

Savage: The Death of Innocents: An Eyewitness Account of Wrongful Execution, audio recording, CD, 12 September 2006 Note: Sister Helen Prejean, C.S.J., author of Dead Man Walking: An Eyewitness Account of the Death Penalty in the United States and The Death of Innocents: An Eyewitness Account of Wrongful Execution. Sister Helen currently works with the Death Penalty Discourse Center, the Moratorium Campaign, and the Dead Man Walking Play Project. Should any state have the power to execute? Is the death penalty appropriate retribution for particularly heinous murders? Does it deter crime? Does it fundamentally violate human rights? Author and activist Sister Helen Prejean has been instrumental in sparking national dialogue around these questions. Her book, Dead Man Walking, which portrays her experiences as a spiritual advisor to death row inmates, became a best seller and spawned the Oscar-winning movie of the same title. Tonight, Sister Helen will discuss her life, her work, and why she continues to fight to end capital punishment. Digital recording available: MS113.0206

9	207	John Darnton and Misia Landau: The Darwin Conspiracy, audio recording, CD, 28 September 2006 Note: John Darnton, Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist, best-selling author of Neanderthal, The Experiment and, most recently, The Darwin Conspiracy, and Cultural News Editor of The New York Times. Darwin's theories of natural selection and evolution have been debated and disputed since The Origin of Species was first published in 1859. The concept of humans evolving from apes challenged the prevailing sense of natural order and shifted the scientific paradigm. Drawing on the research for his best-selling novel The Darwin Conspiracy, author and journalist John Darnton will examine what current theories of intelligent design share with the arguments of Darwin's creationist critics and how they differ. Darnton will also discuss the often-thorny questions of separating fact and fiction in the writing of historical novels. Digital recording available: MS113.0207
9	208	The Great Fire Wall of China: Ethan Guttman, Hiawatha Bray, Valerie Epps and John Jaw, audio recording, CD, 12 October 2006 Note: Ethan Guttman, author of Losing the New China: A Story of American Commerce, Desire and Betrayal, former Foreign Policy Analyst at the Brookings Institution; Hiawatha Bray, The Boston Globe's technology reporter; and John Jaw, founder of the Boston's English-language and Chinese-language editions of The Epoch Times. Moderated by Valerie Epps, Director of the International Law Concentration at Suffolk University. There is no Google in China—at least not one that is uncensored. Websites are blacklisted -Wikipedia, BlogSpot, and BBC News, to name just a few – and content providers like Yahoo!, AOL, and Skype, censor themselves so that they can operate in the country. To the dismay of some human rights advocates and media groups, it is principally American firms providing the Chinese government with technology to filter data as it comes and goes. Is there a better way to deal with China's laws and policies? Is a restricted internet better than no internet at all? And can the "Golden Shield" stand up to a barrage of software designed specifically to circumvent it? A panel of experts discuss the collision between new technologies and the national interests of the world's most populous country. Digital recording available: MS113.0208
9	209	Dr. Yaron Brook: Democracy vs. Victory: Why the Forward Strategy of Freedom Had to Fail, audio recording, CD, 22 October 2006 Note: After Sept. 11th, the Bush administration declared that we must bring freedom to the Middle Eastern nations that threaten us; thus, the Forward Strategy of Freedom. By establishing democracies in key Muslim countries, starting with Afghanistan and Iraq, we would spur a revolution in the rest of the Muslim world—a revolution that would bring free, pro-Western, anti-terrorist governments to power. But the strategy has failed. The Muslim world has grown more militant, radical leaders are being elected to power, and Islamic totalitarian groups like Hamas and Hezbollah are on the rise. Dr. Yaron Brook discusses the inherent flaws of the Forward Strategy of Freedom and explore what should replace it. Digital recording available: MS113.0209

9	210	Meizhu Lui, Rebecca Adamson, and Betsy Leondar-Wright: The Color of Wealth: The Story Behind the U.S. Racial Wealth Divide, audio recording, CD, 09 November 2006 Note: For every dollar in assets possessed by the average white family in the United States, the average family of color has less than a dime. Why is the distribution of wealth in our nation so uneven? Does public policy—even when well intentioned—reinforce existing inequalities? Do race and ethnicity continue to play a pivotal role in defining the haves and have-nots in our society? Three leading experts on the wealth divide explore the economic histories of Native Americans, Latinos, African Americans, Asian Americans, and European Americans, and tackle the relationship between race and finances in the United States.
9	211	2006 Louis P. and Evelyn Smith First Amendment Award: Cokie Roberts, Nina Totenberg, and Linda Wertheimer, audio recording, CD, 01 December 2006 Note: From Watergate to the confirmation hearings of Samuel Alito, from the Reagan Revolution to war in Iraq – the highly praised and award-winning coverage of Cokie Roberts, Nina Totenberg and Linda Wertheimer has shed light on the people, institutions, and social forces shaping our nation. In print, on television, and, most notably, over National Public Radio airwaves, their groundbreaking journalism has not only changed the way millions of Americans view their country and their world, but also had a profound impact on the profession of broadcasting. They join us tonight to receive the Ford Hall Forum’s Louis P. and Evelyn Smith First Amendment Award and share their thoughts on their life and work. Digital recording available: MS113.0211
9	212	Ali S. Asani and Mona Eltahawy: You Don't Know Us: Voices from the Moderate Muslim Majority, audio recording, CD, 15 March 2007 Note: The world’s 1.4 billion Muslims encompass an enormous range of beliefs and practices, a world of cultures—from Arab to post-Soviet to Indian to American, and a wide spectrum of movements—from liberal progressive to Islamist. However, today’s headlines all too often highlight the familiar stories of violence and extremism within the Islamic world. Is religion truly the driving force behind these actions? Where is the space for voices of the moderate majority to be heard? In our country, where many became acquainted with Islam only in the context of September 11th, how can we better understand this major world religion? Professor Ali Asani and Mona Eltahawy explore the tensions within modern Islam and how we can better understand them. Moderated by Jeff Jacoby, Boston Globe columnist. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

9	213	Marshall Goldman and Uri Ra'anani: Power, Petroleum, and Flawed Succession: The Roots and Impact of Putin's Russia, audio recording, CD, 22 March 2007 Note: Russia is reemerging as an international power—as strong as in czarist or Soviet times—and President Vladimir Putin shows troubling tendencies of reverting to authoritarian and imperial habits. Russia recently overtook Saudi Arabia as the world's leading producer of oil, and it has demonstrated a clear willingness to flex this muscle on the world stage. Within its own borders, corruption, contract killing, and media censorship have become routine. Should we regard this nation as a threat to the West, or as an ally? How does its use of energy supplies as an instrument of foreign policy affect global markets? In a country that historically lacks a mechanism for legitimate succession, what should we expect as Putin steps down in 2008? Professors Marshall Goldman and Uri Ra'anani explore the impact of the Kremlin's concentrated political power in an age of booming oil and gas wealth. Partial recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208
9	214	Richard S. Lindzen: Is Global Warming a Cause for Alarm?, audio recording, CD, 22 April 2007 Note: Our planet has become warmer in recent decades, and there is a growing chorus—as evidenced in the recently released summary report of the U.N. Panel on Climate Change—claiming that, unless we curb production of greenhouse gases, the consequences will be disastrous. However, some still remain unconvinced that economy-wide carbon caps and similar regulatory measures will help the situation, the President among them. Does the cost of regulation outweigh the damage of inaction? Should the United States government take dramatic public policy steps and become a party to international treaties, or continue to wait and see? Should we brace for stronger hurricanes, invasions of tropical diseases, and significant increases in sea levels, or is the danger overstated? Prof. Richard Lindzen steps into the fray to offer his view that irrational alarm may be clouding our judgment. Join us for tonight's discussion as we explore what the future holds for our planet—and what we should do about it. Partial recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208
9	215	Edward Albee, Rick Lombardo, and Karen MacDonald: Does Theater Have a Future? The Players Look Forward, audio recording, CD, 30 April 2007 Note: You need three things in the theater," said Kenneth Haigh, "The play, the actors and the audience, and each must give something." Today, with expanding options for at-home-entertainment, the theater is faced with increasing competition to attract the last, and perhaps, most important element – the audience. What is it that still draws millions every year to a darkened auditorium and a stage? What are writers, directors, and actors doing to bring in new generations of theater goers? Will we continue to make our way to Broadway and regional productions for decades (and centuries) to come? Playwright Edward Albee, producing artistic director Rick Lombardo, actress Karen MacDonald, and arts critic Ed Siegel reflect on current and future directions of theater.

9	216	Paul D. Biddinger, MD; Lisa Stone, MD: Disaster Preparedness in Massachusetts: Ready? Or not?, audio recording, CD, 03 May 2007 Note: Real and predicted calamities during the last decade have placed a sharp focus on America's need to prepare for disaster. In particular, Hurricane Katrina showed the nation just how devastating a lack of preparation can be. Massachusetts now faces a host of questions about our ability to respond to emergency situations – whether it is an LNG tank explosion or an avian flu pandemic. Officials are raising their voices to say we need to do more, and do it soon. But is anyone listening? With the State Legislature yet to act on a pandemic preparations bill and hospital emergency rooms throughout the Commonwealth already operating beyond capacity, just how ready is our state to cope with a major disaster? What really needs to be done to prepare? And what are the consequences of inaction? Digital recording available: MS113.0216
10	217	Paul Hawken: Blessed Unrest: How the Largest Movement in the World Came into Being, and Why No One Saw it Coming, audio recording, CD, 21 May 2007 Note: From billion-dollar nonprofits to single person causes, there is a growing worldwide movement of organizations dedicated to restoring the environment and fostering social justice. This is a movement with no name, leader, or headquarters, but it can be seen in every city, town, and culture. It is organizing from the bottom up and is emerging as an extraordinary and creative expression of shared values worldwide. What are the driving forces behind these developments? Can the interests of these organizations translate into effective government policies and profitable businesses? Paul Hawken, environmentalist, businessman, and founder of the first natural foods company, addresses the creation of a worldwide grassroots movement based on hope and humanity. Digital recording available: MS113.0217
10	218	John W. Dean: Broken Government: How Republican Rule Destroyed the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Branches, audio recording, CD, 13 September 2007 Note: John W. Dean, counsel to president Richard Nixon, the government's key witness in the Watergate trial, and best-selling author of Conservatives without Conscience and Worse than Watergate, joins us tonight to address what he sees as the "dysfunction chaos and institutional damage" the Republican party and its core conservatives have brought to the federal government. Are the nation's current political ills primarily the fault of the Republicans? Have the Democrats been any better? Most importantly, what can politically moderate citizens do to combat extremism, authoritarianism, and incompetence from political leaders of either party? The program is presented in collaboration with the Old South Meeting House as part of the Partners in Public Dialogue Series. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

10	219	Garrison Keillor: Pontoon, audio recording, CD, 17 September 2007 Note: Garrison Keillor, author, storyteller, humorist, and creator of the weekly radio show A Prairie Home Companion, joins us tonight to share from his latest Lake Wobegon novel. Set in the iconic Midwestern small town – a place where “the women and strong, the men are good looking, and all the children are above average” – Pontoon is a story about a woman with a secret. Keillor’s tales of lake Wobegon have touched the hearts of millions and, as stated by the Chicago Tribune, captured “what is small and ordinary and therefore potentially profound and universal in American life.” Digital recording available: MS113.0219
10	220	Charlie Savage: audio recording, CD, 04 October 2007 Note: President Bush has quietly claimed the authority to disobey more than 750 laws enacted since he took office, asserting that he has the power to set aside any statute passed by Congress when it conflicts with his interpretation of the Constitution. Is such an interpretation of presidential power necessary in an age of terrorism and imminent security threats? Or, as one critic suggests, will these new tools “lie around like a loaded weapon” for any future president, liberal or conservative, to impose his or her own agenda on the country? Charlie Savage, Boston Globe reporter and winner of the 2007 Pulitzer Prize for National Reporting, joins us tonight to address the Bush administration’s expanding executive powers and what it means for the future of our country. This program is presented in collaboration with the Old South Meeting House as part of the Partners in Public Dialogue Series. Digital recording available: MS113.0220
10	221	Kitty Dukakis, Michael Dukakis, and Larry Tye: Shock: The Healing Power of Electroconvulsive Therapy, audio recording, CD, 15 October 2007 Note: After suffering from decades from severe depression, substance abuse problems, and hospitalizations, Kitty Dukakis now credits her recovery to electroconvulsive therapy (ECT). Opponents of ECT would like to see the treatment banned on the basis of its common side effects, including memory loss. Many patients say these are a small price to pay for control over a disabling condition. Governor Michael Dukakis and author Larry Tye join Kitty Dukakis for a discussion on how this medical treatment – along with the support of family and loved ones – can potentially help individuals through the horrors of clinical depression. Digital recording available: MS113.0221
10	222	Joan Blades and Laura Pacheco: The Motherhood Manifesto, audio recording, CD, 18 October 2007 Note: Joan Blades, well known for co-founding the e-advocacy group MoveOn.org with her husband, Wes Boyd, has set out to empower the motherhood movement with a new organization, momsrising.org. With this site, she hopes the build an army of citizen activists who will push for strong maternity leave laws, improved health care coverage, and fair wages, among other issues. Do more “family friendly” policies make economic sense for our country? Does an active online community necessarily translate into political influence? Blades screens her documentary film, The Motherhood Manifesto, and discusses the Internet’s ever-changing role in our political proves. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=969Eja4FuwQ2

10	223	Robert Pinsky: American Poetry and American Life: An Evening with the U.S. Poet Laureate, audio recording, CD, 09 November 2007
10	224	Rami Khouri and Stephen Burgard: Baghdad, Tehran, Beirut and Jerusalem- A Critical Arab View of America's Middle East Policies, audio recording, CD, 15 November 2007 Note: Rami Khouri is a Beirut-based internationally syndicated columnist, Director of the Islam Fares Institute of Public Policy and International Affairs at the American University of Beirut, and editor-at-large of The Daily Star newspaper. He also regularly shares his insights on the BBC, NPR, and CNN. Khouri sheds light on the forces shaping the direction and impact of United States policy in the Middle East. Where is the failing? Are there effective policies and programs that should be expanded? And what are the challenges that lay ahead? Digital recording available: MS113.0224
10	225	Lou Dobbs: Independents Day: Awakening the American Spirit, audio recording, CD, 19 November 2007 Note: Lou Dobbs is the anchor and managing editor of CNN's Lou Dobbs Tonight as well as a best-selling author and syndicated columnist. Tonight, he examines the impact of U.S. public policy on a range of pressing issues – from national security to worker rights to the current political climate. Are our borders secure? Is there a more effective way for us to share in the tremendous benefits and harsh costs of free trade and outsourcing? What are the critical issues and challenges that confront the presidential candidates and American voters as we approach the 2008 election? This program is presented in collaboration with the Old South Meeting House as part of the Partners in Public Dialogue Series.
10	226	The 2008 Louis P. and Evelyn Smith First Amendment Award: Anita Hill, audio recording, CD, 20 March 2008 Note: As a lawyer, scholar, and civil rights activist. Professor Anita F. Hill, Brandeis University, has shed light on the legal and social forces shaping our nation and served as an inspiration to those seeking justice and truth in the face of great personal risk. Launched into the public sphere by her testimony in Justice Clarence Thomas's Supreme Court Confirmation hearing, she used her potentially crippling experience to encourage those who have suffered from harassment and discrimination in the workplace to also "speak truth to power." She received the Forum's First Amendment Award and shares her thoughts on her life and work. Moderated by Professor Charles J. Ogletree, Harvard University Law School. Digital recording available: MS113.0226

10	227	Daniel Pipes & Amy Dockser Marcus: The Arab-Israeli Conflict: Peace Process or War Process, audio recording, CD, 27 March 2008 Note: The Arab-Israeli conflict is century old and still not resolved. The dispute between Israeli Jews and Palestinian Arabs over the same land — land that contains holy sites for the three major monotheistic religions: Judaism, Christianity, and Islam — is bitter and deep. What is the nature of current tensions? What are their implications for U.S. policy? Tonight, Pulitzer Prize-winning Wall Street Journal reporter Amy Dockser Marcus and Dr. Daniel Pipes, director of the Middle East Forum and a columnist for the New York Times Syndicate, focus on United States diplomacy in this conflict, debating whether it has been part of a peace proves or a war proves. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208
10	228	Strobe Talbott: The Great Experiment, the Story of Ancient Empires, Modern States, and the Quest for a Global Nation, audio recording, CD, 03 April 2008 Note: In his new book, The Great Experiment, Strobe Talbott, former Deputy Secretary of State (1994 – 2001) and current president of the Brookings Institution, recounts the progression to a global nation. Through the lens of history and personal experience, he assesses the prospects for global cooperation and the United States' role in the process. What can we learn from empires and conflicts of the past? Can a world made up of many nations govern itself peacefully? Talbott joins us tonight to give us an insider's opinion of current United States foreign policy and explain why he believes we should take the lead in multilateral global politics for the future. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208
10	229	Herman Badillo: One Nation, One Standard: An Ex-Liberal on How Hispanics Can Succeed Just Like Other Immigrant Groups, audio recording, CD, 13 April 2008 Note: Herman Badillo, who rose from poverty to become the first Puerto Rican native elected to the U.S. Congress, says his community's path to prosperity, political unity, and the American mainstream must be through self-reliance. "We must not delude ourselves believing that government will provide Hispanics with adequate health care, employment, or housing for all," he says, "or even offer our children a proper education." Does liberal social policy do more harm than good? Does success for immigrant communities lie in the restoration of traditional values: hard work, thrift, and integrity? Join us tonight, as Herman Badillo addresses questions that impact every American. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/great-experiment-story-ancient-empires-modern-states/id388451208?i=1000160210978

10	230	Danny Schechter: News Dissecting from Boston to a Global Stage: A Multi-media Pioneer Challenges His Profession and Calls for Media Reform, audio recording, CD, 17 April 2008 Note: Danny Schechter “The news Dissector,” launched a media career in Boston on WBCN Radio. He became a Nieman Fellow in Journalism at Harvard, a reporter at WGBH, a producer at WLVI and WCVB, and then went on to CNN and ABC News where he won two Emmys. However, he believes media, the field in which he has worked for four decades, is harming our democracy. Are major corporations capable of presenting the news effectively? Can independent media — empowered with the tools of a technological revolution — do any better? Schechter looks back on his journey from Boston to the world stage and explore the rapidly changing ways in which we receive our information. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208
10	231	Yaron Brook: Woodstock’s Legacy: The Rise of Environmentalism and the Religious Right, audio recording, CD, 08 May 2008 Note: In 1969, Ayn Rand’s Ford Hall Forum talk, “Apollo and Dionysus,” addressed the near simultaneous events of Woodstock and the first lunar landing. Employing Greek mythology’s god of the sun and god of wine, she compared the awe-inspiring accomplishments of NASA’s Apollo space program to the famous three-day concert that has come to exemplify the counterculture of the 1960s and the “hippie era.” Almost four decades later, Dr. Yaron Brook, President and Executive Director of the Ayn Rand Institute, reflects on her words and takes a new look at our society’s drives toward individualism versus wholeness, light versus darkness, and civilization versus primal nature. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208
10	232	Cecile Richards: President of Planned Parenthood, Banned in Boston: The Silent Speech of Margaret Sanger, audio recording, CD, 29 May 2008 Note: “You all know that I have been gagged. I have been suppressed. I have been arrested numerous times. I have been hauled off to jail. Yet every time, more people have listened to me, more have protested, more have lifted their own voices.” Thus read Arthur Schlesinger, Sr. in 1929 as Margaret Sanger sat silent beside him on the stage of Ford Hall, banned under court injunction from speaking herself. Cecile Richards, President of Planned Parenthood, reflects on that event; its meaning, its messengers, and the era that gave us the phrase, “Banned in Boston.” Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

10	233	George Lakoff: The Political Mind: Why You Can't Understand 21st Century American Politics with an 18th Century Brain, audio recording, CD, 05 June 2008 Note: Professor George Lakoff, author of Moral Politics: How Liberals and Conservatives Think, Whose Freedom and Don't Think of an Elephant!, explores the connections between cognitive science and political action. Why do many American vote against their own interests? Humans, he argues, are not the rational creatures we've so long imagined ourselves to be. Any savvy political campaigns should not assume people will use an objective system of reasoning when deciding how to vote. Lakoff discusses his new book, The Political Mind, and explore how the mind works, how society works, and how they work together. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

10	236	Thomas S. Blanton with Alasdair Roberts: Secrecy in the United States: Priorities for the Next President, audio recording, CD, 18 September 2008 Note: Over the last eight years, Federal policymakers have struggled with contending claims about national security, executive privilege, and open government. Is the current administration excessively secretive? Or are its methods simply the most effective way to protect our nation in the post-9/11 world? Tonight, in recognition of International Right to Know Day, Thomas S. Blanton, Director of the National Security Archive at George Washington University, joins Professor Alasdair Roberts, Suffolk University Law School, to discuss government transparency and suggest top reform priorities for the next President. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

10	238	Laurence H. Tribe: The Invisible Constitution, audio recording, 25 September 2008 Note: Between the lines of our parchment Constitution, renowned legal scholar Laurence Tribe argues, there is an “Invisible Constitution.” Tribe purports that some of our most cherished and widely held beliefs about our constitutional rights are not even included in the written document. How does this “Invisible Constitution” impact the central constitutional debates of our time – from gun control to abortion to wire-tapping? How has this framework for reading the Constitution evolved, and how does it work? Professor Laurence Tribe, Harvard Law School, discusses how we interpret our country’s most important document. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

10	241	John Keller with Jeff Jacoby: The Bluest State: How Democrats Created the Massachusetts Blueprint for American Political Disaster, audio recording, CD, 05 October 2008 Note: Massachusetts is the proud birthplace of modern-day liberalism, and the nation’s foremost test kitchen for its agenda and political practices. It is also, some say, home to sluggish economic growth, insular political culture, and a government that often fails to deliver relief for the working-class people it claims to help the most. Are Massachusetts politics an ideal others should strive toward? Or have we led the rest of the country (or at least its Democrats) dangerously off course? Jon Keller, WBZ-TV News’ Political Analyst, and Jeff Jacoby, Boston Globe columnist, review the ups and downs of Massachusetts political culture and what can be done to carve out a “new frontier” of American leadership. Digital recording available: https://podcasts.apple.com/us/podcast/ford-hall-forum/id388451208

12	276	Paul Polak with Jasmine Waddell: Out of Poverty: What Works When Traditional Approaches Fail, audio recording, CD, 24 September 2009 Note: What makes poor people poor? What can they do about it? And why have traditional international aid programs fallen so short of their promise? These questions drove Dr. Paul Polak to work with thousands of farmers in countries around the world — including Bangladesh, Cambodia, Ethiopia, Vietnam, and Zimbabwe — to help design and produce low-cost, income-generating products that allow individuals to create their own wealth and build better lives. Innovations such as the $25 treadle pump and $3 small farm drip-irrigation systems have already generated enormous sums of money and helped to raise millions out of poverty. Dr. Paul Polak, writer and founder of International Development Enterprises, joins Dr. Jasmine Waddell, Senior Officer for Research and Learning for the US Regional Office of Oxfam America, to discuss how innovative entrepreneurial practices are empowering individuals to address poverty at its roots.

From President John F. Kennedy's Bay of Pigs invasion to Wall Street's heavy bets in the mortgage market, we see people with extraordinarily powerful cognitive abilities make terrible decisions. Why does this happen? Sydney Finkelstein, bestselling author and Steven Roth Professor of Management for the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College, joins Sally Jackson, public relations consultant and founder of Jackson & Company, to address the specific ways our minds are lured into making misguided judgments. Most importantly, he identifies the way wise leaders sidestep these pitfalls, and how you can do the same.

Green, Dr. Karl Giberson, and Dr. Randall Stephens with Eric Convey: Evangelicals in the Electorate, audio recording, CD, Note: Although some dismiss Evangelical Christians as zealots with uncommon social politics and little regard for science, this powerful voting bloc is a force to be reckoned with in our democracy, and likely misunderstood. Dr. John C. Green, Senior Research Advisor at the Pew Forum on Religion and Public Life, presents empirical data on what evangelicals actually believe based on surveys of clergy and parishioners. Authors of The Anointed, Dr. Karl Giberson and Dr. Randall Stephens, provide an analysis of intellectual authority within this group and examine themes ranging from Creationism to messaging. Ford Hall Forum Board member and former religion reporter for the Boston Herald Eric Convey converses with these sociological researchers to predict how Evangelical Christians' true values will translate into civic action. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

14	346	Barney Frank with Callie Crossley: Dysfunctional Democracy, audio recording, CD, Note: If you thought Congressman Barney Frank was always outspoken, wait until you hear him when there's no reelection on the horizon. The U.S. Representative for Massachusetts' Fourth District is ready to tell us what's wrong with our democracy — from Congressional in-fighting to an electorate that's asleep at the wheel — and how the people can take control and make a difference. He'll also give us his best predictions for Election 2012. Don't miss the host of "The Callie Crossley Show" (WGBH Radio, 89.7), Callie Crossley, in the most "Frank" conversation you've ever heard with Representative Barney Frank. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	348	Paul Tormey, John Linehan, and Saul Wisnia with Peter Meade: Beantown Centennials, audio recording, CD, Note: Director of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, Peter Meade, moderates a program celebrating Boston's three exciting centennials in 2012. Author of the full-color and thoroughly researched "Fenway Park: The Centennial," Saul Wisnia shares original commentary by three generations of Boston Red Sox players and fans, plus little-known stories about our favorite stadium. President & CEO of Zoo New England, John Linehan, then reveals how radically Boston's zoos — and zoology itself — have changed in a century, while describing our furry friends who live there now. Finally, the Fairmont Copley Plaza's Regional Vice President and General Manager, Paul Tormey, showcases the history and trivia behind Boston's jewel of hospitality in the Back Bay. 15	350	Charles Laquidara, Billy Costa, Julie Kramer, and Henry Santoro: Radio Silence, audio recording, CD, Note: WBCN was the original, superstar-establishing, DJ-controlled rock station that showed how excellent rock radio could be when you let the DJs curate the offerings. As independent radio station WFNX is sold to Clear Channel this year, Bostonians wonder how rock radio has become a corporation-controlled industry and whether internet and digital radio can avoid the same fate. DJs Charles Laquidara [via Skype] (WBCN), Billy Costa (KISS 108), Julie Kramer (WFNX/RadioBDC), and Henry Santoro (WFNX/RadioBDC) tell moderator John Laurenti, a New England radio mainstay for over 25 years, about the changes they are adapting to in the new world of music business. We'll hear how WBCN's rise and fall foretold industry changes, the story behind the end of WFNX, and what the rebirth of independent rock radio might look like. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	351	Taylor Twellman and Christopher Nowinski: Gray Matters: Brain Injury in Sports, audio recording, CD, Note: Traumatic brain injury (TBI) in professional sports has made the headlines this year, but has been problematic for scores. Retired professional soccer player Taylor Twellman and retired WWE wrestler Christopher Nowinski both have first-hand knowledge of the effects of TBI on behavior, mental processes, and careers. At ThinkTaylor, Twellman educates players on recognizing and treating injuries, while Nowinski's work at the Sports Legacy Institute includes researching TBI in sports and translating results into safety programs. Legendary sportscaster Bob Lobel draws out whether the threat of TBI means new rules, new equipment, or the end of certain professional sports. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
15	352	Maggie Anderson and Thomas Shapiro: Black Economy, White Privilege, audio recording, CD, Note: Black businesses lag behind businesses of all other racial groups in every measure of success. Is it necessary -- or even possible -- for the black community to sustain its own economy? Author Maggie Anderson shares her year-long journey completely living off Black businesses, called The Empowerment Experiment, and how she encountered a community that refused to support its own, an economy that had Black businesses wholly disenfranchised, and virulent criticism from those outside the Black community who called her a racist. Meanwhile, sociology professor Thomas Shapiro warns that blacks are failing in asset accumulation and homeownership, to the point of negating gains in employment and income. Drawing on economic research, social history, surveys, interviews, and their own personal experiences, these authors show moderator Candelaria Silva how racial inequality is transmitted across generations and pinpoint why the black economy continues to suffer. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
15	353	Yaron Brook and Deborah Kincade Rambo: Reaping is a Virtue, audio recording, CD, Note: Moderator Jeff Jacoby of the Boston Globe asks Yaron Brook, President of the Ayn Rand Institute, and Deborah Kincade Rambo, LICSW, President of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Boston: is charity an expression of virtue? Brook delves into Ayn Rand's beliefs that charity should be undertaken only in self-interest and not out of a sense of false morality -- or, worse, guilt. He explains that Rand's followers would rather applaud the act of making money than giving it away. Rambo counters that charity as a virtue is critical to our collective well-being, enriching our society as it promotes a healthy economy. She argues that self-sacrifice through philanthropy is a form of love in which people of any (or no) religion can participate. Join us as we determine whether benevolence or earning is the real virtue. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

In the shadow of our first African-American president, is this trend a return to a simpler age of the Cold War and domestic abundance? What sparked the trend to run these slicked-back, chiseled-jawed politicians? Two wars, the horrible economy, the need for a "Dad" in the driver's seat to see the USA in a Chevrolet? This all-female panel of Boston personalities, Paula Lyons, Joyce Kulhawik, Lauren Beckham Falcone, Jan Saragoni, and moderator Margery Eagan will explore some voters' need to hearken back to when kids respected adults and neighbors knew each other. These days, when our government seem to be turning back the clock on women's issues, can style rescue us from weighty substance? Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

What sparked the trend to run these slicked-back, chiseled-jawed politicians? Two wars, the horrible economy, the need for a "Dad" in the driver's seat to see the USA in a Chevrolet? This all-female panel of Boston personalities, Paula Lyons, Joyce Kulhawik, Lauren Beckham Falcone, Jan Saragoni, and moderator Margery Eagan will explore some voters' need to hearken back to when kids respected adults and neighbors knew each other. These days, when our government seem to be turning back the clock on women's issues, can style rescue us from weighty substance? This forum is held memory of Nora Ephron, a writer of remarkable style and substance. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	357	Nitin Nohria and Tom Peters with Donna Carpenter: Business Ethics, Coleman Award, audio recording, CD, 1 November 2012. Note: Two of the foremost minds on business, Nitin Nohria, Dean of Harvard Business School, and Thomas J. Peters, author of "In Search of Excellence: Lessons from America's Best-Run Companies," discuss teaching ethics to business students. Nohria and Peters share their wisdom on morally committing to your business, the misnomer of "corporate responsibility," and teachable behavior versus intrinsic personal character. With guidance from moderator Donna Carpenter, CEO of New Word City, their conversation will span from partnering with others who aren't ethical to serving the stakeholders. Between purpose and pay-offs, where are our principles in business today? Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	359	John Rosenthal and Charlton McIlwain with Edward Powell: Guns Don't Kill People, the Media Kills People, video recording, DVD, Note: The media shapes how we see things, even when we know the truth is otherwise. After all, why is the national conversation on guns framed as "pro-gun vs. anti-gun" despite most of our perspectives being much more nuanced? Moderator Edward Powell (Executive Director, The Boston Foundation's StreetSafe Boston) shines a spotlight on how the media's distortion of reality exacerbates gun violence. He speaks with John Rosenthal (gun owner and founder/Chairman of Stop Handgun Violence) and Charlton McIlwain (Associate Professor of Media, Culture, and Communication, NYU Steinhardt) to identify how TV, internet, and newspaper reporting paints an inaccurate picture of guns' effects on communities of color and engages in fear-mongering that fails to prevent further tragedies. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	360	Guy Maytal, M.D. and Marcia Angell, M.D. with Jack Wrobel: Whose Choice is Death?, audio recording, CD, Note: With the vote on the physician-assisted suicide initiative coming down to a slim margin this past November, voters of Massachusetts appear torn. Is this dignity or playing God? Mercy or giving up too soon? Does it give people who are suffering a way to control their own destinies, or people with hidden agendas a way to do away with the vulnerable? And how soon will this issue arise again in our state? Jack Wrobel, Ford Hall Forum Vice President, moderates a debate that elucidates the issue from each side. Marcia Angell, M.D. (supporter for "Prescribing Medication to End Life" initiative) and Guy Maytal, M.D. (opponent to "Prescribing Medication to End Life" initiative) discuss facts, feelings, and unintended effects while the audience decides for themselves whether physician-assisted suicide should ever be Massachusetts law. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	362	2013 First Amendment Award with Barney Frank, video recording, DVD, Note: Former Congressman Barney Frank is a Forum favorite, having graced our stage seven times since 1979. Last year, he completed his illustrious 32-year tenure in the U.S. House of Representatives, throughout which he was boldly outspoken at every opportunity. Frank consistently chose to be the voice of those who often have no voice: Combat Zone sex workers, the elderly, Japanese-Americans in WWII, and even animals. One of the most powerful statements he made on his defense of civil liberties was his opposition to "Respect for America's Fallen Heroes," proving that his support for the First Amendment supersedes any personal agenda. In light of how he has conducted such a vital, brave career, Ford Hall Forum presents Barney Frank with our 2013 First Amendment Award to commend his commitment to civic engagement, democracy, and expression. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	363	Melissa Hohr, Margot Mifflin, and Bill Downing with Robin Abrahams: Hell in a Handbasket: The Decline of Taboos, video recording, DVD, Note: Not long ago, we lived in a world where cursing was verboten, only sailors had tattoos, and smoking marijuana was confined to college experimentation. Are these things really more prevalent today or were they acceptable long before they reached the puritanical eyes of American society? And if they are met with less disdain these days, is it because we're a more accepting society or because this is the beginning of a backslide into a social world rife with slovenly self-conduct? Moderator Robin Abrahams (author, "Miss Conduct" etiquette column) talks with Melissa Mohr (author, Holy Sh*t: A Brief History of Swearing), Margot Mifflin (author, Bodies of Subversion: A Secret History of Women and Tattoo), and Bill Downing (former President, MassCANN/NORML) to determine whether we can let it all hang out or if crossing the line is a harbinger of societal disaster. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
15	364	Elizabeth F. Thompson and Leila Farsakh with Robert Laffey: Hope Arab Spring Eternal, video recording, DVD, Note: How much closer are Middle Eastern countries to having functioning constitutional governments than they were in the spring of 2011? How will such governments impact their economies? What unique challenges and opportunities has each country faced in building new government? How has the culture played into the emerging politics? Elizabeth F. Thompson (author, Justice Interrupted) and Leila Farsakh (Associate Professor of Political Science, UMass Boston) join us to provide an update on happenings in the Middle East, particularly in terms of consequences we did not foresee two years ago. Robert Laffey (Assistant Professor of Government, Suffolk University) guides this discussion on post-Arab Spring sociopolitical changes, mining Thompson's book for historical context and Farsakh's research for current insights. Elizabeth F. Thompson will be signing and selling copies of her book, Justice Interrupted, at the end of the event. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
15	365	Garrett Quinn, Adam Gaffin and Cheryl Fiandaca with Skip Perham: Social Media in the Boston Marathon Bombings, DVD, Note: As the Boston Marathon bombing crisis unfolded over a week's time, we witnessed firsthand how integral social media is to a public emergency in these modern times. While Redditors worked to identify the culprits, innocent victims were wrongly accused. It facilitated both the accommodation of those stranded after the Marathon and urban legends of those supposedly helped. We were thankful for the connection to loved ones during Friday's lockdown, yet did little besides exacerbating our own fears while glued to Facebook for eight hours. Join Garrett Quinn (Correspondent, Watertown TAB and Blogger, Boston.com), Adam Gaffin (Editor, Universal Hub), and Cheryl Fiandaca (Bureau Chief of Public Information, Boston Police Department) as they discuss with moderator Skip Perham (Board Clerk, Ford Hall Forum) how we can capitalize on social media's incredible benefits of crowd sourcing and speed while protecting against its inaccuracy and fear-mongering. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	366	Anchee Min with Elif Armbruster: The Chinese-American Dream, video recording, DVD, Note: Twenty years after penning her first memoir on growing up in China during the Cultural Revolution, author Anchee Min now releases The Cooked Seed: the true story of her journey to, and within, America. Min draws us in to bear witness to her trek from a land of deprivation to one of surrounding bounty that is just out of her reach. She works five jobs at once and suffers rape, exhaustion, and divorce. As these revolutionary personal events shape her world view, they culminate in the biggest shift of all: the birth of her daughter. Moderator Elif Armbruster (Associate Professor of English, Suffolk University) helps Min present her unique immigration narrative within the universal struggle of building a life despite precious few fundamental tools. Anchee Min will be signing and selling copies of her book, The Cooked Seed, at the end of the event. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
15	367	Nicco Mele and Kevin Bankston with Dharmishta Rood: Rise of the Individual, audio recording, CD, Note: The invention of the internet has opened an entirely new world of communication and, therefore, organization. With so much power now in the hands of the individual, one questions whether we need institutions anymore. As this technology progresses, we face an inevitable need to restructure our government systems, safety measures, and concept of ownership, as well as their attached legal implications. But while the world touts the internet as the prime conveyor of a bold, new democracy, we consider how it also ushers in sharper methods of surveillance and control. Moderator Dharmishta Rood (Fellow, Harvard University Psychology Department) leads Nicco Mele (Founder, EchoDitto and author, The End of Big) and Kevin Bankston (Director, Free Expression Project, Center for Democracy & Technology) in a bold discussion on how the internet is giving rise to the individual. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

15	370	The Menino Legacy: Down to the Wire, video recording, DVD, Note: The Boston Foundation's Mary Jo Meisner as she moderates an in-depth discussion with political consultant Mary Anne Marsh, Boston Globe's Joan Vennoch, Suffolk University's VP of Government Relations & Community Affairs John Nucci, and Nixon Peabody partner Lawrence DiCara on the Menino legacy, its impact on the 2013 race and the future of Boston. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
15	371	Hendrick Smith and Yaron Brook with Rachael Cobb: Money and Power, video recording, DVD (1:30:21), Note: A critical debate featuring Pulitzer Prize winner Hedrick Smith and President of the Ayn Rand Foundation Yaron Brook as they discuss how the economy came to be in its current state. Smith argues that a pro-business power shift in Washington and a change in the American business ethos away from stakeholder capitalism to shareholder capitalism has created a harmful economic divide in America. Brook counters that today's mess is a product, not of capitalism, but of empowering the government to restrict free enterprise and dole out favors to preferred groups. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082

Learn what Weldemariam said about Ethiopian politics in an interview that resulted in his dismissal and permanent prohibition from Ethiopian collegiate employment. Later, hear how Abbasgholizadeh has been jailed again and again for her peaceful activism. Digital recording available: https://www.youtube.com/user/fordhallforum19082
