Suffolk Receives Grants

Mr Boston Distiller
Gives Scholarship

A $3000 scholarship to the Suffolk University College of Business Administration has been established by Mr. Boston Distiller, Inc., marketers and producers of more than 100 alcoholic beverages under the Old Mr. Boston trademark.

The marketing scholarship has been awarded in the name of M. Mio Davis of 40 Warren Street, Newton Center for devoted service to the company. Mr. Davis, a sales manager for Mr. Boston for nearly 30 years, is a 1928 graduate of Suffolk University College of Business Administration.

When Mr. Davis turned 65, the executive group at Mr. Boston wished to show its appreciation for his dedication over the years and planned an appreciation dinner.

However, he suggested that any remembrance be applied to the University from which he graduated and hence the scholarship was established.

The award was made at a luncheon at Mr. Boston's main plant at 1040 Massachusetts Ave., Roxbury. Those present at the ceremony included Judge John E. Fenton, President of Suffolk; Dean Donald Grunewald of the College of Business Administration; Samuel Berke, president of Mr. Boston; Elmer O. Jolley of Weston, executive vice president of Mr. Boston; and Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

Commenting on the award, Mr. Davis said: "I'm doing this in my name, Mr. Boston is carrying on the tradition of a great company, and business is doing something for education and the general public. I'm proud to be a symbol of this fine contribution."

The scholarship will be awarded to a qualified student in marketing at the Suffolk University College of Business Administration.

Biology Dept. Gets National Science Foundation Grant

Suffolk University has been awarded a grant of $26,580 from the National Science Foundation for a six-week Summer Institute in biology of marine organisms for secondary school teachers in New England.

Under the grant, nine noted lecturers chosen from the academic community throughout North America will deliver a series of 20 lectures. The Institute will begin July 1 and continue through August 9.

Thirty secondary school teachers of biology will be selected from the New England area for training based on their potential to inspire students to pursue careers in biology. Each will receive support based on their potential to inspire students to pursue careers in biology.

In addition to the lecture series, participants will take part in laboratory exercises and field work including a four-day camping trip to the Bay of Fundy area in Maine.

Those taking part will qualify for four credit hours in graduate work in biology.

Dr. Arthur J. West II, co-chairman of the Suffolk University biology department, will serve as director of the Institute and will also lecture and coordinate field trips.

The program will be conducted in conjunction with Suffolk's regular summer session in which approximately 700 students will be enrolled.

In addition to field trips, voluntary lessons in Scuba diving will be made available to participants.

Suffolk's biology department has added five laboratories and a science library in the past five years. A majority of the undergraduate biology majors have continued training at the professional or graduate school level.

Discussing the program, Dr. West said, "It is hoped that through this experience, the resources of the marine environment will be better understood by these New England teachers and enable them to apply this experience to their classes."

Technology Program With V.A. Hospital Established

Suffolk University has established a joint program in medical technology with the Veterans Administration Hospital, Jamaica Plain, Judge John E. Fenton, President of Suffolk, has announced.

Under the affiliation, students will study three years at the University and spend their senior year at the hospital in a training phase of the program.

Upon completion of the course requirements, students will receive a certificate in medical technology from the VA Hospital, and a bachelor of science degree in biology from Suffolk.

Suffolk now has affiliations with four hospitals under medical technology programs. It previously established relationships with Newton-Wellesley Hospital, Henry Heywood Memorial Hospital, Gardner and St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, Connecticut.

The programs are accredited by the American Medical Association's council of medical education and graduates are eligible to take the examination for certification by the National Registry of Medical Technologists.

The combined degree program is under the supervision of Dr. Robert S. Friedman, chairman of the Suffolk biology department, and Dr. Roger A. Cote, director of the school of medical technology at the VA Hospital.
Letters to The Editor

To the Editor:

With all the intelligence, education, skill, and administrative experience that populated this campus during the time when it was known as Suffolk University, one might expect that when it came to a rather prosaic, but none the less significant, matter like about where to relocate the student lockers, that a more imaginative and sensitive choice might have been arrived at than the one established upon the present dilapidated condition. The almost constant noise of banging doors and the steady hum of the old library, I feel is indeed timely to comment about it via my usual column and opinion voice THE JOURNAL.

In Memoriam

First Lieutenant Kevin A. Porter, United States Army

Killed in action in Vietnam on November 21, 1967

Leaves his widow, Mrs. Judith (Down) Porter, of Jamaica Plain; a son, Kevin, Jr., who will be two years old on December 15; his father, George, of Dorchester; two brothers, William, of Dorchester, and Edward, of South Boston; and three sisters, Mrs. Eugene Egan, of Roslindale, Mrs. John Madden, of Hull, and Miss Sheila Porter, of Arlington, Virginia.

Lt. Porter served in Vietnam for 11 months and was due home for a furlough and a stateside duty assignment on December 15. He was an executive officer of "C" Company, 3/22nd Infantry, of the 25th Division, at the time of his death.

He is believed to be the first Suffolk student to be killed in action in Vietnam.

By the Way...

We on the newspaper staff would like to congratulate the seniors who have shown both outstanding academic achievement as well as extra-curricular recognition. The following are the officers of the Suffolk University Law School, with its distinguished history of over 60 years, and the distinguished names who have served as Dean and Dean of the Law School.

Mr. Thomas Casey

Loyal students and alumni can with complete confidence point to the names that will appear on the graduation list.

Each year Suffolk is proud to choose from amongst its graduating seniors those who have shown both outstanding academic achievement as well as extra-curricular recognition. The following is the list of Suffolk University's Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for the year 1966-67.

Public Relations Man Appointed

Suffolk University now has a full-time public relations director. He is Louis B. Connelly, a 1957 journalism graduate and former sports writer for the Boston Herald Traveller.

Located just off the new lobby, his office is between the Alumni and Accounting offices. His home is in Malden.

"There has been tremendous growth everywhere, since I first attended this school," he told the JOURNAL. "Today's students seem hungry for knowledge and continued progress."

He hopes that "everyone will work as a team" to keep Suffolk moving at a good pace. As examples of such student enthusiasm, he cited the fine productions of the drama club and the work as a team" to keep Suffolk's students excited, he cited the fine productions of the drama club and the President's Athletic Association. There were also limited opportunities for such jobs as clerks, office machine operators, typists, data entry assistants, and medical and educational assistants.

It is expected that the hiring for the summer of 1968 will be much the same.

Seasonal assistants with the Post Office Department are employed for temporary work during the summer and occasionally at other times during the year, such as the Christmas season. Employment may be part-time in some cases.

To apply for written Summer Employment examinations, you need the Application Card Form 5000 -- AB at the Placement Bureau and mail it in.

Meet A Quiet Hero

Jack Guphill is a junior in the college of liberal arts. He is 22, friendly, average in height, wears a crew-cut, and he's on the quiet side. He works part-time at the United Fund Headquarters, and considers himself just an ordinary guy. So don't ask him to tell you about that Monday afternoon last August.

It was 1:15 p.m., August 14th, and Jack was sitting on the beach at Allerton, in the Nantasket Beach region, when he heard a boy hollering from the choppy sea. He saw a Swimmer struggling 10 yards from shore, and Jack was sitting on the beach at Alierton, in the Nantasket Beach region, when he heard a boy hollering from the choppy sea. He saw a Swimmer struggling 10 yards from shore, and Jack got up on the beach and ran toward the boy. As he pulled the panicked and struggling 10 year old Terry, other rescuers got daught in the undercurrent. As he pulled the panicked and struggling 10 year old Terry, other rescuers got daught in the undercurrent. He had the sense of mind that must come from participating in a most noble venture of helping your fellow man.

But don't ask Jack Guphill about those things, he won't talk. We feel we have to tell the story. Sorry about that, Jack.

Debatable News

At a tournament on November 10 and 11 in Oswego, New York, Suffok University's debate team, comprised of Mike Hart and Mike McDonald, defeated Emerson College's varsity debate team. This was the first time in the history of the long rivalry between the teams that Suffolk has won. The victory was especially meaningful for our debaters, Mr. Littlefield, for he is also a full-time assistant professor of Speech at Suffolk.

The following is a tentative schedule of future tournaments:

S.A.M. Elects A Queen

Madelyn "Babe" Elliott Chosen

In keeping with the image and objectives of S.A.M., the organization has elected a queen to represent the club to the student body and faculty. On December 7, 1967, Madelyn Elliott was chosen Miss S.A.M. The runner-ups were Bruce Cummings and Joanna Scalzi. The court consisted of Risa Brown, Dorothy Wrezesian and Cathy Zosa.

Babe, in a pleasant state of shock, was congratulated by James Hoole, president of SAM, and Professor Diamond, SAM advisor, as she was awarded a $25 government savings bond and a bouquet of roses. Babe, a resident of 3 Thayer Avenue in Auburn, Mass., is a sophomore at Suffolk majoring in psychology. Besides affiliating herself with S.A.M., Babe is also a member of the psychology club and humanities club.

S.A.M. is a management business organization whose main purpose is to fill the gap for business methods in application. Through meetings with speakers, tours of corporations, panel discussions with other colleges, newsletters, luncheons, school contributions and other activities the club hopes that it can instill in the individual the importance of proper management. Besides the invaluable social advantages of the club, the club's main objective is reason enough for it to be recognized for the part it plays in preparing better managers for the future. With this reason in mind, we know that Babe and her court will represent the organization at Suffolk in a proper manner.

S.A.M. President Writes

As a group, we took over a fading organization at Suffolk University and have been trying desperately to revive it. So far, the new SAM has been able to meet with a fair amount of success. I say new SAM because last year, with the help of my three officers, we drew up an entirely new constitution and thus started off with a new born baby.

As a result of their very hard work and whole-hearted support, SAM is headed for the greatest year it has ever had at Suffolk University.

I was disappointed recently to hear that one of the officers was being subjected to severe criticism for something which was in no way at all his fault. It was a technical difficulty that could not be avoided and I know that if the people who have been criticizing this particular officer had any idea as to how much work he has put into the club, they would think twice before saying anything else.

So, I would once again like to thank Peter Bloom, Joseph Corvino, and Claire Maher for the excellent work which they have been doing and sincerely hope that the effort that they have been expending will continue. Without your continued support, I and the organization will not be able to function. You are a very important asset to me and the organization.

I would also like to thank Professor Benson Diamond for the support which he is giving the organization this year also. You will be very proud of us come next May.

At Least As Good As The Law School's!
WOULD YOU BELIEVE...

The established procedure has been chips, onion dips, and pretzels. It's the old proven route for beer party accompaniment.
Now the establishment is swinging with a new taste in standard party foods—the taste of BEER.
You've probably already heard about using beer for cooking hamburgers, franks, and shrimp. The latest combination is BEER CHEESE DEPS and BEER CHEESE SPREADS. The beer adds ZIP—a great flavor that's never camp.

The following recipes will add a little interest to your parties, whether you follow the established route—or not.

ROQUEFORT BEER SPREAD

4 oz. Roquefort cheese
6 oz. cream cheese
1/4 cup beer

DIRECTIONS: Let cheeses stand at room temperature until softened. Mix the cheese and beer together until the spread is very smooth. Cover and chill in refrigerator until mixture is stiff but still spreadable, about 3 hours.

CHEDDAR FILLED OLIVES

1 pound soft sharp cheddar cheese
6 oz. cream cheese
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3/4 cup beer
Large pitted olives, green or black

DIRECTIONS: Grate cheddar cheese. Let cheese soften at room temperature until they blend well. Combine cheese in bowl with Worcestershire sauce and beer. Mix with electric beater until smooth. Cover and chill thoroughly, about 3 hours. Drain olives. Fill a pastry tube with cheese mixture and force spread into the pitted olives. Chill until 20 minutes before serving.

In case you haven't tried franks cooked in beer yet, better catch up. This recipe is included for late starters.

FRANKS SIMMERED IN BEER

2 lbs. frankfurters (cocktail franks may be used)
2 large onions, sliced
1 to 2 cans of beer
2 large carrots, sliced
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Place frankfurters in a large saucepan. Add enough beer to cover. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to boil, lower heat and simmer gently for 5 to 10 minutes, depending on size of franks. Serve as a main dish with sauerkraut or as an hors d'oeuvre.

RACE RIOT

During the past summer's "Festival of Race Riots" we sent our man whom we have covering the 37th Annual International Banana Peeling and Frog Dissecting Championships to interview Race Riot at the race riot. So while everything was after dinner, Babb, Bury, we sent out "Learn, Baby, Learn" about race riots first hand.

We spotted Race T. Riot (T stands for Tobias) at a Cindy Carol Concert at Tuscaloosa. Race Riot looking down at the women's high cut tops and saw he was about to get there late and had to take what I could. That place was doing a lot of "business," man. There were quite a few people there. Riot had forgotten that he was wearing no laces. He knew he couldn't go far in the Thom McAn down there. He had found his niche in the Great Society dollars. A car was parked on fire and I didn't want them to blow up and fell and broke his Chuck Percy (Continued on Page 8)

The Stars Are "Out"

How is it that some guys have all the luck. These people seem to see fantastically interesting society teas, playoff ping-pong matches, and a few other events. Mardi Gras and Pennsyl-

You take a student like me, hardworking, conscientious, intelligently starved, and above all most busily modest. I mean herein, a reporter willing to do just about anything for the sake of this newspaper and the students. How do you do it? I don't know. My only energies to the advancement of these two institutions is to cover all their events and keep up with the times. It's not like I'm covering any big events. We cover a lot of the not so interesting things. In the last two weeks we have covered the 37th Annual International Banana Peeling and Frog Dissecting Championships and the 37th Annual International Banana Peeling and Frog Dissecting Championships.

I'm writing this letter to all the students who are interested in covering these events. If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me at mcmahonb@suny.edu. Thank you for your time.

How about "Weapon Control"?

The U.S. Army is now facing a tremendous problem in Vietnam. This problem concerns weapon malfunction. Prior to Viet Nam, the footsoldier carried relatively simple equipment. This included a rifle and a backpack containing various small arms and equipment. The M-14 and M-16 rifles have been found to be inaccurate and unreliable, and the Vietnam Expressman has reported that many soldiers have been killed or injured by weapon malfunction. This is a serious problem and needs to be addressed.

The Army has focused on improving weapon design and functionality. The M-14 and M-16 rifles have been redesigned to improve accuracy and reduce malfunctions. The Army has also developed new equipment, such as night vision scopes and thermal imagers, to enhance soldier capabilities. The Army has been working on developing new weapon systems, such as the Next Generation Squad Weapon (NGSW), to address the problems encountered in Vietnam.

The Army is committed to minimizing the impact of weapon malfunction on the battlefield. The Army is working to improve weapon design, develop new equipment, and train soldiers on proper use of weapons. The Army is also working to reduce the impact of weapon malfunction on soldiers' lives.

Jay Crowley, Suffolk's 6'7" senior forward, became the university's first 1000 point career scorer when he scored 22 points to lead the Rams to a 78-61 victory over Nasson College at Boston Garden on Dec. 11.

Crowley was presented a plaque by Alumni President Ronald Weinberg in a ceremony after the game, which was played as a preliminary to the Celtics-New York Knicks basketball contest.

Previous record holder was Jack Resniak; he starred for the Rams, who are off to the best start in the school's history. Suffolk has won six, lost one, and is hoping for a bid in a small college tournament, should they maintain their present pace.

Their only loss to date, was a 111-06 defeat to Hartford University after a 23-day layoff by the Rams.

40 YEARS MISS SUFFOLK — Miss Dorothy McNamara, Alumni Secretary, was presented a bouquet of roses from Judge John E. Fenton, president of Suffolk, after marking 40 years service to the university.

Thousands of Suffolk students and alumni know her as "Miss Mac."

In conclusion, while the nation's finest thinkers are attempting to solve the malfunctions problem that could cost your life as a solid, or future soldier, be completely safe. A fine investment that might save your life in a difficult position is priceless. A good investment is the Mark II Combat Knife by Gerber (P.S. Not the same company which makes the billy food).
