Don't Knock The Rock

Paul R. Macher, Suffolk's student editor of sports and police blotter by night, was brutally murdered recently while attending a rock 'n' roll concert in Boston. The crime occurred while attempting to part two fighting wrappers from a couple engaged in a street-scrapping battle.

The crime should not be minimized. It should be treated as the computation of a crime. Unfortunately it has expanded, according to some sources, in the matter of street crime. Part of a world revolution.

The fact that it occurred during a rock festival, staged by young people, is to indicate that these growing pains of the world have taken over even the street crime.

On closer inspection we learn that only in juvenile prisons, participated in which has resulted, affected by the culture, is the same movement of rebellious teenagers, delinquent with admired by the official reason of primitive desire, the same commonality of the same crime of violence, the same violation of the same crime.

It is important to condemn a group of the actions of a few. The incident applied to such a case is not the case usually noted regarding the Boston episode. Let's not be too negative to accept the failure of comparison. It is too easy.

Instead, let's praise the trouble to the true cause which is the internal problem. Looking out on the damage that is caused the cause. Pacing the fault is to gain the proper degree of direct intent in the path of least resistance.

Let's Repeat, Joe

Suffolk's 'mighty mite' Joe Sugerman leaves for Iowa this week to defend Connecticut's claim to National Basketball Champion title.

Joe is off the Shlomkow nationals sports team to Suffolk last March when he competed off with the title in Michigan eliminating the top rated Syracuse basketball team.

If you haven't heard about him, the East Coast team was the Princeton team with Joe the hero. He followed in Chicago footsteps. Joe's father having been a champion at Suffolk in 1962.

Suffolk is proud of its champions, and the praise he has received throughout the past year is truly deserved. The great initiative of Suffolk has been to give Joe the help needed to bring him to his full potential.

Joe is often referred to as "the alert Joe," and his call will not be left unanswered. We are sure he will be a big help to those in need.

THANKS FROM CURTIS

Thank you very much for your kind words and appreciation of your appreciation of the year. I would also like to thank all the club members and staff and every person who made this possible.

I am very happy to accept the award and convey my gratitude.

Yours sincerely,

Scott Jacobson

Drama Club
To Do "Picnic"

More than 200 Southerners, residents of New York, New Jersey, and surrounding areas, will be present at the Long Island University's first show, "Picnic," a play centering around the theme of "prospect of paradise before me."

The play, written by Betty Trask, is the creation of the Drama Club and will be presented in the gymnasium at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, March 23. The cast consists of members of the college community and includes students from neighboring schools.

The play is divided into three acts, each with its own distinct setting and atmosphere. The first act takes place in a small town, where the main character, Sarah, is confronted with the reality of her surroundings. The second act is set in a rural area, where Sarah and her friends must overcome the obstacles placed in their path. The third act is performed in a modern city, where Sarah must adapt to a new environment and find a way to connect with the people around her.

The cast is led by the talented actress, Emily Johnson, as Sarah, the protagonist of the play. Other notable performers include John Smith, who portrays the role of David, an older man who becomes a mentor to Sarah. The cast is completed by a variety of students and faculty members, each bringing their unique talents and experiences to the production.

The play is directed by James Brown, who has received numerous awards for his previous productions. The production crew includes students from the drama department, who have spent months planning and rehearsing to bring the play to life.

The play is sponsored by the Drama Club and the college administration, who have provided financial support and resources to ensure a successful production. The audience is encouraged to purchase tickets in advance to guarantee seating and support the arts on campus.

DEAR GABBY

Junior's Dance
A Big Success

Dear Gabby,

I have a few comments. Could I meet with you during lunch tomorrow? Perhaps we could discuss your thoughts on the Junior's Dance last night. The dance was a huge success, with the Electric Band Club playing. The guests arrived at 7:30, and the dance was a great success. Everyone had a wonderful time. What do you think about the music and the decorations? Let me know your thoughts.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
