Suffolk Today

When you think back to your days and evenings at Suffolk you remember your classes and the professors who made your life both trying and rewarding. You think of friends you worried and laughed with and all of this takes place in your mind’s setting of what you physically recall as Suffolk. For some it is the Archer Building, for others it is the Mt. Vernon Street complex or the Donahue Building. No matter how you think of Suffolk you have to come to the conclusion that it is one of the most efficient physical plants of any educational institution around.

The addition of the yet to be completed Fenton Building will make a big difference to many of the departments and of course to the students who will be spending their hours in this new location. It is an attractive conversion of a commercial property into classroom space.

The Donahue Building will soon totally become the location of the Law School. This requires the relocation of administrative and academic offices and makes possible an important change in the development of this professional school. The impetus for this centralizing of the Law School’s programs and facilities comes from the objective to attain the American Association of Law Schools accreditation. This is an accreditation beyond the American Bar Association certification and is most meaningful. The Trustees’ decision to move toward this goal was made early this Spring and the building committee of the trustees and the consulting architects have been working with the administration to achieve a plan which would pose the least threat of interruption of the education process which naturally is the prime objective of the University.

The University will have to rent some space during the renovation process, but in essence the physical plant remains in four specific locations:

- College of Business Administration - Mount Vernon Street
- College of Liberal Arts and Sciences - Fenton Building and Archer Building
- Law School - Donahue Building

Several years ago Suffolk was able to purchase and renovate what was a Stop and Shop store which fronts on Cambridge Street. This building has some classroom space but is primarily utilized for student activities. The various societies, the student newspaper, the Yearbook staff, are located in this space which is called the Ridgeway Building, after the side street bordering the property.

So, when you think of Suffolk and are trying to recall Temple Street, Derne Street, Mount Vernon Street and you wonder whether the changes have affected the place as you remember as Suffolk — they haven’t. Things have been moved around and some important updating has taken place, but your memory is safe. And, one way to ensure that it never fades is to come back often to renew your impressions and find your University progressing in the vital role it plays in providing education.

Suffolk Night At Pops
June 20, 1975

The merger of Alumni Day and An Evening at Pops should prove to be one of the greatest nights of your spring. Four hundred seats at choice tables on the floor have been reserved for Suffolk alumni and we’ve reserved the Cabot-Cahners Room at Symphony Hall for a special alumni reception after the performance. The night will combine the fun of seeing good friends and the pleasure of fine music.

Tickets are $11.00 each and are available from the Alumni Office. Plan to join your friends from Suffolk to celebrate. Reservations must be made prior to June 6 and table assignments will be made in order of receipt of reservations.
Fenton Building Near Completion

Renovation of the Fenton Building is ahead of schedule. So near completion is the building that summer session classes will be held in it.

Designed to meet the needs of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the Fenton Building will add 18 classrooms and become the headquarters for the Dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences and several other departments.

Special features of the building include a new Language Laboratory for the Modern Language Department and specialty labs for the Education Department. The Health Center will occupy the Fenton Building, as will an Audio-Visual Equipment Distribution Center.

The Departments of English, Government and Economics, Psychology will also move to the Fenton Building. The Psychology Department will have a new Experimental Psychology Lab. Dedication of the Fenton Building will be at Homecoming, October 25, 1975.

NSF Grant

The University has received a $34,490 grant from the National Science Foundation for a science improvement study for elementary teachers in the Boston school system.

Through a cooperative arrangement, the University and the Boston Public Schools will train 60 in-service elementary school teachers during academic year 1975-76.

Under the direction of Professor Arthur J. West of the Biology Department, the program will be divided into two phases. In the first phase, teachers will be introduced to the philosophy, rationale and teaching strategies utilized in the Science Curriculum Improvement Study (SCIS) program. The second phase will be classroom centered with the program staff assisting the teacher on an individualized basis. The SCIS program was developed through funding from the National Science Foundation. Scientists, elementary school teachers and others have collaborated since 1958 at the Lawrence Hall of Science, University of California at Berkeley to create the program.

The project will be staffed by Suffolk faculty and in-service Boston teachers. Assisting Dr. West will be Robert M. Bates, Assistant Professor of Education at Suffolk and Arthur F. Gustus, Assistant Director, Department of Science of the Boston Public Schools.

Class of '50 Reunion

Arthur M. Bell, BSBA '50, and Michael Lingaata, BSBA '50 in a cooperative effort with the Alumni Office have planned a twenty-fifth reunion. Members of the class will be receiving their invitations soon.

To be held at the Gloucester House on Seven Seas Wharf in Gloucester, Massachusetts, the June 15 reunion will start with cocktails, dinner and, as Mr. Bell puts it, a "special surprise." The Gloucester House is Mr. Lingata's business and he's promised V.I.P. care for the Class of '50.

Invitations and reservation cards are going out soon, so watch for them.

T.V. Series Stars Alumnus

The television series "The Jeffersons" boasts a Suffolk Alumnus as one of its stars. Paul Benedict, BA '60, plays Harry Bentley, the zany neighbor of the Jefferson family. The series is a spin off of "All In the Family" and is proving to be a popular addition to Saturday night T.V.

The senior class has voted to award Mr. Benedict its "Man of the Year Award."

Alumni Job Bank
Law Placement reports that even though the market is tight, there are several opportunities for alumni with two to five years experience. Fall Admissions
The Law School reports that nearly 4,000 applications have been received for day and evening first year classes for September 75. Twenty-six percent of the applicants were women — the largest percentage of women applicants ever. Application credentials continue to increase in quality resulting in difficult decisions for the Law School Admissions Committee.
The change in bulletin format heralds change for this signed to reach regional alumni goals. The Director of University Development is Kenneth P. Barclay. He is a graduate of Tufts University with an A.B. in English, and was awarded the M.B.A. from the University of Massachusetts, at Amherst. He has served as National Field Director for the Pine Manor Junior College Capital Program, Director of Admissions for Pine Manor Junior College, Executive Assistant to the Vice President of Tufts University, and most recently was Director of Estate Resources at Tufts University. His experience in college administration and in particular in the area of resource development will bring a change in direction for Suffolk's fund-raising and alumni programs.

Mr. Barclay feels strongly that the development office exists to serve both the university and the alumni. "Suffolk is a unique institution, doing many exciting things in education. We intend to bring these programs to the attention of our alumni. Our objective is to renew alumni involvement in Suffolk and to demonstrate to everyone why they can take pride in the University and its programs."

As part of the change Ms. Lenea A. Gaspur, who has been with Suffolk for three years, has been appointed Director of Alumni Activities. She is a graduate of Trinity College with an A.B. in English and received her M.A. in English from John Carroll University in Ohio. Ms. Gaspur has taught English on the secondary school and college level. She was a Research Associate with the Massachusetts State Board of Higher Education prior to entering Suffolk. In addition to a myriad of duties she has managed to complete three years of law school and will receive her J.D. and become a Suffolk alumna in one more year.

Louis B. Connelly, Director of Public Relations, has been with Suffolk since 1967 and continues in that position. A graduate of Suffolk in '57 with a B.S. in Journalism and in '74 with an Ed.M., he was a staff writer with the Boston Herald prior to assuming his public relations position at Suffolk. Alumni involvement is important to Suffolk and it is hoped that you will become involved as Suffolk's programs reach out to you. The change is a beginning.

Chief Justice Presides Over Moot Court

The 1975 Justice Tom C. Clark Moot Court Competition was judged by a distinguished Bench consisting of the Honorable G. Joseph Tauro, Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts; the Honorable Charles S. House, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Connecticut; and, the Honorable Levin H. Campbell, Circuit Judge United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. Finalists in the Competition were Mrs. Nancy Viano Brown and Mr. Joseph Cove for the Petitioners and Mr. Marshall A. Gallup, Jr. and Mr. Edward J. White for the Respondents.

At issue in the Competition was the constitutionality of two hypothetical city ordinances concerning picketing and failure to disburse. The team of Mrs. Brown and Mr. Cove prevailed by a slight margin.

In recognition of their achievements, Mr. Cove and Mrs. Brown were presented with Revere Bowls by Chief Justice Tauro. Plaques signifying their achievement were presented to Mr. Gallup and Mr. White.

A special award entitled the Honorable G. Joseph Tauro Best Advocate Award was instituted this year. The first recipient of this award was Mrs. Nancy Viano Brown.

Both Mr. Cove and Mrs. Brown are second year students in the day division, while Mr. Gallup and Mr. White are third year evening division students.

Law of the Sea

Suffolk Law School and the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development provided the forum for the final regional meeting of the American Society of International Law prior to the world-wide conference currently in progress in Geneva, Switzerland. Entitled the "International Law of the Sea Conference," the meeting drew nearly 500 persons.

Scientists, diplomats, lawyers, economists and businessmen from as far away as Zambia met to discuss major issues in maritime law. Of particular importance was the discussion of the extension of the current 12 mile offshore fishing limits to a 200 mile limit.

Professor Basil Yanakakis of the law school coordinated the highly successful conference. Professor Yanakakis was able to bring together a broad cross section of the over 5,000 participants in the United Nations' sea conference held last summer in Caracas, Venezuela.

Thomas A. Fulham, Suffolk's president and an expert in oceanography and fisheries, in his closing address to the distinguished group, called for global agreement on establishment of an economic zone. He added that "Each season that is added to the delay giving local coastal state conservation control merely diminishes the amount of animal protein that will be available in the near future to suppress world hunger."

Dean's Reception Wentworth By-the-Sea

Dean David J. Sargent will host a reception for Law School alumni at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Bar Association. A cocktail reception is planned for June 13, 1975 at 6:00 p.m. to which all Suffolk Law School alumni who are Massachusetts residents have received an invitation.

The Dean's Reception will provide an opportunity for you to see classmates from the law school and to meet other lawyers who are Suffolk alumni. Several faculty and administrators plan to be there, so make the Dean's Reception part of your schedule.

If you are a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association living outside the state and plan to attend the meeting, plan to come to the reception. Please let us know you're coming by writing to the Alumni Office, Suffolk University, Beacon Hill, Boston, Massachusetts 02114.
Suffolk's Number One

Exciting things have been happening in the Department of Communications and Speech. The Walter M. Burse Debating and Forensic Society has been making headlines in inter-collegiate competition with institutions across the country. Declared East Coast Champions of the Great Eastern Forensic Series, the squad has earned sixty-three trophies this year in competitive debate and speech contests.

The Great Eastern Forensic Series was the culmination of six tournaments held in five states. Suffolk competed with such institutions as Princeton, Rutgers, Yale, Wellesley, Boston College and McGill. Seventy-nine institutions competed and Suffolk took top honors.

Due largely to the efforts of Dr. Allan J. Kennedy, recently named Chairman of Communications and Speech, the debate and forensic society has a record membership of 40 undergraduates from several departments within the university. Recently, Dr. Kennedy's efforts were recognized by the Eastern Forensics League when he was named both Best Novice Debate Coach and the Outstanding Coach in the North East.

The students involved in the society are individually serious about forensics and debate, and at the same time maintain high enthusiasm for team participation. Asked to name an outstanding member of the group, they immediately single out Charlie Niles who recently was selected the Outstanding Competitor in the Great Eastern Series at Hunter College in New York.

At 81 years of age, "Charlie" is among the debate and forensic society's most active members. Enrolled at the university through the Senior Citizen's Enrollment Program, Mr. Niles is the Senior Citizen's program's strongest backer. Through it, persons 65 and over may enroll in regular day classes at Suffolk free of charge. The only cost is a $15 registration fee and books.

Since he has been at Suffolk, Mr. Niles has taken over 18 courses and has earned 35 hours toward a degree. His work with the debate and forensic society is extra-curricular. A high point of the year for Mr. Niles and the society was their appearance at the National Speech Tournament at Niagara University in New York. Mr. Niles appeared in the Persuasive Speaking event.

At a high point of the year for Mr. Niles and the society was their appearance at the National Speech Tournament at Niagara University in New York. Mr. Niles appeared in the Persuasive Speaking event.

Given the outstanding record of the team this year and the fact that the debate program is losing only a few students to graduation, the horizons for the debate and forensic society look unlimited.

Alumni/Students and Career Development

A series of four informal career seminars was sponsored for students by the Chemistry Department this spring. Combining faculty and alumni experience, the series afforded an opportunity for students to find out what kinds of opportunities they could expect upon graduation and what it is like to work in various professions.

Two alumni discussed their careers since graduation. Steven Currier, BS '71 and Dennis Walczewski, BS '70, presented their impressions and experience in the job market with degrees in chemistry. Mr. Currier is doing research in biochemistry at Tufts New England Medical Center in Boston. He described what it is like to do research full-time and the rewards and drawbacks the profession affords. Dennis Walczewski is a forensic chemist with the Stoneham, Massachusetts branch of the Drug Enforcement Administration. His talk centered around what it means to be a forensic chemist.

The seminars are highly attended and students gain invaluable insight into various careers enabling them to think more intelligently about the future.
The College of Business Administration and the Institute for Business Management will sponsor two more seminars this spring. The first series, presented in the latter part of March, focused on providing the financial executive and his staff with the practical knowledge necessary to operate successfully in today's economic climate.

The two upcoming seminars are entitled "Cash Management Seminar" and "Financial Forecasting Seminar."

The Cash Management Seminar, to be held May 28th-30th will provide a thorough indoctrination in the techniques of cash management. Staffed by a faculty of nationally known experts in the field, the seminar will delve into all aspects of cash management. Topics discussed will include Cash Flow Forecasting, Cash Generation and Mobilization Techniques, Managing Bank Relations, Computer Applications and Short-Term Money Market Instruments.

On May 27th-29th, the Financial Forecasting Seminar will be held. This program will provide a thorough exposure to financial forecasting techniques. The program is oriented toward providing a combination of both statistical and management decision-oriented viewpoints. The panel, composed of professionals with national reputations, will review forecasting methods which have been applied in today's economy.

Both seminars will be conducted at the Boston Marriott. Further details can be obtained by calling the office of Dean Richard McDowell at (617) 723-4700 extension 297.

M.B.A. Programs Flourish

The M.B.A. Alumni Association is winding up a busy year of activities highlighted by events like the popular luncheon series and a reception for January M.B.A. graduates.

Eugene H. Harding, M.B.A. '72, President of the association, cites the Downtown Luncheon Club as one of the Association's most popular events. Speakers this year have included Allen Davis, Director of Public Relations, Boston Edison Company; Lawrence E. Martin, Associate General Director, Massachusetts General Hospital; John H. Harper, General Marketing Supervisor, New England Telephone Company; Dr. James B. Thornblade, Economist with The First National Bank of Boston; Johannes Klinkmueller, Group Director of Software Support, Honeywell; and Carl E. Anderson, Senior Vice President, Keystone Fund Incorporated. Topics covered ranged from "White Collar Unions" to "Health Care Management." The luncheons have been held both "in house" on various company premises and in several Boston restaurants. These informative and successful luncheons will be continued next year.

Plans are underway for a wider range of M.B.A. Association activities. If you have not been involved with this energetic group and would like to be, write to Gene Harding c/o the Alumni Office.

January Reception

A Reception in honor of the January 1975 M.B.A. recipients was held by the M.B.A. Alumni Association and the Graduate School of Administration. Mr. Hugh Jenkens, a member of the faculty at Alamorgan Polytechnic in South Wales, United Kingdom, who is doing research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, addressed the group. His most interesting talk focused on a comparison between the British and American economic and management systems.

In addition to M.B.A. alumni and January '75 graduates, several faculty and administrative members of the Graduate School of Administration were present.
Dean Richard McDowell welcomed the graduates and Mr. Eugene Harding, M.B.A. '72, President of the M.B.A. Alumni Association, outlined alumni activities designed to maintain continuing relationship between the university and the alumni.

Outreach

The first in a series of educational outreach programs is operating in Swampscott. An extension of the M.P.A. program in the Graduate School of Administration, the program in Swampscott is the first of four planned Satellite Centers across the state.

The Satellite Program is designed to enable the suburban student to complete the requirements toward a Master in Public Administration in his home town area. Through the program, a suburban student need not commute into Suffolk even for registration. All courses and student services are brought to the Satellite Center.

The North Shore Satellite has been operating since September and currently has twenty-five students enrolled in the two courses offered this semester. If you live in the North Shore Satellite area and are interested in the program, contact Dr. Donald Levitan, Chairperson for the program, at (617) 723-4700 ext. 422.
