

Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy

Volume 12 | Issue 1

Article 4

1-1-2007

Editor's Note

Jenna Phipps
Suffolk University Law School

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.suffolk.edu/jtaa-suffolk>

Part of the Litigation Commons

Recommended Citation

12 Suffolk J. Trial & App. Advoc. xv (2007)

This Notes is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Collections @ Suffolk. It has been accepted for inclusion in Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy by an authorized editor of Digital Collections @ Suffolk. For more information, please contact dct@suffolk.edu.

EDITOR'S NOTE

To the Reader:

I am pleased to present Volume XII of the Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy. This volume contains articles pertinent to practitioners, educators, and judges in Massachusetts and on a national level. First, the article by the Honorable David Lowy and Ms. Katherine Bowles Dudich delves into the evolving Confrontation Clause jurisprudence, providing some guidance for Massachusetts practitioners in using recent cases to best represent their clients' interests. Next, Mr. RayMing Chang's timely article posits that the plain view doctrine should not be applied to digital evidence. Finally, this volume also presents several student pieces on wide-ranging topics. These pieces explore just a few of the various issues currently confronting trial and appellate attorneys.

The Suffolk Journal of Trial and Appellate Advocacy is a continuing project of the Moot Court Board at Suffolk University Law School. Members of the Board have the unique experience of running and participating in trial and appellate competitions, offering insight into how issues such as those we explore in our writing may come up in practice. This volume of the Journal would not be possible without the dedication of each member of the Moot Court Board. I am particularly grateful for the year-long efforts of Managing Editor Mike Koehler and Associate Managing Editor Andrea Messmer. Finally, thanks to Moot Court Board President David Wittmann for his assistance in successfully integrating the Journal into the rest of the Board's activities.

Jenna Phipps
Editor-in-Chief

