Farmer is Elected Alumni Trustee

Anthony F. Farmer of South Boston, who holds two earned degrees from Suffolk University and formerly served as president of the General Alumni Association, has been elected to a three-year term as an alumni trustee of the University.

Farmer, long associated with the University in alumni activities, won a three-person election for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences seat on the Board of Trustees and was approved at the Board’s February meeting. He succeeds Paul A. DiPierro of Millbury, B.A. ’75, who completed his three-year term.

President and chief executive officer of Capital Financial Planning, Inc. of Norwell, Farmer received his bachelor of science degree in 1977 and a master of education in 1982. In addition to serving as president of the GAA, he also was president of the University Alumni Council and served two terms on the GAA board of directors.

A product of Suffolk’s evening division, Farmer has been recognized nationally for his activities in evening school matters. He served as president of the U.S. Association of Evening Students and received that organization’s highest honor, the Thomas Galley Award.

“We are delighted to welcome Anthony Farmer to the Board of Trustees as an alumni representative of the College

Jesse Jackson Here March 11

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, civic and political leader and two-time candidate for the presidency, will speak at the University on Wednesday, March 11 at 2 p.m.

The C. Walsh Theatre lecture is part of a program sponsored by the Museum of Afro-American History, the Boston Afro-American National Historical Site and the University.

Jackson will discuss the presidential campaign, among other topics, in his appearance which will run until approximately 3:30 p.m. and will be preceded by a reception and press conference.

The charismatic political figure was scheduled to speak at the University in February but scheduling conflicts canceled that appearance and the March 11 rescheduling has been confirmed.

Tuition Rates Set For 1992-93 Year

The University Board of Trustees has approved tuition rates for the 1992-1993 academic year.

Voting at its regular February meeting, the Board set full-time tuition in the Law School at $13,160, an increase of $1,170 or 9.76 percent.

Undergraduate tuition in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and School of Management will rise $675 to $9,150, an increase of 7.96 percent.

In announcing the increases, President David J. Sargent said they were necessary in order for the University to continue its mission of providing top quality education at an affordable cost and to remain competitive with neighboring institutions.

"While the Board of Trustees, in their careful deliberations, sincerely tried to keep the increases to a minimum, there are a number of items, such as increases in group health insurance as well as service and equipment costs, over which we have little control," Sargent said.

He noted, however, that despite the increases, the school’s undergraduate tuition remains among the lowest of any independent institution in Massachusetts and about 25 percent below the average tuition at all independent colleges and universities throughout the state.

No Debating It! Suffolk is Beanpot Champ

Boston University isn't the only Beanpot Champion in town. While the Terriers took honors again this year in the popular hockey tradition, across town a Suffolk University team was winning a Beanpot of its own - in debating.

The Suffolk team of siblings Linda and Guy DiGrande of Arlington and John Forde of West Roxbury bested a Boston College team in the final round at Northeastern University's Ell Student Center Ballroom.

Suffolk and Boston College met in the showdown after earlier competition involving the two schools and Emerson College, Harvard University and Northeastern University.

The topic of the debate was: Should Congressional terms of office be limited to 12 consecutive years? B.C. supported the resolution while Suffolk opposed it.

The judge and host of the title match was Sen. President William Bulger who agreed with Suffolk, and awarded it the decision in the program attended by more than 100 viewers.

The Suffolk trio were coached by Sarah Carroll of the Communications and Journalism department, who praised her three performers as well as department lecturer Brian Greeley, who helped coordinate and coach. Tournament directors hope to make this initial Beanpot an annual affair.
Sullivan, Brown Take Retirement

GO BOSOX -
Retiring Associate Law Librarian Pat Brown demonstrates her old baseball form for President David J. Sargent and Law School Dean Paul R. Sugarman after being presented a Red Sox jacket at her retirement party.

Sociology Chair John L. Sullivan, who's been associated with Suffolk University for 33 years, has announced his retirement effective at the close of the academic year.

Sullivan, coordinator of aviation programs, has chaired the Sociology Department for the past four years and instituted the aviation program in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

His course, Human Factors in Aviation, was the first of its kind offered by a New England college or university.

Sullivan is the second member of the Suffolk community to take retirement this year. Patricia I. Brown, longtime associate law librarian, completed her 40-year career with the University last month. She was feted at farewell parties by Dean Paul R. Sugarman and Librarian Michael Slinger.

A one-time welfare director for the Town of Hingham, Sullivan joined Suffolk in 1959 and became a full-time member of the CLAS faculty in 1962. He has done human factors studies in aviation in cooperation with American, Delta, Eastern and U.S. Airlines as well as the Federal Aviation Administration on the relationship between airline pilots and flight controllers and cockpit crew interaction.

Sullivan, who has lectured extensively on the aviation subject, is a graduate of Boston College, holding three degrees, a B.A., M.A. and his Ph.D. in higher education from that school.

A U.S. Army veteran who attained the rank of staff sergeant and later was a sergeant/major in the Army Reserves, Sullivan plans to do consulting in his field upon retirement. He and his wife, Irene, make their home in Hingham.

Dean Michael R. Ronayne of CLAS hailed Prof. Sullivan’s dedication to higher education at Suffolk University. “He brought strength to this institution as a teacher, a scholar, and department chair and he was the pioneer in the Human Factors in Aviation courses. We will miss John and wish him the best in his retirement.”

of Liberal Arts and Sciences,” said President David J. Sargent. “His efforts on behalf of Suffolk’s evening division and the University as a whole and his deep and abiding interest in higher education make him a valuable asset to our Board.”

Sargent expressed his appreciation to outgoing alumni trustee Paul DiPierro for his three-year service on the Board. “Paul served the University with distinction, notably on such trustee committees as alumni/trustee, building, college, development, student affairs and the student financial aid and enrollment management committee. We are grateful for his sincere efforts and dedication.”

Farma makes his home in South Boston with his wife, Nancy. They have five adult children.

“I am proud and happy to have been elected an alumni trustee for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences,” said Farma upon his election. “I hope that I will be able to contribute in some measure to enhancing educational opportunities for both full and part-time students, help develop programs to support the University’s mission of access and quality and promote Suffolk University to potential students.”

The Alumni-Trustee process, which calls for all three schools to have representation on the board in three-year intervals, was begun in 1976 with the election of present Board Chairman James F. Linnehan, JD ’56. A total of 17 alumni have served through the respective elections.

TOM CONNOLLY, English - He has contributed four articles for the forthcoming Cambridge Guide to American Theatre - a history of theatre in Boston, an article on the Boston Theatre and Stock Co., one on the Howard Athenaeum (the famed Old Howard), and A.R.T. actor Alvin Epstein.

GERARD J. CLARK, Law School - He presented a paper "Lawyer as Hero" at a conference, The Lawyer in Popular Culture, at the University of Texas Law School last month.

CAROL DINE, English - Her second collection of poems, Trying to Understand the Lunar Eclipses, is due out in the Spring from the Erie Street Press.

MARLENE McKinley, English - Her paper, “J.R.R. Tolkien’s Influence in the U.S.A.” which she presented at the University of Aachen, Germany Jan. 7 will be published in the 1992 issue of Inklings-Jahrbuch fur Literatur und Asthetik. It was presented at the International J.R.R. Tolkien Conference.

SUSAN THAYER, Ballotti Learning Center - Her review of a reading text for the Journal of Reading was published in the December 1991, January 1992 volume. She will also represent the National Association of Developmental Education on the Council for Advancement of Standards.

MICHAEL RUSTAD, Law School - He will be the guest luncheon speaker at the University of Missouri Kansas City Law School annual products liability seminar in March. He also testified before the U.S. Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation on a uniform product liability law.

VICTORIA DODD, Law School - She is chairperson-elect of the Law and Education section of the Association of American Law Schools.

KEN GARNI, Counseling Center - He'll be on a panel to address the topic "Innovations in Counseling" at the American College Personnel Association's annual meeting in San Francisco. He will focus on the use of internal reports in clinical work and research.

GAIL COFFLER, English - She addressed some 200 listeners at the annual literary lecture at Salem State College, which focused on the 100th anniversary of the death of Herman Melville. Her lecture was entitled "Religion and Myth: Contrary Forces in Melville’s Billy Budd."

HENRY MULCAHY, Biology - He chaired the education committee of the Northeast branch of the American Society for Microbiology, organizing and moderating the "Seventh Annual Benton Dickinson/Northeast Branch/ASM Student Research Colloquium at Harvard Medical School.

BEVERLY KAHN, CIS/SOM - She joined MIT’s Sloan School Prof. Richard Wang and University of Arizona’s Sudha Ram in putting together the first workshop on information technology and systems. It was held at the Sloan School and Kahn chaired a panel on improving data quality and was a panelist on information resource management.

LAURA BENNETT PETERSON, Law School - She is now listed in the 8th edition of the Annual Guide to Public Policy Experts, a directory published by the Washington, D.C. based Heritage Foundation think tank.

ROBERT ROSENTHAL, Communications and Journalism - He has been named to the academic advisory board of the New England Banking Institute.
SRA Now Has A Loan Feature

The University has arranged with the Teachers Insurance Annuity Association - College Retirement Equity Fund (TIAA CREF) to offer a Group Supplemental Retirement Annuity (GSRA). This new arrangement allows you to borrow against your TIAA SRA account. The accumulation in your TIAA SRA account must equal 110% of the loan value and is kept as collateral for the loan while continuing to earn the current interest rate. The minimum for the loan is $1000 and the maximum for all such loans is $50,000.

The loan cannot exceed 45% of the combined SRA, TIAA and CREF accumulations.

The pay back period for the loan is one to five years with the exception of a loan for the purchase of a primary residence which may be paid back over a 10 year period. You may pay off the loan early as well. Payments are made directly to TIAA on a quarterly basis.

The initial rate of interest is based on the Moody's Corporate Second Yield Average for the calendar month ending two months earlier. For instance, the interest rate for the month of February is 8.93% which reflects the average at the end of December. The actual rate charged can change once every three months if the Moody’s rate increases or decreases by 1/2 of 1% or more per year.

If you default on the loans the ramifications can be severe. Not only would you have to pay regular taxes on the unpaid amount but you may have to pay a 10% penalty tax as well. You might also have to forfeit your participation in the University Standard Retirement Plan for one year. That's a harsh slap on the hand!

Essentially you are borrowing from yourself. A plan of this sort may be used to save for a down payment on a home, a child's college education and ultimately your own retirement.

Your contributions to the SRA are taken before Federal taxes are deducted, so your taxable income is reduced. You are then making those tax savings work for you. Eventually taxes are paid, then you receive the money as income.

A similar loan program has been available through UNUM. The rate of interest on a loan through UNUM is currently 7%. Loans can only be taken on money attributable to your contributions, not the University's, and an amount equal to the value of the loan is held in a reserved account where it earns reduced rate of 3.5% interest.

For more information contact Dan McDonald in the Human Resources Office at Ext. 8415. If you are already contributing to an SRA, you need not do anything until you want a loan. At that time, contact TIAA-CREF at 1-800-842-2776.

Office Procedures Manual

After two years, it's time to update our Office Procedures Manual, the booklet which describes how to book a conference room and complete a Physical Plant work order or certain Business Office forms. If you have any suggestions for changes or additions to the manual please send them to Toni Tinberg in the Human Resources Office before March 13.

Staff Training Programs

The Spring training schedule will kick off this March with several exciting and informative programs. Flourishing in a Multi-Cultural Workplace, a workshop designed to assist in developing skills to improve your comfort and ability in working with people different from yourself, will meet on March 5 and March 12. Effective Supervision for Supervisors and Managers meets on March 3, April 16 and June 6.

Other courses offered this semester include the two-part Introduction to the Basics of Graphic Design and Harvard Business Graphics; and Coaching for Improved Performance. A variety of computer training classes will also be offered.

Watch the mail for your Staff Training and Development Program Brochure describing these and other courses in more detail.

The Human Resources Office now has a copy of Mavis Beacon Teaches Typing, a PC-based program tailored to your individual needs. If you are interested in developing or upgrading your typing/word processing skills, please call the Human Resources Office at Ext. 8415 to arrange for a week-long "practice session" with the program.

Call For Job Opportunities

In an effort to keep the University community better informed about jobs available on campus, the Human Resources Office has set up a telephone line with a listing of open positions for the week. Call Ext. 8055 for a recorded message describing all open jobs for the week. We will continue to post job opportunities in the Human Resources Office, on the seventh floor of the Sawyer Building, on the second floor of Fenton, and in the lobbies of the Donahue and Ridgeway buildings.
Grad Programs in Accounting, Taxation Are Now Offered

The Board of Trustees has approved two new graduate programs in the School of Management, a master of science in accounting and a master of science in taxation. Also approved was a graduate diploma in public accounting.

According to Morris McInnes, chair of the Accounting Department, the MSA is designed to prepare people for successful professional careers, providing concepts, technical knowledge and skills for immediate effectiveness. “At the same time, it will establish a foundation for continual lifetime learning and development to meet future challenges as peoples’ careers evolve,” he said.

The Master of Science in Taxation reflects the growing need in society for expert tax advice from the level of the individual to the management of companies. McInnes says the MST requires students to master the necessary technical knowledge and the effective communication of tax advice.

The graduate diploma in public accounting comes on the heels of an increase by the public accounting profession in recruiting non-accounting graduates to meet its staffing needs. It offers an accelerated focused economic absence to be qualified as a CPA.

All three of the programs will commence with the Fall, 1992 semester.

The curriculum for both the MSA and the MST is designed to build on an accounting baccalaureate degree. Candidates with a bachelor’s degree who are not accounting majors can be admitted but additional course work will be required.

Promotions Approved, Tenure Granted

February Board of Trustee actions included the approval of a number of promotions.

Gloria Boone, associate professor of Communications and Journalism, was promoted to professor; Laura Hurtienne, associate professor of Humanities and Modern Languages, was promoted to professor; Bette Mandl, associate professor of English, to professor; Alexandra Todd, associate professor of Sociology, to professor; Oktay Demir, assistant professor of Physics and Engineering, to associate professor; Marilyn Jurich, assistant professor of English, to associate professor; Dr. Irina Peterburgsky, assistant professor of Math and Computer Science, to associate professor; David Silverstein, associate professor of Business Law, to professor.

Tenure was granted to Gail Coffler of English, Jack Demick, chair of Psychology, Deborah Geisler of Communications and Journalism, and Nizamettin Aydin of Marketing.

The status of Susan Thayer was changed from staff to associate professor of Education and Human Services.

Marin Scordato, associate professor of law, was granted a leave of absence to be visiting professor of law at Southwestern University School of Law in Los Angeles, Calif.

Second Elderhostel To Be Held

Flush from a very successful Elderhostel program this past Fall, the University is hosting its second such activity, running March 8 - 14.

Maureen Dooley, associate controller, is coordinating the program, which will feature the same faculty that took part in the Fall Elderhostel: Lauri Umansky of History, Tracey Boisseu, adjunct faculty of History, Andrea Ortisi of CLAS computer lab, and Ian Westmacott of Math and Computer Science.

Dooley said there will be a third Elderhostel program held in May with a different academic agenda. That one will include Communications and Journalism’s Gerry Peary teaching a film history course and David Silverstein of SOM teaching American Commercial Law.

Griffin Fellows

John Griffin, who died in April of 1987, was the president of the Joseph P. Manning Tobacco Co. and the Jamaica Plain Cooperative Bank. He was a Suffolk trustee for nearly 50 years. At the request of founder Gleason L. Archer, he helped organize the curriculum of both CLAS and SOM in the thirties.

A graduate of Harvard University and Harvard Graduate School of Business, Griffin, in addition to his long service as a Suffolk trustee, was clerk of the corporation for many years.
