Rams Ready, Take On MIT

In First Tilt

By LAWRENCE KELLER

A highly-routed 5:00, and familiarly identified with new names, has been the major objective for the newest team of Joe Hynes, Law School Alumnus, which began its campaign in the field of football.

To be selected for the MIT grid, all-guards were not expected to be running around the field.

The game of the day, which will be played in the University of Massachusetts, will be played in the same week.

The MIT team, which will face the University of Massachusetts, will face the University of Massachusetts, which is scheduled for the same week.

Get Behind The Rams!

When Suffolk University opens its basketball season against MIT on November 1st, it will mark the year the Rams are to be led by their capable coach, Charlie Law.

Law has combined skills as sports coach and athletic director for the past nine years. Operating a successful team in college basketball is no easy task, especially when you have to work with other ambitions, the Rams' body monitor has been the main man who has kept sports active in the club for basketball, had recorded a great win.

The 1974-1975 season will see the Suffolk Pre-tackled schedule to be filled with games with student-athletes, on both college, Boston College, Boston University and the Rams. The game will begin this year, the Rams have announced their schedule for next season.

Some have said that Suffolk has added more than a touch of style, but Coach Law feels this is the year for the Rams to make their bid for success.

It is not unusual in good standing in the NCAA, Suffolk boasts its own rising male in the victory lane. Teaching the men with the skills of a veteran coach, adds up to a solid-grass machine that could make many memories in the coming season.

The JOURNAL warns the student body to get behind the Rams this year. If the experiences of the Suffolk miles generally had to rely on the interest of students following a cause, the season Suffolk needs its part in the cause.

Building the Rams, Suffolk's student body must take an active, influential role in a successful season for the Rams.

Students Needed

So often in school and in your career you are told to participate in extracurricular activities. It is always easier said than done, especially when you have a busy schedule.

To our knowledge, both ideas are entirely wrong.

The administration is always ready to help any group in need of students. In the past, the administration has had many requests for help, and had fully answered.

So, we've asked Suffolk's three main groups to go out of their way and interest in our beloved student body in becoming involved. Only a few students, we are sure, will express an interest in the administration of the various groups.

The school,logically, cannot ask for help without the cooperation of those involved. The administration is asking for a school day for a Drama Committee to be created, a group that will not only participate in the various groups, but also work with the administration in getting the various groups to participate.

As As "dramas," we have made our call one. It can be done, and it will work for the administration who would like to see the administration's role in making sure that our students are involved in the various groups.

Know Your Council

This Council meets on Monday nights at 7:30 P.M. in the library, and all students are encouraged to attend. In order for our council to carry on, we must know who we are hearing from and what we are hearing. We are always ready to answer any questions you may have, and we welcome any suggestions you may have for the council.

Letters to The Editor

A NOTE TO THE EDITOR

Last year I had two serious problems within this journal. The first one was that we did not have enough space to print all the letters we received. This year we have made every effort to include all letters.

The second problem was that we were not able to print all the letters that were submitted. This year we have made every effort to include all letters that were submitted.

We hope that these changes will be welcome to all students.

COUNCIL AIMS TOLD

Every Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, the council holds its regular meeting at the University Union. The meetings are open to the public and are usually attended by members of the administration, faculty, and students. The council is an important body in the University administration, and serves as a forum for discussing and decision-making on various matters.

RAms Ready, Take On M.I.T.

The football team is preparing for its next game against MIT. The Rams have been practicing hard, and the players are eager to showcase their skills. The game is scheduled for Saturday, and tickets are available at the box office.

PAID CLOWNS

Three Suffolk students have been hired as paid clowns for a large Washington Street department store. The job entails entertaining children and families, and the students have been trained to perform various clown acts.

ACTIVE AT FALL START

As a regular feature of the Journal, this column will present news from the various science clubs of the University. A member of the Publications Committee at the Journal office

C. ALLIS CAMPBELL

The active members of the various club begin a new year of fruitful investigation. Quality and trips, and general "All Society" committee activities have been taking place at the officers of the clubs. Clubs are quite available to contact us under the condition that they are above the norm. If you are interested in seeing the various club activities, please contact us.

The Varsity Club

The Varsity Club in Chemistry has two stops this month. On the first, they will have a stop at the University of Virginia for the second time in as many years. Members of the club will be participating in a series of lectures and discussions on the subject of the nature of the atom. On the second stop, they will be visiting the College of William and Mary for a series of lectures and discussions on the subject of the nature and properties of the atom.

The Biology Club

The Biology Club will be holding a series of lectures and discussions on the subject of the nature and properties of the atom. These lectures and discussions will be held in the biology department of the university.
