Internship Program

Lanham, Md. — The University of Maryland College of Human Ecology is offering an internship program in human ecology for students who are interested in the field.

The program will be offered in two parts:

1. An eight-week summer internship at the University of Maryland, College Park, where students will work directly with human ecology faculty members.

2. A three-month fall semester course at the University of Maryland, College Park, where students will study the principles of human ecology and apply them to real-world situations.

Both parts of the program will include hands-on experience and will be supervised by experienced human ecology professionals.

The internship program is open to juniors and seniors majoring in human ecology or related fields.

ALUMNI and ASSOCIATIONS

As of late, many have voiced concern over the lack of communication and involvement of alumni in the university community. The Alumni Association, a vital component of the university, serves as a bridge between the past and present, offering support and resources to current students.

WHY?

It is crucial for alumni to engage with the university and its students. This engagement not only benefits the current student body but also enriches the alumni community. By participating in university activities, alumni can share their experiences and knowledge, fostering a sense of community and belonging.

The Purpose of Higher Education

Education is about more than just acquiring knowledge. It is a process of self-discovery and growth. Higher education provides students with the tools to think critically, solve problems, and adapt to changing circumstances. It is a means to achieving personal and professional success.

Kennedy Library Drive

The Kennedy Library Drive is a campaign aimed at raising funds to support the library. Donations will help the library purchase new resources and improve facilities. By contributing to the Kennedy Library Drive, alumni can support the academic and intellectual pursuits of current students.

ATTENTION

We strongly encourage alumni to get involved in the university community. Whether through volunteering, participating in alumni events, or making a donation, every effort counts in building a strong and vibrant university.

Perspectives

South Vietnam

By Paul Nevin

Probable the case in South Vietnam has precipitated some unease here in the United States that are other problems of some concern. And while the problem here is quite little in amount, it has sparked the prompt attention.

Hopefully, there exists a rapid exchange of information between France, the United Nations, and South Vietnam in order to get a better understanding of the problem. The war in South Vietnam is not a war of the United States and its allies, but a war among the North Vietnamese, the South Vietnamese, and the United States (and its allies).

VietcongDetalle

Fundamentally the struggle in South Vietnam is not against the Hmong people or any other group of people in the country. The problem is primarily between North and South Vietnam, and the United States (and its allies) is just another party in an internal conflict.

The problem of the U.S. policy toward South Vietnam is to assist in the creation of an internal conflict in the country. The policy is to create a situation in which the United States and its allies can intervene in the country and eventually gain control of it.

Local Development

Although the United States and its allies have been attempting to create a situation in which they can intervene in South Vietnam, they have not been very successful. The United States and its allies have not been able to create a situation in which they can intervene in South Vietnam and gain control of it.

Problems of the United States

The United States and its allies have been attempting to create a situation in which they can intervene in South Vietnam and gain control of it. The United States and its allies have not been very successful in creating a situation in which they can intervene in South Vietnam and gain control of it.

The success of the United States and its allies in creating a situation in which they can intervene in South Vietnam is uncertain. It is uncertain whether the United States and its allies will be successful in creating a situation in which they can intervene in South Vietnam and gain control of it.

The Drama Corner...

By Ronald H. Coomer

Artists, stagehands, and members of the stage crew are preparing for the opening of the Suffolk University theater season. The opening production will be Shakespeare's "Hamlet," directed by Professor Lee.

"Hamlet," with its complex characters and intricate plot, promises to offer a challenging and rewarding experience for both actors and audience. The director's vision will be brought to life through the talents of a dedicated cast and crew.

Professor Lee, a well-known authority on Shakespeare, has selected "Hamlet" as a fitting opener for the university's theater season. "Hamlet" is not only a masterpiece of drama but also a rich source of critical analysis and interpretive potential.

The production will feature a talented ensemble cast, each bringing their unique interpretation to the iconic characters of the play. The set design, costume, and lighting will contribute to the overall ambiance, immersing the audience in the world of Elsinore.

"Hamlet" is a timeless tale that continues to resonate with audiences today, offering a commentary on themes such as justice, revenge, and the nature of madness. The production promises to captivate and engage, providing a glimpse into the mysteries of the human psyche.

Suffolk University's commitment to the arts is evident in the presentation of "Hamlet," which will not only entertain but also provoke thought and discussion. The performance is scheduled for a limited run, providing an opportunity for students and guests to experience the power and beauty of live theater.

For those interested in attending, please visit the university's website or contact the theater department for more information on performance dates and ticket availability.

Suffolk Debating Team Scores in Tournament

In the weekend of February 19-20, Suffolk's Debating Team, under the guidance of Professor John K. Galbraith, participated in the Eastern College Debating League Tournament held at Brooklyn College. The tournament was a resounding success, with Suffolk's debaters showcasing their skills and intelligence.

The Debating Team, led by Professor Galbraith, had an impressive显示出在会

"Theater of Ideas" coming to the Suffolk University campus on April 11.

Sufficient Evidence..."Galbraith's opening remarks were well received, and the team's performance throughout the tournament was exceptional. "Our debaters demonstrated a deep understanding of their topics, engaging in constructive and thought-provoking arguments," Professor Galbraith stated.

The Suffolk Debating Team's success in the tournament is attributed to the guidance of Professor Galbraith, whose expertise in rhetoric and debate has been instrumental in preparing the team for such events. The team's dedication and hard work paid off, earning them high rankings and accolades within the league.

Professor Galbraith expressed his pride in the team's achievements, stating, "Our debaters have worked tirelessly to hone their skills and present compelling cases. Their success is a testament to their hard work and dedication." The Suffolk Debating Team's performance at the tournament has set a high standard that future teams will strive to emulate.

The Suffolk University community congratulates the Debating Team on their outstanding performance and looks forward to their continued success in future tournaments.

Rams Close Hoop Season
With 10-8 Record

by Larry Mahoney

Suffolk closed the basketball season with a convincing 10-8 record, a far cry from the 3-15 campaign of a year ago. The Rams, who finished the season with a 9-9 record in the men's conference, will look forward to next year's challenge.

The 10-8 record was highlighted by the team's 75-47 victory over American University on the final night of the regular season. The Rams dominated the game, outscoring American in every quarter.

Suffolk's success on the court was due in large part to the team's defense. The Rams allowed an average of only 67 points per game, while scoring an average of 76 points per game.
