Suffolk University conferred one thousand seventy-nine degrees on June 8, 1975. Two ceremonies, Law School, and Colleges of Liberal Arts and Sciences and Business Administration, were held at John H. Hynes Veteran's Auditorium. The Auditorium was filled to capacity with parents, husbands, wives, children and friends who gathered to take part in the academic ceremony which marks both an end and a beginning — Commencement.

The Law School held its Commencement exercises in the morning. Keesler H. Montgomery, JD '50, led the academic procession as University Marshal. The Call to Commencement Exercises was delivered by the Honorable C. Edward Rowe, Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Presiding over the ceremonies was President Thomas A. Fulham. The Invocation was delivered by Reverend James F. Rafferty, Campus Minister, and the Commencement Address by The Honorable Joseph S. Lord, III, Chief Judge, United States District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania (excerpted elsewhere in this issue).

Five hundred ninety-six graduates received the degree of Juris Doctor and seven distinguished persons received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Four graduates, James F. Haley, Jr., Larry C. Kenna, Marilyn R. Stevens and Richard Valmore Wing received the JD degree magna cum laude.

Among those being honored was Joseph Schneider, Esquire, who was presented a gold medal for distinguished service.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Business Administration held Commencement Exercises in the afternoon on June 8.

The five hundred eighty-three degree recipients were led by Arthur M. Bell, BSBA '50, Class Marshal. Chairman of the Board of Trustees, the Honorable C. Edward Rowe, issued the Call to Commencement Exercises and President Thomas A. Fulham presided. After the Invocation, delivered by Carol S. Robb, Campus Ministry, Doctor John H. Knowles, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, addressed the graduates (speech excerpted elsewhere in this issue.) Four honorary degrees were bestowed before the conferring of degrees upon the graduates. Nine graduates received their degrees summa cum laude: Rosemary B. Minehan, Bachelor of Arts, Rebecca Anne Blau, Bachelor of Science, Alan Richard Maffei, Bachelor of Science, Judith Ann Meleady, Bachelor of Science, Helen N. Orcutt, Bachelor of Science, Nancy Marie Kruse, Bachelor of Science in Journalism, Keith H. Allen, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, Robert J. Aronson, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and Robert Lester Feeling, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration.

Champagne and Music

Over two hundred Suffolk Alumni and their guests enjoyed Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops at this year's Suffolk Alumni Night at Pops. The program ranged from Polonaise, from "Eugene Onegin" by Tchaikovsky to selections from "The Sound of Music" by Rogers. Mr. Fielder raised everyone to high spirits with the "St Louis Blues March" and some Pops "bonuses."

After the performance, a special champagne reception was held in the Cabot-Cahners Room at Symphony Hall. The perfect ending to a great evening, the reception provided alumni an opportunity to meet old friends and new friends and avoid the after Pops traffic "crunch."

The success of the evening is a sure reason for making Suffolk Alumni Night at Pops a permanent event on your alumni calendar.
Alumni Named to Development Positions

Two alumni, one from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the other from the Law School have been named to positions on the staff of the Development Office.

Frank A. Sablone, BSBA '70 and MEd '71, has been named to fill the position of Assistant Director of Development for the Colleges of Business and Liberal Arts and Sciences. He has been an active member of the General Alumni Association and served as a member of its Board of Directors. Mr. Sablone was an Area Manager for the Sperry and Hutchinson Company and then Dean of the Andover School of Business, where he was a member of the faculty, teaching marketing and management courses. Most recently he was a faculty member at New Hampshire Vocational Technical College in Nashua, New Hampshire.

Joseph B. Shanahan, Jr. has been appointed to the position of Assistant Director of Development for the Law School. A 1972 graduate of Suffolk University with an AB summa cum laude, Mr. Shanahan was awarded the JD degree, cum laude this June by Suffolk University Law School. Mr. Shanahan will direct the Law School Annual Fund. The recipient of a Suffolk University Law Review, was President of the Student Body of the University, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association.

Special Appointment

The appointment of Thomas A. Fulham to the Board of Trustees of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution was announced by Charles F. Adams, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Institution.

An expert in fisheries, marine matters and a member of the corporation of the Woods Hole Institution, President Fulham has served as United States Commissioner for the International Commission for Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, Chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Natural Resources, and member of the National Advisory committee on Oceans and Atmosphere.

1974-75 Gift Income

Gifts to the University for the fiscal year 1974-75 totaled $140,454. The Annual Fund year was changed in March to coincide with the fiscal year of the University, July 1 to June 30. This naturally does not affect the donor's tax year, which allows for a charitable deduction for gifts made to the University during the donor's tax year. All it does is put the closing for the Annual Fund year in line with the closing of all other accounts at the University. Another change was made establishing two Annual Funds; one for the Colleges of Business and Liberal Arts and one for the Law School. In the future these funds will be organized with volunteer alumni who will personally call for alumni support. As the new fiscal year develops you will be learning more about the Suffolk University Annual Fund and the Suffolk University Law School Annual Fund. Alumni support for this very short three month campaign of April, May and June, has been excellent. The following are the results as of June 30, 1975.

Homecoming

Homecoming — Too early to think about it? We don't think so, and once we've told you about our plans, you won't think so either.

This year, Homecoming will bring you back to take part in a very special landmark in Suffolk's history — dedication of the newly refurbished Fenton Building. Plans call for morning registration and dedication of the building followed by luncheon at the Museum of Science. We chose the museum because Suffolk has traditionally thought of greater Boston as her "campus" and we really should start using the "facilities" more. After luncheon, we'll take you back to the University for a brief look at Suffolk's future as seen by President Fulham and Vice President Flannery. This will be followed by cocktails leaving you free to join your friends for dinner. Special features of the day will include registration by class and division so you'll know who from your class has returned, a nationally known luncheon speaker, and ample time to see your friends. As soon as the details are firm, we'll be contacting you. Homecoming — October 25, 1975 — Think about it.
“The Challenge Is There.”

The Law School Commencement address was delivered by Chief Judge Joseph F. Lord, III, of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. Calling upon the five hundred ninety-six graduates to accept the "continuing challenge" offered by the practice of law, Judge Lord noted that "the law is far from perfect, and even all our striving may never make it so. But we must continue to strive, to reach out and to search."

Citing numerous instances wherein young people have "dared to challenge what they saw," Judge Lord alluded to legal precedents which have been successfully challenged. Focusing on the Gideon case, Judge Lord outlined the battle fought to win the right to counsel in non-capital criminal cases.

In closing, Judge Lord said: "The challenge is there. It will always be there. The horizon will never be reached unless you alone shorten and constrict it. The dreams will always be there and attainable for those who dare."

Governor's Appointment

Doris R. Pote, JD ’67, Registrar and Professor at the Law School, has been named Chairperson of the Massachusetts Consumer Council by Governor Michael S. Dukakis. The Consumer’s Council, designed by the Legislature to be an independent “watchdog” agency within state government, has thirteen members and functions to draft legislation, lobby for consumer rights and represent consumers. The members serve without pay.

Miss Pote said that finding solutions to the shrinking purchase power of consumers will be the council’s focal point during her Chairmanship.

MBA Honors

50-Year Members

The Massachusetts Bar Association awarded 50 year plaques to those members who practiced before the Massachusetts Bar for fifty years or more. Twenty Suffolk Law School alumni were among the two hundred thirty recipients of the award. Since this is the first year the award has been given, several recipients have more than fifty years of service. The following is the list of Suffolk Law School alumni who received plaques:

Dwight L. Allison, JD ’22
Francis E. Burke, JD ’22
Garrett H. Byrne, JD ’24
Frank Daniels, JD ’23
Frank J. Donahue, JD ’23
George S. Drew, JD ’24

Sidney S. Von Loesecke, JD ’23

Class Marshal

Leading the Academic Procession for the 1975 Law School Commencement was Class Marshal Keesler H. Montgomery, JD ’50, outstanding member of the twenty-fifth year reunion class.

Mr. Montgomery is Clerk of the Roxbury Municipal Court and has practiced law for twenty-five years in Boston. A director of the General Alumni Association, Mr. Montgomery served as an Assistant Attorney General for Massachusetts from 1953-1959 and was Executive Secretary to the Governor’s Council from 1964-1966.

PhD and JD!

As if James F. Haley, Jr., weren't busy enough graduating first in his class in Law School, he also received the PhD in Organic Chemistry from Brandeis University one week before the Suffolk commencement. His wife, Jacqueline Nolan Haley, was right beside him when it came to picking up degrees — she received the JD degree cum laude at the law school commencement exercises.

Special justice Joseph Nolan who has taught in the evening division for eight years is Mrs. Haley's father.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Haley were evening law students. Mrs. Haley did her undergraduate work at Emmanuel College in Boston, Massachusetts and Mr. Haley was graduated from Notre Dame University in Indiana.

By-The-Sea

The 1975 Annual Massachusetts Bar Association convened at Wentworth By-The-Sea in New Hampshire in early June. The weather did not turn out, but the Suffolk alumni did! Two hundred attended the Suffolk Law School Reception hosted by Dean David J. Sargent. Inclued in those who dropped by to say hello to faculty and friends were three alumni who were among those recognized by the Massachusetts Bar Association for having practiced fifty or more years. Judge Vincent Mottola, JD '23, Judge Day had "contributed significantly to the life of [his] native state of Rhode Island."

The Honorable Charles Staver, Chief Justice of the Connecticut Supreme Court, served in both houses of the Connecticut General Assembly, was legal advisor to the Governor of Connecticut and both Judge and Chief Judge of the Connecticut Superior Court. President Fulham pointed out that Judge House is "held in the greatest respect by [his] colleagues [and this] is demonstrated by [his] election as Fellow of the American Bar Association in 1968" and his present position as Vice-Chairman and Chairman-Elect of the National Conference of Chief Justices.

The Honorable Joseph S. Lord, III, Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, was honored for an outstanding career in which was manifested "a deep concern for and devotion to fundamental and Constitutional rights." President Fulham, in the citation, spoke of Judge Lord's "vivid and definitive expositions of our Constitution which have brought ... a deeper understanding of our national heritage."

An outstanding citizen of Rhode Island, the Honorable Edward Matthew McEntee, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, was cited for his career in public service. Governor Salmon had "won the admiration of [his] peers, as is evidenced by [his] Chairmanship of the New England Governor's Conference and membership in the Executive Council of the National Governor's Conference."

President-Elect of the American Bar Association, the Honorable Lawrence Edward Walsh, has, in addition to his judicial duties, served the United States as Ambassador with the Delegation to the Paris Meeting on Vietnam. Speaking of Judge Walsh's accomplishments, President Fulham said his "scholarly understanding of the legal profession has guided [him] through difficult decisions illuminating both the realities of the law and the spirit of justice."

Seven Honored

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon seven distinguished guests at the Law School Commencement. President Thomas A. Fulham bestowed the degrees citing the outstanding contributions of each of the recipients.

The Honorable Levin H. Campbell, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, was cited for his distinguished career as member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Assistant Attorney General, Associate Justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court and United States District Judge of Massachusetts. In the course of his remarks, President Fulham spoke of Judge Campbell's career which has "illuminated the mysteries of the law and brightened the shades of legal discourse with intelligence and compassion."

Chief Justice of the United States District Court of the District of Rhode Island, the Honorable Edward William Day was honored as a "Dedicated advocate of equal justice for all of the inherent rights and dignity of the individual ... Speaking of Judge Day's fifty year career in the law, President Fulham said that Judge Day had "contributed significantly to the life of [his] native state of Rhode Island."

Governor of the State of Vermont, the Honorable Thomas Paul Salmon was cited for his career in public service. President Fulham continued, saying that Governor Salmon had "won the admiration of [his] peers, as is evidenced by [his] Chairmanship of the New England Governor's Conference and membership in the Executive Council of the National Governor's Conference."

Superspecialization

In a Commencement address entitled "Clarity of Thought in Higher Education" Doctor John H. Knowles, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, called upon the Class of '75 to consider the concept of higher education in America today and to assess it in light of traditional humanistic ideals. Speaking to the five hundred eighty three graduates of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Business Administration, Doctor Knowles warned of superspecialization in education leading to the "hazard of producing a nation of idiot-savants, highly knowledgeable in depth and technically proficient but abysmally deficient in breadth and the ability to synthesize knowledge and integrate its disparate, atomized parts ..."

Doctor Knowles spoke of the vocational and pragmatic focus of the undergraduate experience saying that "more and more American universities have neglected the substance and purpose of an undergraduate education and the swollen tail of the graduate schools wags the university's body, i.e., the undergraduate faculty of arts and sciences." This increasingly utilitarian approach to undergraduate education has led to a curriculum which "is a mish-mash of electives and pre-graduate school requirements. The idea of knowing a little about everything, integrating and synthesizing knowledge in the attempt to gain understanding of both self and life's problems; strengthening the culture and its values; acquiring aesthetic and ethical sense in choice, preference, value and style; and being able to read anything written, understand anything said, and say anything thought has been lost to the pomposity of idiot-savant professionals, technicians and governmental bureaucrats, and to a rigidly compartmentalized faculty which has lost its sense of community and deals with everything but its universal purpose and the issues of teaching, learning and curricular revision."

In closing, Doctor Knowles said; "The university's role is to be a university. The complex problems of a rapidly shrinking, interdependent world require clarity of intellectual and moral thought for their solution. Such clarity can be achieved only through the integration and synthesis of humanistic and scientific knowledge and the methodological disciplines of both. In the act of discovery, the student will be freed to pursue the life-long joys of learning and understanding for the art of being taught is the art of discovery, as the art of teaching is the art of assisting discovery to take place." (Mark van Doren) In the process, the individual acquires hope, will, skill, purpose, fidelity, love, caring and in the end, authenticity and integrity, the highest virtue of them all! The journey is the thing, not the arrival."

Class of 1950 25th Reunion

The Class of 1950 held its Twenty-fifth Reunion at classmate Mike Linquata's "Gloucester House" restaurant in Gloucester, Massachusetts. "You haven't changed a bit" echoed throughout the delightful evening as the yearbook was passed around. President and Mrs. Fulham were on hand to extend the University's greeting and class officers Mike Linquata (President) and Arthur Bell (Treasurer) presided over an informal and enthusiastic evening. "Once is not enough" must have been the evening's theme for before the reluctant ending, a unanimous decision was made to do it again next year and to ask the Class of 1949 to join with them. (The classes of 1949 and 1950 started out together but the "49" group accelerated through summer sessions to graduate earlier.) Arthur Bell and Fiore Masse were elected class agents and given the charge to work towards a special 1976 Spring Reunion.
One thing Dr. Boudreau stresses is that Safari is not limited to those students wishing to study another language. "The program is open to any student in the University, including the Law School. And it's not only for the aid of foreign language students, the History and Humanities departments are among those involved in the organization of Safari."

Nor is the list of possible destinations for potential scholarly pursuits meagre. According to Dr. Boudreau, the list below comprises only some of the availabilities for Safari Summer School:

- England — Warnborough House College
- Austria — University of Maine
- Mexico — State University of Durango
- Canada — Laval University
- Colombia — Latin America Campuses
- Germany — Georgetown University

This list is not all inclusive, there are also institutions of the Center for Foreign Study in a dozen countries, and campuses of various organizations throughout Latin and South America.

"The loan and support makes it possible for four or five students to go abroad to learn," smiling, Dr. Boudreau adds. "Some of the students even stay awhile after their program ends."

For the few years the program has been in existence, the sailing has been clear. "There have been no hangups thus far."

This article was written by Brian M. Donovan, a junior at Suffolk majoring in Journalism.

Class Marshal

Arthur M. Bell, BSBA '50, served as Marshal for the 1975 graduating class of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Business Administration. Traditionally, an outstanding member of the twenty-fifth reunion class leads the academic procession to and from commencement ceremonies.

Mr. Bell, Vice President and Sales Manager for Foot-Joy, Incorporated of Brockton, Massachusetts, has been active in alumni programs for several years. He is a Director of the General Alumni Association and recently served as chairman for the twenty-fifth reunion for the Class of '50.

Honorary Degrees

Four honorary degrees were conferred at Commencement ceremonies for the College of Business Administration. Each recipient has, through his chosen field, contributed greatly to the advancement of society.

Alice Curtis Desmond, writer, world traveler, artist and photographer, has written over twenty books and has carved out a place of prominence in the field of children's literature. The degree conferred upon Mrs. Desmond was Doctor of Letters.

Dr. John H. Knowles is President of the Rockefeller Foundation, Professor of Medicine at New York University Medical Center and former General Director of the Massachusetts General Hospital. Dr. Knowles' work has notably influenced the thinking in medical disciplines. The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him.

Physician, teacher and director of numerous medical and health organizations, Doctor John Bernard Madigan received the degree of Doctor of Science. His preeminence in the profession of medicine has led to his current position of President of the Maine Medical Association. The degree conferred upon Dr. Madigan was Doctor of Science.

The first graduate of Suffolk University to be graduated from an accredited school of dentistry, Dr. Maston A. Nelson, Jr. received the degree of Doctor of Science. Author of several publications in the field of oral pathology, Dr. Nelson's work has broadened the horizons of dental studies.
The Center for State Management of the Graduate School of Administration graduated its first class. Established two years ago, the Center offers the degree of Master in Public Administration. Twenty MPA degrees were awarded. Among the recipients were Charles J. Hamilton, Assistant Director of the Massachusetts Lottery; Peter O’Neill, Clerk, Massachusetts House Committee on Rules; Metropolitan District Commission Police Captain Jeremiah J. Collins; and, Edward T. Sullivan, Business Manager for Local 254 of the Service Employees International.

CBA Hosts French Students

Thanks to an interested alumnus and his work with the College of Business Administration, ten French students from the Institut de Preparation a l’Administration et a la Gestion (IPAG) in Paris, are spending their summer as interns in various companies and state agencies in the Boston area. Mr. John McCarthy, BSBA ’49, contacted Dean Richard McDowell requesting aid in the sponsorship of the IPAG students. What evolved was a cooperative arrangement whereby French students were brought to Boston to work in and observe American business and governmental agencies.

During their stay, the ten students involved in the program will be hosted by various departments within the College of Business Administration. The experience is seen as the capstone of the IPAG cooperative education and it is hoped that Suffolk will be able to develop a similar relationship for Suffolk students with French business schools.

Right of Way

The Right of Way Institute is another example of Suffolk’s continuing involvement in areas of public concern. The Institute was established in 1971 through the initiative of the late Judge John E. Fenton, Sr., Chairman of Suffolk’s Board of Trustees, in cooperation with Maurice V. O’Toole, Training and Research Officer of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works’ Right of Way Division. The Institute provides a program of continuing studies to meet present and future needs in the fields of Real Estate Acquisition, Real Estate Appraising, Preliminary Engineering, Relocation Assistance, Property Management and Eminent Domain Law. It serves to keep its students aware of the changes in the law, federal and state regulations and procedure and recent court decisions. The Institute has won two commendations from the United States Department of Transportation.

This year, thirty four students in the program received certificates from Dr. Richard McDowell, Dean of the College of Business Administration and Graduate School of Administration and Mr. John Sheehy, Director of the Department of Public Works’ Right of Way Division.

Alumnus Cited by Governor

James F. Lancaster, MEd ’70, MBA ’72, received an award from Massachusetts Governor Michael S. Dukakis in recognition of his participation in the Governor’s Public Service Fellowship Program. As a Fellow, Mr. Lancaster, sponsored by his company, New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, took a one year leave of absence and contributed his management skills in a state government project. Mr. Lancaster, Director of Home Office Training for New England Life, spent his year with the Law Enforcement and Governor’s Committee on Criminal Justice.
Business Problem Solving

A new course in the MBA curriculum is entitled “Managerial Problem Solving.” Offered as an elective to second semester senior MBA candidates, the course has as its main thrust the field-training of the students. Through placement in various businesses at the middle management level, students receive valuable experience while providing research assistance of benefit to the company in which they work.

Seven students from the class did research projects for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts during the spring semester.

The course is taught by Eugene H. Harding, MBA ’72, who also works in health care resources for Blue Cross and Blue Shield. At the end of the semester, all students were required to submit a paper to both Mr. Harding and the manager of the area in which they worked.

The projects have been very successful and several of the students have been led to apply for jobs in the various companies wherein they were placed. Because of the high quality of their research, several students are being seriously considered by the companies which hosted them.

Marketing Competition

The Marketing Policies and Strategy class of Mr. Joseph P. Vaccaro, MBA ’69, selected five members of the class to represent them at the New England Regional Competition of the Annual National Student Advertising Competition. The College of Business Administration hosted the competition at which the Suffolk Marketing plan took second place.

The competition is based on a live case study of Sinutab, a sinus headache remedy. In order to compete, the participants had to research the industry and prepare a presentation for Sinutab. The presentations were judged on several points including the research foundations used, marketing plans designed, advertising plans created, media and creative strategy and sales and merchandising plans.

Sponsored by Warner/Chilcott Company, a division of Warner — Lambert, the competition is designed so that students can put theoretical knowledge to practical use. It is anticipated that Sinutab may use some of the ideas and methods generated by the competition.
