BUILDING FUND OVER MILLION MARK

Countway Foundation Donates $60,000

With the donation of a large educational gift from the Countway Foundation, the Development Fund has neared and then passed the Million Mark. This "million miracle," as it is called by President Fenton, has achieved this. The support of the Foundation has pushed the Fund over the $120,000, of which the total amount has been pledged, $92,000 and $28,000 respectively. The unrestricted college fund, which has already reached $1,750,000, the campus improvements fund, which has reached $1,000,000, and the Library Fund, which has reached $250,000, are still in need of support. The Foundation's gift places the fund over the Million Mark in its support of the campus improvements fund.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The issue of the school cafeteria and the student's right to be heard has been a recurring theme in recent letters. While it is true that the cafeteria is a place where students gather to socialize, it is also an institution that provides an opportunity for students to express their opinions. As the Editor has pointed out in previous issues, the cafeteria is not just a place for students to eat, but a space where they can engage in meaningful discussions and debates.

Editor's note: In response to the letter from 'Student A' regarding the cafeteria, I would like to clarify that the school board is currently reviewing the cafeteria policies to ensure that they align with the school's mission and values. We appreciate the students' input and encourage them to continue to express their concerns and ideas.

Following the school's decision to install lockers in the hallways, some students have expressed concerns about privacy and security. In response to this, the administration has assured the students that the lockers will be monitored by security personnel at all times. The students are encouraged to continue to have open communication with the administration to address any concerns.

Attention Veterans

Where are the veterans? A school needs Where the bell rings
I plant the seeds that will grow into flowers I see the winding path through broken fences and under the moonlight
The book is the cornerstone of infinity As are rainbows within rainbows within rainbows
I dream patterns of lost homes And remember the times I was in my childhood
The thundericeps the sky's silence when I hear thunder in the thunder of birds
All unravel into one channel, one flow As we flow, into eternity and back with the sky
