Dr. Murphy Returns After European Tour

"I have never had such an interesting and worthwhile summer," Dr. Murphy of the English department reports. "I had thirty-three days in the satellite countries, climaxed by eighteen days in Soviet Russia. Since I flew only 2500 miles, I traveled the rest of the journey by motor coach. After 5500 miles literally 'on the road,' I feel that I have a good deal in common with Jack Kerouac—in fact I could give him pointers," she added.

Dr. Murphy's visit to the Iron Curtain countries terminated in Vienna. From there she flew to West Berlin. "I was able to get into East Berlin twice," she said, "so that Check Point Charley became a personality rather than just a name. I saw no evidence anywhere that he had even the faintest notion of retiring from the scene. The passport inspections—two each trip—the declarations of every cent in our wallets, and the fine-comb examination of the bus, both upon our entry and our departure, indicated that we were entering a foreign country. We breathed more comfortably when Charley was behind us."

Questioned about conditions in the satellite nations Dr. Murphy felt that Hungary enlisted the tourist's sympathy and the gaiety seems gone from Budapest. The buildings are in need of repair, the streets are comparatively deserted in the evenings, and the people seem very quiet. "I asked an official," she said, "whether the Hungarians were critical of the United States for not helping them during the revolution. The man answered, 'Not critical—sorrowful.' The Hungarians desire and need United States aid."

The Polish people are very friendly, she reported. In Poland, more than in any other satellite, there is evidence of an active religion. Some 95 per cent are reported to be Catholics. "The food was delicious—and Polish ham all it was reputed to be," Dr. Murphy stated.

Lectures To Stress Europe's Contribution

Suffolk University recently announced a series of seminars for the 1963-64 academic year. Major diplomats from 16 European nations will address the student community and public in the University Auditorium.

The topic under examination will be "Europe's Contribution to American Civilization".

A grant from the Edward L. Bernays Foundation makes the program possible. The prime purpose is to "make Boston assume its rightful place in international leadership along with New York and Washington," according to Edward L. Bernays, Public Relations expert from Cambridge.

Sec. Rusk Honorary Committeeman

Upon accepting membership as an honorary committeeman, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said, "I appreciate your inviting me to be a part of this effort to stimulate interest in an understanding of our European heritage and our growing interdependence with the nations of Europe."

Several of Boston's outstanding leaders are members of the honorary committee, including Senators Saltonstall and Kennedy, United States House Speaker John W. McCormack, White House Representative Christian Herter, Governor Peabody, and Mayor Collins.

Broadcasts of certain lectures will be beamed overseas via Voice of America, as announced by United States Information Agency Director Edward R. Murrow.

Opening on October 15th with Great Britain and continuing through April 28th with Switzerland, the series "represents a significant effort to make the public more conscious of the part mutual understanding plays in our foreign policy," according to the Honorable William R. Tyler, Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs.

Drama Season Opens

Charles Playhouse

The Charles opened its season on October 2, with the Boston premiere of Brendan Behan's "The Hostage". Guest Director for the opening play was Perry Brusk. Mr. Brusk was associated with the Joan Littlewood production of "The Hostage" on Broadway, and directed the National Road Company and off-Broadway production of the hit comedy.

The 1963-1964 season at the non-profit Playhouse will also include Ionesco's "Rhinoceros" opening November 13; a musical, to be announced, opening December 26; Shaw's "Man and Superman" opening February 5; Pirandello's "Six Characters In Search of An Author", opening March 11, and William's "The Glass Menagerie" opening April 15.

Season subscriptions are still available for the five plays and applications and information are available at the Subscription Office, 276 Tremont St., Boston 16, HU 2-4850.

Freshmen Class Begins Career

by Al Wiswel

Suffolk University President, Dennis Haley, welcomed 240 entering freshmen at a meeting in the Auditorium to officially open Freshmen Orientation Week. With the addition of the new class, Suffolk enrollment is at an all-time high of 1350 students. Dr. Haley wished the freshmen every success in their college careers and urged them to work and study hard.

Professor John Colburn, Director of Student Activities, acted as moderator and introduced the other speakers, including D. Bradley Sullivan, Director of Admissions; Dean Donald W. Goodrich; Florence Petherick, Assistant Professor of Humanities and Advisor to Women; and Student Government President, Leonard Bonfanti.

Mr. Sullivan emphasized the importance of hard work and the necessity of setting realistic goals. Dr. Petherick directed her remarks to the women in the entering class, and Dean Goodrich added sound advice by cautioning the new collegians to plan and use their time wisely.

Government President Greets Class

Leonard Bonfanti greeted the new class of fellow students with a challenge and told them their new status carried with it important responsibilities. He outlined these briefly as the obligation to support the University, participate in all activities, and most of all, to conduct themselves at all times in a manner befitting students at a fine institution.

After brief speeches by William Walsh, President of the Senior Class, Journal Editor Matthew Fink, and Glee Club President Robert Le Blanc, members of Student Government acted as hosts at a luncheon in the cafeteria.

The second day of Orientation Week was spent in a meeting with Dr. Leo Lieberman, Director of Guidance, and Mr. George Higley, Director of Placement. Dr. Lieberman enumerated some study tips and described the Guidance facilities at Suffolk. Mr. Higley discussed employment opportunities both during school and after graduation.

The final two days involved counselling and registration with various members of the faculty, the completion of Placement Tests, and the purchase of necessary books and supplies, including the distinctive symbol of all freshmen, the beanie.

Rev. Hillis To Pilot Newman Club

Rev. Miles X. Hillis of the Paulist Fathers will be the Chaplain of the Newman Club at Suffolk University for the school year, 1963-1964.

Father Hillis, who served as an enlisted man in the Navy during World War II, received his bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin and his M.S. from Michigan State University. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

After working in Chicago and California, Father Hillis joined the Paulist Fathers. He then attended St. Peter's College in Baltimore where he pursued an intensive course of Latin studies. He then attended St. Paul's College in Washington, D. C., for his two years of philosophy and four years of theology.

Father Hillis is a member of the staff of the Catholic Information Center at 5 Park Street. He may be reached at the Information Center, or on Mondays at Suffolk University in Room 21-A from 11 A. M. to 5 P. M. Each student is cordially invited to stop in and become acquainted.

Rev. Hillis

Connelly Appointed Alumni Trustee

Arthur Walker, President of the Suffolk Alumni Association, recently appointed Louis B. Connelly of Melrose as an Alumni Trustee.

Mr. Connelly graduated from Suffolk in 1957 with a B.S. in Journalism. While he was at Suffolk, Mr. Connelly was a member of the varsity basketball team and Student Council, Editor in Chief of The Suffolk Journal, and was named to Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges.

At present Mr. Connelly is a reporter for the Boston Herald-Traveler, assigned to the Suffolk County Courthouse. He previously worked for the New Bedford Standard-Times and the Medford Mercury.

Since marketing is one of the most vital parts of any business, it is necessary to understand its workings. It is to this end that the American Marketing Association devotes its attention.

The Suffolk University chapter is going to achieve this by having speakers, industrial talks, luncheons, and banquets with noted leaders in the marketing field. The A.M.A. plans to have eight meetings a semester.

All students are invited to join and take part in the activities. Additional information can be found on the A.M.A. bulletin board on the second floor.

The Delta Psi chapter of the international fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi elected the following brothers to office:

President — John David Carrigg
Senior Vice-President — Lewis Litwack
Vice-President — Dave Hennessy
Secretary — Melvin Borden
Treasurer — George Summers
Chancellor — Leo Horgan

This past summer Brother Carrigg represented Delta Psi chapter at the 24th Grand Chapter Congress of Delta Sigma Pi which was held at Bedford Springs, Pennsylvania. Over 150 undergraduate chapters and alumni clubs from the U. S. and Mexico sent delegates. The purpose of this meeting is to elect national officers who will guide the Fraternity during the next two years.

G.S.U. plans a cake sale within the next two weeks in the lobby of the school. The girls of the sorority are now selling raffle tickets for a twenty-five dollar savings bond. If anyone is interested in selling tickets, they can be obtained by any member of G.S.U.

On October 3, 1963, the sorority elected the following people to office:

President — Judy Crawley
Vice President — Joan Dias
Secretary — Joyce Coluntino
Treasurer — Janet Kenyon
Board Members — Louise Moran and Sue Lynden
Publicity — Joan Dias and Dina Baumanis

The sorority invites all girls to join.

Suffolk University's Glee Club has started its second year of service with a meeting on September 26, 1963, at noon in the auditorium. The Glee Club is once again very fortunate to be under the direction of Mr. Siagal, a noted and respected member of the music professional community.

Many activities are planned for the school year; Bob Le Blanc, spokesman, hopes for a Christmas Concert in the second week of December and a possible joint concert in the Spring with one or two other college glee clubs. It looks as if the S.U.G.C. will be off to a good start in its effort to promote Suffolk University in the eyes of the Community.

After a successful recruitment of new members during registration, the Newman Club has begun another year with the first meeting on October 3. The club plans a varied and interesting program for 1963-64.

Besides a monthly speaker, there will be a Day of Recollection on October 27th and a social in November. Individual counseling with the new chaplain Father Hillis will be possible on Mondays.

Anyone interested in joining these activities is cordially invited to Room 40 for further information.

Doctor's Degree For Prof. West

Dr. Arthur J. West

Arthur J. West II, Assistant Professor of Biology at Suffolk, recently received his Doctorate in Zoology from the University of New Hampshire. Professor West was on a leave of absence from Suffolk from 1960 until June, 1963.

After receiving his B.S. at Suffolk in 1951, he was appointed to the faculty, and in 1956 he earned his M.A. in Education. Prof. West acquired his M.S. in Zoology in 1962 at the University of New Hampshire, where he also completed his Doctoral requirements while studying and working under a National Defense Education Act Doctoral Fellowship. He was a Research Assistant to Dr. Wilbur Bullock and Dr. Paul Wright.

Originally from Allston, Professor West is married, the father of three sons, and now resides with his family in Northwood, New Hampshire.

Pardon me if I sound as if the executive position I've landed deals with the whole future of the world.

It does.

Certainly, there's no organization today conducting more vital business than the business of the United States Air Force. And very few organizations that give a college graduate greater opportunities for responsibility and growth.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team—with good pay, a 30-day paid vacation each year, educational opportunities.

How can you get started? For many, the best way is through Air Force ROTC. But if you missed out on AFROTC, or if there's no unit on your campus, you can still apply for Air Force Officer Training School. This three-month course leads to a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

Peace And The Test-Ban Treaty

by Paul Nevins

The Nuclear Test-Ban Treaty has been ratified. Whether it will mark a step toward peace, or one toward war, is a question only time can answer. But, from all apparent aspects, it would seem, if nothing else, a reprieve for humanity, a respite from the would-be inevitable.

Dr. Murphy

"My main adventure was in Czechoslovakia," she said. "I was at the Auschwitz concentration camp. What we saw was more and more harrowing. Finally we entered the crematorium, where we were confronted by a row of furnaces. It was in front of one of these that I inadvertently stepped in a hole and prostrated myself. One of the American men in the party quickly picked me up by the belt and got me on my feet before I could be used for a demonstration. I still have a scar on my knee, and my pride is crippled for life."

"In the Soviet Union," Dr. Murphy continued, "I saw on all sides signs of progress — tremendous building projects, Russian tourists at all the national shrines, modern farm equipment, fairly well dressed, contented-looking people — soap in the big hotels. The one thing the Russians say they want is peace. There is no sign of military preparation. Instead is an irresistible drive, a certainty of goal, and an unconquerable determination. I have no idea what the military budget is, but I do know that its size has not been reached at the expense of education, the advancement of culture, and the creation of beauty."

Dr. Murphy added, "If they outrun us, it will not be because they have military supremacy, but because they can run faster than we can."

In essence, this treaty guarantees nothing. It merely offers the possibility that man may yet seek his way in peace. But even this must make the treaty seem momentous for it demonstrates a greater comprehension, a profound awareness, on the part of our world-leaders to the dangers and unavoidable difficulties that would result from continued nuclear testing.

Treaty a connecting link

Even more important, however, this treaty may serve as a connecting-link to narrow the gap between East and West. — But even this is projecting into the future with hardly anything but unwarranted optimism; for the entire history of Soviet Russia has been one of broken treaties, deception, and every other Machiavellian maneuver.

Thus many have felt that the signing of the Test-Ban Treaty would be the signing of our own death-warrant. But while their anxiety is not without an element of truth, it's uncalled-for. This treaty alone should in no way detract from our own military preparedness. Already we have a sufficient nuclear arsenal to destroy the entire population of the world ten-times over. Surely that should be enough! Besides, if this treaty even remotely endangered our military effectiveness, that would be provision enough, under the treaty, to withdraw.

Reduce cold war tension

Notwithstanding the unforeseen, it would appear that the positive effects of this treaty far outweigh any of its defects. This should help to reduce Cold War tension; but also, there always remains the possibility that it may put an end to the onward spiral of the armaments race, which can only lead us into oblivion. But as long as this world is pitted between the 'haves' and the 'have-nots', the oppressors and the oppressed, peace in our time can only mean the uneasy absence of war . . . and the Nuclear Test-Ban Treaty, a mere scrap of paper only as good and enduring as the convictions of the men who signed it.

The fastest-growing crime in America is check fraud. Forgers have about doubled their haul in the last five years, now fleece gullible Americans of an estimated 800 million dollars yearly. Police reports describe the typical forger as high in intelligence and pleasing in personality, with a knack for convincing others of his honesty.

To Americans who take their right to speak out for granted, it may be an eye-opener to learn that a U. S. citizen was once imprisoned for the "crime" of stating that a President possessed a "thirst for ridiculous pomp." The President was John Adams, under whose Administration Congress passed the infamous Sedition Act of 1798, which made it a crime to criticize the government.

Future productions for this season will include Ibsen's Ghosts, Wilde's Importance of Being Earnest, Zorba's Yerma, and The Misunderstanding by Camus. This year the Image is offering a Subscription Series and Workshop Membership to the general public. The subscription features five plays for $12.50 (a $5.00 saving over box office prices), choice of seats including Saturday, and new plays open to subscribers and guests only.

Peter Douglass MacLean, Instructor in Speech at Suffolk, and a member of the Image Company, urges all Suffolk students to take advantage of the Subscription Series. "The surest support for any theatre that attempts to establish itself as a permanent institution within a community is through a subscribing membership," said Mr. MacLean. He pointed out that theatre is not imposed on people in a free society and therefore people must call for and support it. "We believe the Image Theatre serves a useful and indeed necessary purpose in the community, and we ask support of that belief through subscriptions," he concluded.

Drs. Vogel, Murphy Co-Authors of Outline Series

The Student Outlines Company announces a new series of Hymarx literature outlines suitable for humanities and English courses. Among the latest titles which appeared last month is a treatment of George Eliot's Adam Bede, written by Dr. Stanley M. Vogel and Dr.

Ella M. Murphy of the Suffolk English department. This is one of several outlines which Dr. Vogel and Dr. Murphy prepared when they were doing research at the British Museum in London two summers ago. Their treatment of Eliot's Middlemarch should appear in the near future. Dr. Vogel and Dr. Murphy are also co-authors of the popular Outline of American Literature in two volumes which was published in 1961.

Progress To Date

As the 1963-64 academic year rushes through its second month, a prime area of discussion at Suffolk is that of expansion and facilities. The various aspects of such a program entail utilizing the present vacant site on Temple Street as a parking lot, depth of architectural plans, zoning restrictions, a building campaign fund, and long range construction possibilities.

Although the present restrictions will make it improbable to build the proposed six-story structure on the Temple Street site, plans do not include hardtopping the lot. No date has yet been set for termination of the current usage. Direct cause of this is the enigma of architectural plans and the city of Boston's archaic zoning laws. If the designs are revised or an escape clause is found, construction could begin in the near future.

Also under investigation is the possibility of land purchases and construction in the Government Center. No definite answers have yet been received from the pertinent persons. A third step is the work going on with the Boston Redevelopment Authority in seeking lands in other parts of the city.

Suffolk continues to progress toward an even brighter future. When concrete plans harden, a green light will initiate an enthusiastic campaign fund drive which will guarantee sufficient funds for new construction.

M. J. F.

Road To Understanding

When the fate of the Western Alliance depends, as it does now, on the mutual cooperation and understanding of not only the governments but also the peoples of Europe and America, any dialogue between its members is of inestimable value and import.

The diplomatic lectures to be held at Suffolk under a Bernays Foundation grant are in this category.

Starting with the Director-General of the British Information Services on October 15, a series of high-level European Diplomats will lecture here. It is, of course, to be hoped that these lectures will, because of the public attention they will draw, further the reputation of Suffolk University. These lectures could mark the beginning of an era of expansion and growth for this University; not merely in size, but more importantly, in increased contribution to the public weal on a national and international level. This is to be hoped for and we wish this lecture series great success on that account.

But it would be selfish indeed to hope for its success on those grounds alone. It is imperative, at this time, that the Western nations understand one another's cultures, aspirations, and obligations, and it is to this end that these lectures have been instituted. And it is to that end that we wish them success.

We welcome the gentleman from Great Britain and all those who are to follow him. May he, and they, contribute to the mutual understanding and esteem of all free nations and to the dissemination of their principles.

If these lectures contribute to that end, then so has Suffolk. And that will have been enough.

J. S. N.

A Message To Students

Albert Einstein, one of the greatest mentalities of all time, was once complimented on his violin playing. He smiled shyly. "I love the instrument," he said. "But I do not know it. I only fiddle." How big is a big man? One of the negative indices is his ability to use the words: "I do not know."

Students are afraid to admit ignorance to the teachers. They are asked a question and they hazard a guess. They take a chance. They do not understand that there is nothing shameful about ignorance: stupidity is the unforgivable crime. To be ignorant implies that one does not know; to be stupid implies that one cannot learn.

Government President Reports

Four months have elapsed since the Student Government of 1963-64 assumed office. During this period its members have worked hard. This brief report of the Government's activities during the summer was prepared to inform you of some of its actions to date.

Acting upon student requests, the Executive Committee met with President Haley to discuss the unsafe and unsightly condition of many of the stairs in the University. Thanks to President Haley's excellent cooperation the stairs were repaired. It is appropriate also to mention the extensive painting of classrooms and the lobby accomplished during the summer.

The Constitutional Committee met twice during the summer to discuss specific constitutional weaknesses that were realized last year. After careful study the constitution was amended to clarify and standardize election procedures.

The Finance Committee also met twice during the vacation with the result that a program was outlined which is designed to end the frequent financial insolvency of the Student Government, and at the same time offer you a more extensive and diversified activities program.

The most optimistic sign, however, is not the accomplishments to date, but rather the spirit that accompanied them. The members of the Government are working together, giving freely of their own time, and interclass cooperation appears to be at an all time high. The Government has begun to function cohesively with a complete absence of the factionalism noted in previous years. I sincerely hope that our purposes will remain united and that this will be the most progressive year in Government history.

I would like to remind you that members of Student Government are available to talk with you at any time in the student Activities Office. To familiarize you with the results of last year's election in the Junior and Senior classes, here is a list of the members now serving in your government. "ENGLISH DEPARTMENT?.... NEVER MIND WHO THIS IS, BUT IF TIMOTHY LEARY GETS AN 'F' FOR ENGLISH 144, A BOMB WILL EXPLODE SOMEWHERE IN YOUR BUILDING."

Letters to the Editor . . .

Dear Editor,

Has the demolition been for nothing or will there be a new Suffolk? If so, will the new Suffolk consist of a building or parking lot, science laboratory or dust bowl? Late last year a ridiculous rumor was circulating through the school that a new science building and cafeteria was to be erected on this site. At that time we thought the primary problem was whether the construction would consist of six or ten stories. This problem no longer exists.

But who needs a new building?

Due to the intelligent planning of our school leadership we have inherited an all purpose parking lot. Some students have even suggested that the lot be used as a training ground for our athletes and others feel that it would be a fine spot to hold the physical education classes. This would be in keeping with President Kennedy's drive for physical fitness.

The only other logical explanation for the presence of this empty spot is that in some small way Suffolk University is contributing to the look of a "New Boston".

In Memoriam

On September 16, Suffolk University lost a valuable friend and an invaluable member of its Board of Trustees.

Throughout his life, Daniel Bloomfield built many memorials with his vast contributions to Greater Boston.

Of prime interest to the students at Suffolk was his contribution, as Chairman of the Executive Committee, to the forthcoming Bernays Lecture Series. This was the culmination of months of tedious preparation and intense effort, towards which he expended innumerable hours.

It is our hope that the success of this lecture series will register overwhelming recognition of his labors.

Perspective

"The Negro Revolt"

by John S. Nicholson

Last April Negro marchers, including schoolchildren, poured into the streets of Birmingham to protest against segregated public facilities and lack of job equality in that city. They were met with fire hoses and dogs. It was this incident that marked the beginning of the current Negro revolt.

Since that day in April there have been over 900 civil rights demonstrations, both large and small, throughout the U. S.; and the Birmingham church bombing of September 6 can hardly be regarded as the last of these conflicts. But what are the causes of this revolt? Why did it happen now and not years ago? What is likely to be the outcome and on what does this outcome depend? These are the questions that are plaguing much of the white (and possibly much of the black) population of the U. S., both North and South.

Repression of the South

Segregation, and its attendant attitudes toward the Negro, did not have its roots, as many seem to suppose, in the practice of slavery, but rather began in the Post Civil War period. The fearsome repression of the South by Northern interests, of which the Negro was often the ignorant puppet, bred a Southern reaction that resulted in the passing of the segregation laws — the first being in Tennessee in 1881.

The Negro has, of course, fought against discrimination from the first. As early as 1905, William Du Bois, the brilliant, if erratic, Negro revolutionary, had organized the Niagra Movement, an early protest group. And the N. A. A. C. P. was founded in 1909.

But until recent years Negro advancement groups had to concentrate on eliminating such practices as the lynching and burning of their kind. It wasn't until a decade ago that these practices were finally stamped out. Negro leadership, also, had to contend, one suspects, with a great deal of apathy and ignorance in its own ranks.

Starting, however, with the Supreme Court ruling on school segregation in 1954, and with Martin Luther King's Montgomery bus boycott in 1955-56, plus the use of Federal troops in the desegregation of Little Rock in 1957, the pressure of Negro dissent began to be felt in the South. In addition, one cannot overlook the increase in college-educated Negroes since World War II, the change in population patterns, with more Negroes moving North, the influence of a desegregated army, or the emergence of Africa from colonialism in assessing present Negro insurgency — all must have contributed to it.

Less Pressing Matters

But as the Negro eliminates the more violent and obvious transgressions against his human dignity, he will, of course, turn his attention to less pressing matters. Thus as such offences as denial of the vote and discrimination in public facilities are banished; the Negro will increasingly concentrate on job and housing discrimination, and his revolt will shift in emphasis and locale.

It will move North and what will happen then is anyone's guess. Surely there will be little of the street brawling, bombings, and murders that have thus far characterized resistance to it, but resisted it will be. For as a recent Saturday Evening Post study showed, to the consternation of its authors, if no one else, the majority of the people in the North are nearly as prejudiced as their Southern brethren, just a bit more civilized about it. Yet the success of the Negro's enterprise will inevitably depend, to a great extent, on the good will of the Northern white, whose distaste for integration lies largely, not in the fanatic emotionalism that motivates the South, but in the more subtle, if no more justifiable, considerations of finance, property values, and mores.

Need for Good Will

Neither the Negro nor the White now living created the situation they are now in; but social traditions and customs, whether good or evil, are self-perpetuating, and if they are elusive, they are also real — and difficult to change. Only goodwill, cooperation, and reason can now alter the situation for the better. If these are not forthcoming then the Negro revolt, and any legislation that results from it, will have been for nothing.

Martin Luther King

by Paul Nevins

One of the most significant events, in America, during this century is the Negro Revolt. In essence, this revolt, like all others of modern origin, bears not only political but also social implications: For it is an attempt, an urgent attempt to cast off the fetters of racial stigma and elevate the long-forgotten and neglected 'Black Man' to a position of equality with his white-counterparts. . . .

Despite what so many white-people purport, the Negro Revolt is not, emphatically not, a spontaneous or 'spur-of-the-moment' attempt to stir-up race-consciousness or ill-feeling; but, on the contrary, is a well-executed and long-overdue drive to secure for the American Negro those rights which for so long have been enjoyed by others, often at an expense to himself. The need for this revolt is self-evident: When nineteen per cent of the Negro labor force is unemployed, when the average Negro has the lowest per capita earnings in the United States, when the highest illiteracy rate in the nation is recorded among the Negroes, something is drastically wrong!

New Tomorrow

Obviously more, much more than most white-people would concede, must be due to some external factor other than the Negroes' own mythical complacency. Certainly, one of the greatest stumbling-blocks must be the white-man's own attitude toward the new tomorrow for the American Negro; for whether he will admit it or not, the average white-man has a two fold fear of the Negro: he fears their economic and social competition. Naturally, both are ludicrous. If the American white-man were not so deluded by his own fear, he would be cognizant that he has little to fear in the way of economic competition from the Negro. A higher rate of Negro employment would reflect itself in increased profits for all, not just the Negro. The second fear, that of the Negroes' social competition, is more subtle and inexplicable. Primarily, this is a kind of sexual fear. The white-man, subconsciously relating darker skin with greater virility, seems to have developed a latent fear that his race will be overwhelmed and obliterated by interracial marriage.

While these disquietudes are fantastic and imagined, they exert a very profound and injurious effect upon the Negro: Because of them, the Negro is subjected to the indignities of discrimination in employment, housing, and educational opportunity.

BOOM!

Today, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today: the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. In case you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week—a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old girl in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who pushed the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. It is, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I feel sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the maser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we light up a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. Moreover, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours of every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Any further questions?

Yes, one further question: the makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, would like to know whether you have tried a Marlboro lately. It's the filter cigarette with a man's world of flavor. Settle back and enjoy one soon.

New Awareness

Now, however, a new awareness has developed on the part of the American Negro. He will no longer suffer in silence. Inevitably, white-man from his own delusions, one way or the other, the Negro Revolt is destined for success. Its culmination will mark not only the disintegration of all social barriers, but also the emancipation of the

Campus Life on the Hill

By R. S. T.

A jar of instant coffee, a jar of peanut butter, numerous cigarette butts and a stack of books — This, my friends, is the social life of Beacon Hill college girls from Monday morning until Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. Then comes that wonderful social invention — the weekend.

All week we have studied, starved, and gone without sleep just waiting for that marvelous hour when school closes for the weekend. However, due to the instituting of Saturday classes many of us feel cheated. Therefore, instead of Friday being a glorious afternoon, it is only another day which must be used in studying for class at 9 the following morning. But, does this really occur? Let's take a typical example of the life of three girls.

Starting Point

Sunday night, being the first night in the week, will suffice for a starting point. The first thing on the agenda is homework! After all it is due tomorrow and the weekend just seemed to fly. Eight o'clock, the gas is turned on under the coffee pot. Books, cigarettes, a supply of pins and the like are placed on the kitchen table. But where are those industrious students? — In the living room, of course! Music is a necessary part of culture in our life, — but Johnny Mathis? Of course there is always the necessity of washing and setting three heads; we are girls after all. Although there have been remarks to the contrary. So that is how the evening starts. About twelve a.m. it is time to seriously study — book? No, the boys in the apartment across the alley. After all, international relations are also an important aspect of life today. Well after that, at approximately 1:30 a.m., we begin studying. We hop into bed, and study the writing on the wall. We are flunking!! But the alarm will go off in six hours and above all your health is most important. So good-night!!

Clang!! There goes the alarm. Happy flops out of bed (she's delirious) and shuts off the alarm. She looks at Spastic, whose eyes are blinking and whose multi-rollered head is dangling off the bed. Then Happy winds her way to the kitchen (last night's activities still spread all over the living room floor), and snaps on the gas and bounds back to the adjoining bedroom where Grumpy is oblivious to the world. This is the most difficult task of the day, waking Grumpy. First she taps Grumpy on the shoulder, then speaks softly. Soon however, Happy's mood has changed. Meanwhile, she and Spastic have coffee and begin dressing. Then it's back to Grumpy, one hour later. There are yells, hair pulling, and cover grabbing, not to mention a huge coffee stain on the sheet. Grumpy finally gets up and they are finally ready to start a fresh week, dying to get into class and really intent on turning over a new leaf.

Day Finally Over

Classes, classes, and more classes. The day is finally over. Home again. The door is thrown open, books fly into the living-room landing on the couch, table or floor. The record player is turned on, coffee is cooking and our three students flop on chairs. I forgot to mention one other member of this family, his smiling eyes greet each one. He has large brown eyes, floppy ears, golden hair and a long tail. By the way — he's a dog. Our Protector!

Supper time is now over and it's time to start the home — do the dishes. Now it's time to sit — change clothes and get comfortable. Finally they pick up a book and the next thing heard is "Guess what happened to me today?" A short three hour discussion then follows. Oops! It's time to walk the dog, as everyone knows, exercise is of utmost importance. So all offer to walk him. Well, Spastic grabs him and is out the door before Happy can drop her cup of coffee and Grumpy can get off the couch. Studying is completed, however, from the hours of one-three a.m. And you professors wonder why we fall asleep!! That runs the entire week.

Serious Problem

Friday afternoon we discuss what we can tell Ma so she will let us stay on the Hill. Home is nice, but every weekend? Then it is time to fix your hair, grab something to wear, and take off to the nearest party. After all, after a long hard week of studying everyone needs a period of relaxation — about three days worth.

Everybody squeezes into a fairly small apartment. If you don't mind heights, it's fine. Soft drinks and candy are distributed to the guests. However, a few more than were expected showed up, so the refreshments were consumed rather quickly. Most of the guests realize that college students are not the wealthiest people in the world, so they B.T.O.: (The plural of B.Y.O.) The last expected guest then arrives (the man in the blue suit) and soon after, the party slowly diminishes to a few straggling guests ready for a second wind. Around 3 a.m. the party is finally over and the host flops down for a few hours of sleep before the great nine o'clock class.

Saturday night is date night or party night depending on the circumstances. If you can con a guy into a date — it's date night, otherwise find or make a party.

That, my friends, is a typical week in the lives of three girls. Who knows, you might even be one of them now if you live on the hill, or later if you move here.

Walker President Of S.U. Alumni

Recently the Board of Trustees, Suffolk University Alumni Association, elected Arthur Walker of Stoneham to serve as President of the Board for 1963-1964.

Mr. Walker was elected to the board following his graduation in 1957, and served as Vice President for 1962. He graduated Magna cum laude with a Bachelor of Science Degree from the College of Liberal Arts. While attending Suffolk, Mr. Walker was President of Student Government, President of the Education Club, a member of the Psychology and Drama Clubs, and served on the Yearbook Staff. In his senior year, he was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Mr. Walker is a teacher in the Sudbury school system and is presently a member of the Stoneham School Committee.

High School Drop Outs

Young Americans who drop out of high school before they finish are among the worst sufferers in our increasingly automated society. The October Reader's Digest calls them "the Americans nobody wants" and cites Dr. James Conant's finding that in one big-city area more than 70 percent of such youngsters were unemployed.

Cambridge (I. P.) — Students who took college-level courses in high school — and jumped into advanced college courses — have shown "remarkable academic success," as a group, in Harvard College. At graduation, almost half earned degrees with high honors or highest honors (magna cum laude or summa cum laude), according to a seven-year report by Edward T. Wilcox, director of the program.

Literary Magazine Accepts Material

The new student literary magazine Twenty Derne Street is accepting material reports Editor Jack London. Students of both the Day and Evening Divisions are invited to submit short stories, poetry, and essays.

The magazine, a student financed publication, will provide students interested in creative writing with an opportunity to have their works published.

All material should be submitted to the editor in room 40.

Sports

By Dave Lucey

A veteran Suffolk University basketball team will open its 1963-64 season Dec. 2 when they take part in the annual Babson Invitational Tournament.

The Rams won this tourney in 1961 and made it to the semi-finals last year, but were edged by Hartford College.

High Scorers form Nucleus

Head coach Charlie Law, who is beginning his 18th year as Suffolk's mentor, finds himself blessed with a coach's dream in that four of the five starters from last year's squad will be back. Leading the returnees is high scorer Bill Vrettas, who after last season was selected to the All-Greater Boston squad. Vrettas, along with this year's captain George Summers, plus Larry Smith and George Tzanetakos, form a talented and experienced nucleus for coach Law to build from.

Other holdovers from last year's varsity who will be fighting it out for a starting berth are Paul Labrecque, Sonny Lane, Ron Cinelli, Wayne Hamilton, Tom Regal and Fred Riley.

Last year Suffolk notched 13 wins against eight setbacks. This year's slate, although not complete as yet, will pit the Rams against such teams as Worcester Tech, Clark University, Lowell State, St. Anselm's, Brandeis, Merrimack, Lowell Tech, Hartford and Assumption. The only significant change in the schedule is the absence of Boston University.

A full freshman and junior varsity schedule will be in operation again this year.

All Suffolk home games are played at the Cambridge YMCA.
