Enrollment in the Colleges Reaches All Time High

According to Tom Condon BSBA '74, Data Processing Coordinator for the University, enrollment for the Spring Session in all segments of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Business Administration is at a record high. Total enrollment this session is 4,250 compared with the Spring 1974 total 4,001. This is an increase of 249 students over last years figures. The breakdown is as follows:

DAY DIVISION

Liberal Arts	1275
Business Administration	725
Public Administration	28
Total Day	2028

EVENING DIVISION

Liberal Arts	894
Business Administration	1101
Public Administration	104
Total Evening	2099

EXTENSION OFFERINGS

Western Electric	69
Swampscott	16
Flexible Campus Program	30
Emerson College	8
Grand Total	4250

For those of you who are not familiar with the extension course list in this breakdown, a brief description is in order. At Western Electric, Suffolk offers extension courses toward the MBA degree and BSBA degree, a new branch at Swampscott offers the MPA degree; the Flexible Campus Program offers high school students an opportunity to take college level courses at Suffolk; the Emerson College Program is a cross enrollment program whereby students at Emerson can take courses at Suffolk and vice versa.

If you are interested in attending any of the extension courses noted above, please contact the Admissions Office at Suffolk University, Beacon Hill, Boston, MA 02114.

President Thomas A. Fulham and Jack McCarthy, BSBA '62, MBA '69, President of the General Alumni Association, as well as Chairman of Homecoming for the Colleges

Dean Malcolm M. Donahue accepts an Alumni Fellow Award from President Fulham on behalf of his father the Honorable Frank J. Donahue, JD '21. This award was presented in recognition of the major role Judge Donahue has played in Suffolk's development. Retired senior jurist of the Massachusetts Superior Court, Judge Donahue served for 40 years on the bench before retiring in 1972.

P. L. 93-383 and What It Means To You

by Dr. Don Levitan, Director
Center for State Management
Suffolk University

Public Law 93-383, the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 took effect on January 1, 1975. In this article, the Act is succinctly described with analysis confined to the first three titles: those which portend to most effect Massachusetts communities.

The Act introduces a major revision of previous housing and urban development legislation and programs. The legislation consists of a potpourri of eight titles implying a confused "waffling" on the part of the federal government: for in the community development portion, the thrust is to transfer decision making back to the locally elected municipal officials, while in the housing portions, HUD reserves the right to overrule these officials. HUD is also prompting in housing more "open market" operations and less federal involvement.

TITLE I — COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT. Seven categorical grant programs have been consolidated into a single functional grant. These programs are: Historic Preservation, Model Cities Supplemental grants, Neighborhood Facilities, Open Space and Urban Beautification, Public Facility Loans, Urban Renewal including Neighborhood Development and Rehabilitation Loans, and Water and Sewer Grants.

The federal share is now 100%; the previously required local match no longer exists. The allocated funds may be used for the local share of other federal programs if the community is denied funds or if no federal funds are available. Further, 20% of the community's total allocation may be used for selected non-specified community development activities, such as social services, if said programs are consistent with the intent of the development aspect of the proposed "plan."

Funds will be distributed on a Formula and Hold Harmless basis. The basis of the Formula rubric is an 80% distribution of funds to communities within metropolitan areas (SMSA), and 20% to those in non-metropolitan areas.

Formula components for allocation to communities within each classification are based on population, poverty weighted twice, and extent of overcrowding of housing. Consequently, the larger urban communities will be "favored" because of the construction of this formula.

Hold Harmless: In order to insure program continuity within those communities which have prior and/or ongoing program experience, each will be "guaranteed" sufficient funds, based on previous aggregate program levels, to maintain and complete said program activities. The entitlements will be phased in a manner which allows for yearly program continuity as well as program completion. Each community in Massachusetts which meets these criteria (as 36 do), must submit a yearly application although they may opt for either one of the distribution concepts. Communities without prior program experience must vie with each other for the remaining SMSA or non-SMSA formula funds. Hold Harmless communities are by definition also Formula communities (though not the other way around).

Thus the 36 communities (30 cities and 6 towns) in the Commonwealth which have both designations should check potential entitlements under either concept and then select the one which seems most promising. These communities have already indicated their concern with the limited amount of funds to complete on going programs, several that they will be seeking additional funds from the discretionary account.

Discretionary Funds: The difference between the total funds coming into the state and the funds allocated for entitlement communities are termed discretionary. Competition for these funds is contained between communities within the same SMSA. But, all communities within the SMSA may apply for these funds — that is, entitlement as well as non-entitlement municipalities. The law also allows for the state and possibly counties to seek these funds! The application process and requirements are exactly the same for a discretionary grant as they are for a formula or hold-harmless applicant. A separate application, however, must be filed by all communities for these funds, regardless if they are a hold-harmless or discretionary community.

The total discretionary fund is quite frugal in total dollars as well as by SMSA: the six year total for the state is less than half a billion dollars; discretionary funds are less than one hundred million! Lastly, because this act only authorizes funds, it is anticipated that if the appropriation is made in a lesser amount, the entitlement communities would be served first, with their full entitlement share, the remainder becoming the new discretionary fund.

To further exacerbate the situation, several communities are planning to contest their non-entitlement designations. If they are successful, we may look forward to a definite adjustment, downward, of state-wide discretionary funds.

Regardless if a community has a Formula or Hold-Harmless base, an application must be made yearly containing:

- ... a three year plan;
- ... a description of the community development activities to be undertaken;
- ... a consideration (self) of environmental factors;
- ... a housing assistance plan including a survey of housing within the municipality.

Program elements may include clearance, acquisition, rehabilitation, code enforcement, construction of housing and/or public facilities. The priority stress is placed on those activities which will benefit low and moderate income families (by providing suitable housing), environment and/or economic (employment) opportunities. However, each community is given the latitude of using 10% of their total allocation for non-priority items.

Of paramount significance is that a citizen participation component is mandatory! A minimum of two public hearings must be held! Each applicant must indicate outreach to the citizenry and their resultant input within the application process. However, this input is advisory only! The municipal legislative body must approve the "plan and thus the application before its submission by the municipal executive."

Also included in this title is a modest fund for communities who join together to solve housing problems, new communities, territories and protectorates, and research endeavors in community development matters.

TITLE II — ASSISTED HOUSING.

This title details a major revision of federal public housing programs. Section 12, Leased Housing, has been revamped as Section 8 herein, and becomes the major vehicle to provide housing for low income families. A greater range of rent subsidization is allowed. The concept may be termed "share the risk," for it is hoped that with more private owners involved, the alarming foreclosure rate will be decreased. The stress is rather clear . . . Section 8 must first be utilized prior to the exploration of Section 236 (Title III). What we will be experiencing is not so much an increase in "new" units as a stabilization (and possibly a modest increase) of units.

Although local housing authorities may receive the delegation to contract with present or prospective owners, HUD reserves the option of delegating this authority to a municipal agency or directly assuming this responsibility. Special emphasis has been placed on housing for the elderly both in dollars and by the move for establishing design standards.

TITLE III — MORTGAGE CREDIT

ASSISTANCE: Section 235 (Ownership) and Section 236 (Rental) programs are strengthened and extended through FY '76 with sizeable increases in mortgage limits. Under certain conditions, local approval may be pre-empted by HUD.

If a community submits an application under Title I, any housing proposed as part of the plan or any subsequently planned Title II and/or III housing should be consonant with the approved Title I housing assistance plan. If not, the community is inviting HUD's intervention! For those who are not submitting a community development application, as well as those who are unsuccessful in the Title I quest, it is suggested that no forestall possible federal intervention as well as to guide housing growth patterns within their boundaries, a Title I Housing Assistance Plan should be prepared and submitted to HUD for their approval. This plan should reflect regional and state housing proposals. Once approved, the likelihood of HUD intervention is diminished.

Under Titles II and III, there is an increase in the dollars allocated for housing. As with Title I, these two titles will have intense competition for precious few dollars.

TITLE IV — COMPREHENSIVE

PLANNING: The planning provisions of the 1954 Act have been expanded and oriented specifically to planning matters. It is assumed that all communities who receive community development funds must have a comprehensive plan or have one underway. Strengthened housing and land use elements must be included in the plan and application. However, the President has, recently, attempted to withhold some of these funds this fiscal year.

TITLE V — RURAL HOUSING. The programs of the Farmers Home Administration are now applicable to communities up to 20,000 not located within a SMSA. Rehab loans have been increased to $5,000 and now include (specifically) rural dwellings rather than being restricted to any Farm dwelling. This title also allows the agriculture department to contract with non-profit entities for the development and administration of technical assistance programs aimed at aiding needy low income persons in benefitting from federal, state and local rural housing programs. The definition of rural housing has now been broadened to include mobile homes. (See also Title VI). Lastly, the mutual self-help, site loans and subsidization programs have been broadened and expanded.

TITLE VI — MOBILE HOME CONSTRUCTION AND SAFETY

STANDARDS: HUD will, in consultation with the Consumer Product Safety Commission and consistent with state laws and local ordinances, establish construction and safety standards for mobile home manufacturing. It is anticipated, however, it will take several years for regulations to be established.

TITLE VII — CONSUMER HOME MORTGAGE ASSISTANCE:

This title encourages greater participation by Federal Home Loan Bank Boards and federally chartered savings and loan agencies in state mortgage finance agencies and in conventionally financed housing.

TITLE VIII — MISCELLANEOUS:

This title contains a wide variety of items; of paramount significance is the prohibition of housing discrimination on the basis of sex. The mortgagor must only consider the individual's income male and/or female. This means that a woman, married or single, will finally be acknowledged as an economic entity rather than merely a dependent.

The Revenue Sharing concept, both general and special, was trumpeted as allowing for greater local decision-making, less federal guidelines and more dollars. General Revenue Sharing has delivered little and as has been seen here, Community Development Special Revenue Sharing to some communities is a paradox, to others a Trojan horse and to most in Massachusetts, an empty cup.

Notice

The Alumni Office expects to have an Alumni Directory completed by April, 1975. The following information will be included:

Name
Class year and degree
Place of business
Home address

Of course, we do not have all this information on each alumnus, however, when we do have the data, it will be printed.

If for any reason you do not want your name included in the directory, please contact the Alumni Office prior to February 28, 1975, so that we can remove your name from the directory. All requests for this action should be in writing and addressed to the Alumni Office, Suffolk University, Beacon Hill, Boston, MA 02114.

Alumni Career Services

The college Placement Office has three distinct operations and responsibilities classified by type of employers. Educational placement aids candidates seeking opportunities in educational institutions. Government placement deals with governmental employers in all areas of government — federal, state and local. Business placement serves the private enterprise sector. A registrant can enroll in each category.

The services of the Placement Office are available to alumni in their pursuit of career opportunities. The economic recession and the depressed state of the employment market are causing recruiters to look to the Placement Office when seeking experienced personnel. Since the first of the year over 800 notices of job opportunities have been forwarded to more than 300 members of the alumni.

The Placement Office, with the cooperation of the Manpower Utilization Committee of the Alumni Association, is presently formulating plans to conduct an alumni career symposium. Topics covered will include the job market, resume preparation, the job interview and organization of a job campaign.

Alumni interested in attending the symposium, updating their placement file, or registering with the Placement Office should execute the form below and return it to: Director, Placement for the Colleges, Suffolk University, Beacon Hill, Boston, Ma. 02114.
