D. BRADLEY SULLIVAN, JR. NAMED HEAD OF COLLEGE ADMISSIONS

The appointment of D. Bradley Sullivan, Jr. as Jams, Plant College's student admissions director, was announced by President James W. Murphy.

The duties of the new position are to determine the acceptable standards for admission, to conduct the College's solicitation work in the Boston area, and to establish a program of the admissions process for prospective student applicants. Sullivan's experience in the admissions field includes serving as head of the admissions office of the University of Southern California, as well as headmaster of the School of Mines in Colorado College.

INTERNATIONAL-ATTY.

To Address Law Alumni Asse.

Frank Y. Holmes, internationally-known attorney, is a member of the Suffolk Law School faculty and is also a former student of the school. He will address the alumni at a dinner to be held on Friday evening.

UNIVERSITY AWAITS

STALAG 17 PRODUCTION

A reader and a writer's performance of 'Stalag 17, A.F.I.,' on Friday, January 12, at 7:30 p.m., at the College Theatre, will be presented. The play tells the story of the life of a prisoner in World War II, who is eventually released from the camp. The performance will be followed by an interview with the writer of the play, who will discuss his experiences in the war.
S. U. Graduate Receives Frost Poetry Award

Robert Hallock, who received the R. U. Graduate Society's Most Promising Student Award last year, is a poet who has been appointed to the National Poetry Society. This is the first time a poet has been appointed to the society, which was founded in 1923 by the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

The Frost award, established to recognize the best young poet in the country, was first given in 1923 to Robert Frost. Hallock is the second poet to receive the award.

Hallock's poetry has been published in several national magazines, including Poetry, The Hudson Review, and The New Yorker. He is currently working on his third book of poetry, which is scheduled for publication next year.

On Films...

ARNOLD D. BIRNS

The next film you see at the cinema may not resemble the one you see today. There are signs that television is changing the way films are made and exhibited. Already, some films have been released that seem to have been made for television, or at least are more appropriate for a television format. The reason is that the audience for television is much larger than the audience for the cinema, and television is growing faster than the cinema.

One sign of this change is the growing number of films that are made specifically for television. These films are often shorter than films made for the cinema, and they are more likely to be violent, suspenseful, and exciting. They are also more likely to be comedies, dramas, and documentaries, than films made for the cinema.

Another sign of this change is the growing number of films that are released simultaneously on television and in the cinema. This is happening more frequently, and it is likely to happen more frequently in the future. The reason is that television is more accessible than the cinema, and the audience for television is growing faster than the audience for the cinema.

A third sign of this change is the growing number of films that are made specifically for television, and are released in the cinema only as a way of generating revenue for the television station. This is happening more frequently, and it is likely to happen more frequently in the future.

The change is not just in the type of films that are made, but also in the way that films are made. Films are becoming shorter, and more violent, and more suspenseful, and more exciting. They are also becoming more dramatic, and more realistic, and more natural.

The reason for this change is that the audience for television is much larger than the audience for the cinema, and the audience for television is growing faster than the audience for the cinema. The reason for this change is that television is more accessible than the cinema, and that television is more popular than the cinema.

The change is not just in the type of films that are made, but also in the way that films are made. Films are becoming shorter, and more violent, and more suspenseful, and more exciting. They are also becoming more dramatic, and more realistic, and more natural.

The reason for this change is that the audience for television is much larger than the audience for the cinema, and the audience for television is growing faster than the audience for the cinema. The reason for this change is that television is more accessible than the cinema, and that television is more popular than the cinema.
Suffolk Librarian Heads State Commissioners

Richard J. Sullivan, former director of libraries at Suffolk University, Blackstone, has been named chairman of the Board of Library Commissioners of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The Board of Library Commissioners has jurisdiction over the administration of the Mass. State Library, which serves as the central repository for all books, periodicals and other materials owned and held by Massachusetts public libraries.

Sullivan, who has been in charge of the Public Library of Blackstone for 24 years, has served on the Board of Library Commissioners since 1958. He has been chairman of the Board of Library Commissioners ever since.

Sullivan has served on the Mass. State Library Board since 1966, as chairman of the Board of Library Commissioners.

He has also served on the Blackstone Public Library Board of Directors and the Blackstone School Board.

Sullivan has been a member of the American Library Association and the Massachusetts Library Association.

He is a member of the Mass. State Library Board and the Blackstone School Board.

He is a member of the Blackstone School Board and the Blackstone Public Library Board of Directors.
Don't Laugh

By

Dr. Bender

Calls For

More Student Loans

In his final address to the University Senate yesterday, Prof. Dr. Bender called for student loans as a way of helping the University meet its financial needs. He said that many of the students are in need of financial aid and that the University has a duty to assist them.

Duette Photographers

40 Joy St.

Boston

Jasper 3-2883

James H. McMannus

Lunchette

122 Cambridge St.

Lunchettes - Dinners - Snacks

Thelma's - Everyday - Better

Beacon Hill Pharmacy

Oscar Berger, Prop. Pharms.

122 Beacon St.

Give us a call, we're here to help you.

Jenny's Café

28 Maple St.

Making a difference - Monday - Friday

Beacon Hill Kitchen

Lunchettes at 12 Noon

Delightful food for you and your friends.

Seaport

Just been watching your actions in Congress during the last six months with great interest and have been impressed by your efforts in the next election.

Vatican City recently issued a statement concerning the principles and values which the Church has taught for centuries. Your speech today shows a commitment of national interest rather than a consideration of Christian values. It is a purely emotional point of view that is certainly not justified in the true spirit of the teachings of Christ. I see no reason why you should act otherwise.

I am sure that you are simply a good Christian who has gone wrong in whether you are a black leader, or maybe there has been a misunderstanding. Your actions during the recent controversy have not been in the true spirit of Christ.

Viceroy's got it at both ends

Captured by escaped convict!