To the Alumni of Suffolk University

I present this as my first report as President of Suffolk University. It is with deep humility that I approach this subject. As alumni you are not interested in personalities, but you are sincerely concerned with the manner in which your Alma Mater is carrying into execution its purpose—the education of young men and women of moderate means.

as you can all attest, have earned and are earning their own way. That is the American way, and a survey of the records of its alumni and present student body shows it is the best way.

Suffolk will succeed and survive only if its contribution to the educational world is a sincere, honest, and wide-

Suffolk was founded as, is, and always will be, I trust, an American University for the earnest, ambitious youth of this section of the country. Suffolk is American because it is non-denominational, non-political, and gives to every student an equal opportunity to develop himself. A student's creed, color, or financial position is rightly of no consequence. A student's ambition, conscientiousness, and desire to learn are of great consequence. Suffolk students, awake training in democracy, decency, and devotion to truth. That Suffolk is making this contribution, her record proves. Realizing that ninety per cent of our alumni are graduates of the Law School, and being a lawyer myself, I shall cut short the "opening of the case" and proceed to the "evidence."

That Suffolk is meeting more than a local need is shown by the fact that over 1500 of our 1980 students live within

President WALTER M. BURSE

Born in Pittsfield, Maine, 49 years ago, Mr. Burse is the third president in the forty-two year history of the school. He was graduated from Brown University in 1920, and has been associated with Suffolk as treasurer and trustee since 1946.

President Burse is a former adjutant of Paulius Military School and a former instructor at Moses Brown School in Providence. He has been a practicing lawyer since 1923, is past president of the Boston Exchange Club, and is now director of the New England School of Art.
twenty miles of the University, but the remainder come from the following states: Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont, and Virginia. There are also students from Canada, Iran, and Arabia. This broadening of the fields from whence students are admitted has given us a diversity of background, interest, and experience, and has enriched not only the classroom work, but the general life of the University. Again I repeat, Suffolk is an American University.

As of this writing, 588 students are in the Law School, and 1394 students are distributed among the Colleges of Liberal Arts, Business Administration, and Journalism. The great majority are veterans, whose maturity, sincerity, and ambition have added greatly to the morale and scholarship of the student body. Truthfully I can say that if you were to talk with any member of the faculty, you would be told that at no time or place in his teaching career has he found a more interested and demanding student. Alumni, you can be proud of your Suffolk successors. They will carry on the splendid record you made in the past. Their degree is worth only what you by your industry, learning, and character have made it worth. Future students at Suffolk, in turn, need not worry concerning the value of their degree. I have told you about the students first—for at Suffolk the students and their welfare come first! We are not primarily concerned with glorying in the past or dreaming of the future. Our great and challenging task is to give our present student body every opportunity for advancement and training within our power.

As the student body has increased, so has the faculty. The Law School Faculty numbers twenty-seven. Six of these are full-time members; twenty-one are part-time. Emphasis is laid on court room and office procedure so that a Suffolk Law School graduate to be able to function effectively immediately upon graduation as a lawyer, not a law clerk. To be able to represent clients, to stand on his own feet and his own merits at once—that again is the American way.

As the faculty has increased in size, it has improved in quality. The faculties of the four undergraduate colleges—Liberal Arts, Pre-Legal, Business Administration, and Journalism—number seventy-five, and of these twenty-five hold Doctors degrees and twenty-eight Masters degrees. This 1948-49 college year we had members join our faculty from faculties of the following institutions: Boston College, Columbia, University of Maryland, Stanford, Michigan State, Stevens Institute of Technology, Harvard, Illinois, University of Pittsburgh, University of Pennsylvania, and Yale.

Next I would pay tribute to a group of men who have given and are giving not only of their time but of their experience, capabilities, and understanding to the University—the Board of Trustees. Since joining the Board in August, 1946, I have never, either as Treasurer or President of the University, seen them deny any request or suggestion for the betterment of Suffolk. Likewise, in my lifetime, I have never been associated with such a grand group—always deeply concerned with their trust. They again are "All American"—every faith, political party, and background is represented. Their decisions are the result of constructive study and investigation. Whenever occasions occur, and I assure you that they are often, that I or anyone else connected with the University requires assistance individually from them, it is given immediately effectively, and whole-heartedly. To them the University owes a debt which can never be paid—but above all, will never be demanded. The affairs and development of no institution could be in better hands than those of Hiram Archer, Ernest R. Blaisdell, Rexford A. Bristol, Hon. Frank J. Donahue, William F. A. Graham, John Griffin, Arthur W. Hanson, Bernard J. Killion, Thomas F. McNichols, Rev. Harold J. Ockenga, Julius E. Rosengard, and George B. Rowell.

Suffolk offers complete facilities for every course offered, yet today our tuition of $800 in the Law School and $300 in the Colleges is the lowest in this section of the country. With the average tuition in New England $800-$860 per year, and steadily increasing, it is important that Suffolk maintain its moderate fee so that this and succeeding classes, as in your day, may have the opportunity to secure an education at a moderate charge. The opportunity to acquire an education must not depend on money alone. The many Suffolk alumni who worked their way through have demonstrated that a student's capabilities have no relation to his bank account. Suffolk is numerically as large as is consistent with a low tuition. Our aim is not to become bigger, but better.

The physical plant of the University is in splendid condition and is admirably adapted to meet the needs of our students. The Chemistry, Geology, and Physics Laboratories are adequately equipped. The University libraries now comprise over 25,000 volumes, and are being increased daily. Through arrangement with the Boston City Club, dormitory quarters are available to non-resident male students. Gymnasium facilities at the West End House provide quarters for our basketball team and Physical Education classes. An innovation this fall is a course in sailing where boats and instructors are available at the Charles River Basin. One of our most immediate needs is an athletic field, and our Athletic Committee of the Trustees is now trying to find a field for our developing sports program.

There is more to an education than the classroom. Extracurricular activities in moderation help develop a wholesome student, a well-rounded personality, a capable man or woman. Our students carry the same enthusiasm into athletics as to class. As alumni you may be surprised to see how your University has broadened. Here a student may acquire or develop in athletic, dramatic, journalistic, cultural, and special interest abilities.
FRANK L. SIMPSON, A. B., LL. B., LL. M., J. D., was graduated summa cum laude in 1903 and was appointed Fellow of Boston University Law School, where he taught from 1904 to 1942. He is a member of the American Law Institute, Phi Beta Kappa, and Past Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts (1926-1928). He was chairman of the Special Crime Commission of Massachusetts in 1903 and was Special Liquidating Counsel for the Bank Commission in 1935-6. Dean Simpson is the author of Cases on Bills and Notes, Cases on the Law of Torts, and Massachusetts Law (six editions). He has been Dean of Suffolk University Law School since 1942.

DEAN FRANK L. SIMPSON

LESTER R. OTT, Dean of Suffolk College and Professor of History, received his degree of Bachelor of Arts from Knox College in 1931, and his Master of Arts from Harvard University in 1932. He continued graduate study in history at Harvard from 1933 to 1934. Dean Ott took special courses in education during various summer terms between 1934 and 1948 at Harvard Graduate School of Education, Boston University School of Education and the University of Chicago. In 1948, he was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Education by Suffolk University.

He was a member of the Harvard College staff from 1934 to January 1943, and upon his return from service with the air forces, he was again at Harvard from September, 1943 to September, 1948. The summers of 1936 through 1942, he was head of the men students at Harvard Summer School. He also taught history at Radcliffe College, 1933 to 1942. During the year 1939-40, he lectured in history at Middlesex University (now Brandeis University). Dean Ott has been on the faculty of Suffolk University since 1939, except for military leave of absence, January, 1943 to September, 1945 and was made Dean in 1945.

DEAN LESTER R. OTT
College Evening Division
by Robert J. Munce, Director of the Evening Division

I shall not review the history of the College Evening Division of Suffolk University, out of deference to those alumni who are better acquainted with it from having had an active hand in shaping its structure and developing the organization for high academic proficiency. It has been ably demonstrated that this department has more than kept pace with the nationwide trend in education wherein adults are returning to the classrooms and the books to supplement their experience in the workaday world.

At the present time, the classrooms, during every period of the five evenings of the week, are filled with students taking courses for mental and cultural stimulation or for professional advancement with the idea of up-grading themselves for promotion in their chosen fields. This enrollment of the large number of adults in the evening classes justifies the recent recommendation for the expansion of opportunities for education which the Commission on Higher Education made to President Truman.

It is my honest opinion that at Suffolk University, the College Evening Division will expand both in the range of subject matter taught and in sheer popularity. Provisions have been made to this end by the establishment of the degree of Bachelor of Science in General Studies which provides for the inclusion of many new courses. Specifically, this degree provides for major study in the fields of Humanities, Social Studies, and Business Administration. The Associate in Arts certificate is continued for those who take the prescribed pre-legal curriculum. This year several courses were set up for the benefit of adults who do not desire a degree but who want merely to take organized classroom work to crystallize their thinking in certain fields.

A factor worth calling attention to is that all instructors of evening classes are members of the full-time staff of the University. These faculty members are warm in their praises of the character of the work and depth of thought their evening classes produce. This is so because the students are quick to relate the classroom instructions with their employment problems. The teachers who have had considerable field experience foster open discussions among students and see to it that none of the usual barriers between students and instructor exist.

One of the most gratifying aspects of the whole picture is that the evening session students are considered, by the administration, faculty, and daytime students as "belonging" to Suffolk University as a single unit. I know that our alumni share my pride in Suffolk for providing an education for adults, mature war veterans and the young secondary school graduates who yet must work by day. With opportunities open equally to every student, all divisions are qualified to meet the needs of alumni who may wish to refresh their professional training.

Miss Dorothy McNamara, Bursar, was recently feted in celebration of her completion of twenty-one years service at Suffolk University.

The surprise party, attended by President Burse, Dean

SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES started the current academic year under new leadership due to the resignation of Miss Mary E. Newsome, who had been with the University for over ten years and is now affiliated with Roosevelt College, Chicago, Illinois. Suffolk is grateful to Miss Newsome for her splendid work in building up the collections of the libraries, and wishes her heartiest best wishes and the best of success in her new responsibilities.

The present libraries' administration is eager to be of service to Suffolk alumni. Complimentary cards are available to alumni for the use of the libraries. Items that circulate can be withdrawn by alumni under the usual regulations. Non-circulating items are available for the use of alumni within the libraries at all times when they are open. Members of the alumni body are invited to take advantage of these facilities.

The chief task of the libraries is to render efficient service to both students and faculty in support of their course requirements. Every effort is being made to accomplish this necessary function. Arrangements have been made through the Reserve Book Service to assure equitable availability of books. Competent reference service has been provided through the appointment of Mrs. Marcia Waugaman as full-time Reference Librarian, in order to meet special student requests and to advise students concerning difficult problems.

The current main problem of the library administration consists of expanding the present nucleus of university and law holdings in conformance with the expansion of the University itself—both from the standpoint of new courses offered as well as in attempting to meet the needs of Suffolk's greatly augmented faculty. It was found necessary to appraise and evaluate both new and standard reference works, key monographs, scholarly reports, anthologies, critical essays, etc., in the respective fields of learning. To the extent that such are available, purchase follows. In every case, special effort is taken to assure that the library collection reflects the needs or supplements the material covered in the courses offered by the University. This precaution is in line with the policy that a modest library collection that serves this latter function is far better than a large one of a haphazard nature that is deficient in the basic tools needed to supplement the curriculum offered. The fact that many of the desirable items needed for purchase are now out of print presents a difficulty that requires considerable search before the items are obtainable. To the extent that these are reasonably priced—the administration purchases.
Adequate holdings in periodicals are a necessity in a university library. Not only do they keep the respective instructors abreast of the latest findings and trends in their fields of interest, but they contain materials of great value to supplement the reading requirements in the various courses.

Back files of certain of these key scholarly magazines are likewise necessary. Subscriptions to nearly two hundred periodicals covering the various fields of knowledge are now held by the libraries. Efforts will be made to purchase back files of those items deemed necessary by the respective faculty heads of departments.

Expansion of the holdings of the law library continues as new items of value to the law courses offered come forth from the press. Key materials, so necessary to round out an adequate law collection, are constantly being sought, and every effort is being made to assure that Suffolk’s law collection compares favorably with that of any other law school of comparative size. The present law collection is now being catalogued—a lengthy process—but one which will result in the setting up of an efficient and intelligent key to the use of the present legal holdings.

Suffolk University is fortunate in being so admirably located on Beacon Hill. Within ten to fifteen minutes’ walk are institutions whose library holdings form valuable adjuncts to those of the University. A survey has been made of the library holdings of these institutions (the State Library, the World Peace Foundation Reference Library, the Boston School Committee Library, to mention some of these) and arrangements have been made whereby Suffolk can use these facilities to great advantage. Both faculty and students can use these sources for specialized materials of a research or scholarly nature not normally found in a college or law school library. A centralized location in the heart of Boston has given Suffolk an advantage in this respect that would arouse the envy of many larger institutions.

EDWARD GEORGE HARTMANN, Director of Libraries and Assistant Professor of History at Suffolk, received his A. B. and A. M. degrees from Bucknell University and his B.S. in L.S. and Ph. D. degrees from Columbia University. He has been an instructor in history at City College, N. Y. C., and an assistant professor of history at Wilkes College of Bucknell University.

During World War II, Dr. Hartmann served as Combat Historian of the 90th Infantry Division, Third Army, ETO. Some of his writings include “The Movement to Americanize the Immigrant”, Columbia University Press, 1948; “Tough ’Ombres, the Story of the 90th Infantry Division” Stars and Stripes, 1944; an article on “Americanization” in the revised edition of the Columbia Encyclopedia, and book reviews in “American Historical Review.”

LIBRARY STAFF

Two purposes motivate the physical education program. First is to encourage each student to establish the habit of regular exercise and recreation during his first year at Suffolk in spite of the rigorous demands of time for study, commuting, and in many cases, part-time jobs. Second is to teach each student the value of participating in some carry-over sports such as badminton, golf, swimming, tennis, sailing, and track, in addition to sports in which participation may be of shorter duration such as soccer, basketball, hockey, and baseball. Trained teachers and coaches are available for instruction and leadership. Students are given a physical examination to determine the limits of safe participation.

After completion of one semester of group activity for two periods each week, students are encouraged to substitute directed activity—the beginning of regular, self-initiated recreation—two periods each during the second semester.

The University has secured facilities for women students at the Boston Y.W.C.A. A gymnasiurn, showers, and dressing rooms for men have been obtained on a contributing rental basis at the nearby West End Boys Club on Blossom Street. Participants are protected by the same athletic insurance as varsity teams. Fortunately, the Boys Club activity is limited to evenings and week-ends, so that Suffolk University was able to procure the little-used week-day time. The West End House is but a few minutes walk from the University, as well as from the tennis courts, playing fields, and sailing.

ATHLETICS

Alumni of Suffolk will understand the seeming paradox that a downtown hillside University without campus or athletic facilities can have a rich, versatile program of intercollegiate athletics. Soccer, hockey, basketball, baseball, track, sailing, tennis, and golf are all reasonable possibilities within a restricted budget appropriated from the general fund. What are some of the contributing factors to make such a program possible?

First, the characteristics of Suffolk students should be credited. Students who have elected to attend Suffolk because they really want a good education and have neither time nor money to waste readily adapt to conditions that, though difficult, are possible. Incidentally, such students are not only willing to mount hills and stairs or tote gear to and fro, but also are especially appreciative of help given by coaches and instructors.

Another factor that adds to the tonus of the athletic program is the fact that coaches and instructors are all full-fledged faculty members, participating in the life of the University, working on faculty committees, and in some cases teaching in other academic fields, and so are in close contact with the total life of the students.
Soccer

Soccer for 1948-1949 is a closed book. Coach Tom Collins turned a poor start into a grand finish.

A squad of twenty-five men reported for the 1948 season. Two experienced soccer players were among the group: John Barlog, a goalie, who played for the 82nd Airborne Div. ETO championship team, and Johnny Szemkowicz, a center halfback from Fall River, Captain of the team this season. Letter winners from the previous season, who had first played soccer in 1947, were Tobin, an inside; Perkins, a wing; Murphy, a half-back; and Sturman, a fullback. Three other boys had some previous experience, Bilodeau, an inside; Walkowi.ch at North Carolina Pre-Flight; and Soucy, a center-forward. The remainder of the squad had no previous soccer experience whatsoever.

An arrangement was worked out with the West End Boys Club for locker and shower facilities, from where the squad walked a few short blocks to the Charles Bank playground where combination soccer and football goal posts were set up.

Suffolk 0 — New Bedford 6. at Charles Bank

The first game played after five days of practice was lost to New Bedford Textile by the score of 6-1. Inexperience on defense resulted in three of the New Bedford goals. Gallagher, former Devens football player, scored Suffolk goal. Perkins was hurt and lost for the season on the play.

Suffolk 2 — Bradford Tech (Fall River) 4 at Fall River

Bradford scored all goals in first half. Barlog, our regular goalie, was sick, unable to play. In the second half, Suffolk forced the play continually, due to better condition and its first demonstration of team spirit. Goals were by Gallagher and Captain Szemkowicz. Three other goals were lost due to inexperience.

Suffolk 0 — Bridgewater Teachers 0 at Charles Bank

Suffolk completely outclassed Bridgewater in this game. The play was almost entirely in Bridgewater territory. Goals were both by Bill Jenks, center forward from Walpole, playing his first game of soccer. One goal was scored by heading.

Suffolk 0 — Fitchburg 1 at Fitchburg

Stellar play by Barlog helped Suffolk hold a much stronger Fitchburg Teachers to a single goal.

Suffolk 1 — Tufts 1 (Overtime) at Medford

This was the highspot of the season. Szemkowicz scored on a penalty kick after 10 minutes. The whole team played its heart out in unseasonal heat. Szemkowicz was particularly outstanding. With five minutes to go, “hands” was called in the penalty shot. Neither team could score in the overtime.

Suffolk 1 — Bridgewater 0 at Bridgewater

Szemkowicz scored from 30 feet out with three minutes to go in a game played on a very short field on a very dark afternoon.

Basketball

Coach Charles Law and Assistant Coach Don Fiorello greeted candidates for 1948-49 at West End Boys Club Gymnasium. Through contacts of faculty members, your Athletic Director arranged with Converse Rubber Company to furnish each member of the basketball squad with All-Star basketball shoes on an experimental basis at no cost to the University. Suffolk now has a well-equipped squad.

While the opening games with Gordon and Tufts were not too encouraging, the comeback of the team shown in the second half of the Assumption College games shows promise. Class schedules, part-time jobs, and commuting make the usual daily squad practice very difficult. It is possible that class teams or intra-university games may be played during the unused time. Suffolk has been invited to finish a successful season by entering the Eastern District playoffs.

Hockey

Stimulated by the pressure of high school hockey in the Boston area, hockey should continue to be a much sought after varsity sport. This year, there are seven eight-team leagues in addition to numerous community and industrial league teams. Artificial playing ice available at reasonable hours and in convenient places is the great need. A refrigerating plant costs in the neighborhood of one hundred thousand dollars, and there are about thirteen miles of pipe embedded in the playing surface of a rink. Lynn is piping refrigerant from an established ice plant to a new rink which will operate this season without a roof. These considerations tend to soften the blow when $25 per hour is asked for ice rental even during midnight hours. In spite of the unearthly hours, Suffolk has been fortunate in being able to rent ice at the Skating Club of Boston. Students show up with uncanny regularity and punctuality. The squad had a two day trip to Colby and Bowdoin in January, and finished the season playing Williams.

Baseball

The 1949 baseball schedule includes games with Wentworth, New Bedford Textile, University of Mass., Tufts, Bridgewater, and M. I. T.

Track

One peculiarity of track is that a team can start with one man and can develop to almost unlimited size. With the exception of the relays, individuals may compete regardless of whether team-mates make the grade. Many aspirants are reporting for instruction in those events which can be promoted with such limited facilities as the Charles Bank offers. Track team members may get competition “a la carte” style by filling in empty seats on baseball trips. For instance, high jumpers may go along for a special competition in high jump against Bridgewater the same day the baseball team plays there.

Tennis

Several matches have been scheduled for the tennis team. There are six public Boston Park Board hard surface courts opposite the Peabody House on the Charles Bank quite near the University. Students will be encouraged to use these courts, and permits will be sought for playing home matches.

Golf

Suffolk students are privileged to play without greens fees at Commonwealth Golf Club, and instruction has been offered Friday mornings during the fall. More such facilities are needed and alumni can help materially by sponsoring this greens fee exemption policy for students. Suffolk students commute from all points of the compass and golf is of such a time-consuming nature it is necessary to play near by homes or on commuting routes. Another way the alumni could help sponsor golf would be to send in to the University old odd clubs that could be matched up in practice sets for beginners.

Sailing

Once thought a rich man’s sport, small craft sailing in certain areas has entered the ranks of a lifetime recreational activity. It is probably the only sport where competition is even-Stephen for men and women. It can be enjoyed either as a mild recreational activity, or as a virile racing competition. What does all of this mean for Suffolk? It so happens that the University is located within five minutes walking distance (downhill!) of the finest fresh water sailing basin in any metropolitan community. The best intercollegiate competition is sponsored by M. I. T. Last fall eleven schools competed in the intercollegiate regatta. On the Boston side of the river, Community Sailing Club operated at present by the Recreation Service of the Community Chest provides an expensive facility for all, including Suffolk students. Last fall, the athletic budget purchased a group membership for Suffolk and unearthed twenty-eight students who had previous experience in small craft handling, besides a wealth of prospects who wanted
TO THE ALUMNI OF SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY

Club organizes class dances and all University dances. The Suffolk emblem is appearing in athletics in the following sports: Baseball, Basketball, Soccer, Hockey, Outing Club, Rifle and Pistol Matches, Sailing, Golf, and Tennis.

Suffolk's renown is spreading as a result of the Creative Writing Club, Debating Club, Dramatic Workshop, and the Glee Club.

The journalistic minded student can demonstrate his talent in The Beacon (Yearbook), The Journal (Newspaper), 20 Derne (Literary Magazine), and The Yowler (Weekly Bulletin).

The student anxious to supplement his classroom work is afforded the opportunity by joining any of the following clubs: German Club, International Relations Club, Italian Club, Philosophy Club, Psychology Club, and Spanish Club.

The Suffolk student, like any American youth, believes that fun is the condiment of life. Accordingly, the Social last Thanksgiving Day Dance at the Hotel Statler had an attendance of 1200 students and their friends.

I urge the alumni to attend the dramatic productions, intercollegiate debates, athletic contests, and dances. Your time will be well spent and your pride in Suffolk enhanced. You will meet many old friends and make many new ones.

Suffolk is a "friendly school." The friendships you made here are one of your most valuable assets. We want your friendships to continue. If this message to you gives you a greater knowledge of your Alma Mater, it will not have been in vain. To know Suffolk is to appreciate her. We heartily desire that whenever time permits you will come back to 20 Derne Street, renew your old memories, and share with the present Suffolkians their hopes for the future.

Professor Hiram J. Archer, in addition to his other duties, is our Alumni Director, and Mr. Joseph H. Strain, Suffolk C.L.A. '43, is Alumni Secretary. They have been diligently laboring to prepare an accurate Alumni roster. Will you kindly notify their office of any change of address? It is the hope of the Administration that this and succeeding issues of the SUFFOLK ALUMNUS will enable you to relive your student days. This is your University. You have won it prestige—we hope to build that prestige.

The evidence is in—Alma Mater rests her case, confident that the future is bright; that as long as Suffolk remains "charitable and educational" in the meaning of her charter—Suffolk will continue an important factor in the training of men and women in the American way!

RODERICK W. HOAG, '25, has done more than his share to uphold the tradition of Suffolk men: first, by becoming a successful lawyer in Patent Law Practice at 527 Main St., Melrose, Mass.; second, by becoming the father of four children; and third, by encouraging his son Roderick, Jr. to attend Suffolk.

Rod, Jr., who was graduated from Melrose High School in 1943, served in the 26th Infantry Division of the Third Army in France and Germany. A major in History, Rod entered Suffolk in June, 1946, and was graduated from the College of Liberal Arts in 1948. He plans to do graduate work in History.
STUDENT ACTIVITIES

by

EDGAR L. DEFOREST

The Student Affairs Office includes those activities apart from athletics such as:

Space does not permit a tribute to all the clubs for their excellent achievements, but let us cite a few examples that you as alumni may know what we are doing.

The Suffolk Journal has provided opportunity for students to put out an outstanding college paper.

The Dramatic Workshop produced the hilarious comedy, “Charley’s Aunt,” which was later given for the veterans at Murphy General Hospital. “The Man Who Came to Dinner” was produced in the Spring.

The International Relations Club has guests and faculty members for lecturers and participates in regional and national conventions.

The Creative Writing Club puts out “Twenty Derne” to display the best of student writing.

The Social Club assists the various classes in putting on dances and the committee takes charge of hiring the ballrooms and of selecting the orchestras. One of the major events of the Social Club was the sponsoring of the Second Annual “Miss Suffolk” Contest.

The Women’s Association of Suffolk University has presented a series of teas, at one of which they entertained the wives of the faculty and members of the administration at the College Club. One of their members was chosen for the Inter-Collegiate Red Feather Girl Contest put on by the Community Chest. Recently they assisted the Social Club in presenting the annual Miss Suffolk Contest in which one of their members, Miss Betty Humphrey, was the winner.

SUDS—The Suffolk University Debating Society—has a dual purpose: to provide a practical experience in logic and argumentation for students, and to strengthen public relations for Suffolk University. During 1948-49 SUDS participated in approximately seventy varsity debates. In December eight men met debaters from thirteen Northeastern States at the University of Vermont tournament. In April four men represented Suffolk in the Grant National Forensic Tournament at Fredericksburg, Va. SUDS has had the good fortune to score over such fine opponents as Annapolis, Syracuse, Catholic University of Washington, D.C., and George Washington; and the honor of losing to such colleges as the University of Vermont, Colby, Yale, Rutgers, and Howard University.

In a city university without a campus it is almost mandatory to have a set-up to provide for activities which are enjoyable to the student body. It seems to us that the harvest of our teaching is reaped in these activities, for here the students conduct their own affairs, which some-

by

DR. LEO LIEBERMAN

The three student assistants in the Guidance Department filed into my office and sat down with the alert air of ex-servicemen facing an unknown situation. The slim, dark student, Ed Stone, functions as Assistant in Charge of Testing. The broad, massive Earle Devlin carries on as Assistant in Charge of Clinical Services; and the light-haired, quick moving Russell Traunstein works as Assistant in Charge of Student Research.

Scowls of concentration twisted their features in various postures while they considered the question I put to them: “What are the goals of our efforts in the Guidance Department?” I asked the question in order to orient them to a series of research projects that had to be done during the break between semesters. The operational definitions that the student assistants gave for our goals in the Guidance Department conveyed so much meaning that I felt the best method for giving the Alumni and Alumnae of Suffolk insight into the nature of the work done by the Guidance Department would be to describe part of this conference.

The first student to speak was Ed. Stone, “Well, we help students to choose the kind of work they are suited for. Our surveys have shown that most of the students don’t know what careers they want to follow. That is why we give them all these tests of aptitudes and vocational interests. Then we send them in to you for counseling and information about occupations.”

“Another big need of the students was to select the courses at Suffolk that would help them prepare for the kind of work they want to do. You took care of that by making up the four-year sequences of courses for different vocational objectives and organizing the Educational Advisement Program so that every student in the school was assigned to a competent faculty member for help in selecting his courses.

“And another thing we do is test all applicants for admission to Suffolk with a college aptitude test to help Mr. Goodrich decide whether the applicant can succeed at Suffolk.

By this time Earle Devlin had gotten his mental mass moving and he broke into Ed’s monologue with a few resounding psychological terms. Earle has a particular fondness for resounding psychological terminology foremost of which is the tongue-massaging “hypochondriasis.” “There’s more to guidance than educational and vocational direction,” Earle said, “Take students suffering from hypochondriasis, and psychosomatic symptoms, or students bothered by somatic disabilities, and other psychoneuroses. Even if they know what they want to do, they need some kind of adjustment that will help them to overcome their disorders so that they can keep up in their courses. We have been identifying these students by their answers to the Guidance Questionnaire. Then we have referred some of them to Dr. Rooney for physical examination and given others psychological tests like the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Tests. If their scores have shown significant deviations from the normal, I have sent them in to you for the Rorschach Ink Blot Test and non-directive psychotherapy.”

At this point our conference went astray in a rather warm discussion of the merits and limitations of non-directive psychotherapy. But I ended it by saying, “Out of 12 students I have been counseling by non-directive psychotherapy, 2 have said their confusion, emotional conflicts, and tensions no longer are a handicap to them and 10 are}

DR. LEO LIEBERMAN, Director of Guidance at Suffolk University, received his A.B., Ed. M., and Ed. D. from Harvard. He served as a War Department statistician and General Staff Vocational Guidance Officer. He is the author of “Educational Advisory Manual” and “Target Board Test,” and co-author of a series of 106 occupational briefs for servicemen. Dr. Lieberman has since revised the “Target Board Test” into the “Industrial Aptitude Test.” The revised form will help employers select efficient skilled and semi-skilled workers.
making definite visible progress. As long as it works for some people who need it, we will use it.”

Ed Stont continued the definition of the Guidance Department goals by saying, “We have been working with students who are academic failures giving them psychological and diagnostic tests of reading and study skills. Suffolk should have a remedial reading clinic. It would save a lot of students from flunking out of Suffolk.

The above excerpts from the conference with the student assistants reveal the inner workings of the Suffolk Guidance Department. A few actual cases from the counseling files will illustrate some of the end-products of a Guidance Department.

A business administration student was uncertain about his goal in the field of business. Tests, records, and interviews revealed he was suited for office management. A program of courses was made up in line with his vocational objective. As graduation approached, he wanted a job with many special conditions involving his temperament, pending marriage, and availability for only part-time work. A job-finding campaign was tailored to his special needs. He was guided in locating a suitable directory of business firms, selecting 100 firms for contact, writing an outline of his qualifications and a letter of inquiry, and reproducing the mailing matter. By the time 17 letters were sent out, he received four requests for interviews, and out of the four interviews got the kind of job he wanted.

A Freshman with only two years of high-school had completed entrance requirements to Suffolk by correspondence courses and Massachusetts State Board of Educational Development Tests. He claimed that he would never be satisfied unless he finished law school. A group intelligence test showed he was doubtful college material and a diagnostic reading test disclosed that he had poorly developed reading skills. Three nights a week he works from 4 P.M. to 1 A.M. to earn $18 weekly out of which he pays for room, meals, clothes, and tuition. The case seemed hopeless; however, the Rorschach Ink Blot Test revealed a high order of intellectual functioning when the student was free of emotional entanglements, and an analysis of the motivating factors in his personality showed strong social ideals and drives. His story was told to the head of one of the leading remedial reading clinics in Boston. The head of the clinic awarded the freshman a scholarship for $300 and he was enrolled in a program which included courses at Suffolk and the Remedial Reading Clinic. By the end of his first semester this man made the Dean’s list.

A father of four children said he had so many financial problems he would have to leave Suffolk unless the V. A. transferred him to Public Law 16. A nearby guidance center had tested him and decided that he was not college material. He had become discouraged in his attempts to be transferred to Public Law 16 and felt he ought to leave college. Our tests and interpretations indicated that he was college material. He was advised to put the whole matter of transfer out of his mind, to concentrate on attaining marks equal to his potentialities, and, after he had attained the grades, to submit them to the nearby guidance center as evidence that he was college material. This program, coupled with a great deal of reassurance as to his ability and aid in acquiring study skills resulted in attaining “B” in most of his subjects and eventually in his transfer to Public Law 16.

Of all the offices in a university, the guidance office affords perhaps the most penetrating glimpse into the courage, the sacrifices, the idealism, and the ordeals of the students in a working-boys college. One of the most effective ways to keep faith with these students is to provide them with guidance services that will help them to adjust to their college life and to prepare for jobs that exist and for which they are suited.

Simpson of the Law School, Dean Ott and Dr. Murphy of the College Departments, and the staff of the Bursar's office, took place in the President's Office on November 28th, at which time Miss "Mack" was presented with orchids and a desk set. Originally planned for November 23, the party was delayed because Miss Mack missed work for the first time in six years—she had sprained her ankle.

Miss Mack was first employed at the University on November 28, 1927, as a stenographer in the Law School. In 1946 she was promoted to her present office of Bursar of the University in recognition of her efficient performance of the duties of that office for several years past.

Christian Science Monitor Praises

Suffolk Journal Election Poll

The Suffolk Journal, monthly student publication, received a hearty pat on its back page from the Christian Science Monitor, (Nov. 6, 1948) for scooping the nation by its successful election poll. The Journal's pre-election survey of September 29, 1948, showed that President Truman received 42 per cent of the votes cast by Suffolk students; Governor Thomas E. Dewey, 37 per cent. The Journal's survey for the Massachusetts gubernatorial election gave Paul A. Dever 87 per cent of the votes cast, while Governor Robert E. Bradford polled 13 per cent. The Journal editors, Walter F. Gallagher, Jr., and Robert V. Vahan, have followed up their coup by forming the public relations firm of Vahan and Gallagher, 31 State Street, Boston. May their business acumen equal their power of political augury.

Mrs. Virginia Mackie Davis, '46, says that one of the greatest benefits she received from her years at Suffolk was "many lasting and sincere friendships with both class members and the members of the faculty, some of whom taught both my father and myself."

Virginia received her LL.B. degree from Suffolk Law School and is now employed by Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, 250 Stuart Street, Boston.

Her father, Charles H. Mackie, '26, also received his LL.B. from Suffolk.

Samuel R. Bacherman

Samuel R. Bacherman, L'34, of Chelsea, a captain in World War I, and an employee for 28 years in the Veterans Administration, is Adjudication Officer of veterans claims for the Boston Regional Office.

"LONA" REVIEW

By Nancy McCauliff
Reprinted from the Suffolk Journal

THOMAS SAVAGE

Mr. Thomas Savage, Instructor in English and author of Lona Hanson, is a graduate of Colby College. Most of his life was spent on a Montana Ranch, where he acquired an intimate knowledge of Western customs.

Columbia pictures has bought the motion picture rights to Lona Hanson for $50,000 and has scheduled Rita Hayworth to play the lead.

Thomas Savage has written a novel that an author dreams about; it is a potential best seller and it is a work of art.

The book will be a best seller, we think, because it has wide appeal. It is colorful, vivid and the author weaves lifelike images. There is a liberal sprinkling of what might be called "questionable" material (to use Mr. Savage's own words) but is true to life and the novelist is true to his art for the purpose of writing novels is to portray life as it is.

It is the story of Lona Bart Hanson. We see her first as a prideful young girl. And we watch her develop—through more than 300 pages of smoothly flowing prose—into a complete witch and a rather fascinating one. Possession is the theme; Lona had to possess 20,000 acres. For she was a Bart and being a Bart was important in Sentinel, Montana.

Savage tells a moving story, building to the climax of each chapter with consummate skill. You will find yourself sitting straight up in your chair saying, "This woman can't be doing these things!"—but she is. You find a tightness in your throat and then two short words hit that spot, release the suspense, and you gasp with relief. Perhaps you put the book down impatiently, then nervously snatch it up again.

There are flashbacks within flashbacks at the beginning which lead to some confusion. This disappears when the background is established. The prose is facile and fluid, the style developed far beyond that of Mr. Savage's first book, "The Pass." He has found his style. It is completely his own. The remarkable thing is (with the exception of one small passage) that it shows no outside influence.

Lona, the central character, is believable throughout, but we only begin to feel her existence with poignancy in the last hundred pages when the author probes her thoughts. Then we begin to care what happens to her.
