Follow this and additional works at: https://dc.suffolk.edu/sun

Recommended Citation
https://dc.suffolk.edu/sun/156

This Newsletter is brought to you for free and open access by the Suffolk University Publications at Digital Collections @ Suffolk. It has been accepted for inclusion in Suffolk University Newsletter (SUN) by an authorized administrator of Digital Collections @ Suffolk. For more information, please contact dct@suffolk.edu.
SOM Honors Five Leaders at 50th Anniversary Convocation

The School of Management's 50th anniversary brought together five outstanding leaders from government, banking, the computer field, publishing and education to award them honorary degrees of doctor of commercial science at a special convocation Sept. 14 at the Parker House.

President Daniel H. Perlman conferred the honorary degrees upon Lt. Gov. Evelyn F. Murphy, Mitchell D. Kapor, founder of the Lotus Development Corp., Vernon K. Zimmerman, distinguished service professor of accountancy at the University of Illinois College of Business Administration, Earl G. Graves, publisher of Black Enterprise Magazine, and John E. McDonald, president and chief executive officer of Workingmens Cooperative Bank and a 1971 alumnus of the School of Management.

The program was held at 8 a.m. at the Press Room in the Parker House and attended by more than 100 guests.

All of the recipients paid tribute to Suffolk University and its mission with Lt. Gov. Murphy praising the institution as "a special neighbor whose influence stretches much further than the neighborhood."

Jack McDonald, a long-time active alumnus, after receiving his degree, termed the award, "the treasure of my lifetime."

In closing remarks, Dean Richard L. McDowell pointed to "significant new dimensions," for the School of Management since its founding as a part-time undergraduate business college.

"It has a strong international dimension and broad computer applications," McDowell observed. "Virtually all of the faculty are engaged in significant research. In short, the school is part of the mainstream of management education in the 1980's."

He cited the visiting faculty from abroad and noted that Robert House, an international authority on corporate leadership from the University of Toronto, will arrive next spring to teach in the school.

McDowell paid special tribute to a number of individuals who have helped raise the school to its present level of achievement: founder John Griffin, long-time trustee John P. Chase, Vice President

continued on page 8

Dean of Students Stoll Assumes Duties

Nancy Cadle Stoll, assistant director of evaluation for the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, has assumed her duties as dean of students at the University.

Stoll, an administrator with 10 years of experience in student services, succeeds D. Bradley Sullivan, who retired in June after 20 years as the University's dean of students.

In making the announcement, President Perlman said, "Dean Stoll has a clear understanding and appreciation for urban commuter students in the eighties and has a thoughtful and considerate leadership style with creative and innovative ideas concerning the integration of academic activities and student services."

Stoll, who began her duties on September 8, has served as assistant director of evaluation for the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges since 1985. Her experience in student services includes holding the positions of associate director of student affairs at Brandeis University, director of residence at Simmons College and associate dean of students at the College of Wooster in Wooster, Ohio. Her profes-

continued on page 8
be refurbished thanks to the generous gift from trustee Thomas Walsh.

Still, the University is short of space, especially for faculty offices, and is lacking in certain amenities for student life. Efforts, now successful, were underway for several years to resolve the differences with our Beacon Hill neighbors over our plans for the replacement of the Ridgeway Building, so that we might have the opportunity to build on that site if we chose to.

Several months ago, I was approached by the head of the real estate firm that helped us over the years to acquire the Fenton Building and the Sawyer Building. Knowing of our interest in acquiring additional space, and knowing of our resolve to remain in the center of Boston, our home for 80 years, he posed the following question: Would Suffolk University be interested in moving into the Hurley and Lindemann Buildings in Government Center — if those buildings were to be relinquished by the State and if they were renovated to the University’s specifications? He informed me that those two “mega buildings”, constructed in 1965, and stretching along Staniford Street between Cambridge and Merrimac, contain over 50 percent more square feet of space than are in all of Suffolk University’s present buildings. The question seemed worthy of study. Subsequently, a detailed presentation was made to our Board of Trustees, where the matter is now under consideration. It was proposed that the renovation of the Hurley and Lindemann Buildings as a campus for Suffolk University be a concomitant of the development of the empty land on that site, along New Chardon Street, into a complex of housing, offices, shops and parking resembling Copley Place in height and density. It was further proposed that the University’s present buildings, except for the theatre, be converted to residential use and thus be put on the tax rolls.

A preliminary architectural and planning analysis indicates that it would be quite feasible to create within the Hurley-Lindeman complex all of the classrooms, offices, laboratories, libraries, cafeterias, and other spaces needed by Suffolk University. It will also provide various other amenities including a gymnasium, swimming pool and some underground parking. Our theatre, which seats 600 people, could not be easily replicated in the Hurley and Lindeman Buildings and would remain in its present location.

The project appears to be good for Suffolk University because it would provide us with substantial additional space very near our present location, renovated to our specifications; because it would bring the University together under one roof and because it would give us greatly increased visibility. It would be good for the city because it would put a substantial amount of valuable property onto the tax rolls. It would be helpful to the state because it would result in relocating the services now in those buildings into more suitable quarters and would provide a socially beneficial reuse for the property.

For the project to be viable, the State will have to deaccession its two buildings and find alternative sites for the facilities now there, and the city will have to approve the necessary zoning for the entire site. If those conditions take place, our Board of Trustees will have to decide whether the project is in the best long-term interest of the University and, if so, how best to absorb into the budget the increased costs of operating a larger physical plant.

It is not yet clear exactly how long it will take for us to know whether these conditions will take place. Nor is it clear how much time would be required to ready the facilities for the University’s occupancy, if the project were approved. Suffice it to say that an undertaking of this magnitude does not happen overnight. Meanwhile, with the settlement agreement now signed, dismissing the neighbors’ suit over our plans for the replacement of the Ridgeway Building, the University has that option available as well, to help meet its long-term needs for space.

Whether on Beacon Hill or in the Government Center, to fulfill — the mission of Suffolk University requires that we provide for our faculty, staff and students contemporary, well-maintained facilities of adequate size. I am interested in knowing your thoughts and questions about these planning issues and options. Please feel free to send me a note with your views, questions or concerns.

Daniel Perlman

President’s Corner

About That New Campus For Suffolk U.

During the summer, a number of articles appeared in Boston Newspapers speculating about a new campus for Suffolk University. With the Fall semester now upon us and the Suffolk community back in full force, I want to share with faculty and staff information on this matter.

A university is a community of scholars; which is to say that the most important aspect of this, or any, university is its faculty, its staff, and its students. By this measure, Suffolk University is an excellent university and becoming even stronger.

A university also needs facilities in which to function: classrooms, offices, laboratories, and libraries. Over the past seven years, guided by the building committee of the Board, Suffolk University has renovated and modernized most of its physical plant, opening the Sawyer Building in 1981 and subsequently upgrading the older buildings, Archer, Fenton, Donahue, and now 56 Temple Street, in various ways beneficial to the quality of faculty and student life, and to the projected longevity of the buildings. Last year the Biology and Chemistry laboratories were renovated; this year the auditorium will Long-time Faculty Cited at Annual Deans’ Reception

Ten full-time faculty and two administrators were recognized for long-time service to the University at the September 19 Deans’ Reception, which commemorated the 50th anniversary of the School of Management.

President Perlman read citations for Dean David J. Sargent of the Law School and Thomas E. Connors of the English Department for their 30 years of distinguished service to the University. Neither was present for the ceremony but will receive Suffolk chairs.

Recognized for 20 years’ service and recipients of Suffolk captains’ chairs were Law Prof. Charles P. Kindregan, Physics Prof. Frank A. Feldman, Mathematics Prof. Paul N. Ezust, and Philosophy Prof. Philip Pearl, who was unable to attend.

Ten-year certificates and Suffolk lapel pins went to Business Education Prof. Barbara Ash, Business Prof. John Castellano, Law Prof. Stephen C. Hicks, Journalism Prof. Richard Porter Preiss, Law Prof. Anthony B. Sandoe and Asst. College Registrar Barbara Pfeiffer.

Close to 400 members of the University community attended the evening’s entertainment at the Great Hall in Quincy Market.

In a special highlight of the 50th SOM observance, President Perlman introduced the three deans who have served the School of Management in its modern era, Dr. Donald Grunewald, formerly president of Mercy College and now a professor at Iona College, Robert C. Waehler, professor of accounting in SOM, and Dr. Richard L. McDowell, present dean.

During the program, Rep. James T. Brett of the Massachusetts Legislature presented a special resolution from the House recognizing the 50th milestone of the business school.

President Perlman also made a presentation of a plaque to retired adjunct prof. John Martuccelli of the Mathematics Department, who retired after 28 years teaching part-time at the University.

According to records in the Personnel Office, the addition of this year’s 10-year recipients swells the number of people employed at Suffolk 10 years or more to 140.

International Student Advisor Named

by Mark Crowley

Doris Clausen has been appointed Suffolk University’s first full-time international student advisor, President Perlman announced.

Clausen will serve as assistant international student advisor under Joan MacVicar, current international student advisor and professor in the counseling center. In the past Associate Professor Judith Dushku of the government department had advised international students on a part-time basis.

MacVicar explained that Clausen “will handle the day to day operation (counseling foreign students) and I will serve in an administrative capacity.”

Clausen will be available to counsel the more than 170 international students who are currently attending Suffolk from 52 different countries around the world.

Clausen noted that the creation of her position was a “recognition of the need for a full-time advisor” by the administration. She will counsel foreign students on such matters as curriculum, personal problems, housing needs, and student visas.

continued on page 6
Newsmakers

Joseph P. McEstrick, Law School. During his 1986-1987 sabbatical leave, he completed the masters in public administration program at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard and was awarded his degree at the 1987 June commencement. The Kennedy School also designated him a Lucius N. Littauer Fellow.

Nancy E. Dowd, Law School. She has received a $62,290 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation for a study entitled 'The Work Family Conflict: Restructuring the Workplace.' Her proposal was one of only 13 projects funded out of more than 560 proposals submitted.

David L. Robbins, History/Philosophy. He's been appointed national director of campus relations for Interfuture (International Studies for the Future) international education organization with Suffolk an active participant. Robbins also serves as member of the Reading Historical Commission and as secretary of the West End Historical Committee, which is writing a history on the West End Historical Project. Robbins will present a paper on France and England 1795-1840 at the fall Meeting of the New York State Association of European Historians.

Saroj Sawhney, Economics. She served as chair and discussant on papers presented at five different conferences; the Eastern Economics Association in Washington, D.C., the Pennsylvania Economic Association in Bloomberg, Penn., the Association of Indian Economic Studies in New York City, the Western Economic Association in Vancouver, British Columbia and the New England Hindu Conference in Boston.

Susan Thayer, Learning Center. She has been appointed chair of the national research and evaluation committee for the National Association of Development Educators, a 1000-member group. The committee's assignment is to develop national accreditation standards for developmental programs and learning centers.

William R. Allen, School of Management. He's been elected to the board of advisors of the Northeast Decision Sciences Institute. The election took place in Atlantic City at the group's annual meeting.

Gail Coffler, English. She presented "Classical Iconography in 'Billy Budd, Sailor'" at the Melville Society meeting of the Modern Language Association in New York City, and in Montreal presented a paper at the American Culture Association Conference: "Pulling the Roman Nose: Classic Burlesque in Melville's White Jacket."

Thomas F. Lambert Jr., Law School. Out West, Prof. Lambert made two presentations. He presented a three-hour seminar on tort cases to the South Western Judicial Conference at Lake Tahoe, made up of members of the trial and appellate courts from Arizona, Nevada and Utah. Later, he presented a paper, "Primitive Damages: A New Audit," to the annual convention of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America in San Francisco.

Roger N. Millen, School of Management. Spent June and July in China and Japan. He presented a paper at the International System Dynamics Society meeting in Shanghai. He then visited several universities and enterprises in Beijing, Tianjin, Osaka and Tokyo.

Bernard V. Keenan, Law School. Recently appointed to co-chair the American Bar Association's Land Use Subcommittee on Exactions and Impact Fees, he also was a panelist for a Mass. Bar Association Continuing Legal Education Program on U.S. Supreme Court decisions affecting land use regulations.

David Pfeiffer, Public Management. During the summer he was sworn in as a member of Governor Dukakis' Advisory Council on Affirmative Action. The Council advises the governor and State Office of Affirmative Action on all aspects of affirmative action.

Robert E. Fox, English. His book, Conscientious Sorcerers, which examines the fiction of three outstanding black American writers, is off the presses via Greenwood Press, Inc. Fox reviews the styles and techniques of LeRoi Jones/Amiri Baraka, Ishmael Reed and Samuel R. Delany. There are two copies available in the Mildred Sawyer Library.

Arthur P. Chiasson, Humanities and Modern Languages. At the sixth annual conference of Languages and Communication for World Business and the Professions, in Ann Arbor, Michigan, he delivered a paper on the teaching of Business French.

Duane Anderson, Student Activities. He will serve a one-year term as chair of the Associate Member Advisory Board of the National Association for Campus Activities. He's been a member of the association's board of directors since 1981.
relevant work history, and also requires that you discuss your application for the position with your present supervisor and that he or she provide a written assessment of your performance on the application. This new application provides you with a clear way to present yourself to the interviewing department. The notification to your supervisor of your application gives you and your supervisor a chance to discuss your present position and your potential for the new position. Your completed application is referred to the hiring department and, as before, an interview is arranged by the Personnel Office.

Q: I read recently that a University smoking policy will be developed. How will this policy affect us?

A: A volunteer committee from all constituencies of the University — students, staff, faculty, smokers and non-smokers — will be appointed to develop a smoking policy for employees and students. The committee, when appointed, will solicit opinions of all interested employees. The goal of the committee is to thoughtfully consider issues for both smokers and non-smokers in the establishment of a fair and safe smoking policy.

New Employees

Anne Poulin of Malden, staff secretary, Communications and Speech Department; Joan Carmody of East Walpole, administrative secretary, Law School; Gina Gaffney of Weymouth, DP assistant, Admissions; Laurie "Chris" Bogue, secretary/office coordinator, Economics Department; Lynne Waterhouse of Boston, supervisor/circulation and reserve, Law Library; Sarah Foster of Brookline, staff secretary I, Learning Center; Amy Daniels of Westford, office secretary, Law Faculty; Meri Bennett of Boston, library assistant, Law Library; Cynthia Waldron of Newton, placement resource assistant, Law Placement; Madeleine Gosselin of Somerville, librarian, Law Library; Brenda Palazzo of Cambridge, staff secretary, Institutional Advancement; Rosaria Pisa of Woburn, student employment assistant, Financial Aid; Amy Sheehan of West Roxbury, senior clerical assistant, Law Registrar; Patricia Davis of Dorchester, operator, Switchboard; Melissa Madden of Boston, office secretary, Career Services; Patrice Hill of Medford, office secretary, Graduate Admissions; K. Erin Sutherland of Malden, operator, Switchboard; Annemarie Ormond of Burlington, office secretary, SOM/FRU; Kristine Zelazik of Duxbury, staff secretary, President's Office; Lillie Campbell of Roxbury, clerk, Mailroom; Andrea Barone of Brookline, operator, Switchboard; Michelle Andrews of Boston, operator, Switchboard; Janine Piras of Boston, office secretary, Institutional Advancement; Nancy Leandowski of Boston, coordinator, Health Services and Andrea Lovell of Somerville, staff secretary, Inst. Adv.

This is no trick, it's a treat. On Oct. 31 University Credit Union members may purchase a 1986 or 1987 car from Avis Cars Sales, Route 1A, East Boston under a special one-day rate. Financed through University Credit Union, there is no down payment, a $300 to $500 discount, special one-day low rate of 9.75% and payroll deduction. The sale is also available at Avis' South Attleboro location.

$100,00 Peabody Grant Awarded For Second Suffolk Moot Courtroom

Suffolk Law School has received a grant of $100,000 from the trustees of the Amelia Peabody Charitable Foundation, Atts. Harry F. Rice and Richard A. Leahy, for construction of the school's new moot courtroom.

The grant covers the construction of the law school's second courtroom for its award-winning moot court program. This room, which opened in 1986, is located on the third floor of the Frank J. Donahue Building across the corridor from the original courtroom, built in 1966 and used for the numerous competitions involving Suffolk teams and students.

The new room is used as a teaching court for law students in trial advocacy. It is equipped with a two-camera closed circuit video system for recording and a television monitor for playback. The room's windows are film coated to reduce sunlight and insure proper video lighting.
New Faces On Campus

School of Management

Dr. Suzyn Ornstein, assistant professor of management. Previously assistant professor at Edwin L. Cox School of Business at Southern Methodist University. She will teach organizational behavior courses.

Dr. Boas Shamir, visiting professor of management for one year. Professor at Hebrew University, he will teach management courses.

Dr. Murat Tarimcilar, assistant professor of management. Earlier this year, received his Ph.D. in business administration from Louisiana State University. He will teach quantitative methods courses.

Dr. James Morris McNees, professor of accounting with tenure. Previously associate professor at UMass Boston and also served on the Sloan School Faculty at M.I.T. Chaired their accounting group.

Dr. Maurice E. Halliday, visiting professor of CIS, one year. Was professor of management at the U.S. Naval War College in Newport, R.I. last year. Has Ph.D. in Information Systems from UMass Amherst.

Dr. Sudro Brown, associate professor of accounting. Previously served on the faculties at UMass Amherst, RPI and the University of Vermont. He'll teach financial accounting.

Dr. Shahriar Khaksari, associate professor of finance. A year ago, he was on leave from Cleveland State University to serve the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Holds Ph.D. in Finance and International Business from St. Louis University.

College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Dr. William M. Spellman, assistant professor of history and philosophy. He received his B.S. in History from Suffolk in 1978 and his Ph.D. from Syracuse 1986. Previously teaching assistant at Syracuse University.

I. Brian McConville, instructor in humanities. Previously director of music at St. Mary of the Assumption Church in Milford.

Dr. Kayed M. Kayali, visiting professor in government. Holds Ph.D. from University of Maryland and previously was associate professor of public administration at United Arab Emirates University.

Robert A. Bellinger, instructor in history. Previously taught U.S. history at Concord Academy.

Dr. Leslie H. Cormier, assistant professor of humanities. Holds M.A. and Ph.D. from Brown University. Before coming to Suffolk was with department of art history at Boston University and also taught at Boston College.

Administration

Marjorie Hewitt, assistant director of student activities. She succeeds Margaret Higgins, who resigned in August to accept a position as director of student activities at Merrimack College in North Andover. Hewitt previously served as assistant director of student activities at the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut.

Genie Coe, assistant director of career services. Holds a B.A. degree from Oakland University in Rochester, Michigan and M.E. from Bridgewater State College.

Therese A. Howenstein, assistant director of cooperative education. Holds a B.S. from Oral Roberts University and M.E. from University of South Carolina, Columbia.

Patricia M. Walsh, assistant director of alumni publications. Former Peace Corps volunteer, was public affairs director for the Association of Arab-American University Graduates. Holds a B.A. from Emmanuel College and a M.S. in Journalism from Boston University.

George T. Comeau, media specialist in IMC. Previously was director/producer of Canton Cable Access Corporation. Holds a B.S. in Communications and Speech from Suffolk.

Law School

Kate N. Day, assistant professor of law. Served as an instructor in Legal Practice Skills Program for three years. Professor Day will teach a course in civil procedure and has assumed the directorship of the L.P.S. Program. Has a B.A. from Manhattan College and J.D. from the University of California at Berkeley.

Marin R. Scordato, assistant professor of law. Was an assistant professor of law for two years at Florida State University College of Law before coming to Suffolk Law School. He will teach courses in business associations, mass communications law and copyright law. Holds a B.A. from Haverford College and a J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT continued from page 3

In addition, Clausen will be the advisor to the International Students’ Club, located in the Ridgeway Lane building of Suffolk. “I’ll be recruiting new members for the club and we’ll be having elections for that soon. They meet once a week,” she noted. The club sponsors trips and activities.

Clausen is a native of the Dominican Republic. She holds a B.S. in Political Science from Wagner College, Staten Island, New York. She also has an M.A. in International Administration from the School for International Training in Vermont.

She was the senior foreign student advisor at Harvard University before coming to Suffolk. Prior to that, she was employed by the English Language Service Centers located in New York and Texas.

Clausen is planning an array of cross-cultural events for the international student population in an effort to get them more “involved in the community and help them deal with that feeling of belonging.”

Clausen came to the U.S. in 1965 and now lives in Cambridge with her husband, Thomas.
Potpourri
By Lou Connelly

When Mary A. Gelardi of Revere received her B.S. in Journalism degree last June 7 at the Wang Center, her eyes focused on a career in communications. Now everyone knows you don't get rich in that field, but Mary should worry? A few weeks back, she hit the Mass. Mega-bucks for $2.4 million. After taxes, Gelardi will receive approximately $84,000 a year for 20 years. Welcome back to campus, Carolyne Lamar Jordan. The assistant to the president spent a year as an ACE Fellow at Smith College, and this past July presented a paper at the third International Interdisciplinary Women's Conference in Dublin, Ireland where she was part of a panel discussing "Black Women's Contributions to Social Change." She later traveled to Taiwan, Hong Kong and mainland China with ACE Fellows for a study of comparative education systems. Sharon Artis Goodwin, who filled in for Jordan during her absence, has become the University's director of grants, working out of the Office of Institutional Advancement, sixth floor, 11 Beacon St. Sociology's John Sullivan and John Holley, pictured below with a Suffolk-banned Lake 4 Place Amphibian at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks, Conn., were there for the FAA-sponsored Aviation Training and Air Safety Exposition. They had a booth along with 60 other exhibitors distributing material about Suffolk and its aviation programs to some 5000 attendees. Said Sullivan about the plane, "It wouldn't be bad for trips to Cobscook Bay."

Speaking of Cobscook Bay, Ernie Smith, game warden in that area, was at Suffolk recently to be honored on his retirement and for the assistance he has extended to the Friedman station over the years. Biology's Henry Mulcahy has been appointed to the State Board of Registry of Sanitariums. Mulcahy and wife, Pat, recently welcomed their third daughter, 8 lb. 12 oz., Allison, at Beth Israel Hospital. And a get well to Bea Snow, at home for a couple of weeks with a pinched nerve. Congratulations to Dean Richard McDowell on his appointment to the board of directors of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. Journalism's prolific writer Gerald Peary spent five weeks this summer as writer-in-residence at the Leighton Artist Colony at Banff Center, Alberta with an architecturally designed cabin in the woods for writing environment. Peary gave a public reading of his autobiographical writings and fiction and was a guest of the Toronto and Montreal film festivals. Peary, who writes frequently for the Los Angeles Times, did an exclusive Boston Herald interview with actor Ryan O'Neal, who earlier had turned down scores of requests for interviews in Provincetown where he did Norman Mailer's Tough Guys Don't Dance. President Dan Perlman will be the key speaker at the New England Business Educators Association's 85th anniversary banquet at the Sheraton-Tara Hotel in Braintree Nov.6. Suffolk's Barbara Ash is president of the association. One of the biggest successes on campus is the Law School's thriving Center for Continuing Professional Development under Prof. Charles Kindregan's direction. The Center's latest effort, an all-day conference on the financial aspects of divorce, attracted some 200 attorneys. Suffolk is the lone law school in the area producing such programs, which also includes the series of lectures throughout the Northeast featuring former Federal Judge Herbert J. Stern, one of the nation's leading trial advocates and the subject of an upcoming movie based on his book, Judgment in Berlin, which stars Martin Sheen (as Stern) and Sean Penn, Madonna's worst half. Stern will be appearing at Suffolk on Dec. 11. The Center has named Law Prof. Anthony B. Sandoe as associate director and Carol A. Dunn as assistant director. It was a granddaughter for SOM's Bernie Meyler and wife Doris on Aug.26 when Lindsay Meyler was born to parents Bernard W. Meyler Jr. and wife, Mary.

The three new interns in the Counseling Center are Daniel Silverman of Jamaica Plain and Stephanie P. Morgan of Somerville, both students at the Mass. School of Professional Psychology, and Nancy S. Cahan of Andover, enrolled in the clinical psych doctoral program at Antioch/New England Graduate School, Keene, N.H. Robert K. Johnson of English picked a suitable spot to work on his poetry during the summer, a three-week stay at an artist colony in Cummington, Ma., the Cummington Community of the Arts. Fond farewell to Patty Duffy, manager of accounts payable who has moved on to a position with the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute. Annette Gentile of the same department moves into Patty's slot. A tip to travelers abroad from Law Librarian Ed Bander, just back from a London-Wales trek with fellow law librarians: "If you go to England, get traveler's checks in pounds (American Express, Barclay). There is a two-pound charge in hotels for cashing traveler's checks in foreign currency. VAT stands for Value Added Tax. If you make a large purchase, you can get the tax back by filling out a form, getting it stamped at customs and mailing the form to London."
Maureen Dooley of the budget office, promoting the Contra Dance Friday Oct. 16 in the Sawyer Dining Hall, explains the difference between that and square dancing is that dancers form in squares for square dancing and in lines for the contra dance. It has nothing to do with Nicaraguan aid. . . Public Management's Don Levitan has been elected a special director of the board of the Boston Architectural Center's School of Architecture . . . One of the active personalities on the U.S. Constitutional Bicentennial has been Public Management's Fran Burke. She was a guest of WUMB 91.9 FM during the summer and was quoted in a Boston Globe story on the upcoming Women and the Constitution Program planned for next February in Atlanta. . . Best wishes to newlyweds Carl Merrill, coordinator of the Friedman Field Station, and Katherine Davis of Pembroke, Maine. They were married in a private service at the Field Station on the shores of Coxscook Bay . . . Madhav Kacker of marketing has been invited to make a presentation on his research at the University of Manitoba. Also on the speakers trail: Margaret Collins Weitz, chair of humanities and modern languages, addressed the New England meeting of the American Association of Teachers of French at Rivier College and Kenneth S. Greenberg of history was a panelist at the opening session of Society for Historians of the Early American Republic in Philadelphia . . .

Publications: Ted Marshall of Physics "Angular Momentum Operator Equivalents," in the Magnetic Resonance Review. Gerald Solk of the Law School, "Valuation Techniques for the Closely Held Business," co-authored with Prof. Richard Grant of the University of Akron Law School, in the winter edition of the Commercial Law Journal; Ken Garni of the Counseling Center, "Role of Internal Consultant," in September issue of Journal of College Student Personnel and "Counseling Men in College," book chapter, Jossey-Bass New Directions for Student Services, spring 1988. Jane Ives of SOM has received four grants for research including one from the NSF in the area of risk management in the developing world. She was also a research fellow at the Pacific Asian Management Institute at University of Hawaii . . . Shahriar Khaksari of finance has been certified as a chartered financial analyst . . . Ted Hamann of the Sawyer Library attended a week-long workshop sponsored by the Boston Computer Society to train on the use of word processors for the Macintosh. . . The 22nd annual meeting of the Northeast region of the National Association of Academic Affairs Administrators will have a definite Suffolk tinge. Myra Lerman of SOM is conference chair. Speakers include Paul Korn of Psych Services, Helen Wanderstock of SOM and Carolyne Lamar Jordan, asst. to the president. The meeting will be held Nov. 5-7 in Springfield.

Suffolk trustee Carol Sawyer Parks has been elected to the board of directors of Olympic International Bank and Trust Co. . . A toast to Judy DeBerio of Institutional Advancement and Jim Turner, who were married Oct. 3 at St. Eulalia's Church in Winchester with a reception at the Royal Sonesta in Cambridge. They'll honeymoon in Australia and Hawaii . . . And Bill Coughlin of College Admissions marched daughter, Joan, down the aisle on Oct. 10 to marry Richard R. McGreal at Immaculate Conception Church, Stoughton . . .

Sorry to see Gail Sheffey of Personnel leaving after nine years of service in that department, cooperative education and the counseling center. She will become training coordinator at Harvard Community Health Plan's new facility in Watertown. The annual fall phonathons began Oct. 5 with the phones set up in Sawyer 808 under the direction of Annual Fund Director Mary Lou Ward and Alumni Development Director Bob West. Faculty, staff, students and, of course, alumni are encouraged to participate. . . The School of Management, as part of its 50th anniversary observance, will honor Boston Herald Publisher Pat Purcell with a service to the community and achievement award at an Oct. 27 function at the school. Purcell is credited with reviving a failing newspaper and restoring it as a journalistic force in the community . . . Back from maternity leave for her position as assistant placement director in the law school is Mary Karen Rogers. She and husband, Kirk, welcomed a daughter, Alexandria, in June . . . President Perlman this summer took part in the American Council of Education's seminar on value and ethics week for former ACE Fellows. Perlman is also chairing the university section of the 1987 United Way Campaign. Suffolk is the current leader among all area universities in per capita giving to the United Way . . . Finally, congratulations to Miss Massachusetts Aura Lee McCarthy (third year Suffolk law student) for winning a $3000 talent scholarship in the Atlantic City Miss America competition, and good luck to Suffolk sociology student Andrea Spears as she heads for Florida in November to represent Miss Massachusetts in the Miss Black America contest. If you'd like to help support Andrea's candidacy contact the Student Activities Office at X8320 . . . See you next month .

HONORS FIVE
continued from page 1
Francis X. Flannery, and Rae D. Anderson, beloved by a generation of accounting students.

"It is through the efforts of people like these that it's been possible for generations of School of Management students to have the educational experience which has given them the opportunity to be a significant part of the fabric of Boston business and government," the dean observed.

McDowell concluded, "We know the future will be challenging. We know that the school will continue to succeed because of the intelligence, generosity, and good will of the people who are committed to making it grow in quality and who demand achievement."

DEAN STOLL
continued from page 1
Sional affiliations include service as president of the Massachusetts College Personnel Association and national convention chair and executive council member of the American College Personnel Association. Stoll received a bachelor of arts degree in English and Journalism from Hanover College in Hanover, Indiana. She received a master of arts in student personnel administration in higher education from Ball State University, a certificate in higher education resource services from Wellesley College and is completing her doctor of education requirements at Harvard University.

She and her husband, James G. Stoll, make their home on Bay State Road in the Back Bay with their three-year-old daughter, Lindsay.  