TV's 'Down You Go' Student's Treat

At one moment, about seventy other people, including a group of "Villains," turned from the screening room when the University Film Society decided to show "Down You Go!" It was a full house, 110 or so, and they all appeared to be enjoying the picture. The plot is simple, but interesting. A prisoner on the run is chased by a gang of escaped convicts, and the race is on. The plot is well-developed, the action fast, and the suspense kept up. The picture is well-made, and the acting is excellent. The audience was thoroughly pleased with the picture, and all appeared to be enjoying themselves. The picture was shown in the Majestic Theatre, and the audience was thoroughly pleased.

Marks vs Ex-Curricula

As college is currently being exhibited in all the books and magazines here at BU, it might be desirable to introduce the concept of marks vs. ex-curricula. There are two schools of thought on this matter—one maintains that academic achievement equals the most accurate determining factor of a potential employee's productivity and general worth, while the other contends that extracurricular achievements are of equal importance.

The latter doctrine seems to have been accepted in most corners for about ten years now. There are arguments for both sides. A "C" student, who earns more practical knowledge and experience, may be able to contribute to a company in a larger period of time than those who have had marks. On the other hand, the student who is labeled grade average holder, or the fellow who is below average, is constantly being left behind, carrying on a personal grudge against the system.

To disregard the importance of either is undeniably sadistic. We have seen the many fruitful achievements of students who have kept a studious attitude to scholarship, while curricular activities limited to basic requirements will be in perspective a better person in every way.

A Serious Change In The Method Of Review In Criminal Cases

In 1925, the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court established a new method of reviewing criminal cases with the creation of a Committee on Criminal Procedure. The Committee was charged with the task of reforming the criminal justice system in the state and making recommendations for improving the administration of justice.

The Committee's report, released in 1929, contained several recommendations, including the establishment of a new method of reviewing criminal cases. This method was designed to ensure that cases were reviewed in a fair and impartial manner and that the rights of the accused were protected.

The new method of reviewing criminal cases was implemented in 1930 and has been in use ever since. The method involves a two-step process. In the first step, the judge reviews the record of the case and makes a determination whether the defendant's rights were violated. If the judge determines that there were violations, the case is reviewed by the Appeals Court.

In the second step, the Appeals Court reviews the case and determines whether the defendant's conviction should be upheld or reversed. If the court determines that the conviction should be reversed, the case is remanded for a new trial.

The new method of reviewing criminal cases has been widely praised for its fairness and impartiality. It has also been praised for its effectiveness in ensuring that the rights of the accused are protected.

The Committee's report has been considered a model for other states that have since implemented similar methods of reviewing criminal cases. The Committee's report has also been influential in the development of criminal justice systems in other countries, including Canada and Australia.

Alumni Planning Body

Hard At Work For All

DO YOU KNOW
THESE PEOPLE?

The Suffolk University alumnae planning committee has been hard at work for all the past month to prepare the Alumni Dinner for this weekend.

There has been a change in the planning committee, and some new members, and not the least of these is the recognition of the Alumni Club into the Suffolk University Alumni Association.

But perhaps the most important change is that former President of the Club, Mrs. Blanche Blount, has been replaced by Mrs. Mary B. Kinnear, who has been appointed President of the Club.

The apple was accepted by the members, all those who had not been members of the Planning Committee were excused from the first meeting.

They have made up a new committee, all of the members are alumni and are supposed to get the names.

There's a bright future ahead.

From The Fourth Estate by Leo Sheehan

Here I am again, at the end of the first half, and the score is 60-0. I understand that Tom Dooley is going to throw the ball to Jimmy in the backcourt, and Jimmy in turn will throw the ball to Bob in the low post. I'm told that Bob will throw the ball to John in the high post, and John in turn will throw the ball to me in the middle. I feel comfortable in this situation, as I have been in the middle of the court for the last few minutes. I am looking forward to the remainder of the game, as I feel that we will be victorious.

The Miller School will be in action against the John Jay School on Tuesday night, March 2.

A head on to the next challenge for the Rams was the first game of the season against First Games. The Rams had been practicing hard for this game, and were eager to show what they had learned.

The game started with a bang as the Rams scored the first points of the game. The First Games defense was able to hold them scoreless for the next few minutes, but the Rams were able to recover and score again, this time on a deep pass from quarterback Bob Hunt to wide receiver Jim Kelly. The score was 2-0 for the Rams.

The second quarter saw the Rams take control of the game. They scored three more touchdowns, with passes from Hunt to Kelly and running backs John Johnson and Mike Smith. The score after the second quarter was 17-2 for the Rams.

In the third quarter, First Games fought back with two touchdowns, but the Rams were able to put the game out of reach with a final touchdown late in the quarter. The final score was 24-10 for the Rams.

The Rams defense was able to hold First Games scoreless in the last quarter, and the Rams were able to coast to a comfortable victory.

The Rams will look to continue their winning streak next week when they face off against a tough opponent. The team is looking forward to the challenge and is ready to put in the effort to come out on top.
