FROM THE DEAN

Dear Graduates of Suffolk University Law School:

As graduates, you have a continuing interest in the school. We hope you visit us, use the law library and otherwise continue to be involved in the life of Suffolk. As the Dean, I intend to correspond with you on a regular basis by means of this newsletter.

I hope you will find this issue of the newsletter informative. I want it to serve as a continuing means of communication between the Law School and the alumni. At Law will be coming to you three times a year and we will use it to update you on the various happenings at the school.

I was honored last year by being appointed Dean of Suffolk University Law School. Before assuming this position, I was aware of the fine quality of the students, alumni, faculty and educational programs, and that impression has been strongly reinforced since I arrived at Suffolk. It is a vital center of legal education, and I am pleased to be associated with it.

In September, the faculty and administration welcomed a new entering class of several hundred graduates of some of the best undergraduate colleges in the nation. The median entering freshman represents the top 20 percent of the nationwide pool of law school applicants.

I am pleased to report that we have added three new faculty members this year: Professors Robert Kelley and Donald Polk, graduates of the Law School; and Professor Michael Slinger, named Law Librarian.

Two of our faculty members have written essays which were selected as first place winners for legal writing excellence in national competitions. Increasingly, members of our faculty are being selected to address national bar committees. The high quality of our faculty scholarship is reflected in the growing number of articles and books being published.

Our student body continue to distinguish themselves and their alma mater. The class of 1990 received 26 judicial clerkships in federal and state courts from Maine to Alaska.

Our excellent programs in moot court, on both the trial and appellate levels, are flourishing. Suffolk's moot court teams participate in 11 national competitions. We continue to expand the internal moot court programs, with programs like our second-year trial competition and our third-year advanced trial advocacy program. Professor Marc Greenbaum, the faculty moot court advisor, works with an excellent student board in administering these programs. Our student publications, the Law Review and the Transnational Law Journal, under the direction of faculty advisors Professors Alexander Celia and Stephen Hicks, continue the tradition of excellence established by prior staffs.

Our clinical programs also excel. The Law School operates a Spanish-speaking clinical program under the direction of Professor Steven Callahan. We operate clinical programs in criminal law, housing law, family law, and an innovative battered women’s clinic.

During this year I will be traveling throughout New England and the nation to meet with as many of you as possible. We need alumni to assist us as we recruit talented students, and to refer job opportunities to our placement office. Financial support is, of course, extremely important also.

I am committed to making the law school program the best it possibly can be, with the support and dedication of new Associate Dean Charles Kindregan along with Associate Dean Malcolm Donahue and a talented faculty.

Herbert Lemelman has returned to full-time writing and teaching after 14 years as associate dean. Professor Lemelman’s service paralleled years of great progress in the Law School. In June 1990, Professor Charles Kindregan, who has served on the Law School faculty for 23 years, became associate dean.

In January 1991, Professor Russell Murphy, a graduate and long-time faculty member of Suffolk, will also become an associate dean. Associate Dean Malcolm Donahue will continue in his post until July 1991, when he will resume the position of professor of law. Dean Donahue has served on the faculty for 35 years, 17 as associate dean. His many contributions to the alumni, students and faculty of the Law School are well known, and his service on the faculty will be an on-going source of strength and inspiration to everyone at Suffolk.

Finally, the Law School needs your financial support. I hope you will respond generously to this year’s annual law fund when you are contacted.

Enjoy the holiday season.

Paul R. Sugarman
CLE programs have new focus

This fall, the Center for Continuing Professional Development presented an in-depth six-week course entitled, “The ABC’s of Bankruptcy.” Taught by Charles P. Normandin, Esq. of Ropes & Gray, the course was designed to benefit those who were either new to the area of bankruptcy or who did not specialize in bankruptcy but found bankruptcy issues arising with increasing frequency in their real estate or corporate law practices. Nearly 150 attorneys representing over 75 law firms from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Hampshire registered to attend the course.

Also this fall, the Center produced an evening program of intense analysis of property division and other issues in connection with divorce practice. The program featured two of the country’s leading experts in the field, Associate Dean Charles P. Kindregan and Monroe L. Inker, Esq., authors of a four-volume work on family law and practice, recently published by West Publishing Company as part of its Massachusetts Practice Series. Also featured were Judges Edward M. Ginsburg and Eileen M. Shaevel of the Massachusetts Probate and Family Court. Over 200 attorneys registered to attend the program.

These programs are designed as highly concentrated sessions with a strong academic component. They complement the Center’s previous continuing legal education programs which have been primarily skills-oriented one-day seminars dealing with recent developments in a particular area of the law.

“While other providers in the Boston and New England areas are able to present skills programs,” said Professor Anthony B. Sandoe, director of the Center, “Suffolk Law School, with its faculty, library, research facilities and physical plant, is particularly well suited to offer more expanded programs.”

Encouraged by the successes of its fall 1990 offerings, Sandoe announced that the Center for Continuing Professional Development and the faculty committee are planning to offer additional mini-courses and highly focused cutting-edge academic programs in the spring. In March, Professor Thomas F. Lambert, Jr. will present, “Damage Issues in the Tort Case.”

Slinger named librarian

Michael J. Slinger, former associate director for public services at the University of Notre Dame Law School Library, has replaced Edward J. Bandor as law librarian at Suffolk Law School. Bandor, librarian since 1978, retired at the close of the last academic year.

Slinger joined Suffolk on July 1. A 1978 graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, he received his master’s degree in library science from the University of South Carolina in 1979 and his JD degree from Duquesne University School of Law in 1984.

Slinger’s background includes teaching legal research at Notre Dame Law School, where he is credited with integrating the circulation and research departments into one cooperative public service unit. He also conducted WESTLAW and LEXIS training classes for students and faculty and has written a number of publications. He is the only person to have twice won the “Call for Papers Competition” of the American Association of Law Libraries. His award-winning publications include: “Opening a Window of Opportunity: The Law Library Staff as an Integrated Part of the Law School Community,” and “Career Paths and Education of Current Academic Law Library Directors.”

Moot Court schedule set

Suffolk University Law School’s Moot Court has set its 1990-1991 schedule for intra-school competitions.

In trial competitions, the Second-Year Mock Trial began in mid-November and continued into early December.

The appellate competitions begin with the Justice Tom C. Clark Appellate Advocacy Competition which will focus on First Amendment issues, to be held from early February to early March. Following will be the First-Year Moot Court Program scheduled for February 19 to March 28, 1991. The season will end with the Walter H. McLaughlin Oral Advocacy Competition scheduled for the month of April.
Two join faculty

Dean Sugarman has announced the appointment of two new members of the full-time faculty of the Law School.

Robert H. Kelley is an associate professor of law. A graduate of Tufts University, Professor Kelley received his juris doctor degree from Suffolk University Law School in 1984. He was previously associated with Gaston & Snow, Boston. He is a registered professional structural engineer in Massachusetts. Professor Kelley will teach courses in property law.

Donald L. Polk, named associate professor of law, received his undergraduate and master of social work degrees from Fordham University. He holds a juris doctorate from Suffolk University Law School. He was formerly president/CEO of the New York Urban League of New York City. Professor Polk will teach courses in family law and non-profit corporations.

Sugarman named special master

The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has appointed Dean Paul R. Sugarman a special master with authority to conduct an administrative inquiry into alleged improprieties within the Boston Municipal Court. Dean Sugarman will report his findings, conclusions and recommendations on or about the end of this year.

The appointment came as a response to a Boston Globe Spotlight Team series of articles suggesting that some politically connected lawyers have received preferential treatment from some judges at the Boston Municipal Court.

Judge Sporkin speaks on America's fiscal crisis

Sporkin explained to students and faculty that the government’s multi-layered oversight system and private industry’s lack of qualified directors have caused the country’s fiscal woes.

Sporkin, a former general counsel of the Central Intelligence Agency, explained, “It is difficult to believe that our nation, after 200 years of existence, still imposes few if any qualifications with respect to individuals who oversee our private corporate sector. We need better qualified directors, who are intelligent, knowledgeable, and possess the highest integrity, to oversee our major institutions.”

Sporkin suggested that overlapping and counterproductive controls in financial services could be eliminated “by creating one standard-setting group and one standard-enforcement group to oversee our security and financial markets.”

Using the example of one-stop banking, Sporkin suggested that the U.S. should implement a financial supermarket where customers can do their banking, “buy insurance, invest in the stock market, and have a mortgage account—all under one roof.”

The second speaker for the series was Louis Fisher, a senior specialist in separation of powers with the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress. The author of over 100 articles in law reviews, political science journals, magazines and newspapers, Fisher discussed, “The Curious Quest for Judicial Supremacy” on November 15. He spoke on the notion of the supremacy of constitutional law, which was the subject of recent Senate hearings. Fisher also elaborated on the dialogue between the courts and political branches and its impact in cases dealing with slavery, women’s rights, and child labor issues.

The final lecture will be held in April. Dean Jack Greenberg of Columbia College, Columbia University, author of several books on human rights, civil rights, capital punishment, and social change will close out the 1990-1991 series.

Goodwin scholars named

At a reception held at the Law School on December 4, two law students received the 1990 Harold B. Goodwin, Jr. Best Trial Advocate Award. Charlotte Glinka, a third-year student from Boston, and Douglas Antoon, a fourth-year (evening division) student from Billerica, each received a $1000 scholarship. They were best oral advocates in the trial advocacy competition held this fall in the Donahue Building moot courtroom. Paul R. Keane, JD 80, chairman of the Harold B. Goodwin, Jr. Legal Scholarship Fund Committee, made the presentations.

In 1989, Robert E. Kiely, Jr., JD 90, and Timothy C. Kelleher, III, JD 90, were the first recipients of the award.
Crowe and Panuthos receive honors at dinner

More than 700 alumni and friends of Suffolk University Law School attended the 1990 annual alumni dinner on December 6 at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel, at which two fellow graduates received honors for outstanding service and achievement.

Robert B. Crowe, BA 70/JD 73, received the 1990 Outstanding Alumni Service Award. Crowe served as a member of the board of directors of the Law School Alumni Association from 1985 to 1987, when he was elected by Law School alumni to represent them as an alumni-trustee on the Suffolk University board of trustees. Upon completion of that three-year term, Crowe was appointed by the board to a five-year term as a Suffolk University trustee. He sits on numerous University trustee committees. Crowe is a founding and sustaining member of Summa, the University's leadership donors giving association. He is a partner in the Boston law firm of Crowe, Crowe & Vernaglia where he specializes in corporate/taxation law. He resides in Boston and is the father of three daughters and one son.

The Honorable Peter J. Panuthos, JD 69, accepted the 1990 Outstanding Alumni Achievement Award. He is a Special Trial Judge, U.S. Tax Court. Judge Panuthos has rendered numerous opinions in various tax and procedural areas including the TEFRA partnership rules, enforcement of Tax Court rules relating to sanctions against litigants or their counsel, and protection of the rights of pro se litigants to avail themselves of the Tax Court as a forum for their disputes. He is a regular guest lecturer in the graduate tax programs at Boston University Law School and Bentley College. He was keynote speaker at B.U. Law School's 1990 graduate tax program commencement. Judge Panuthos served as president of the Suffolk Law School Association of Metropolitan Washington from 1988 to 1990. He resides in Washington, D.C. with his wife, Dr. Jean Pfaelzer.

Paul R. Sugarman spoke about his first year as dean of the Law School. Dennis M. Duggan, Jr., JD 78, president of the Law School Alumni Association, presided over the speaking program. Dinner co-chairs Gary C. Crossen, JD 77, and Kevin J. Sullivan, JD 78, made the awards presentations.

Alumni surveyed for directory

During the past few weeks, all alumni of the Law School were mailed questionnaires seeking updated information for use in preparing the 1991 edition of the Suffolk University Law School Alumni Directory. Like its predecessor, which was published in 1987, this new volume will include alumni listings in four categories: alphabetical, geographical, class year, and business/firm. It will be edited by Harris Publishing Company and will be available for purchase by any Suffolk graduate.

The Law School Alumni Association urges all graduates to return the questionnaires promptly in order to ensure that all information about Suffolk's 16,000 law graduates is as up-to-date and accurate as possible.

Law Board elects officers

Dennis M. Duggan, Jr, JD 78, has been elected by the board of directors of the Law School Alumni Association (LSAA) to a second term as LSAA president. Duggan, a resident of Milton, is a partner in the Boston law firm of Peabody & Brown. During his first term, he presided over the Annual Law Alumni Dinner in December 1989 and the spring welcoming reception for Dean Sugarman held at the Copley Plaza Hotel. This year, in addition to the Law Dinner, the LSAA will sponsor the May 1991 U.S. Supreme Court Bar Admissions Program in Washington, DC.

Susan L. Howard, JD 81, of Peterborough, New Hampshire, is vice president of the LSAA. A past president of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association, New Hampshire chapter, she is associated with the Peterborough law firm of Runyon & Sweeney. Maria Y. Lesser, JD 84, is serving as clerk. She resides in Newton and is employed by the MBTA Legal Department in Boston.

Two alumni were elected to three-year terms on the LSAA board of directors this past spring. Douglas S. Bishop, JD 77, who lives and practices law in

Rhode Island graduates attend reception

More than 100 alumni from Rhode Island welcomed Dean Sugarman at a reception held in October at the Biltmore Hotel in Providence. The Honorable Frank Caprio, JD 65, Providence Municipal Court, chaired the reception committee. Shown at the event are (l-r) The Honorable Haiganush R. Bedrosian, JD 71, and The Honorable Kathleen A. Voccola, JD 77, both of the Rhode Island Family Court; and Judge Caprio.
Traverse City, Michigan, will represent alumni from out of state. He was a member of the board of directors from 1983 to 1989. Michael K. Gillis, JD 82, will represent alumni in Massachusetts. He is a partner in the law firm of Gillis & Bikofsky of Newton, Massachusetts.

Re-elected to three-year terms were Gary C. Crossen, JD 77, of Needham, Massachusetts, who is of counsel, Foley, Hoag & Eliot, Boston; Susan L. Howard; and John D. Hughes, of Concord, Massachusetts, a partner in the Boston law firm of Hutchins & Wheeler.

Jo Frances Kaplan, JD 82, of Boston, is completing the term of Richard J. Leon, JD 74, who resigned to become an alumni-trustee for Suffolk University. He serves as an ex-officio member of the LSAA board of directors.

Symposium addresses
N.H. issues

In a lively exchange of ideas, Suffolk Law School alumni from the bar and the bench in New Hampshire discussed practicing law in their state at a symposium held on November 14 at the Manchester Country Club. “New Hampshire Practice: A View from the Bench,” featured remarks by a panel of five of the state’s most distinguished judges as well as one clerk of court. It was sponsored by the New Hampshire chapter of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association.

The panel included Judges Martin F. Loughlin, JD 51, U.S. District Court; Linda S. Dalianis, JD 74, and James J. Barry, Jr., JD 68, both of the N.H. Superior Court; Paul R. Kfoury, JD 68, Hooksett District Court; John R. Maher, JD 68, Rockingham County Probate Court; and Marshall A. Buttrick, JD 78, clerk, Merrimack County Superior Court.

Panelists were invited to give their thoughts or advice to fellow alumni on an aspect of New Hampshire practice. Judge Kfoury spoke to the subject of New Hampshire’s system of part-time judges. The quality of the district court bar is outstanding, he said, but judges face increasingly complex and time-consuming legal issues today. He suggested that it is time to evaluate New Hampshire’s part-time judicial system in terms of the current environment.

Marshall Buttrick talked about financial constraints, saying they are making the job of the clerk more difficult. “The funnel is still the same size. There’s just more paper trying to get through.” The issue, he said, is a bottom-line one. “If we want a justice system, we must pay for it.”

In her remarks, Judge Dalianis praised the calibre of Suffolk Law alumni, who make up 10 percent of the New Hampshire bar. She then offered two practical tips for lawyers. Be succinct and be flexible. “When a point is made, it’s made,” she said. You will make friends if you come to court with a proposed order. She observed that little is gained by an intransigent position. “T he art of litigation is the art of compromise,” she said. “To the extent that you are regarded as someone who is willing to make sensible compromise, your credibility will be enhanced.”

Carol J. Holahan, JD 88, president of the New Hampshire chapter, organized the symposium and the reception which preceded it.

Deans meet Philadelphia alumni

Alumni from the Philadelphia area met Dean Sugarman and Associate Dean Kindregan at a reception in the Hotel Atop the Bellevue on November 14. Shown here are (l-r) Eugene H. Gillin, JD 73, with Dean Kindregan.

Marshall Buttrick talked about financial constraints, saying they are making the job of the clerk more difficult. “The funnel is still the same size. There’s just more paper trying to get through.” The issue, he said, is a bottom-line one. “If we want a justice system, we must pay for it.”

In her remarks, Judge Dalianis praised the calibre of Suffolk Law alumni, who make up 10 percent of the New Hampshire bar. She then offered two practical tips for lawyers. Be succinct and be flexible. “When a point is made, it’s made,” she said. You will make friends if you come to court with a proposed order. She observed that little is gained by an intransigent position. “The art of litigation is the art of compromise,” she said. “To the extent that you are regarded as someone who is willing to make sensible compromise, your credibility will be enhanced.”

Carol J. Holahan, JD 88, president of the New Hampshire chapter, organized the symposium and the reception which preceded it.

Class of 1950 turn 40

More than one-third of the class of 1950 celebrated their 40th anniversary at a reunion dinner-dance on November 10 at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel. Class members from throughout the eastern United States attended. Special guests for the evening were Dean Sugarman and Associate Deans Kindregan and Donahue; Dorothy M. McNamara, former alumni secretary; and John E. Fenton, former associate dean and now chief justice on the Massachusetts Land Court. Lawrence F. O’Donnell, class president, presented the Law School with a class gift. The class’ fund-raising efforts are continuing.

FACULTY NOTES

R. Lisle Baker (professor) had his essay “Enhancing Professional Competence and Legal Excellence Through Teaching Law Practice Management” published this fall in the Journal of Legal Education.

Eric D. Blumenson (professor), in conjunction with the members of the Massachusetts Criminal Defense Bar, has written a two-volume book entitled Massachusetts Criminal Defense: District Court and Pretrial, published by Butterworth Legal Publishers.

Kate Nace Day (associate professor) will serve as a reporter for the Chief Justice’s Commission on the Future of the Courts. She will work with the Task Force on Technology.

Victoria J. Dodd (professor) was interviewed on the WLVI-TV Evening News in July, concerning the nomination of Judge David Souter to the U.S. Supreme Court. Her article on workplace education appeared on the Forum Page of the Sunday New York Times Business Section on September 30, 1990.

Terrence B. Downes (adjunct) was appointed in June to serve as a delegate to the International Election Observation Mission to the Bulgarian National elections. Upon his return home, he was honored by the Massachusetts House of Representatives with a “Resolution of Commendation” for his contribution to democracy in Bulgaria.

Steven M. Eisenstat (associate professor) had his article entitled “An Analysis of the Rationality of Mandatory Testing for the HIV Antibody: Balancing the Governmental Public Health Interests with the Individual’s Privacy Interest” accepted for publication in the February 1991 edition of the University of Pittsburgh Law Review.

Linda C. Fentiman (professor) has been sworn in by the Governor of Massachusetts as a member of the Medico-Legal Investigation Commission. In June 1990, she was appointed a consultant in law and ethics at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Honorable John E. Fenton, Jr. (adjunct), the former Associate Dean at Suffolk, has been appointed Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Land Court for a five-year term.

Steven E. Ferrey (professor) was chosen to serve on the long-range planning working group on The Boston Harbor, and he continues to serve as a trustee of the Boston Harbor Association. He was also a featured participant in a symposium on Energy and the Environment sponsored by the Columbia University School of Law in April, 1990 in New York City.

Dwight Golann (professor) was interviewed in May and June on Good Morning America, the ABC-TV network program, about advertising regulation and the causes of the S & L crisis. His article entitled, “New Disasters Brewing? The Need for Reform of Federal Deposit Insurance” was printed in the Boston Sunday Globe (July 8, 1990) and another article titled “Consumer Litigation in the Age of Combat Banking” was printed in the Business Lawyer, June 1990 issue.

Marc D. Greenbaum (professor) delivered a talk on discipline and discharge issues in arbitration at a conference sponsored by the American Arbitration Association in November. Also in November, he moderated a program conducted by the Massachusetts Bar Association's Section on Labor and Employment Law on professional ethics in the practice of labor and employment law. Greenbaum is a visiting professor at Boston College Law School for Fall semester 1990 teaching a labor law course.
Tenth for the class of 80

On October 20, more than 150 members of the class of 1980 and their guests attended their tenth reunion at the Skyline Room of the Museum of Science. Dean Sugarman and his wife, Susan, greeted class members and Edwin L. Wallace addressed the class. Picture are some of the reunion committee (l-r): Edwin L. Wallace, Elizabeth A. Ziembra, Joseph A. Swartz, Karen Harr Lamkin, Newell Cook, Virginia A. Hoefling, and James A.G. Hamilton.

STEPHEN C. HICKS (professor) and Steven Spitzer, CLAS, Sociology, received a grant from the ABA's Commission on College and University Nonprofessional Legal Studies for 1990-1991 to develop and implement a symposium for undergraduate faculty teaching an interdisciplinary course in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

ANN C. HOWELL (adjunct) presented a paper on “Police Shootings and Constructed Racism” in March at the Academy on Criminal Justice Sciences’ 1990 annual meeting in Denver, Colorado.

BERNARD V. KEENAN (professor) has been appointed vice-chair of the Urban, State and Local Government Section's Land Use Committee for 1990-1991 by the ABA.

THOMAS F. LAMBERT, JR. (distinguished professor) presented a paper entitled “Highlight and Sidelights in Tort” at the Kentucky Trial Lawyers Association seminar in Louisville, Kentucky in September, 1990. He also presented a paper, “New Developments in Motor Vehicle Litigation” at the Iowa Trial Lawyers Association seminar held in Des Moines, Iowa in October, 1990.

RUSSELL G. MURPHY (professor) is a visiting scholar at Harvard Law School for the Fall 1990 semester.

LAURA BENNETT PETERSON (associate professor) participated in the School of Management’s symposium, “Integrating Law & Business: A Challenge for the 90s” in April.

MICHAEL RUSTAD (associate professor) presented a paper at the Law and Society Association’s Annual Meeting held in Berkeley, California in May 1990 entitled, “A History of the Evening Law School Movement in Boston.” His article (written with Professor Thomas Koenig), entitled “Suffolk Law Graduates in Large New England Law Firms: An Empirical Study of a Prestige Image in Transition” was published in The Advocate, Fall 1990 issue.

MARIN R. SCORDATO (associate professor) received the Cornelius J. Moynihan Award for Teaching Excellence for the 1989-1990 academic year. He also had an article accepted for publication entitled “The Dualist Model of Legal Teaching and Scholarship” by the American University Law Review in December, 1990.

Kindregan author of family law treatise

Associate Dean Charles Kindregan is the co-author (with Monroe L. Inker, Esq.) of a new four-volume treatise on Family Law, which has been published by West Publishing Co. as Volumes 1, 2, 2A and 3 of the Massachusetts Practice Series. The treatise explores the history of family law in Massachusetts and examines both theoretical and practical issues of concern to lawyers, the courts and the general public. Among the areas covered are ethics, fees, jurisdiction, marriage, divorce, annulment, abuse prevention actions, separation, adoption, change of name, substitute care for children, paternity, modification, equitable relief, the rights and liabilities of non-married lovers and legal aspects of human reproduction. The new book has been the subject of favorable review in such publications as the Newsletter of the Family Law Section of the Massachusetts Bar Association and Lawyer's Weekly.
ON THE HORIZON

Friday, January 18
Maine State Bar Association Winter Meeting
Alumni Reception
Holiday Inn
Portland, ME*

Thursday, January 31
New Hampshire Bar Association Annual Meeting/Alumni Dinner
Sheraton-Wayfarer
Bedford, NH*

Wednesday, February 27
Suffolk University Law School Alumni
Reception
Banker’s Club
Miami, FL*

Thursday, March 7
Suffolk University Law School Alumni
Reception
Mechanics Hall
Worcester, MA*

Sunday, May 19
Reception for Supreme Court participants
and DC Law Alumni
Hay-Adams Hotel
Washington, DC*

Monday, May 20
U.S. Supreme Court Bar Admission program
U.S. Supreme Court
Washington, DC
9:00 a.m.
Luncheon to follow*

Saturday, May 25
Summa Dinner
Copley Plaza Hotel
Boston, MA
6:00 p.m.
By Invitation

Sunday, May 26
Commencement
Hynes Auditorium
Boston, MA

* Will be announced in a separate mailing.

Suffolk University
Law School Alumni Programs & Publications Office
8 Ashburton Place
Boston, MA 02108

At Law is published by the Suffolk University Law School Alumni Programs & Publications Office.
It is distributed without charge to alumni. Address Corrections Requested.