EDITOR'S NOTE

To the Reader:

Welcome to the second volume of the Suffolk Journal of Trial & Appellate Advocacy. Since the inception of the Journal with our first volume in 1995 the Moot Court Board has worked tirelessly to ensure it's permanency. This second volume is a testament to that effort and marks what we hope to be the beginning of a long and prosperous career.

Training effective trial and appellate advocates has traditionally been a strength of Suffolk University Law School. The Suffolk Journal of Trial & Appellate Advocacy is aimed at promoting this goal through scholarly examination of those issues facing the modern courtroom advocate.

The Editors wish to thank the Moot Court Faculty Committee, the faculty, Professor Richard Pizzano and those former members of the Moot Court Board who provided support in the production of Volume II. The Editors also wish to extend a special thanks to Dean John Fenton, Jr. and Associate Dean William T. Corbett for ensuring that the Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy was granted a life beyond our inaugural volume. Lastly, the Editors would like to thank those members of the 1995-1996 and 1996-1997 Moot Court Boards for their unwavering support.
