EDITOR'S NOTE

To the Reader:

Welcome to Volume V of the Suffolk Journal of Trial & Appellate Advocacy. This Journal is a reflection of the Suffolk University Law School Moot Court Board's commitment to providing a forum for current issues in legal advocacy. The articles featured in Volume V were written with the focus of assisting the legal practitioner by providing insight and information applicable in the courtroom setting. The Editorial Board hopes that each reader will glean useful and timely legal information from Volume V.

I would like to thank the entire Moot Court staff for their hard work and assistance throughout the production process. Volume V is the product of a true team effort between its writers and editorial staff in ensuring the Journal is of the highest quality. I would like to recognize the Editorial Board, and specifically Managing Editor, John Powers, for his tireless commitment to the Journal. Similarly, I would like to thank Moot Court President Theresa MacKinnon and Vice-President Michael Fencer for offering whatever assistance was needed in the realization of the Journal.

The entire Journal staff would like to thank Dean Robert Smith, Dean John E. Fenton, Acting Dean William Corbett, the Associate Deans, the Journal Faculty Committee, and the faculty staff of Suffolk University Law School for their support and assistance in the production of Volume V. I would predominantly like to thank our Moot Court Faculty Advisor, Professor Richard Pizzano, for his guidance throughout this past year .
