Reconstruction Begins

Architect’s rendering of 32 Derne Street in 1975

Work has begun on Suffolk’s newest acquisition — the Wright and Potter Building. Preliminary interior demolition has been completed in the five-story structure adjacent to the Archer Building on Derne Street. Construction bids for the remodeling job will be advertised next month.

Long a Beacon Hill landmark, the structure was built in 1913 specifically to house a printing plant, and the Wright and Potter firm used it for that purpose until they went out of business last fall. Suffolk University purchased the property, which includes 40,000 square feet of floor space, for approximately 600,000 dollars.

Current planning on the estimated $2½ million reconstruction job shows offices for 67 faculty members, 14 classrooms, and an entire floor for a Student Lounge, according to Francis X. Flannery, Suffolk’s Vice President and Treasurer.

Scheduled for occupancy by fall, 1975, the new building, which as yet hasn’t been named, will be completely restored on the exterior with concrete spandrels and fixed steel windows. The existing wood roof will also be replaced.

The interior will feature all new mechanical and electrical systems including air conditioning, heating, ventilation, lighting, power, fire alarm system, communication, television, and telephone systems. All new electrical work will be done, and the present sprinkler system will be revised, as well as all new plumbing installed.

ALUMNI NEWS will publish periodic reports as the reconstruction progresses.

S & H Correction Reform Series

Suffolk’s Sociology Department is currently sponsoring a lecture series on Correctional Reform: The Agony of Change. Funded under a grant from the S&H Foundation, the series focuses on reforms in Mass. and throughout the nation.

Open to all alumni free of charge, the lectures and panels represent a wide spectrum of expertise and concern in the correctional field today. Given on Thursday evenings at 7, the speakers include correctional authorities in public and private life, a constitutional expert, and an ex-inmate of Walpole State Prison.

On February 21st, two representatives of the Mass. Council on Crime and Correction, Inc. will speak. They are: John P. Carver, Executive Director, and Daniel Nolan, an ex-inmate.

The March 21st panel, which will consist of leading correctional authorities in Mass., will be announced later.

On April 18th, Joseph Coughlin, President of the American Correctional Association, will speak. He is also Assistant Director, Department of Corrections, for the State of Illinois.

The S&H Foundation Lectureship Program began in 1960 as part of that firm’s commitment to education, and to date 431 grants have been made to more than 350 schools who have participated in the program. Suffolk U. is one of the 35 institutions presenting lectureships during this academic year.

Sociology Chairman D. Donald Fiorillo sees the Series as a natural extension of an already existing involvement and commitment to this field here at Suffolk, where there is an academic program in Crime and Delinquency that is unique among area schools.

Alumni May Trip to Rio

In its second such bargain-rate travel trip this year, The General Alumni Association is offering a seven-day holiday to Rio de Janeiro for less than $330. Presented in cooperation with International Weekends, Inc., of Boston, alumni will depart from Boston on Tuesday, May 21st, and return on Wednesday, May 29th.

The deadline for making reservations is next month, February 20th, and a $100 deposit is required. If you are interested in taking the trip, please phone Miss McNamara at the Alumni Office for more details and reservation information.
It is a real pleasure for me to have this opportunity to share some thoughts about Suffolk University with the Alumni as I complete my fifth year as Dean of the College of Business Administration and Graduate School of Administration.

The most significant new curriculum developments at the University this year are the innovative programs in Public Management which are being administered by the Center for State Management. As reported in a previous edition of ALUMNI NEWS, these programs in public management and administration were initially developed with support from the New England Regional Commission.

Plans for the spring term include credit courses in Administrative Strategies of State Government taught by David M. Bartley, Speaker, Massachusetts House of Representatives; Personnel Management and Organized Labor in the Public Sector taught by Dr. Alexander MacMillan, Chairman, Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission; and Functions and Practices of Public Management taught by Dr. Richard McDowell, Director of Public Management Programs at the University.

This fall, workshops were held on state and local government requirements for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and on the new prospective rate setting systems being introduced in the state’s health management system. Workshops held this winter will focus on the state’s new public employee collective bargaining requirements and use of volunteers by agencies in a period of financial limitations. Workshops are scheduled for later this year on financial budgeting in the legislative process and women in public administration.

Among the various alumni who have participated in the planning and development of these programs are Donald Reilly, MAEd ‘63, Assistant Director, Bureau of Personnel and Standardization, Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Robert LeBlanc, BSBA ‘66, Personnel and Budget Director of the City of Cambridge. We have been encouraged by alumni participation in the development of the public management programs at the University and anticipate continued support.

Another significant curriculum development at the business school is the revised M.B.A. program which became effective this academic year. The faculty has restructured the program to meet the needs and interests of managers of industrial corporations and non-profit institutions. In the new more flexible M.B.A. program, students may take three graduate electives instead of the one previously available. Presently, graduate electives offered include:

- Data Processing for Managers
- Taxation for Managers
- International Business
- Legal Environment of Business
- Operations Management
- Marketing Research for Managers
- Advanced Investment Analysis
- Real Estate Finance & Investment
- Advanced Financial Management
- Organization Development
- Advanced Economic Analysis
- Managerial Problem Solving

A number of recent graduates have expressed interest in taking several of the new graduate elective offerings. Suffolk University Alumni who have earned an M.B.A. from the Graduate School of Administration may register as special non-degree candidates and take any of these electives. It is anticipated that additional graduate electives will be offered in the future.

As my five years of service, as Dean, comes to a close I want to say to all the Alumni as well as the Administrative Officers and the faculty and students of the University, how proud I am of Suffolk University and the important role our University has played and is playing in Massachusetts higher education through its programs in Business Administration, Education, Journalism, Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Law. Each year new programs are being developed to meet tomorrow’s needs. I believe Suffolk University will continue to expand its contribution to the educational, cultural and economic well-being of New England.

I am looking forward to returning to full-time teaching responsibilities next year at the College of Business Administration. I plan to continue to seek Alumni support of the University by encouraging Alumni interest in University activities, by asking Alumni to employ Suffolk University graduates in businesses where their training and experience qualify them, and by suggesting that Alumni make potential students aware of the excellent and varied programs available at the University.

I hope many Alumni are planning to attend the next Alumni affair which is planned for May 3rd. I would like to share ideas with you about the kinds of programs Suffolk University can and should be offering.
Alumni Spotlight

Mayor Marcinowski
of Allston-Brighton

Gerry Marcinowski is 24, a life-long resident of South Boston, and the Manager of Boston’s Little City Hall for the Allston-Brighton area. When she graduated from Suffolk in 1971, with an AB Cum Laude in Urban Studies “Mayor” Marcinowski had already been with the Mayor’s Office of Public Service— which oversees the LCH program— for a year.

In 1972 she was promoted to Field Representative for the Allston LCH, and last August she assumed her present assignment. In her role as manager, Gerry supervises a staff in both the Little City Hall in Allston and the sub-station in the Brighton Municipal Building to meet the needs of the area’s 63,000 residents.

She summed up for the ALUMNI NEWS three principal functions of the Little City Hall program in Boston.

First, they provide direct city services— the same a citizen would receive at the main city hall at Government Center. For example, bills may be paid, tax abatements filed, and voter registration fulfilled.

Next, they dispense useful and accurate information, and act as liaison for the “big” city hall. Pothole repairs, traffic light malfunctions, and clogged sewers are typical complaints heard and resolved.

And the Little City Hall must identify with its population. As the Mayor’s representatives in the neighborhoods, they encourage citizen participation and act as a catalyst in local projects. One such project that has Gerry extra busy these days is a new complex of housing for the elderly.

30% of the Brighton-Allston area population is elderly, and Gerry is coordinating city resources, community input, and developers activities to reach a solution for the housing shortage for this age-group. Rent control assistance, notarization of documents, and federal income tax preparation assistance are some of the other services provided at Little City Halls.

Her community involvement, coupled with coordinating two field staffs and frequent meetings at the Mayor’s Office keep Gerry on the job roughly 60 hours a week. She is also the Chairperson of the South Boston Bicentennial Committee, a group working for the restoration and establishment of a museum at Fort Independence on Castle Island.

Gerry is Secretary and Board Member of the South Boston Community Development Corp., and a member of the Ward Seven Democratic Committee. In her “spare” time the attractive mayor likes to sing. As one of the ten-member “Friends in Harmony” choral group she has sung at some 400 social functions.

As a Suffolk undergrad Gerry was elected to Student Government and “Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.” She also participated in Drama Club activities, as well as serving as president of the Gold Key Society in her senior year.

Seminars, Art Exhibit Forthcoming

An Alumni Art Exhibit will be held in conjunction with the Alumni-Faculty Seminars to be held on Saturday, March 9th. Activities in the Donahue Building will continue all day, except for a noon break, when luncheon will be served.

The seminars will feature timely topics, such as divorce law reform, rights of children, personal finance techniques, and insurance. Faculty from both the Law School and the College of Business Administration will lead the talks.

Alumni artists, amateur and otherwise, are encouraged to submit their works for exhibition. Interested persons should contact Miss McNamara at the Alumni Office as soon as possible to make arrangements for their exhibits.

Alumni attending the seminars and luncheon should return the registration form, which was mailed out, to Miss McNamara, and call her if there are any questions. (There is no fee for attending the Art Exhibit.)
Suffolk Nears Three Decades of Sports

Now in 20th year with NCAA

Most colleges and universities have adjacent athletic facilities. But Suffolk’s playing areas extend from Boston Common to Smith Field in Allston to the Cambridge YMCA.

Our athletic program began in 1946, with the then Suffolk Royals, and after a school-wide contest in 1948, the teams were renamed the Rams. During the athletic ceremonies in the auditorium, a real live and very shaggy ram was presented to the athletic director, Charles Law.

In the late forties and early fifties Suffolk teams could be found playing soccer on Boston Common and hockey at the Boston Skating Club. Our basketball team had moved to the West End House, and the baseballers played at various available Boston parks.

Remarkable has to be the word for the Suffolk athletic program. Thousands of students through the years have gained from our sports activities, both as participants and spectators, despite the fact we’ve never had our own athletic facilities.

A member of NCAA since 1954, Suffolk currently sponsors varsity teams in baseball, basketball, cross-country, golf, and tennis.

Now in his 28th year at Suffolk, Coach Law ended last year’s basketball season with a 287-205 life-time record. Dubbed the Dean of New England coaches, he has served longer than anyone in his capacity in the six states.

A member of NCAA since 1954, Suffolk currently sponsors varsity teams in baseball, basketball, cross-country, golf, and tennis.

In 1967 Charlie Law got his first full-time assistant, James Nelson. Jim came here from Boston College, after playing on Bob Cousy’s first two championship teams. In addition to his duties as assistant varsity baseball and basketball coach, Jim was named last year as Director of Intramural Athletics, and this year, Head Cross-Country Coach.

Currently there are nearly 500 students participating in the intramurals. Students are now competing in cross-country, six-man flag football, softball, handball, paddle ball, tennis, and there is an intramural basketball league.

We still have some “oldtimers” on the campus scene who are part of Suffolk’s athletic past. John V. Colburn, who once coached tennis, is an English professor; Malcolm M. Donahue, who coached soccer, is Associate Dean in the Law School; D. Donald Fiorillo, who helped organize the athletic program, is chairman of our Sociology department; and Harold M. Stone, who coached golf, is chairman of the Accounting department.

“At one time or other, we’ve played almost every college large and small in New England,” says Coach Law. “And our boys always left behind a good impression — not only of themselves, but of Suffolk.”

Perhaps the following anecdote, culled from an old Suffolk Journal, best illustrates the purpose and quality of our athletic ‘dean.’

"there’s a certain character-building value in athletics"

Coach Law

The Rams’ baseball team was at a practice batting session, and each player would take three tosses from the pitcher at the plate. One player, who was possibly too intent on hitting the ball, refused to step out of the batter’s box to give his teammates a chance. As Coach Law yelled to the batter to give someone else the batter’s box, the player tossed his bat into the air in anger and stomped off. Law then told him to take off his uniform — he was through for the day.

The other teammates complained to the coach that the ousted player was needed if they were to win the game that day.

Charlie Law told them that there is a certain character-building value to athletics, coupled with the basic ideas of sports, and that he would rather lose a ball game than not have his players live up to these ideals.

Most of them understood — and the wayward fielder was back in uniform for the next game.

If you’re wondering what happened to that shaggy live ram that the students gave to Charlie in 1948, he gave it to one of his “boys who had a farm somewhere,” he recalls today.

President Fulham Releases 10 Year Study

In view of some startling ten-year statistics the announcement that tuition will be increased this fall was inevitable. The comparative figures, which were sent to President Society and Century Club Members recently, show a phenomenal rise in operating costs without the concomitant growth in enrollment and tuition.

As President Fulham said in the previous issue of the ALUMNI NEWS, "Suffolk, unlike 99% of the other private colleges and universities in the country, operates on a cash basis. We have no mortgages, nor debt, and we don't spend money on buildings and facilities until we have it in hand.

"This long-time fiscal policy of our Trustees has proved to be one of great wisdom, for we have not suffered the enervating burden of annual debt which restricts mobility, stunts growth, and makes the current generation of students pay the costs of their predecessors."

Tuition rates in the Day college will go from $1400 to $1600, for full-time students, and from $120 to $135 per course for part-time students.

Law students in the day division will pay $1750, instead of $1500, and evening students will go from $1125 to $1350 in their payments.
