New Trustee

James F. Linnehan, JD'56 of Lowell has been elected to a five-year term on the Suffolk University Board of Trustees, Vincent A. Fulmer, chairman of the board, announced.

Linnehan, an attorney with law offices in Boston and Lowell and a 1956 graduate of Suffolk University Law School, succeeds Atty. Joseph Schneider, who becomes trustee emeritus, after 20 years service.

Linnehan has been serving a three-year term as an alumni-trustee on the board and is a member of the Finance Committee, Auditing Committee, Alumni Committee, Development Committee, Joint Advisory Committee and Salary Sub-Committee. A special election will be held by the alumni to fill Linnehan’s vacancy. The call for nominations for the election ballot will take place this summer.

Fulmer, in announcing Linnehan’s election, said, “We are delighted at this action of the board which extends the service of Mr. Linnehan. He has brought to the university an extraordinary background and breadth of perspective in legal and business practice.”

A father of six, Linnehan has specialized as a defense counsel in tax cases in Federal Courts and also handles cases in bankruptcy, estates, trusts, contracts, tax accounting and bank examinations. He holds a B.S.B.A. degree from Northern- eastern University and a certificate of accountancy from Bentley College.

He is a member of the Federal, Massachusetts, Middlesex County and Lowell Bar Associations and is also a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Lowell Chamber of Commerce, St. John’s Hospital Men’s Guild and the Middlesex Bank Advisory Board.

Linnehan and his wife, the former Judy Schrift, live at 45 Clark Rd., Lowell. Their children are Karen, 24, John, 23, James, 22, Thomas, 21, Susan, 19, and Timothy, 17.

Alumni Golf Day

The first Suffolk University alumni golf day is now being planned under the leadership of Honorary Chairman Charles Law and Chairman Arthur Bell, BSBA’50. Assisting them will be David Cavalier, AB’74, Ronald D. D’Avolio, JD’60, Michael Egan, BSBA’71, Neil MacLean, BSBA’70, and Herbert Lemelman, Associate Dean of the Law School; Joseph O’Rourke, JD’41.

The committee reports that the alumni golf day will be open to all college and law alumni, and the $25.00 per person fee will include golf, prizes, cocktails, and dinner. There will be prizes for low gross and low net. The Galloway system will be used to deter­mine low net scores, and there will be an alumnus division with the same prizes.

The committee will establish four­somes unless provided with the names of alumni who intend to play together. Tee times will begin at 12:00 p.m. and starting times will be mailed one week before the tournament.

Golfers of all capabilities are urged to participate and help make the first golf day a huge success.

Professor Jehudah H. Leftin, Biology Department; Ronald Backer, AB'64; and guests.

The Suffolk team finished fifth out of more than 20 colleges competing and got strong play from Andy Campbell, Pat Baldassaro, Jeff Padell and Kevin Joyce.

Off his fine spring performance, Phillips was chosen to play in the NCAA Division III Championship tournament in Wooster, Ohio. He competed with more than 120 nationally-ranked golfers.

Suffolk's baseball team finished its season with an 8-12 record. After a slow start, Tom Walsh's Rams rallied to win six of their last 10 games.

Top performers were third baseman Rich Williams of Weymouth and catcher Jay Caron of Quincy. Williams hit seven homeruns, batted .380 and led the team in average, homers, runs batted in and hits. Caron batted .371 and had five homeruns.

The 1978 Rams established a record for most homeruns hit by a Suffolk team, 24. That was one more than last year's team hit. The squad elected Larry Skara, sophomore first baseman from Chelsea, and Williams co-captains for next year's team.

A number of faculty and administrators took part in the second annual Faculty-Staff golf outing at Vesper Country Club in Tyngsboro May 22.

Frank Sablone, BSBA'70, MEd'71 assistant development director, pointed out that "the overall champion was the golf course with Vesper in superb condition and golfers finding out why it's one of the most difficult and best kept courses in New England."

Low gross for faculty went to Roger Volk, MEd'73 of the Business School with an 87 minus 12, for a net 75. Low gross for students was Andy Campbell who posted an 82.

Nearest to the pin was Professor Gary P. Cartanino, AB'67 biology (2'6") and longest drive was by Jeff Padell with a whopping 280-yard drive.

Lou Peters of the Bookstore gets thanks for contributing the prizes and Jim Nelson of Athletics a salute for donating the golf balls.

Quote of the fun-filled day came from Business Professor Benson Diamond, BSBA'51, JD'63: "I should have stayed at the office."

Errata

Apologies to Attorney Harold Cohen, JD'32 and Attorney Arnold Cohen, JD'32 for any confusion resulting from the Class Note which incorrectly designated Harold Cohen, JD'32 as president of the Western Norfolk Bar Association. In actuality, it is Harold Cohen, JD'35 who holds that distinguished office.

Also, a picture caption on page 5 mistakenly indicated that phonathon volunteer, Carol T. Johnian, MAE'73 was phonathon co-chairperson Barbara B. Freedman, AB'74.

Alumni Happenings

Reunion: Approximately two hundred alumni, students and faculty from the biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics and psychology departments gathered at the U.S. Coast Guard Officers Club, Boston on May 7.

Cocktails, dinner, recognition of academically outstanding students and the program participants, an excellent address by Dr. Joseph R. Geraci, BS'59 and dancing to the music of The Six Pence all combined to make the evening most enjoyable.

Boston Pops: Over four hundred alumni gathered at Symphony Hall on June 13 to watch maestro Arthur Fiedler conduct the Pops orchestra. While the audience thoroughly enjoyed selections from Verdi, Rossini, Gershwin, etc., it was not until the theme from Star Wars burst forth that the audience went wild.

Following the performance, alumni crowded into the Cabot-Cahners Room at Symphony Hall for a champagne reception. Over seven cases of champagne and sixty-three dozen pastries were consumed. As one alumnus from the sixties said to Alumni Activities Director Ellen Peterson, "My wife dragged me along. I've never been to Pops or an alumni function before but this is great. Next year I'm bringing some friends."

College Alumni Receptions:

OSTERVILLE, MA: East Bay Lodge in Osterville on the Cape was the site of the May 4 President's reception for alumni living in the Plymouth, New Bedford or Cape Cod area. The reception was organized by Theodore R. Steinhilber, BSBA'65, MAE'68 and Douglas Kenney, BS'57, and they are hopeful that future functions can be organized.

CRANSTON, R.I.: One of the worst spring storms to hit New England this year did not dampen the enthusiasm of the former Suffolk students who attended the first college alumni reception to be held in Rhode Island. The alumni who gathered at the Cranston Hilton on May 25 heard President Thomas A. Fulham discuss changes at the university and its growth in recent years. Lawrence A. Clancy, BSJ'71 coordinated the reception.

Special thanks to Mssrs. Clancy, Kenney and Steinhilber for all their efforts in planning these functions, and for a job well done.
Education for more people and at a higher level of attainment was called for by Dr. Patricia A. Graham, director of the National Institute of Education, as she addressed 660 Suffolk University graduates at the June 11 commencement.

Dr. Graham was the commencement speaker for the College of Liberal Arts and College of Business Administration afternoon exercises at John B. Hynes Veterans' Auditorium. She was also awarded an honorary doctor of public administration degree.

At the law school exercises held in the morning, Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. of New Jersey addressed some 460 juris doctor candidates.

President Fulham conferred degrees at both exercises, awarding a total of 1120 degrees. In addition, 15 honorary degrees were conferred, including five alumni.

In her address, Dr. Graham said that skills needed for employment "have become increasingly complex" and as a result "we must not only educate more people in our society but we must increase the average level of attainment, if in the future, education is going to be as valuable as we say it is."

She also pointed out that the "primary reason we educate people is not for salvation, morality or mobility or economic gain but for literacy."

Sen. Williams, four-term Democratic senator, advised law graduates to pursue the "highest possible ethical standards," noting it is the only antidote for the "battered reputation of justice in America."

An honorary doctor of laws degree was presented to Williams. Hamilton Fish, Sr., a New York Congressman from 1920 to 1945, was also awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree as was Chief Justice Jacob Lewiton of the Boston Municipal Court.

The following law school alumni received honorary law degrees as well: Law School Dean David J. Sargent, JD'54; Dorothy A. Antonelli, commissioner of the Industrial Accident Board and a Suffolk trustee, JD'59; Dr. Richard F. Gibbs, senior anesthesiologist at Boston Hospital for Women, JD'70; E. Albert Pallot, senior partner in the Miami law firm of Pallot, Poppell, Goodman and Slotnick, JD'32; and Henry E. Quarles, an attorney in Boston for 50 years, JD'28.

The law school graduates included twin brothers, Lawrence F. Boyle of Quincy and John D. Boyle of Dorchester and an Allston couple, Mark J. and Virginia C. Noonan.

Among the graduates of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences was 74-year old Walter E. Saunders of Roxbury, a widower. He became the second graduate of Suffolk University's special senior citizen program granting free tuition to those 65 and over. A Spanish/Sociology major, Saunders received his bachelor of science degree in the regular four-year full-time day program.

Before conferring degrees on graduates of the colleges, President Fulham awarded seven honorary degrees at the afternoon exercises to the following:

Dr. Graham, commencement speaker, doctor of public administration; Dr. Peter Arnott, chairman of the drama department at Tufts University, doctor of humane letters; Cecil H. Green, co-founder of the Texas Instruments Co., doctor of commercial science; Dr. Mildred Jefferson of University Hospital, doctor of science; William C. Mercer, president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., doctor of commercial science; Harold E. Shively, president of Bunker Hill Community College, doctor of education; and S. Peter Volpe, president of the Volpe Construction Co., doctor of commercial science.

Dr. Jefferson, the subject of some faculty protest over her honorary degree because of pro-life involvement, received a standing ovation from most of the graduates and audience. This came after about 30 students and 10 faculty turned their backs to protest the honorary degree as it was announced.

Class marshals for the exercises marking their 25th anniversary class were Atty. Michael A. D’Avolio of Swampscott, JD’53, for the law school and Robert R. Rodman of Alexandria, Va., BSBA’53, for the colleges.

D’Avolio, a practicing Boston attorney, is a former State representative from East Boston, and co-chaired last year’s leadership committee for the Suffolk University Law School Annual Fund.

Rodman is senior specialist for education in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense in the Pentagon in Washington. He also holds a master of arts in education degree from the university.

Traditionally, outstanding members of the 25th year graduating class from the colleges and law school are chosen to lead the procession to and from commencement.

Three trustee scholarships were presented in the College of Liberal Arts for scholastic achievement. Rhoda D. Bates of Boston, a psychology major, will pursue a Ph.D. at the University of Cincinnati. Chou-Pong Pau of Hong Kong will study for a master in chemistry at Penn State University and William M. Spellman of Norwood will study for a master in history at Assumption College. In addition, Sandra Jeffries of London, England was presented the Martin J. Flaherty award, a cash prize for outstanding performance in journalism and Dianne A. Deshon was the recipient of the Harriet Lilian Anders Graduate Studies Scholarship Award in Business.

Law School awards went to evening student Walter C. Oney, Jr. of Boulder, Colorado, recipient of the Daniel J. Fern Award, named for a 1931 alumnus, as the graduate having the highest cumulative average, graduating summa cum laude; Alan S. Einhorn of Winthrop, highest cumulative average in the day division; and Joan A. Yue of Boston, selected outstanding senior in the evening division. She was editor-in-chief of the Suffolk Law Review.

A mother of three, Carol Wright of Milton and San Carlos, Calif. also earned a juris doctor degree cum laude. She attended law school evenings and has youngsters ranging from five years to six months.

In the undergraduate divisions, two mothers were among those receiving bachelor’s degrees from the College of Liberal Arts. They were Georagann Antie of Chelsea, mother of three, (summa cum laude) and Maria C. Fields of Canton, mother of three teenagers.

A 22-year veteran of the MDC Police, Detective Robert M. Connerty of Mattapan, earned his B.S. degree cum laude. Connerty, a father of five, was graduated from Matignon High, Cambridge in 1949.

The Rev. Paul Lynch of the Suffolk University Campus Ministry delivered the invocation at the morning exercises with the Rev. G. Harris Collingwood, rector of the Church of the Advent, giving the invocation at the afternoon program.

The commencement exercises were opened by Vincent A. Fulmer, chairman of the board of trustees.
Leo Wyman Memorial Fund Is Established

The Leo Wyman Memorial Prize Fund was recently established to honor the late Leo Wyman, JD'18. This prize will be awarded yearly to the graduating senior who, in the judgement of the faculty, has contributed most in advancing the civic and professional responsibilities of the lawyer. Professor Wyman, who passed away in February, taught at Suffolk University Law School for over 30 years. With the late famed trial lawyer, Frank Garland, he conducted the Bar Review with record results.

Coleman T. Bahn, a close friend of Leo Wyman, has initiated the establishment of the prize and a substantial portion of the fund has already been given or pledged. Former students and friends of Leo Wyman may contribute to this fund by sending donations to the Development Office, Suffolk University, Boston, 02114.

Director of Law School Admissions Named

David J. Sargent, Dean of the Law School recently announced that Ms. Marjorie A. Cellar had been appointed to the position of Director of Admissions for the Law School. She assumed the position on July 1, 1978.

Ms. Cellar started working at Suffolk University in 1973. In 1974 she was named Financial Aid Officer for the Law School and in 1975 was concurrently appointed Assistant Director of Admissions. Born and raised in Stratford, Connecticut, Ms. Cellar graduated from Wells College, Aurora, New York with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English. Outside of her many responsibilities at the university she is active in the Wells College Alumnae Association, having served as President of the Boston area alumnae association from 1974-1977 and as an alumnae admissions representative in 1975-1976. She also holds membership in the Massachussets Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, the Northeast Association of Pre-law Advisors and the Law School Admissions Council.

Alumni Career Advising Off to a Great Start

This academic year saw the further development of a close working relationship between the Placement Office and the law school alumni. Due primarily to the efforts of Anthony J. DeVico, director of placement and the membership in the law alumni career advisory committee, John E. Tevnan, JD'71, Chairman, Charles Collatos, JD'64, George Hassett, JD'78, Joseph Kane, JD'69 and James J. Nixon, JD '75, nearly 250 law alumni signed up to assist the students in planning their careers after graduation.

Some of the alumni volunteers participated in a series of seminars sponsored by the Placement Office in what became known as the "Thursday Noon Job Information Session." The subjects and areas covered were:

1. The preparation of resumes and cover letters.
2. Federal Job Opportunities.
3. The resources available in the Placement Office.
4. Practicing law in:
   a. a medium-sized law firm
   b. the office of a District Attorney
   c. an Insurance Company—assurance
   d. an Insurance Company—litigation
   e. a small law firm engaged in tax practice
   f. a Public Accounting Firm
   g. a multi-national Corporation—real estate attorney
   h. the Massachusetts Department of Corporations and Taxation
   i. the U.S. Internal Revenue Service
   j. the Mass Defenders
   k. Solo Practice

All of the seminars were recorded on audio-visual tapes in order to enable evening division students to benefit from the meetings. The tapes were available on request.

Placement is also contacting the alumni volunteers to assist in the preparation of audio-visual tapes of live interviews with law school alumni serving as volunteer interviewees. These will be available to students readying for their first job interview. Other alumni volunteer advisors have either been contacted individually by students or will be involved in the near future.

1977-78 Annual Fund for the Law School Increases 51%

Donors Up 33%

A total of $77,597 in unrestricted funds was contributed by 1,257 donors. An additional $37,405 in gifts restricted for special projects and programs was also received, bringing total support to the Law School of $113,002. Details will follow in the University Report.

Class of 1977 Reports...

You may be interested to learn that questionnaires received from 372 members (out of 492) of the class of 1977 disclose that: 43 are employed by the government; 21 are employed as Judicial Law Clerks; 95 are employed in law in small law firms and the remainder are practicing law in medium sized law firms, as solo practitioners and in various types of business associations, i.e., corporations, accounting firms, insurance companies and banks. A number are serving as lawyers in the Armed Forces and in public service legal aid offices.

In addition to Massachusetts, the 1977 graduates are employed in the following states: Maine, New York, Rhode Island, Michigan, Florida, Arizona, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Missouri, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Illinois, Georgia, California, Alaska, Idaho, Wisconsin and South Carolina.

Members of the class of 1977 who have yet to return a completed questionnaire to the Placement Office are asked to take a minute to do so. If the questionnaire has been misplaced, a call to 723-4700 extension 148 will get you learning of an opening—and pass the information on to the Placement Office. Also, please help us to furnish you information by completing and returning the questionnaires we mail to you.
Law Alumni Receptions: ABA: In conjunction with the Annual Meeting of the American Bar Association in New York City, there will be a reception for alumni at the Americana Hotel from 5:30 to 7:30 on August 7. Alumni residing in the New York area are encouraged to attend. MBA and CBA: Receptions were recently held for law alumni attending meetings of the Massachusetts and Connecticut Bar Associations. Over 50 alumni and guests trekked to the Mt. Washington Hotel in the White Mountains and attended the annual reception at the MBA meeting. This yearly function holds the reputation of being the best reception among several law schools present. The Connecticut luncheon was held as part of the Connecticut Bar Association meeting in New Haven. Associate Dean Herbert Lemelman spoke about recent developments at the Law School. Ryan, BSBA’68, MBA’77 Congratulations to all! Visiting Committees Trustee Visiting Committees were initiated by the University in 1977 for the purpose of stimulating an exchange of views among the faculty, administrators, trustees, and a group of distinguished educators from other institutions. The individuals selected for the committees participate in a series of general sessions and also separate informal meetings with faculty, students and department chairs persons from the appropriate departments. These activities conclude with a meeting of the committee to discuss the preparation of a written report to the trustees. Each committee is chaired by a trustee of the University and has about 15 members. The program began in April, 1977 with a committee for the Natural Sciences. It was followed a month later with a committee for the Business School. The 1977–78 academic year brought separate committees on the Humanities, and Social Sciences with the Business School committee meeting for the second time. These visitations provide the University with an important opportunity to enhance its image, to improve opportunities for graduate study and employment for our students, while at the same time, obtaining the objective perceptions of the committees concerning our programs and the problems which must be faced and resolved in the years ahead. Preparation and arrangements for the committees’ visitations have been directed by Associate Dean Joseph H. Strain.
Law Steps Down

Charlie Law, one of the most popular and revered figures in New England intercollegiate athletics, retired as athletic director at Suffolk University, June 30.

Law directed athletics at Suffolk for 32 years organizing the university’s first program back in 1946. He coached basketball for 31 years and was regarded as “the dean of New England basketball coaches” until stepping down last Fall. Law also directed physical education and coached baseball and golf during his long Suffolk career.

Law, 65, compiled a lifetime college basketball coaching record of 295 wins and 286 losses. In his last two active years of coaching, he directed Suffolk basketball teams to appearances in the NCAA Division III post season tournament.

Law compiled his impressive coaching record in basketball and baseball despite never having home playing facilities. For years, his baseball teams played their games on the road and his basketball teams have used the old West End House and the Cambridge YMCA.

When he started the athletic program right after World War II, many of his first players were G.I.’s fresh out of service. Over the years, he developed some outstanding basketball players in the college division ranks, among them Jay Crowley, drafted by the Celtics and the American Basketball Association, Jay Crowley, drafted by the Celtics and the American Basketball Association, and Art Mellace, now a well-known college basketball official, All-American, drafted by the Celtics and the American Basketball Association, Jay Crowley, Kevin Clark, Chris Tsitios, Pay Ryan, a Division III All America, and Donovan Little.

Law was a traditionalist in coaching, preached quickness and defense and sought that type of player. However, winning was not the only thing with him.

“Of course everyone wants to win,” he once said. “Yet, there is more to the game than that. It should be a learning experience in a fun atmosphere. And a coach should treat his team like a family. The relationship between the players and the coaching staff should be a healthy one at all times.”

Law’s relationship with his players didn’t end with graduation. Three years ago, about 40 of his former baseball and basketball players honored him at a dinner at which he was presented a citation from the Massachusetts House of Representatives commending him for his 30 years of coaching at Suffolk.

And during his illnesses for the past two years, he has been visited often by players from the present and past. He, along with three other retiring faculty, was honored by the university at a Parker House dinner.

President Thomas A. Fulham said of Law’s impending retirement: “Charlie Law has given a lifetime of service to Suffolk University and we are extremely grateful that he has. The beneficial influence he has exerted on more than a generation of young men is immeasurable. We will miss him.”

A 1935 graduate of Springfield College, where he played football, basketball, lacrosse and participated in track, he earned his master of education degree from Boston University.

In addition to his Suffolk duties, he was a member of the football coaching staff for 22 years at Harvard University.

Law and his wife, Phyllis, plan to move from their Weston home to Cape Cod where he will spend retirement. There are a lot of Springfield alumni living down there and we’re looking forward to life on the Cape,” he exclaimed. “It’s a place we’ve always loved.”

New Chairpersons

Richard L. McDowell, Dean, College of Business Administration and Graduate School of Administration, recently announced the following appointments: Dr. David Pfeiffer, Chairperson, Department of Public Management and Administration; Dr. H. Thomas O’Hara, Chairman, Department of Finance and Banking and Dr. John H. Walker, Chairman, Department of Accounting.

Dr. Pfeiffer received his B.A. and MA from the University of Texas at Austin, his MDiv from the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest, and his PhD from the University of Rochester. He is a member of the New England and American Political Science Associations, the American Society for Public Administration, the Public Choice Society and the Association of Voluntary Scholars. Dr. Pfeiffer has received grants from various foundations and federal agencies, including NSF, Ford Foundation, HEW, Esso Foundation and DOT. Since March, 1977, he has served as the Massachusetts State Director for the White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals. Dr. O’Hara obtained a BS in Chemistry/Mathematics from St. Lawrence University, and an MBA and PhD in Economics from Clark University. He has served as Chief Financial Officer with the Fay School, having full responsibility for all business and financial activities. He has been an instructor at Clark University, teaching such courses as finance, accounting, economics and management. Dr. O’Hara has also assisted small businesses with administrative and financial problems.

Dr. Walker earned a BBA and an MEd from North Texas State University, an MBA from West Texas State University and a PhD from the University of Missouri. He has taught at Bentley College, Waltham, Massachusetts; the University of Arkansas at Little Rock; the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater; the University of Tennessee, Knoxville; Southwest Missouri State College; and Arkansas Polytechnic College.

James G. Woods Retires

College Placement Director James G. Woods retired June 30 after 12 years association with Suffolk University, a period he termed "tremendously fulfilling."

Woods joined Suffolk University in 1966 after 25 years of service with the F.B.I., notably in the areas of personnel and counseling.

Under Woods' direction, the University Placement Office initiated a number of new programs, including seminars, videotape interviews for students (believed the first for colleges in this area), and increased the number of recruiters visiting campus to more than 100.

Woods, who also served as placement director for the law school in his early years at Suffolk, developed off-campus programs for work study students and internships and helped prepare the first MBA resume book.

"I've had a tremendous association with Suffolk University and made some lasting friendships," he said. "I am also very grateful to President Fulham and Vice President Flannery and all of the faculty and staff for the support they have given me."

The University honored Woods at a reception June 15. He was presented a Suffolk University Captain's chair and a citation from the administration. Scores of administrators, faculty and staff turned out to extend to him their best wishes for retirement.

He will continue to make his home in Milton with his wife, Edna, and son, James, Jr.

Succeeding Woods will be Michael H. Rubino of Marblehead, who has been serving as director of placement at North Shore Community College in Beverly, Rubino, who holds a bachelor of arts degree from Clark University and a master in education degree from Northeastern University, also served as an administrator supervisor at New England Life Insurance Co. and as a vocational counselor at the Veterans Administration in Boston.

Assistant Director of Financial Aid Named

Ms. Edwin M. Middleton has been named Assistant Director of Financial Aid, a newly created position. Formerly assistant director of financial aid and director of student employment at Tufts University, Ms. Middleton has also served as a personnel coordinator, instructor in computer science and as a programmer-researcher at Boston College. She holds membership in the National Personnel and Guidance Association, and the National, Eastern and Massachusetts Associations of Financial Aid Administrators; having served on the executive council of MASFAA for two years. Ms. Middleton obtained a BA degree at North-eastern University and an M. Ed. at Tufts University. Her publication credits include articles in various professional journals on financial aid.

New CLAS Chairpersons

Michael R. Ronayne, Dean, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences reports that the following faculty have been appointed chairpersons: Dr. Robert C. Webb, Chairman, Department of Psychology; Dr. Arthur J. West, II, Chairman, Department of Biology; and Dr. Frederick C. Wilkins, Chairman, Department of English.

For over twelve years Mr. Beades has served on an alumni Board of Directors and during the past two years acted as a law alumni representative to the University Alumni Council. Always ready to advise or assist with alumni programs and student oriented services, Mr. Beades actively demonstrated his pride in and concern for his alma mater, Suffolk University. A former State Senator, Mr. Beades has been the executive assistant to the metropolitan district commissioner since 1966. He was a member of the Massachusetts Legislative Association, the V.F.W., the D.A.V. Knights of Columbus, the Ancient Order of Hibernians and was a member of the National Association of Legislative.
John will be sorely missed by his fellow alumni.
