400 ATTEND FENTON BUILDING DEDICATION

More than 400 guests, including faculty, administrators, alumni and students, attended the dedication of the Fenton Building held in conjunction with Alumni Homecoming Day last Saturday.

Judge C. Edward Rowe, chairman of the board of trustees, cut the ribbon at the main entrance to officially open the university's new liberal arts facility following an impressive 45-minute ceremony. Numerous tributes were made to the late president and chairman Judge John E. Fenton, including a poignant acceptance speech by Judge John E. Fenton Jr., associate judge of the Land Court.

President Fulham, principal speaker, paid tribute to Judge Fenton's "fierce loyalty to everything for which Suffolk University stands: the concepts of access to education for those who could obtain it in no other way; a devotion to teaching as the highest calling of an educator; and an abhorrence of waste in any of its forms, including time, energy and opportunity."

Fulham noted that it was appropriate that the building bear Fenton's name for the expansion under his leadership. He pointed out, however, that the late president's "greatest joy was reserved for the student who succeeded when the odds against success were heavily weighed against that student." Fulham termed that "the most shining example of his (Fenton's) humanity."

Chris Spinazzola, president of the Student Government Association, praised Judge Fenton for the "great contributions made to the Suffolk community" and called the new college facility "a product of his foresight." Spinazzola recalled Judge Fenton as a man "who was always available," someone "who would give his time to every student. . . ."

The younger Judge Fenton said thoughts nor words "can express the full measure of gratitude in my heart and in the hearts of the rest of the Fenton family on this occasion."

He said that "I always considered myself the luckiest man on earth to be his son," and recalling his father's life, observed, "Perhaps, his epitaph should have read: He never said no to a kid in his life."

Other speakers were Atty. Mary Ann Gilleece, president of the General Alumni Association, Dr. Edward G. Hartmann, professor of history, bringing greetings from the college faculty, and Law Prof. John F.X. O'Brien, speaking for the law faculty.

Judge C. Edward Rowe, chairman of the board of trustees, presided at the exercises. The invocation was given by the Very Rev. Francis P. Fenton, O.S.A., pastor of St. Rita's Church, Chicago, and the benediction was offered by the Most Rev. Joseph F. Maguire, D.D., regional and auxiliary bishop of Boston.

Among those in attendance were the late jurist's sister, Sr. Mary Eugenia of Rahway, N.J., his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Theresa Fenton, and his long-time secretary, Miss Mary Muhilly. There were also a large number of Fenton associates from the Lawrence area present.

The ceremonies were held under overcast skies on Derne Street with platform and seats set up in front of the new building. There was a large representation of Suffolk people on hand, including trustees, deans, department heads, faculty and staff. A champagne reception followed the dedication.

A luncheon was held for the Fenton guests. A second luncheon, part of the Alumni Homecoming event, was held at the Dorothy Quincy Suite at John Hancock Hall for alumni and staff with buses transporting the guests.

As part of the homecoming, tours of all of Suffolk's buildings were conducted, an entertaining satire, The Boston Tea Party, was offered in the Auditorium, and the full day was capped off by cocktail receptions for colleges' alumni and law school alumni.

S.U. WILL HOUSE CONSUMER AFFAIRS FOUNDATION

The university has given a new home to the Consumer Affairs Foundation.

The CAF, established in 1972 as a non-profit charitable and educational foundation, will be housed on the first floor of the College of Business Administration on Mt. Vernon Street. It previously was located at 150 Tremont St., Boston in offices of the Better Business Bureau of Eastern Massachusetts.

Leonard L. Sanders, president of the CAF, envisions new course outlines and resource materials for high schools as a result of the new relationship with Suffolk's Institute for Business Management. Also envisioned is the development of a series of seminars and courses for consumer affairs professionals.

Dean Richard L. McDowell, hailing the agreement, said that "both the Foundation and the university will be better equipped to serve business and the public as a result of the agreement."

Prof. Anthony Eonas, chairman of Suffolk's marketing department, has been appointed liaison between the Foundation staff and university.
Francis X. Flannery, vice president and treasurer of the university, is the recipient of the Suffolk Law Review's Outstanding Service Award, selected by Volume IX of the Review.

Flannery received the award, an engraved plaque, at the Law Review's seventh annual banquet last Friday at the Statler Hilton. John G. Martin, chairman of the State Industrial Accident Board and editor-in-chief of last year's review, made the presentation.

Previous recipients were Prof. Alexander J. Cella and Judge John E. Fenton Jr., of the Massachusetts Land Court and former associate dean.

Guest speaker for the banquet was U.S. Magistrate Willie J. Davis. Pam Hunt, editor-in-chief of Volume X, presided at the dinner. She introduced the new staff members.

Donald Straus, president of the Research Institute for the American Arbitration Association, has been named Daniel Bloomfield lecturer for 1975, the College of Business Administration announces.

The Bloomfield lecture series was established in memory of the late Suffolk trustee, executive vice president of the Boston Retail Trade Board. Bloomfield also authored many works on labor management relations, retailing and distribution.

Straus, past president of the American Arbitration Association, will speak on "International Commercial Arbitration" at the university Nov. 19 at 6:30 p.m.

For information and tickets for the 1975 Bloomfield lecture and dinner at $10 contact the College of Business Administration or Conference Coordinator Marian Dolan. The dinner will be in the faculty dining room.

Suffolk's 1975-76 United Way Campaign kicked off last Wednesday with a meeting of team leaders at which President Fulham called upon Suffolk's community to top last year's contributions.

"While we had a participation of 49% last year, a five per cent improvement over the previous year, we still want to get a lot higher," President Fulham said. "It is my sincere hope that every member of the administration, faculty and staff will contribute as generously as possible so Suffolk may attain its goal of 100% participation."

"Don't Let Them Lose Their Way," is the theme of this year's drive, which has a goal of $17 million, half of which has been reached already.

There is no payroll deduction plan at Suffolk but the United Way campaign will gladly bill contributors in any manner they wish. Pledge cards should be submitted to Karen Grant in the Public Relations Office, Third Floor, 100 Charles River Plaza.

THREE WOMEN LAW STUDENTS RECEIVE COURT CLERKSHIPS

It is still early in the academic year, but five Suffolk Law School third year students have been named to court clerkships in Massachusetts, Maine and the State of Washington. Three of the five are women.

For the first time, a Suffolk law student has been chosen to clerk in the U.S. Court of Appeals, First Circuit, Boston. She is Mrs. Virginia Bonesteel of Bedford, who was appointed to clerk for Judge Levin H. Campbell of that court.

Two other women, Pam Hunt of Cambridge, editor-in-chief of the Law Review, and Lise Kenworthy of Cambridge were selected for clerkships to Justice Herbert P. Wilkins of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, and Judge William T. Beeks of the U.S. District Court, West District, State of Washington, respectively.

The other clerkships went to William Stokes of Cambridge, appointed clerk to Associate Justice James P. Archibald of the Maine Supreme Judicial court and to Clifford Pierce of Arlington, clerk to Chief Justice Armand A. Dufresne, Jr., also of the Maine Supreme Judicial Court.

Dean David J. Sargent announced the appointments at the annual banquet of the Law Review last Friday night. All will become effective with the 1976 Fall court term.

CANADIAN BOOKS PRESENTED TO SUFFOLK

President Fulham welcomed the Consul General of Canada, Jean-Louis Delisle at a luncheon at the school Oct. 22 at which the university was presented with 220 volumes of Canadian literature.

Luncheon guests were Dr. Stanley M. Vogel, chairman of the English department, Dr. Rudy J. Kikel and Dr. Anne Boutelle, both of English, Dr. Cleophas W. Boudreau, chairman of Modern Languages, Edmund G. Hamann, college librarian, and Dean Michael R. Ronayne.

The books were made available by the Canada Council, a government organization which gives scholarships and supports the arts. The set of volumes is one of only 100 throughout the United States.

Dr. Vogel praised the efforts of Dr. Kikel and Dr. Boutelle with the Canadian Consulate in meetings as being instrumental in Suffolk acquiring the volumes. Dr. Boutelle will offer for the first time a course on Canadian literature, stressing the English Canadian contribution. She also made arrangements for the students to attend lectures by prominent Canadian writers at Harvard University.

Have you noticed how many Suffolk people Governor Dukakis has tapped for important appointments? Just to list a few: Dean David J. Sargent to the Massachusetts Judicial Nominating Committee; Registrar Doris Pote, chairman of the Massachusetts Consumers Council; Andrea Wasserman (J.D. '72), chairman of the Boston Finance Commission; John Martin (J.D. '75), chairman of the State Industrial Accident Board; and most recently, Law Prof. Hugh M. Wade, named chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination... Among the familiar faces at the Fenton Building dedication Saturday was that of former Dean Don Grunewald, who came on from Mercy College, New York, where he is in his fourth year as president... Assisting in the Fenton Dedication were members of the Suffolk Law Review, which hosted the pre-dedication breakfast, and the Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity which led tours of the Fenton facility. During afternoon Alumni Homecoming activity, members of Tau Kappa Epsilon, Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority and the Student Bar Association contributed their time and services... Law Prof. Al Cella will discuss the new Massachusetts open meeting law at a Nov. 1 educational conference sponsored by the Massachusetts Press Association in conjunction with the S.U. Journalism department... Law Prof. Louise Weinberg is preparing a study of further unification of court procedure in the Commonwealth for the Boston Bar Association, and Prof. Charles Kindregan has had an article comparing the Uniform Probate Code to the California Probate Code selected for publication in an American Bar Association book on the subject. Kindregan will deliver his paper in a symposium at Georgetown University Law School Nov. 21... The University Health Office has administered 244 flu shots to date, but this is 120 fewer than a year ago. Nurse Mary Brady attributes the decline to the good weather and absence of any flu epidemic predictions in the media... Dr. D. Donald Fiorillo, chairman of Sociology, reports that former Sociology Prof. Peter Conrad received his Ph.D. during the summer at Boston University. Conrad is now at Drake University. Dr. Fiorillo will attend the annual meeting of The American Society of Criminology in Toronto Oct. 30 - Nov. 2. Dr. Dorothy Wertz is a new assistant professor of sociology. A group of 24 students accompanied by Biology Professors Arthur West, Robert Howe and James Fiore visited the Cobscook Bay Laboratory the weekend of Oct. 17. They were greeted by caretaker Lester Seeley and Mrs. Seeley, who had a frank and bean supper ready for the party. In addition to the specimens hunting, the group visited Campobello Island and stopped at FDR's summer home. John Berg of Government and Economics is coordinating a new internship program for that department. He has lined up a number of openings in State government and as assistants to legislators, and students interested should contact him. Massachusetts Superior Court Judge Joseph S. Mitchell Jr. will address the Suffolk Law Forum next Thursday at 5 p.m. His topic will be "The Lawyer as Judge." A reception will follow. Miki Judge of the College Registrar's Office, who took a cross country tour during World Series time, reports that just about everyone she met was rooting for the Red Sox over the Cincinnati Reds, even in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Profs. Edward Clark, Stuart Millner and Stanley Vogel, English chairman, attended the Salem Conference on Literature of the American Revolution. Dr. Clark, with an assist from the L.I.F.E. Committee also brought Black Poet Calvin Forbes to the school. Two of Dr. Robert K. Johnson's poems, "Days of Beauty," and "A Northeaster," have been published in New Poetry Review. The Milwaukee Journal, in its Sunday magazine, Insight, carried an article by Journalism's Richard T. Bray entitled "A Memory of a Lost Paradise." The article dealt with liturgical changes in the Roman Catholic Church and how they affected those who were Catholic children in the forties.

Dr. Ilse M. Fang of Modern Languages reminds us that the Japanese History class will hold a demonstration of Japanese flower arrangement on Wednesday, Nov. 12 at 10 a.m. in the President's Conference room and on Monday, Nov. 24 will have a tea ceremony demonstration. She said the class will also visit the Japanese collection of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts Sunday, Nov. 23 at noon. Professors Harold Stone and Bernard Meyler represented Suffolk at the fifth annual Student Awards dinner of the Mass. Society of CPA's. Among the honored guests were Suffolk students Joni Muschiette (outstanding accounting senior), James Tobin, Lawrence Tucci and Wayne Smith (outstanding accounting juniors) and Daniel Cameron, a senior who last spring won a manuscript award for course paper submitted to the society. Dr. Frances Burke of Public Administration and Management has had a paper nominated for the American Political Science Association's Pi Sigma Alpha Award of 1976. Her work, "Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action: The Gap between Theory and Practice" was delivered at the association's September meeting in San Francisco. Dr. Don Levitan, director of the Center for State Management, will appear before a U.S. Senate committee on Federal Grants in Boston along with academic representatives from M.I.T. and Harvard. Suffolk's speech and debate team is off to another flying start. They've already collected 19 trophies in competition, including a second place finish at Niagara University where they also picked up a first in individual events. Dr. Allan Kennedy, director, says 55 students are taking part. President Fulham checked into Leonard Morse Hospital, Natick Thursday for knee surgery to take care of a cranky cartilage, but is hoping to be back at his desk within a week. Tom Condon of Data Processing has taken a leave of absence and is spending some time in Texas. That wraps it up for October. See you next month.
