New Trustees

Michael L. Linquata, a Gloucester businessman and 1950 BSBA graduate of Suffolk University, has been elected by the alumni to fill an alumni-trustee position on the Board of Trustees, announced Vincent A. Fulmer, Chairman of the Board. This marks the completion of the special elections conducted by the Alumni Office during the past year to fill three board vacancies. Previous alumni elected to those positions were James F. Linnehan of Lowell, JD'56 and Joseph B. Shanahan Jr. of Chelmsford, AB'71 and JD'74. At the same time, Fulmer reported that John F. Collins, consulting professor of urban affairs at M.T. and former mayor of Boston, has been appointed to the Board of Trustees.

Prof. Collins, elected to a five-year term, fills the seat of Nelson G. Burch of East Greenwich, RI, who retired from the board in June and has been designated trustee emeritus. Linquata, vote in a three-year term, succeeds the late Ernest R. Blaisdell. Fulmer said of the elections: "Mr. Collins personifies the quality and basic educational purpose of Suffolk University. He has stood for many years among our most distinguished alumni. His towering example of public service, both in university education and in the public offices he has held, is in the best tradition of American higher education. The board of trustees welcomes him to the governance of the university."

We also look forward to the full participation of Michael Linquata in the governance of Suffolk University. His demonstrated loyalty to his alma mater and his business experience bring doubled its previous contributions and he organized some 200 alumni volunteers to serve in the campaign.

Collins, a 1943 graduate of Suffolk University Law School, served two terms as mayor of Boston and presided over the birth and development of the new Boston Government Center. He also served as president of the National League of Cities in 1964 and was a trustee and member of the executive committee of the U.S. Conference of Mayors in 1964 and 1965. He holds honorary degrees from seven colleges or universities, among them an honorary D.P.A. from Suffolk University.

The election of Collins and Linquata to the board brings to 15 the number of trustees who hold degrees from the University's undergraduate or graduate schools.

Suffolk Theater: A New Approach

Suffolk University has undertaken an exciting and unique program in theater. Plans are underway to develop the present Temple Street Auditorium into a small performing arts center housing a professional theatre company. The company, partially funded by the University, plans only two productions during its first season. Utilizing Boston area talent it will open with the Boston premiere of The Wager by Mark Medoff, author of When Are You Coming Back Red Ryder. It plays a caustic comedy-drama dealing with the American pastime of betting. When the objects of the wagers are to sex and even murder, it has profound ramifications on the personal lives of the four graduate students involved. Besides mounting its Boston area productions, the company will also sponsor a number of outside organizations. The Cambridge Opera Workshop is planning a late January production of Rossini's comic opera The Barber Of Seville. Chamber Theatre Productions of Boston is considering the site for the preview of its new play based on the Decameron. The Boston Repertory Ballet and the Concert Dance Company of Boston are preparing for a series of lecture demonstrations and recitals.

The company also plans on hosting non-Boston area groups. Foothills Theater Company and New England Repertory Theatre, both of Worcester, and the Profile Theater Company of Portland, Maine are among those under consideration.

It is hoped that this new approach to theater will greatly enhance the University's Humanities programs and will receive extensive exposure to the performing arts as well as the opportunity to participate directly in professional productions. The program will provide quality theater, opera, and dance to the Suffolk, Beacon Hill, and greater Boston communities and will utilize Boston area talent. The program is under the direction of David A. Dorwart, a former Smith College Fellow. Mr. Dorwart is especially interested in any alumni who have previously worked in theatre productions at Suffolk or elsewhere. If you are interested in participating in this exciting new program, you may contact Mr. Dorwart at Suffolk University.

Another First

For the first time, Suffolk University has published an Annual Report to the University community. By the time this Alumni News Bulletin is mailed, you should have received your copy of the Report. If you did not, please contact the University Development Office at (617) 722-4700, extension 128.
Area Chairman Announcement

Jack McDonald, BSBA ‘71, General Chairman of the Annual Fund for the Colleges is pleased to announce that there are now 38 area chairmen with committees of alumni volunteers actively calling. Suffolk graduates are asked to support the 1977–1978 Annual Fund. Jack says, “The enthusiasm and pride that these volunteers have indicated is in the true spirit of Suffolk University.”

We still have a number of areas which need alumni volunteers; if you would like to assist your alma mater in this most important endeavor, please write or contact: John E. McDonald, Annual Fund General Chairman, 764, University, Beacon Hill, Boston, Massachusetts 02215.

Also, we are happy to announce that dates have been finalized for the Second Annual Ticket Subscription Series. The series, which is planned to offer you a variety of events at cost, has been well received. Almost 1,000 alumni participated in the program last year.

The 1977–78 events are listed in the Calendar of Events section of this Bulletin. Other programs are also being planned by the individual alumni associations. Watch your mail and the Alumni Bulletin calendar for future announcements.

General Alumni Social Events 1977/1978

Alumni from throughout New England attended the first event of 1977—the Boston Harbour Alumni Cruise. Despite a cloudy sky, the harbour remained calm and an enjoyable time was had by all.

The Social Committee of the General Alumni Association recently announced that dates have been finalized for the Second Annual Ticket Subscription Series. The series, which is planned to offer you a variety of events at cost, has been well received. Almost 1,000 alumni participated in the program last year.

The 1977–78 events are listed in the Calendar of Events section of this Bulletin. Other programs are also being planned by the individual alumni associations. Watch your mail and the Alumni Bulletin calendar for future announcements.
Cornerstone Society Chairman Named

President Thomas A. Fulham has announced that Frank Evans, BSBA’50, of Cohasset, has agreed to serve as the 1977–1978 Cornerstone Society Chairman.

Addressing the members of the Society at their annual luncheon, President Fulham stated, “Frank, a founding member of the Cornerstone Society and past Cohasset–Hull Area Chairman, brings with him a strong dedication to Suffolk University. His time and efforts in the past two annual fund campaigns has demonstrated his pride and enthusiasm for his alma mater. His determination and desire will be an influential force in building this worthy society.”

Mr. Evans explains that the Cornerstone Society was established to provide significant annual unrestricted gift income to the University. Its members are a distinct group of alumni and friends of Suffolk who demonstrate a concern for the educational opportunities developed and offered to students of all ages.

Frank’s committee is comprised of the following alumni:
- Charles R. Butts, AB’51, Milton
- Melvin J. Cheney, AB’50, Lowell
- Edward V. Cogliano, BSBA’49, Canton
- Stewart Sargent, BS’54, MA’58, Cohasset

Any alumni who is interested in joining the Cornerstone Society may contact Frank Evans at 723-4700, extension 130 or by writing Frank Evans, Cornerstone Society Chairman, University Development, Suffolk University, Beacon Hill, Boston, Massachusetts 02114.

Violence In America

Dr. Pedro P. Ledesma, assistant professor of modern languages at Suffolk University, is the founder of the American Society for the Prevention of Violence. Having undertaken an independent study of violence in American culture, Ledesma, in establishing the society, presents lecture series dealing with the problem in many capacities.

This year’s series, the third of its kind, is entitled, “The Problem of Violence in Daily Life, Part I.”

Dr. Norman Zinberg of the Department of Psychiatry of Cambridge City Hospital was the first in the series of speakers sponsored by the Society and held at Suffolk University’s Auditorium on October 20. Dr. Zinberg spoke on “Illicit Drug Use.”

The lectures continued on October 27 with Dr. Sherret Frazier, psychiatrist-in-chief at the McLean Hospital in Belmont. “Violence in Daily Life, a Psychiatrist’s Point of View” was the topic discussed by Dr. Frazier.

The remaining lectures involved: Dr. Jay Meenan of Boston University discussing, “Violence and Sports”; Paul Rich, Special Assistant to General Manager of WCVB-TV Channel 5, speaking on, “Violence and Television”; and lecturing on “Children and Television Violence” was Susan Kaplan, the Director of Community Education for Action for Children’s Television.

Law Alumni Association To Publish Alumni Directory

Judge James J. Nixon, JD'55, President of the Law School Alumni Association has announced plans for the publication of an alumni directory. "Alumni have shown a strong interest in this project," reports Judge Nixon, "and we expect the result will be a professional tool as well as an alumni directory." Included will be an alphabetical and class listing as well as a geographical listing with each attorney's area of special interest.

Joseph W. Kane, JD'70, chairman of the Directory Committee, reports, "the success of the directory definitely depends upon the cooperation of all alumni. A questionnaire will be sent in November to all graduates. A copy proof will be mailed in the spring and the directory will be printed and distributed in the summer of 1978."

Copies of the directory may be ordered on the questionnaire form for $5.00.

Preparation for the directory has involved an extensive review of alumni records and a search for lost alumni. Many alumni have responded to the first contact with the University in many years with surprise and humor. The search will continue for several more months to assure the most complete and accurate directory possible. Alumni Office records now show 9,347 graduates from the Law School.

Advocates Society Is Announced

Ronald A. Wysocki, National Chairman of the Annual Law Fund, has announced the formation of the Advocates Society. According to Wysocki, "This is the club for major donors to the Law School and is an outgrowth of the Leadership Committee developed last year."

The First Vice Chairman, Brian T. O'Neill, JD'71, will administer the Advocates Society program as well as other special groups. He reports that, "The Advocates Society will give proper recognition to alumni and friends who give $500 or more to Suffolk University Law School. Members will be invited to the campus during each year to see the facilities and meet with Dean Sargent. There is considerable interest in this group and I feel that the society will grow over the years into a dedicated body of alumni that will make a significant impact upon the Annual Law Fund and the Law School."

Plans are also being made for a club recognizing $100 donors. An announcement and plans for this group will be sent to Law Alumni in the near future.

Two Law Alumni Receptions Held

Washington, D.C.:

Alumni held a reception on September 9. They attended the Evening student dinner at the Marine Barracks followed by a reception at the Navy Yard. Despite reports of rain throughout the Washington area, weather at the Marine Barracks was perfect and everyone enjoyed the excellent program and reception. Michael J. Risielli, JD'72 and James Presider, JD'74 were co-chairmen of the program and Daniel P. Cosgrove, JD'72 was in charge of arrangements. Plans are now underway for a reception on Capitol Hill.

Connecticut:

On October 11 a luncheon was held at the Stamford Ramada Inn in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Connecticut Bar Association for alumni in Connecticut. Twenty-two graduates heard Dean Malcolm Ilonahue speak about the Law School.

Law Alumni Dinner

David J. Saliba, JD'52, the 1976 law alumni dinner committee chairman has been reappointed chairman for the 1977 Dinner. Anticipating another "sellout", Mr. Saliba announced that, "last year there were approximately 600 alumni at the dinner and we had to turn away a large number. I'm sure we'll have a similar response this year. It's a great social atmosphere in which our alumni and friends who give $500 or more to Suffolk University can socialize."

The dinner has been scheduled for December 15, 1977 at the Hotel 87 Ballroom. Chief Justice of the District Courts, Samuel E. Zoll, JD'62 will officiate as toastmaster and Chief Justice of the Superior Court, Robert A. Bonin will be the guest speaker. The tickets have been priced at $16.00. Contact your fellow alumni and make your plans early!

Seventy-Second Academic Year Begins

On September 12 the Law School opened with an enrollment of 1,750 students. Three hundred thirty-five day students and 210 evening students matriculated into the first year class. Over 30 states are represented in this class continuing a nationwide draw to Suffolk University Law School. The entering class also has 196 women students, the largest class of women in the history of the Law School.

Ultimately, the Law School expects to lower its enrollment to 1,600 students. This will improve the faculty-to-student ratio and will reflect the history of the Law School.

The Placement Newsletter is being mailed to those alumni who requested the newsletter are not limited to specific locations, it is particularly helpful to individuals considering relocating.

Professor Anthony DeVico, Director of the Career Counseling and Placement Office requests alumni cooperation in identifying job openings for students and other alumni.

Top Trial Lawyers Lecture At Suffolk

Some of the nation's outstanding trial lawyers lectured at Suffolk University Law School this summer as part of the 1977 National Colleges of Advocacy. The program, sponsored by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, was held at the university auditorium the week of Aug. 14-20. It marked the second straight year that Suffolk had hosted the colleges. More than 400 lawyers from across the country attended.

The practical program of trial advocacy took the attorney through all stages of civil and criminal litigation and featured demonstrations of techniques, jury selection and many facets of civil and criminal law.

Among the prominent lawyers serving on the faculty for the program were F. Law Bayley, discussing cross examination, Henry B. Rothblatt, who was counsel for the Green Berets in Viet Nam, lecturing on military justice, and Herald Price Fahrbinger, counsel for Hunter Magazine, who talked on opening statements and pretrial motions.

Suffolk alumni have recently received notices of the opening of the 1977-1978 Suffolk University Annual Fund for the Colleges and the Annual Fund for the Law School. Both of these programs rely heavily upon the two volunteer chairmen—John E. McDonald, BSBA'71, general chairman of the Annual Fund for the Colleges and Ronald A. Wysocki, JD'72, National Chairman of the Annual Fund for the Law School.

Mr. Wysocki is a 1972 graduate of Suffolk University which gave me my professional and trade associations. Jack and his wife, Patricia, have four children and reside in Braintree. In 1975 he was appointed to the Advisory Council of the Suffolk University College of Business Administration. During last year's Annual Fund, he was the Braintree-Hingham area chairman and also participated in the program.

Mr. Wysocki is a 1972 graduate of the Law School and an attorney-at-law in Boston. For 17 years before his entry into law, Mr. Wysocki was a reporter, writer, and columnist for the Boston Globe. He and his wife, Elizabeth, have four children and live in Peabody. Long active in various organizations, Mr. Wysocki was a director and president of the Boston Press Club for 8 years and for three years was chairman of the Annual Boston Press Awards Dinner. He is a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, a former member of the State House Press Association and the Boston Police Reporters Association, and a former director of the Newspaperman's Benevolent Association. Before accepting the national chairmanship in 1976-77, Mr. Wysocki acted as Boston Area chairman for the Annual Fund.

The interview took place shortly after both chairmen were appointed: Bulletin: Let us begin by asking how you came to be chairmen of your respective programs.

McDonald: I have had a long time association with the University. I first began classes back in the early sixties and after graduation served on various committees. In September of 1976, Mike Linquata, the 1976-1977 general chairman asked me to become the Braintree-Hingham Area Chairman and I accepted. I then volunteered to assist Susan Garland, phonathon chairperson, during the March phonathon.

Wysocki: My involvement began with membership on the first alumni committee for the selection of nominees for the first alumni-trustee election and then chairmanship of the Boston area for the 1975-1976 Annual Fund. Last year, I was General Chairman for the abbreviated campaign in the spring and, seeing the potential for the Fund and the continuity of so many volunteers, I was happy to serve another year. Having a degree from the University which gave me my profession, I felt that I owed something to the school. I am proud to be a graduate and want to repay that debt.

McDonald: Yes, the time has come to show our pride in Suffolk. I am proud to be a graduate and to have the opportunity to enhance the program of the University.

Bulletin: What are your roles as chairmen?

McDonald: My task is the overall supervision of the annual fund and its programs. My role is to provide leadership and motivation for our alumni and the 200 annual fund volunteers. I am also responsible for the selection and recruitment of area chairmen. The size and magnitude of the annual fund is hard to comprehend until you become involved with it.

I also attend as many alumni events as possible and talk with as many fellow graduates as I can.

Wysocki: Our roles are very similar. The organizations do vary. Whereas Jack has 77 areas, we have reorganized the Law Fund into 24 regions that go from coast to coast with about 200 volunteers involved. I'm fortunate to have Brian O'Neill as first vice chairman of special gifts, which incorporates the solicitation for the Advocates Society. Second vice chairman is Jerry D'Avolio, one of three brothers who graduated from Suffolk Law School. He will work with the general volunteer program and phonathons. The heart of the organization involves the regional chairmen, many of whom are in their third year of valuable assistance.

Bulletin: Although Suffolk has seen several years of growth, the annual fund still drives a capital fund in the past, the Annual Funds, as we know them, began in 1975.

McDonald: First, I want to reiterate what Ron said about the corps of volunteers. The growth and strength of the Annual Fund is a direct reflection upon this dedicated core of alumni.

The Colleges Fund has grown from 326 gifts for $7,140 in 1973 to 762 gifts for $26,300 last year, a growth of 250%.

Wysocki: The history of the Law Fund is much the same. A concentrated effort began in 1975 with the result being $18,000 in gifts from 343 alumni. Last year 943 donors gave $50,000. And this was only a four month campaign. This year there is potential for great results! Ninety-nine percent of our active alumni will be personally contacted this year. Also, a search project and law alumni directory sponsored by the Law Alumni Association added to our new programs and organization show promise for the Fund. The momentum is now in high gear and conceivably we could double last year.

McDonald: The potential—that's where the excitement is in this program. From mid 1975 when the annual fund was organized into its present state to the completion of the 1976-1977 fiscal year, the fund has raised more dollars and totaled more donors than in the combined years, 1972 to June, 1975. I consider this a great stride in building the annual fund. The Annual Fund is really getting off the ground. Mike Linguata has built a good foundation and it is time for us to expand it.

Bulletin: Can we return a moment to the planned program for each fund?

McDonald: We plan to kick off our annual fund programs in mid-October. The Cornerstone Society will also begin its solicitation at this time. We anticipate scheduling a number of events and luncheons to help foster our program. I plan on having all 77 areas solicited by March and then we can begin our real effort to design. The fiscal year of the Funds runs from July 1, to December 31, to match the University's financial year.

Wysocki: The Law Fund calls for phonathons in Eastern Massachusetts to take place in November. Regional solicitations will take place in February followed by a series of letters. Throughout the year, there will be special receptions and activities from New Hampshire to Florida. A new part of the program is the Advocates Society which was mentioned earlier in relation to Brian O'Neill's leadership in this area. The Advocates Society will be the major donors among alumni and friends with a minimum gift of $500. Last year we started with a Leadership Committee and this year we have 30 members. This number should grow significantly this year. The Law Fund is also starting a group to recognize those who donate $100 or more.

McDonald: The Cornerstone Society is also a newly created program. Last year was the first year for this major gift society of the University. This year's chairman is Frank Evans of Cohasset and I look forward to working with Frank and other leaders of the Cornerstone Society to raise significant unrestricted contributions from alumni and friends. As I understand it, members of both the Advocate and Cornerstone Societies will be available to the deans and the president to consult with them on pertinent matters concerning the University.

Bulletin: Now we come down to the WHY? Why are contributions from alumni and friends needed and where does the money go?

McDonald: Every college and university in the country is dependent upon contributions. These gifts help with the rising cost of so many items. In the long run, they should help keep tuition increases to a minimum. The funds are unrestricted and are allocated by the administration to where they will do the most good.

Wysocki: Jack has given a good counsel of the situation. We must also keep in mind that the endowment of the school is very low and yields just four percent of total income. The other more significant factor is that the University is really well managed and, despite rising costs and low tuition, has been profitable for black years. Yet, I feel that contributions have played a part in keeping the University financially stable. Giving by the graduates is a reflection of the gratitude and esteem in which the Law School is held.

Bulletin: From what you have said about your own involvement and that of the hundreds of other volunteers, the foundation of the Annual Funds is based upon interested and involved graduates.

Wysocki: Precisely. In the past few years many more alumni have been involved than merely those on the Annual Funds. The three alumni associations’ boards of directors and committees bring many more to the effort. The D.C. area committee in particular went to a Dean's Reception there last spring, and really didn’t expect to know many people, but I saw a lot of familiar faces there—an enthusiastic, articulate group, really interested in Suffolk. The point to be made is that this group is typical. Although there are older graduates, basically those who have completed their education at Suffolk, the interest in the University is coming from the younger graduates as well.

Bulletin: Thank you, Ron, Jack, for your warning. Ron, you come a little late. Probably, the most important major gift so far this year, is participation—attending functions and volunteer work are critically important. I think that the direction of the Law Fund is also important. One more point. Volunteers are always needed. Some graduates do contact the Alumni Office. Others are found by area chairmen. I’m sure that there will never be enough volunteers for jobs that need to be done. One warning, though, one commitment leads to another until you become Fund Chairman!

McDonald: Your warning, Ron, comes a little late. Probably, the most important thing is to encourage volunteer participation and to get to know our alumni. As I understand it, members of both the Advocate and Cornerstone Societies will be available to the deans and the president to consult with them on pertinent matters concerning the University.

Bulletins: Finally, gentlemen, what is the future for the Annual Funds?

McDonald: I’m sure we both agree that we are presently way behind other successful annual programs in other institutions. We had a very late start but are making progress. The College Fund participation was 14% last year and should be at 20%. Fund totals could be ten $29,000 given last year. This calls for lots of patient work and more involvement by alumni.

Wysocki: We're definitely behind the other institutions, however, we have had two successful consecutive campaigns. Doubling last year's $50,000 would put us close to B.C. Law School — yet we have more alumni. More large gifts are definitely needed to get totals up and we're working on that. Jack and I certainly feel that the alumni, the volunteers and the program are all in place and we're ready to really succeed.

Successful campaign.

Bulletin: Ron, Jack, thank you very much. We are sure that Suffolk University community appreciates your commitment to Suffolk University—Colleges and Law School. Thank you.
Sincere congratulations to all!

at Suffolk University's College of Business Administration, conducted its Fall executive seminar in retail management from September 27 and continued weekly through November 15. The seminar featured eight evening sessions and offered New England retailers an opportunity to analyze and evaluate present retail concepts, principles and practices. At the same time, it discussed how to apply them with more profitable management and operation in today's changing business, economic, governmental and social environment.

Lee W. Sutherland, assistant professor of management at the University's College of Business Administration, directed the seminar. For many years, these successful seminars were presented by Abe Green, retired Suffolk lecturer and former president of R.H. White's in Boston.

The programs were aimed essentially at the smaller retailer store junior executive and featured experienced retailers as discussion leaders and panelists.

The eight areas of retailing covered were: merchandising, sales promotion and advertising, control operations, personnel and employee relations, financing your business, store layout and design, consumer protection laws, and store security.

Discussion leaders were Sidney T. Sparrow, design consultant, McKesson & Robbins, Inc., Woburn; Harold A. Broomfield, President, Retail Management Associates, Worcester and former president of R.H. White's in Worcester; Arthur P. Ercolini, assistant manager and director of operations for the Better Business Bureau of Eastern Massachusetts; Philip P. Perry, corporate security director, William Filene's Sons Company, Boston; George Medina, assistant director of personnel, Mammoth Mart, West Bridgewater; Gerald F. Krumm, advertising director for Sears Roebuck & Company, Boston group, Natick; and Charles E. Self, assistant vice president and financial controller, Zayre's Discount Stores, Framingham.

Panelists were Gordon Ryan, loan officer for the Small Business Administration; Charles Shediac, loan officer for the State Street Bank and Trust Company, and Herbert Carver, president of the Atlas Capital Corporation, Boston.

Listed below is the schedule of seminars that will be offered throughout the year.

Woman Joins Men's Cross-Country Team

A freshman student recently made the men's varsity cross-country team. And as a result, warrants a place in Suffolk University's Archives. Why? The person is Barbara Bean of Arlington, the first woman ever to participate on a men's varsity team at the University.

Ms. Bean, who has been running since she was a fifth grader, explained, "This year it's a different kind of experience for me. Last year I had someone to talk to in the locker room. This year I have only myself. But the guys have been great to me and I feel wonderful running with them."

Her coach, Jim Nelson, says, "Barbara has that great determination that you look for in any athlete. She gives it everything she has."

Sophomore Steve DaCosta said, "We treat her as an equal. She can do the job. She's a very capable runner."
