The Coalition for New Politics

by Katie Paris

The initial reactions to the posters announcing the establishment of the Coalition for New Politics, ranged from an enthusiastic, "it's about time" to the mental trembling of others (students, faculty, and administration alike) who thought of the fiasco at Columbia and the riots which have become an annual event at Berkeley.

Qualms concerning this new group can be quickly alleviated by speaking to any member of the Coalition, or better still, by attending one of their meetings.

Peter Zimmer, chairman of the meeting I attended, pointed out that Coalition is not attempting to install students in administrative affairs; the purpose of the Bill of Rights is to insure that no one person has control over the flow of ideas in the school. Of particular interest to the Coalition for New Politics is the matter of freedom of speech. The Coalition feels that any Suffolk student has the right to disseminate information to fellow Suffolk students. But the Coalition wants to add to this freedom the guarantee that no individual or group material would not be sanctioned. In other words, what is wanted from a Student Bill of Rights is a redistribution of the sanctions which are currently imposed on students who actively involved in the community surrounding them. From these two goals, was derived the establishment of a committee to investigate various means of accomplishing them.

One committee is now engaged in drafting a Student Bill of Rights to be presented to the Student Government. This bill will include a recommendation that a new Student Court be formed to hear the cases of any student accused of breaking some school rule, and that students may make recommendations that a new Bill of Rights be presented to the Student Government. The new Bill of Rights is a redistribution of the authority of the administration. In other words, what the Coalition seeks is to replace the Student Court with a Student Court formed to hear the cases of any student accused of breaking some school rule, and that students may make recommendations that a new Bill of Rights be presented to the Student Government. This bill will include a recommendation that a new Student Court be formed to hear the cases of any student accused of breaking some school rule, and that students may make recommendations that a new Bill of Rights be presented to the Student Government. The new Bill of Rights is a redistribution of the authority of the administration.

Another program of the Coalition will be draft counseling. Two representatives (cont. on p. 6)
Once upon a time (about a year ago) Suffolk could be more appropriately called the City of the Dead, and the administration would have had to watch its interference with our student body. But this year a new face of gloom breeds the true nature of this once active group. If we examine the problem a little closer we seem to find that there is one person who is directly responsible for this trouble and that is Mr. Corona. It seems Mr. Corona's forte lies in the nature of acting. He has not been observed when you read about when you were small— the numbers will be changed. This is not meant to belittle Don Toto, the Club's current president. Personally I think he is more than able to handle his obligation, but I must add that I expected him to show a bit more aggressiveness when it came to leading our group through a successful year.

The third possibility for the problem I see present in the Drama Club is the merger between Suffolk and Emerson. Granted, he is from Emerson College. He has been loaned to us as part of the merger between Suffolk and Emerson. It is from the efforts of John D. Koller, our ex-director. It perhaps a qualified person in his field, one cannot neglect the validity to an antichrist. There doesn't anyone speak up and say what they feel? I know a second area of blame could be the president. The holder of this office must be a capable leader in any club, but for a Drama Club he must also be a general handymen who is respected as an actor, a technician and a businessman who can cope with financial matters involved in putting on a show. That is not meant to offend Mr. Corona, the Club's current president. Personally I think he is more than able to handle his obligation, but I must add that I expected him to show a bit more aggressiveness when it came to leading our group through a successful year.

The next logical question is who is in charge of the Drama Club now? The answer to this leads us to the fourth and final area of this problem. Here is one I feel to be most unfortunate. This is in the person of Mr. Al Corona, temporary director of the Drama Club and Staff member from Emerson College. He has been loaned to us as part of the merger between Suffolk and Emerson. Granted, he is perhaps a qualified person in his field, one cannot neglect the fact that he has failed to re-establish the close-knit camaraderie and binding friendship previously found from the efforts of John D. Koller, our ex-director. It seems Mr. Corona's forte lies in the area of acting. He has neither the force nor the major problem I feel to be most unfortunate. That is, the power of verbal authority to make people jump into action at his command. He should be able to actively organize an organization as the Drama Club become victimized by faculty administrative planning? Surely someone must be in a position to do something about the dilemma. I fear, however, that if something is not done— and done quickly—that the Club members will become like the story of Ten Little Indians you read about when you were small—the numbers will dwindle until then—-there will be none!
The following article was written in response to The Campus Caucus which appeared in the October 28th issue of The Journal. - The Editor

I was greatest interested in David Mehegan’s GOP: MORE OLD THAN GRAND article. As one who has also been interested in the political system of our country, I was nevertheless dismayed by some of the “facts” which were presented and some of the trends analyzed.

In consequence, I should like to point out that, as a Nelson Rockefeller supporter this year, and as one who has supported the Republican Party’s candidates in the past and who will vote that way as of age 31, I nevertheless feel compelle to answer some of the charges made by David Mehegan in his article. Herezwith, are some of the statements and observations as a rebuttal to some of Mr. Mehegan’s charges.

On Spino Agnew... “These days, people are too advanced, too showoff, too well educated to be so easily manipulated by even the sharpest of politicians.” Nonsense. What about the “peace pledges” for the recent election of one of the most sharp and manipulative politicians of all, President Lyndon B. Johnson? Also, Mr. Mehegan should recall President Lincoln, “a wise statesman,” who said, “You can fool some of the people some of the time and all of the people some of the time, but you can’t fool all of the people all of the time.” Thus, manipulative politicians can be voted out of office by an enlightened public.

“The new Nixon... Was there ever a “new Hamphrey” or a “new Johnson”? There seems to be a lack of general enthusiasm for these men, but instead, a desire for the new politics of new men and ideas (i.e., a Kennedy or McCarthy for the Democrats and a Percy or Lindsay for the Republicans). Also, the oft-repeated frustration of the average voter this year... I’ll vote for the lesser evil.”

Nixon believes that his campaign theme is the perfect blend to appeal to all factions... Nixon is not first in this regard – Mr. Mehegan should remember President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a master at the blending of factions and coalition politics of labor, intellectuals, liberals, big city machines, etc. and President Lyndon B. Johnson, a consensus president, to many different factions, though less successful than President Roosevelt.

“One of the classic jokes of American political history has been Herbert Hoover’s assertion that “prosperity is just around the corner.” The origin of this statement has been disputed and was attributed to President Hoover by his political opponents. For this, see Lyndon B. Johnson’s book on Herbert Hoover.

Does Mr. Mehegan know the following about Herbert Hoover and the Depression...

“President Hoover’s work in food relief in Belgium and Northern France during World War I... The implication that President Hoover was somehow a “reactionary” or “conservative” who “did nothing” in his years as President. His accomplishent were the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Farm Board, the beginning of Public Works (two billion dollars was spent before he left office), the Hoover Dam construction, the Home Loan Bank Act, the negotiations for a...”

“The filthy hecklers that dog the steps of Vice President Humphrey and Senator Muskie are not interested in debating with the candidates; they are interested in drowning out the candidates, in rejecting their right to say their piece. Those crews make a disgusting mockery of political discourse.

Similarly, many of the students who want to “restructure” the university are not seeking to right admitted wrongs (some doubts, are sincere about it). They want to tear it down. Though they are for better race relations, not sure what they would...”

Review and Outlook

The following article has been submitted by Kevin Mitchell. It is a reprint of an article which appeared in the Wall Street Journal on October 30. The views and opinions expressed here are not meant to represent those of this editor of her staff.

In an age racked by violence it may seem trivial indeed to speak of the decline of manners. Yet that falling-off is symptomatic of a concurrent decline of tolerance and broad-mindedness. In such circumstances the new incivility is both notable and disturbing.

Still, the growth of boorishness is a highly visible phenomenon today, possibly all the more so because until recently many of us had regarded our society as continually improving in civility and broad-mindedness. In such circumstances the new incivility is both notable and disturbing.

White prejudice toward Negroes is answered, on the part of some Negro spokesmen, by an enlarged black tactics which deny any virtue in white civilization and evidently wants to obliterate it. Whereas mutual accommodation is the basic hope for better race relations, not sure what they would...

In summary...
Sociology Department Moves Forward
by Richard Field

The important role sociology plays in today's highly complex society has not been overlooked by Suffolk University. There are many fields, some quite new, for which a background in Sociology is either a prerequisite or an asset. Some examples are urban development, criminology and corrections, social work and its branches (psychiatry, medical, correctional, family service, child welfare, and community organization), educational problems, industrial relations, market research, public opinion polling, and others.

The Sociology Department has come a long way since its early days when Sociology was grouped with Economics, Government and History, and consisted of a two man staff.

The Department's first chairman was the late Dr. Frank Buckley. Dr. Buckley retired in 1957 and was replaced by the Department's present chairman, D. Donal Fiorelli. Mr. Fiorelli has been attached to the university since 1946. He is the founder of the Suffolk University In Service Training Program for student training, which was instituted in 1949-50.

One of the first undergraduate programs of its kind in the Boston area, it enables students to combine field observation and experience acquired in social agencies with classroom study.

The Department has developed a Social Work Major designed for those students desiring an early start in the social work field. This sequence will feature personal guidance and concern of employment opportunities, admission to professional schools of social work and promotion of opportunities through professional advancement.

In addition, the Department is placing emphasis on sources in race and nationality, social problems, stratification, population, community analysis and urban social problems. These courses reflect the growing concern of Sociology with problems of the Inner City. What lies ahead for the Department? The addition of two Full-time faculty members bringing the Department's total to nine, the implementation of several new programs in the social work and urban studies sequences, and the development of a Sociological data bank, which will enable students to perform computer applications in connection with their course work.

The Sociology Department has set high goals for itself and is moving in the direction of fulfilling them.

The Suffolk University Drama Club is proud to announce its first major production this year, THE GLASS MENAGERIE, by Tennessee Williams. This important drama concerning the illusions and unreality of a mother and her daughter is being directed by Mr. Al Corona, an instructor in theatre at Emerson College. The scenery and make-up is being designed by Mark Craven, a graduate student at Suffolk, while the lighting will be designed by Don Toto, a senior and president of the Drama Club. Donna Assad will design the costumes.

The play stars Dorothy Smith, a thoroughly talented actress as Amanda, the mother, Kathleen Isbel is one of the best actresses in the history of Suffolk theatre, and her performance will be excellent. Joseph Pizato will mark his debut as an actor in the role of Tom. The narrator and brother to Laura, while Bill Dwyer, of THE SANDBOX and THE PROBLEM fame will be the gentleman caller. All in all, with such a capable and experienced cast, as well as an excellent director, the production has all the markings of being an absolute success.

The production will be provided free of charge to all students showing a Suffolk I.D. Card at the Box Office when picking up their tickets. For non-Suffolk students, the fee will be $1.00. You are cautioned to obtain your tickets early as these are reserved seats only, and early indications are that the show will be sold out.

The box-office is located in the rear of the theatre, and hours will be posted. The Drama Club office is situated in the Dramatics Room under the Box Office.

The department is planning a series of other productions during the academic year, including two full-time faculty members bringing the Department's total to nine, the implementation of several new programs in the social work and urban studies sequences, and the development of a Sociological data bank, which will enable students to perform computer applications in connection with their course work.

St. Lawrence Seaway, and the moratorium on War Debts in Germany.

"The attacks by President Roosevelt on the extravagant budget and too many Federal agencies by Vice President John N. Garner in 1932. Later, those very criticisms of some of the above programs that balanced the budget were accepted by the New Deal as part of such recovery that the New Deal was won to achieve. Now the continuation of depression despite a wide range of initiative by President Roosevelt to the outbreak of World War II in March, and his work on the streamlining of the government by the Hoover Commission under President Trumel."

Other unfortunate statements by other Presidents have included the following, such as President Franklin D. Roosevelt's cancellation of the London Conference of 1940 in Boston: "I have said this before, but I shall say it again — it is a fact, and, again, it is a fact, that your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign war." President Johnson in October 1964, "We're not about to send American boys ten thousand miles away from home to be doing what Asian boys ought to be doing to protect themselves." Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew are doomed to re-election and re-nomination as statistically overwhelming as the last. 1946 was an exception with Senator Goldwater, and all evidence points to a much closer race between Mr. Nixon and Mr. Humphrey.

"This is still the orthodox Republican line: the protection of private enterprise and restriction of government... Like the Democratic Party, the Republican cannot just depend on any one group such as business, but must rely on many individuals and groups, or the Party would soon wither and die."

"The young Republican Party founded in Jackson, Michigan in 1854. How about Ripon, Wisconsin in 1854? Both cities have claims as to the Republican Party's origin."

"The party should never be doing as President. The Party regularly favored victories, on the eve of the Republican Convention. Governor Rockefeller's greater support with the people came from Independents and disaffected Democrats, similar to General Eisenhower's support.

All these statements point out the inconsistencies that exist in the fascinating world of politics. I would hope that Mr. Meighan would understand the complexities involved in politics and history, and the necessity to perceive certain relationships if he does (despite his favoritism for Vice President Agnew). He can at least see that the opposition has a valid claim as his own to the average reader's attentions.

The student jabbed his hand on his forehead and then there were Catholics.

"They're Buddhists. Both of them." The student stared at him.

"Look, Ky Right," I said. "Wrong."

Nothing could be done. Sober tone-Why haven't we got a college union? One of the answers is quite obvious to me. All the Administration has to do is put forth in support of the war, or does he sit there and say, "We will not seriously consider it;" he will not put effort into the war, he will not do anything to help the war. This little episode, perhaps as well as any, demonstrates why it is that the death of the debate, the death of the discussion, that is the condition we must face. The issue has polarized to the point where there is only for or against, and not to the point where we can think for ourselves and act accordingly on our own logic and will. But as no Americans could say that they are doing, or could do any kind of detention camps established for Japanese-Americans during World War Two. Likewise no president will be able to consider how to deal with it. he will not consider it. In order to have you have can expect nothing from the Administration, or Don't you care?"

The second victim of my somewhat "brutal" and "unjustified attack" is that fine specimen of a man, the Suffolk University custodian (alias the phantom). He never seems to be anywhere around when there is any work to be done. He is either too lazy or too slow to do anything. I have often wondered what he gets paid for, in fact, I am still wondering. Where is he? Does he crawl into the woodwork when there is any work to be done, or does he sit on his fat backside in the maintenance office on long day. All I see are the filthy corridors, the overflowing ashtrays, and the sickening bathrooms. (There is no need to enter the sickening bathrooms anyway, they are usually improperly equipped.)

Between those students who possess the ambition to dirty the university and those custodians who lack the ambition to clean it, we have the makings of the finest educational garbage heap in Boston. Fellow Suffolk students, take pride, our day of recognition is almost at hand!

Is it not surprising to find students who are so disinterested and unresponsive in the only logical and intelligent way of the individual and of human life itself.

We don't know whether the present disorderliness is a passing phase; maybe it is. Certainly we don't know of any pat remedy for it. But we do think it is so surprising and so dismaying that we must frequently erupt out of these emotional storms, to see the watered-down and bigoted attitudes.

And it is hard to see that it bodes well for the country when so many people actually and sincerely believe that there is no real political system but the exercise of the individual and of human life itself.

Sport News

The Suffolk Rams open their basketball season this year on December 3, against Babson at 8 p.m. The Rams are looking forward to another winning season, which includes a pretty rigorous schedule.

The Suffolk team is led by captain Dave Helberg. Dave is a 1965 graduate of Cambridge High and Latin. An outstanding player in high school, he made the Suburban All-Star team in 1965.

Last year the 6'5" center led the Rams in rebounds with 255, set a new school record. He also finished second in the scoring department with a 19.4 average.

In anticipating the success of the team Dave seems pretty confident about his winning.” We lost a lot of hullabaloo last year, but this brings up the question of lack of experience. The team this year has a lot of spirit and good speed which will help us make up for experience needed.”

Two players that the Suffolk coaches feel may help the Rams are Rich Godfrey who "don’t play much yet but his game is quite improved, and forward Tom Sullivan who should add a little muscle."

"A lot of the guys," according to Dave, "are keyed up already for the Lowell Christmas Tourney, which takes place at Lowell Tech December 20 and 21. A win here could give the team a lot of momentum for the rest of the season."

"First we must beat Babson Capt. Dave Helberg which is a real strong team. They've done a lot of recruiting outside the Boston area. Suffolk and Babson have been close rivals in the past with many tight scoring games. Last year both teams won games by only 4 points."

of the Resistance have been training interested students in draft counseling and following four basic lesson meetings and follow-up practice sessions, these students will be available to any man on campus who has a question concerning his constitutional rights in the draft system.

The members of the Coalition for New Politics have a common political philosophy which reflects their past support of Bobb Kennedy and Gene McCarthy. And it is about this more liberal attitude was implemented into Suffolk on an active level. As I have already mentioned, previously noted political groups have pretty much limited themselves to passing out literature and buttons concerning their party's candidates. An active political group on campus will encourage others to follow suit, utilizing their own political views. The Coalition's views and objectives will not appeal to many on campus, but it will force those people to stand up and make their opinions known. The compliant student who doesn't get involved simply does not belong in society, which is a real strong team.

In forecasting the team's, Capt. Dave conservatively predicts, "with the right break- we should win more than we predict, "with the right breaks we should win more than we win."

The opener with Babson should be an exciting game. All students are urged to attend and help the team off to a good start.

Other sports news include the Suffolk Gold Team which won the Greater New England Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at the Saddle Hill Country Club in Hopkinton.

The Suffolk team finished with 435 points after three days of competition, followed by Brandeis University 351, Clark University of Worcester 24 and Bentley 22. The individual medalist honors were shared by Suffolk's Randy Gilis and Brandeis' Arnold Wexler for 54 holes.

An organized tennis team is in the making at Suffolk. Some tentative matches have already been scheduled for next spring, and a few practices have been held already. Anyone interested in joining this prospective team should contact Mr. Mattis.
