Law Library Accessions

Mr. H. F. Smith, President of the Massachusetts Library Association, announced the following: Accessions to the Law Library.

The list is published here so that students who have not yet been introduced to the collection of Law Library books will be able to find them quickly.

Books:

N.Y. Supreme Court Judge is Alumni Speaker

New York has been very happy to us. We have always wanted to do better.

HON. JAMES S. HANSEN, Judge of the New York Supreme Court, was the principal speaker at the recent 7th Annual Reunion of the New York Law School. He began the address by an account of his early life as a lawyer in New York City. He then related some of the experiences which have led him to his present position. He concluded his address by warning against the dangers of political corruption.

Judge Hansen is a member of the New York Bar and has been a member of the Board of Education of the New York School for many years.

DEBATERS STILL GOING STRONG

The Suffolk Journal
Educators

At least three Suffolk graduates are now holding separate administrative posts in Massachusetts public schools.

The most recent of these, Mrs. Charles Barlow, is the assistant superintendent of schools in Chelsea. She is also the president of the Massachusetts Association of School Administrative Committees.

Mrs. Barlow graduated from Suffolk in 1940 with a B.A. in Education. She has been in education for over 20 years, serving as a teacher, principal, and administrator in the Chelsea Public Schools.

Mrs. Barlow is a member of the Suffolk Alumni Association and has been active in the Suffolk community since her graduation. She is currently working on a doctorate in education at Harvard University.

Spring Schedule

The Education Association of Suffolk University will be holding meetings throughout the semester. The meetings will be held on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

Meetings will be held in Mawson Hall, Room 104, at 7:30 p.m. All members are welcome to attend.

The agenda for the meetings will include updates on current educational issues, opportunities for professional development, and a forum for discussion of relevant topics.

IS STUDYING NECESSARY?

When there is a learning disability and there seems to be a skill deficit, does a student have to attend a special school? If so, what kind?

The staff at the Special Education Center in Chelsea says that students with learning disabilities should be mainstreamed into regular classrooms as much as possible. This means that they should be included in the regular curriculum and have the opportunity to participate in all school activities.

However, if the student is unable to succeed in a regular classroom, they may benefit from a more structured environment. This could be a special education school or a program within a regular school.

The decision to place a student in a special education school should be made by a team of educators and parents. The team should consider the student's individual needs and goals, as well as the resources available in their school district.

The Special Education Center in Chelsea offers a range of programs and services to help students with learning disabilities succeed in school. These programs include individualized instruction, special materials and equipment, and support services such as counseling.

We hope this information is helpful. If you have any questions, feel free to contact the Special Education Center at 617-783-5555.

The column couldn't have come with the correctness of the first time, the F.M.S. and I am now bound to move the new. Here you look a good group of laboratories and this matter will be a worthwhile one.

Naturally, 100 old buildings attended and received the perfect dress-attire above or at the Bradford Board. There was a board that we met. I think they are not always engaged for the work, and the numbers have been surprisingly good.

Next week of the month, the Center will be the administrative portion of the board, and the rest of the people will be the administrative portion of the Center. Those on the Bradford Board are also the governor of the Center. We have a group that has been met from the Center. They are the people that have been found that have been engaged for the work, and they do the work that is done. Those are the numbers that we met, and those are the numbers that have been surprisingly good.

FRY AND IBSEN COLD

GENET, IONESCO SEE THEE

BY DON JONES

Dramatically, Boston University staged Jean Anouilh's "The Lark" adapted by Alexander. I like the subterfuge. Anouilh, the 6th century native of Crémone, Italy, is a French playwright who received the Nobel Prize in literature in 1957. The play became a libretto for an opera composed and performed just as it was written. It is a play which centers around the behavior of a group of people who, in the end, become the subjects of a Nationalistic Beachcomber and professional Matchmaker.

The scenery was a kind of a beach party on the outskirts of the Mediterranean Sea, with red drapes and a raised stand, a setting which is appropriate for the play. The costumes were of modern design, and the actors wore costumes which were appropriate for the part they were playing. The stage was divided into three sections: a beach, a room, and an outside area. The beach section was decorated with a beach umbrella, a lifeguard chair, and a surfing board. The room section was decorated with a bookshelf, a bed, and a table. The outside area was decorated with a tree and a fountain.

GENET, IONESCO SEE THEE

The play opens with a scene of a family gathering on the beach. The family consists of Father, Mother, Son, and Daughter. Father is a businessman and Mother is a housewife. Son is a student and Daughter is a housewife. The family is sitting on the beach, enjoying the sun and the sea. Father is reading a book, Mother is knitting, Son is playing with a frisbee, and Daughter is sunbathing.

The scene then changes to the room. Father is sitting at the table, smoking a cigarette. Mother is in the background, ironing clothes. Son is sitting on the floor, reading a comic book. Daughter is sitting on the bed, studying for a test.

The scene then changes to the outside area. Father is sitting on the bench, smoking a cigarette. Mother is in the background, reading a book. Son is playing with a frisbee. Daughter is sunbathing.

The play then goes on to depict the family's lives. Father is a businessman who is always working. Mother is a housewife who is always doing household chores. Son is a student who is always studying. Daughter is a housewife who is always doing household chores.
