When the First Years of Discussion Begin

Discussing fiction, one student commented, "I read about a book called 'The Catcher in the Rye' and found it very interesting. I would like to see more books like that." Another student added, "I enjoyed reading 'Fahrenheit 451' and would like to see more books like that, too." The discussion was lively and engaging, with students sharing their thoughts and ideas on the topics at hand.

SU Carries Home Award from N.M.U.N. Conference

The Journal is pleased to announce that SU has carried home an award from the National Model United Nations (N.M.U.N.) Conference, held in Washington, D.C. The award was presented for outstanding performance in the area of international relations. SU was represented by a team of four students, who worked together to develop a comprehensive understanding of the issues at hand and to present a well-researched and well-argued position on the topic.

There is always a hard core of students at Suffolk who really care about what goes on here. This is usually the same group of people who continually find themselves doing all the work involved in making a group project a success. They are very organized and are able to manage all the details of projects and events. If you are looking for a project that will be successful, then you really should consider this group of students. They offer you the best chance of success.
Modern Language Developments

By Linda M. Freshley

In a blog post, Freshley discusses Suffolk's Modern Language Department's efforts to improve language instruction. She mentions a seminar held during the fall semester to discuss improvements in the language curriculum. Freshley notes that the seminar aimed to address student feedback and incorporate new teaching methods. She also highlights ongoing efforts to enhance language education, including the integration of technology and multimedia resources to support language learning. Freshley concludes by emphasizing the importance of continuous assessment and adaptation in modern language instruction to meet the diverse needs of students.

Would you pay a little something to get through your next language exam?

At Berlitz, we have a secret device for getting you through language tests.

It's called a Berlitz extractor. It makes language studies of enormous benefit to anyone through dozens of seemingly impossible exams. All you do is fix one lecture and how happy you are, then be sat with you and virtually believe you until you actually speak the language. You understood.

Of course, all the costs deductible.

This would make no difference to passing a final or finalizing a letter. A letter price of a third price is not.
