Low Program Changed

Due To Emergency

Dr. Frank B. Kerwin, provost of Suffolk University, has announced that as of April 15th, the Suffolk University will change its low program due to emergency. The change was made necessary by the current situation in the city of Boston, which has been declared a "military area." The provost stated that all students who have completed their courses will be granted a certificate of attendance. Those who have not completed their courses will be allowed to continue their studies at a later date. The provost emphasized that the change is only temporary and that the university will return to its regular program as soon as the situation improves.

Dr. E. M. Murphy

Between the rivers Oga and Horn, about forty miles from the Great Wall of China, lies the city of Peking. Within its walls are city gates, which, for one year, Dr. E. M. Murphy, S.U.'s associate professor of English, taught her favorite subject, English.

Born in the small town of Shenandoah, Iowa, Miss Murphy has traveled around the world, speaking several languages, and has traveled to Europe several times. This winter she had the opportunity to spend an A.I.R. from Smith, an M.A. from the University of Wisconsin, and a Ph.D. from the State University of Iowa. Her graduate work was done at Bread Loaf School of English, Bread Loaf, Vt., Columbia, N.Y.U., and Cambridge, England.

Dr. Murphy feels that English and literature are basic necessities for students who wishes to become a success in life. Perhaps if the great Conflict between Robert A. Bunt and Robert R. tuner is worth the paper on the English language and the importance of English in the classroom, she might express her sentiments this way: "An understanding of English is the key to the English language. Let us all be free, for without one another is useless."

Dr. Murphy's present hobby is reading, but she would like to own a big house and raise cattle.

Dr. Catherine Feber

For three years, Dr. S.U.'s only professor of romance languages, believes that "Boston is a wonderful place to live and work in." Miss Feber was born in Munich, Germany, the capital of Bavaria. She moved to America with her American parents at the age of one year. Because her parents were Americans, Miss Feber became an American citizen with the help of a German uncle.

New York City became her home, while she grew up and attended school. After graduating from high school, she went to Vassar and earned her first degree, an A.B., and a Ph.D. from Bryn Mawr. The Ph.D. was awarded in the field of linguistics. Her graduate work was done at Madison, Wisconsin, Florence, and Mexico City.

Having visited many countries in Europe and Central America, Miss Feber feels that traveling and living in foreign lands makes a person appreciate his own country a great deal. She spent three years in France, and believes that the country "make one feel at home,"

Dr. Feber has been at S.U. for all most three years and feels that it is "just the right place." Her only hobbies are music and reading.

Miss Edith M. Marken

A newspaperwoman who was said "... newspapers and women don't mix." He has been mistaken. Today's daily newspaper is hiring more women all the time. Among the "women newspaperers," S.U. has Miss Edith M. Marken, assistant professor of journalism. Marken's research record is something that any journalism professor could be proud of.

Marken was born on a farm near Mason City, Iowa, and grew up in nearby Hampton, a town of about 4,000 population. Her first contact with

Upon entering through the old covered bridge, and on nearing the glass entrance door, we catch a glimpse of the grandiose building. The windows are of a deep amber color, and the doors are of a pale blue. The entrance hall is decorated with elaborate plaster work and intricate carvings. The ceiling is adorned with a magnificent chandelier, and the walls are lined with richly textured tapestries. The atmosphere is both stately and welcoming, with a sense of history that permeates the every corner of the building.

To the Editor:

The faculty of the English Department has decided to initiate a foreign language program for the coming school year. The purpose of this program is to provide students with an opportunity to further their linguistic skills and to expand their cultural horizons.
