FULMER ELECTED BOARD CHAIRMAN, HESSION IS VICE-CHAIRMAN

TWO NEW SEATS OPEN ON BOARD FOR ALUMNI REPRESENTATION

Vincent A. Fulmer, secretary of the institute at M.I.T., has assumed the chairmanship of the Suffolk University Board of Trustees, and Miss Jeanne M. Hession, senior legal officer for the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co., has become vice-chairman. The appointments became effective July 1.

Fulmer succeeded Judge C. Edward Rowe, who served as chairman since 1974. Miss Hession succeeded Herbert C. Hambelton. In stepping down, both Rowe and Hambelton will remain members of the 21-member board.

At the opening September meeting chaired by Fulmer, a resolution was adopted paying tribute to Judge Rowe for his service as chairman. The board noted that during Rowe's term, the administration and faculty of the university made "record strides in the diversification of its programs and new forms of public service have emerged." It also took note of the physical expansion and modernization of facilities under Rowe's leadership.

"In every way that the exercise of a public trust is undertaken in the public interest, Suffolk University has fulfilled its basic mission in higher education under his distinguished leadership," the board noted in expressing its appreciation for Rowe's contribution.

In other action at the meeting, board accepted the resignation of trustee Joseph J. Melone because of business reasons. Melone, recently promoted to a senior executive position with the Prudential Insurance Co., will be moving to Newark, N.J., home office of Prudential.

The board also moved to fill two trustee vacancies with Suffolk alumni through elections to be conducted by the University Alumni Association. In addition to Melone, there is a vacancy left by the resignation of George C. Seybolt, now trustee emeritus.

In naming Vincent Fulmer to the chairman's post, the board chose a man who has been associated with education for more than 25 years and one highly respected among his peers. He has been a member of the Suffolk board of trustees since November, 1972 and has served on a number of college committees.

A native of Alliance, Ohio, and a World War II Navy veteran of the Pacific Theater, he was graduated from Miami University in Ohio in 1949 with an A.B. degree cum laude and later received his S.M. degree in economics and science from M.I.T. He was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree from Suffolk University in 1971.

Before joining M.I.T. Fulmer taught economics at Williams College. As secretary of the Institute, he supports the M.I.T. corporation and its committees in administering the work of the 75-member governing body and is also responsible for facilitating and supporting the work of the 400-member corporation visiting committees. In 1963, when he was appointed vice president and secretary of the institute, at the age of 35, he became the youngest person ever named to the vice presidency in the institute's history.

At Suffolk, Fulmer has been chairman of the College Committee, a member of the Business School Committee, the Joint Advisory Council on University Affairs, the Development Committee and the Committee on Education.

At M.I.T., he is a member of the Faculty Council and for 10 years served as executive officer of the Development Committee of the corporation.

Community service has long been a part of Fulmer's life. In addition to his Suffolk association, he is vice president of the Board of Directors of the Carroll Center for the Blind, a member of the Board of Directors of the Planning Office for Urban Affairs of the Archdiocese of Boston and a board member of the Institute of Social Technology of Puerto Rico.

Miss Hession, a 1956 cum laude graduate of Suffolk University Law School, was the first woman named to Suffolk's board when elected in May of 1973 and also the first vice-chairwoman. She is also a life trustee.

In addition to her banking post, Miss Hession serves on the faculty of the School of Banking at Williams College where she conducts a course in fiduciary law. She is also a member of the executive committee of the Boston College Estate Planning Council. She is founder and honorary life director of the Foundation of Hope, Inc., a Massachusetts charitable foundation established to aid women released from prison by finding homes for them until they can maintain an apartment of their own. She is also vice-chairman of the National Association of Bank Women Educational Foundation.

At Suffolk, she is a member of the College Committee, the Nominating Committee, the Alumni Committee, the Development Committee, the Joint Advisory Committee, and the Committee on Education.

SUFFOLK PROJECTS GET APPROVAL FOR PHASE 2B PLAN

Four new magnet projects for Suffolk University with three schools assigned under the Phase Two Desegregation plan have been approved by the Boston School Committee.

The projects were given approval at a meeting Wednesday. A program for a fifth project at Boston Trade High School is still under consideration.

Suffolk is paired with Copley Square High School, the Trotter School, Horace Mann Middle School and Boston Trade High School under the plan.

Dr. Cleo Boudreau, Phase Two coordinator for Suffolk, said that the projects finalized over the summer months involve: math and reading laboratory project at the elementary lowest level at the Trotter School; a video process project for use of video tape equipment at the Horace Mann Middle School, culminating in a videodocumentary film on the multi-ethnic presence for fifth, sixth and seventh grade students; and two projects at the Copley School dealing with direct services in mathematics for ninth grade students functioning below grade levels and a career oriented bilingual education program.

Team members from Suffolk's faculty are Dr. Boudreau, Prof. John R. Burton, assigned to Mann, Dr. Allan J. Kennedy (the Copley) and Prof. Robert B. Jennings (Trade). A member will be specifically assigned to the Trotter soon.

FULHAM PORTRAIT UNVEILED IN MUNCE CONFERENCE ROOM

A portrait of President Fulham, painted by artist in residence Raymond H. Parks of Suffolk's Humanities department, was unveiled Sept. 13 in the Robert J. Munce Conference Room. It will hang there with portraits of the five other Suffolk University presidents.

President Fulham sat for the portrait over a period of two years.

At a reception to mark the occasion, Vincent A. Fulmer, chairman of the Board of Trustees, presented a citation to Parks expressing appreciation of the board "for his expression of creative talent in rendering a distinguished portrait" of President Fulham.

The citation read: "You have captured the qualities of compassion, strength and purposes in the President's features. In doing so, you have given the University a valued work of art. We are proud to add your beautiful painting to the permanent collection of portraits of our great Presidents. Generations of men and women at Suffolk University will be grateful for your residency here."

The citation was signed by Chairman Fulmer. Among those present were President Fulham and Mrs. Fulham, Dean David J. Sargent of the Law School, Dr. Florence Petherick of the Humanities Department and Suffolk Trustee Dorothy A. Antonelli.

LIBRARY CONSORTIUM WILL EXTEND STUDENT PRIVILEGES

Suffolk's College Library has joined a group of nine colleges and universities to form the Fenway Colleges Library Consortium. College Librarian Edmund G. Hamann said membership in the consortium will enable students from the schools to use a total of 660,000 volumes and 4300 periodical titles in addition to other educational materials.

Other member schools are: Boston State College, Emmanuel College, Massachusetts College of Art, Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Simmons College, Wentworth Institute, Wheelock College and Hebrew College.

"The overall goal of FCLC is inter-library cooperation among its members in providing students with a far broader collection of educational materials than any one institution could possibly afford," Hamann said.

Under the Walk-in Inter-Library Loan consortium agreement, members of each college community are extended borrowing privileges if they have a current I.D. card. Each library has agreed to recall overdue books belonging to another institution and borrowed by its own students or reimburse it for books lost.

Hamann said that inasmuch as Suffolk is not located in the Fenway like other member libraries, a union list of periodicals will be compiled to show the combined holdings of all libraries with copies made available in each library.

SUFFOLK 'SUMMER THING' AIDS CITY YOUNGSTERS

More than 75 City of Boston youngsters participated in a Summer Youth Program sponsored by Suffolk University over a six-week period this summer. The program, funded by the State, was designed to involve the city's youth in recreational and community activity.

Heading the program were Dr. Allan J. Kennedy, chairman of the Speech department, who conducted a High School Summer Theatre Arts Program for 30 youngsters and James Nelson, assistant professor of physical education, who directed a Suffolk Summer Youth Activities program.

Dr. Kennedy's group attended a presentation of the hit musical, Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope, at the Charles Street Playhouse, visited the Prudential Center and saw the multi-media production Where's Boston, and attended the musical Zorba at the North Shore Music Theatre in Beverly. They also observed a professional makeup demonstration, practiced acting techniques on video tape and also witnessed a presentation by the University of Wisconsin Mime Company.

Nelson directed more than 50 boys and girls through recreational activities that included basketball, baseball, softball, floor hockey, volleyball, badminton and swimming. There were also field trips to the Museum of Science, New England Aquarium, Peabody Museum of Natural History, the USS Constitution, Where's Boston, George's Island and Fort Warren. Some 40 young people were taken to a Red Sox Game.

A BUSY SUMMER ON CAMPUS ----- AND BUSY FALL AHEAD

Summer, 1976 was another busy one on Suffolk campus. In addition to the regular summer programs offered by the Colleges and Law School, July and August were highlighted by a number of other activities.

The Law School played host to the 1976 National Colleges of Advocacy sponsored by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America Aug. 15 through Aug. 21. More than 400 lawyers from throughout the nation attended the college, which featured some of the top legal authorities as faculty. Law Dean David J. Sargent, who was program advisor, said, "The overall program was excellent and we have received very favorable response from participants and lecturers." The Trial Lawyers are interested in holding next year's college here as well. . . . Meanwhile, in the College of Liberal Arts, 26 high school youngsters attended Boston's first urban journalism workshop for minority students Aug. 23-Sept. 3. The workshop, conducted by the Suffolk Journalism Department under direction of Chairman Malcolm J. Barach, was sponsored by The Newspaper Fund, Inc., one of 11 of its kind throughout the country. In addition to classroom work and lectures, the group took a tour of Boston's Channel 7, the Boston Globe and visited the press room at Boston City Hall. . . . And up in Cobscook Bay, Maine, some 350 miles from the sidewalks of Beacon Hill, the university's Friedman Laboratory, under direction of Dr. Arthur West, had another successful summer. President Fulham, in his annual visit to the station, addressed students and townsfolk on "The 200-mile Sea Limit," Aug. 12. . . . The Instructional Materials Center has installed a three camera mini-television studio in the Moot Court Room. Director Colleen J. Kazanowski said that students' performance will be taped for self-critique and competition will be broadcast to various locations within the university. . . . Phyllis Mack offered a unique course in sociology during the summer, "Alcoholics in American Society." The six-week course included trips to AA meetings, a film from the Massachusetts Division of Alcoholism and talks by Richard X. Connors, director of the Massachusetts Alcohol Safety Action Project. . . . Dean Richard L. McDowell of the College of Business Administration was happy to announce that Suffolk has been designated a founding chapter of Phi Alpha Alpha, the national honor society for public affairs and administration. Suffolk is the only chapter in New England so designated. . . .

One of the season's early attractions sponsored by the Business School was a Sept. 27 visit of Dr. Max Wortman, professor of industrial relations and management at UMass, Amherst, to discuss the Academy of Management Review, which he edits. The lecture was in Dean McDowell's Conference Room. . . . The Speech Department greeted more than 400 high school students for a high school speech assembly featuring speech and debate instruction Sept. 25. The Debating team, fifth nationally in their division a year ago, will hold their first intercollegiate debate the first weekend of October at M.I.T. and Dr. Allan Kennedy and Coach Sid Russell have 15 students prepared for it. . . . Lee Franks will speak on The Loch Ness Monster with slides in the Auditorium Sept. 30. He headed expeditions to Scotland in 1974. . . . The university's Satellite Military Program will be offering courses at three sites when classes begin Oct. 4. In addition to the Boston Army Base, there will be programs at the Coast Guard, Marine and Navy Center in Boston and the Air Force Base at Hanscom Field. Military officers attended a reception and dinner at the university Sept. 22 to mark the new program. . . . The university's 1976 United Way drive will be kicking off early in October and President Fulham will be calling on team leaders to give Suffolk's drive a big lift. The UW goal this year is $18,600,000.

 PERSONNEL PAGE *****

(Every month on this page, The SUN will carry general information about personnel matters that we hope will prove beneficial to staff. If you have questions you would like answered, direct them to the Personnel Office. This column will try to answer as many as possible. This month we will discuss The University Grievance Procedure.)

The University Grievance Procedure for support staff (office, secretarial and security) and administrative staff has been designed to allow for full review of staff grievances relating to discipline, discharge, working conditions or discrimination. The University has made a commitment to its staff that they will not be discriminated against in hiring, compensation, promotion, use of facilities, access to programs and provision of fringe benefits because of sex, race, religion, age, handicap, national origin, marital or parental status as required by Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.

Staff are encouraged to discuss employment problems informally with supervisors, department heads or the Personnel Office. Experience has shown that most employment related problems can be handled through these informal channels. However, if problems cannot be handled in this manner, staff are encouraged to utilize the grievance procedure.

Briefly, the procedure entails three steps an aggrieved party may take if not satisfied with an earlier decision.

1. A review by the department head
2. A review by the Dean of the appropriate college or the vice president.
3. A review by the Grievance Review Board which is made up of three full-time staff members, one chosen by the aggrieved, and two appointed by the Personnel Office with concurring approval by the aggrieved party. The board will review the situation and make a recommendation to the President for appropriate action. This procedure has been in effect since November, 1975, and was mailed to staff at that time. Additional copies are available in the Personnel Office.

If you have any additional questions about the grievance procedure, forward them to the Personnel Office.

A reminder: The MBTA is now offering monthly pre-paid passes. Several plans are available depending on the route traveled. The price is based on 19 round trips per month, but passes may be used as frequently as desired. Passes must be requested by the 10th of the month for the following month. Consult the Personnel Office for further details.

In conjunction with MassPool, Suffolk has established a ride-sharing (carpool) program. More information is available from the Personnel and Equal Employment Office.

Have you seen the multi-media hit Where's Boston at the Prudential Pavilion? Discount coupons for this production about Boston are available in the Personnel Office as are coupons for the Prudential Skywalk.

- POTPOURRI -

A welcome back to the bustling campus. The final enrollment figures are in from Data Processing Specialist Tom Condon, and if ever a projection hit the mark it was in '76. The University had pledged to keep the enrollment stable. The final total is 4725 for the colleges (including satellite programs) and that is just one (1) more student than a year ago - and just four more on campus than in '75. . . Vice President-Treasurer Frank Flannery has issued a reminder to staffers to be extremely wary of intruders upon campus. He stresses that secretaries especially avoid leaving handbags on their desks. A few days ago, an intruder walked off with a secretary's wallet. Alert Suffolk security and maintenance men Harvey Cannon and Gaither Brown apprehended someone matching the description the following day in the Donahue Building. . . A study based on Career Orientation in the Liberal Arts Curriculum and conducted by Professors Don Fiorillo and Gary Castanino of the Sociology Department is being considered for publication by the Journal of Educational Research. It could focus national attention on Suffolk where undergraduate sociology enrollments show a steady increase as opposed to a 12 per cent decline around the country. . . Dr. Dorothy Wertz of the Sociology Department has co-authored Hindu Monastic Life, a study of the Bhuvanese War, and published by McGill-Queens University Press. It has won an award from the Canada Council on the Humanities. Dr. Wertz also presented a paper on "Childbirth as a Controlled Workspace: From Midwifery to Obstetrics" at the recent American Sociological Association meeting in New York. . . Dr. Ilse Fang says that topical films on Germany will be shown Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays this semester at 1 p.m. in Fenton 405. For listings call her at Ext. 286. The Suffolk community is invited to join the History of China class when it visits the Fogg Museum at Harvard Sept. 30. Departure will be from Fenton entrance on Derne Street at 12:45 p.m. The Modern Language Department is prepping for Danube Week Oct. 18-22 which will feature German and Balkan music and food and two lectures by Prof. W. Griffith of MIT and Dr. A. Harding, art historian at Goethe Institute. . .

This year's minority student advisor on campus is Eddie Jenkins of Mattapan, Dean of Students D. Bradley Sullivan announces. Jenkins is a Holy Cross graduate with a major in English and is presently a second-year day student at Suffolk Law School. Jenkins was a football star at Holy Cross and later played for the Miami Dolphins. Speaking of the Dolphins, their veteran linebacker Nick Buoniconti visited Suffolk while he was in town for a game against the Patriots. President Fulham presented Buoniconti, a '68 law school graduate, with a certificate for his work as chairman of the law school annual fund. . . Social notes: Karen Grant of Public Relations became Mrs. Paul DeCilio on Sept. 11 at St. Margaret's Church, Dorchester and Pamela Weeder of Development married Bob McKinney of Revere Sept. 25 at St. Anthony's Church, Revere. Sharon Jordan of Modern Languages married Steven Potter of Amesbury Aug. 28 in The Congregational Church of Topsfield. . . From the maternity ward: Frank Sablone of Development and wife Julie (Laughlin) Sablone, formerly of Public Relations, welcomed a 6 pound 1-ounce son, Michael Patrick, Sept. 22 at Lowell General Hospital. Ann Boutelle of English gave birth to a 6 pound 14-ounce daughter Laura on Aug. 22. Judith Dushku of Government is back teaching after the birth of her second child, a son, born in February. . .

S.U.'s chapter of the American Association of University Professors has elected its 1976-77 executive board. They are President Dennis Outwater of Philosophy, First Vice President Stuart Millner of English, Second Vice President Donald Unger of Education, Secretary John Cavanagh of History and Treasurer Cynthia Latta of Economics. . . Dean Richard L. McDowell of the Business School has been appointed to the American Science and Technology in Government Committee for the American Society for Public Administration for 1976-77. . . Dr. Frances Burke, who has been appointed chairperson of the Public Management and Administration Department, has been named to the ASPA's National Committee on Higher Education and Governmental Relations. Students in her intergovernmental class received commendation from a State Special Commission on the Effects of Growth Patterns on the Quality of Life in the Commonwealth for a research project for the commission. . . Dr. Don Levitan has been named director for the university's M.P.A. program. The prolific Levitan authored the lead article in the Spring issue of Massachusetts Selectmen. It was entitled "Introduction to Municipal Bonds." He also served as an instructor at the Second New England Municipal Clerks Institute at Salve Regina College Aug. 17 and 18. . . Deborah (Lepore) Cavallaro is leaving Suffolk after seven years of service in the College Registrar's Office to become a mother. Office staffers tendered her a sendoff party last Friday. . . Our sympathies this month to Tom Kearney, assistant to the director of the physical plant, upon the death of his wife, Edith, Sept. 11 and to Prof. Stanley Dennis of the Business School on the loss of his father, Murray Dennis, Sept. 23. . . Five members of Suffolk's family are listed in the newly published bi-centennial edition of Who's Who in America, headed by board chairman Vincent A. Fulmer, secretary of the institute at M.I.T., President Fulham, Dean Emeritus Donald W. Goodrich, Dr. Edward G. Hartmann, professor of history, and Dr. William S. Sahakian, professor of philosophy. . . Jim Coleman, long-time reference librarian, has been promoted to the new position of assistant college librarian and reference librarian. . .

During the summer, English's Bob Johnson delivered a reading of his poetry as part of Boston's Summerthing "Poetry on the Plaza." Jim Martin of English has received a fellowship in creative writing from the National Endowment for the Arts. The $6000 stipend is awarded annually to some 150 poets, playwrights and novelists. . . Ed Clark of English, back from sabbatical, has fond memories of a summer in which he drove cross-country to San Francisco. . . Marilyn Jurich, recently elected to Who's Who Among Child Development Professionals, spent part of the summer as a consultant in children's literature to Bunker Hill College. . . Marshall Brooks, a student in Dr. Boutelle's Canadian Literature class has had a paper, "The Interior View in Malcolm's Katie" accepted for publication in Canada's prestigious journal, Canadian Literature. He also wrote an article for the Boston Globe op-editorial page on his college career at Suffolk. . . Dr. Marshall D. Hastings of Modern Languages participated in the foreign language immersion program of six north-suburban high schools at Gordon College this summer. . . Prof. Harold Stone served as moderator for the Massachusetts Association of Public Accountants seminar on professional development Sept. 16 at the Sheraton Tara in South Braintree. . . Law Prof. Al Cella, through an appointment by Massachusetts Supreme Court Chief Justice Edward Hennessey, is serving as a member of a committee studying problems of the assignment of counsel to indigent defendants in criminal cases. Cella is also completing his fourth year as a member of the governing board of the Massachusetts Defenders Committee. . . And that is the bottom line for this month. . .
