Enrollment Increases 16% for Fall Term

Suffolk University total enrollment in its College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and School of Management was up a booming 16 per cent for the Fall semester.

Figures from the Office of Dean of Enrollment and Retention Management Marguerite J. Dennis show increases in nearly all areas including a 20.3 increase in the number of new freshmen (from 370 in 1993 to 445) and 22 per cent jump in grad admissions.

“We are pleased to report that for the 11th consecutive semester Suffolk University has increased its enrollment,” said Dean Dennis. “I express my thanks to everyone in the division for their support and hard work and to the faculty for their commitment to retention.”

Dean Dennis credited intensified recruiting, advertising and marketing for the increases as well as a heavy emphasis on retention. Graduation statistics have increased over the past four years from 809 graduates to 1021. In 1993 the University received an Outstanding Retention Management Award from Noel Levitz. This year the University was recognized for its special advising program. The University has received national recognition over the past two years, being named by Barron’s as one of the “300 Best College Buys” and most recently being chosen by Money Magazine as one of the 10 best private commuter colleges in the United States.

Suffolk Police Save a Life in Sawyer Building

It was as dramatic and heart-tugging an event ever to occur in Suffolk’s Sawyer Building.

Scores of Suffolk students and faculty stood transfixed as University Police Capt. John Pagliarulo and Sgt. Mike Ryan sought to revive a 70-year old West Roxbury man who had collapsed moments earlier on Ashburton Place.

The witnesses cried and prayed aloud for the victim, Edward O’Donnell, and cheered when he was revived.

“He had no pulse and was not breathing, but we brought him back,” said an emotionally drained Pagliarulo, who had rushed to O’Donnell’s assistance after he was carried into the Sawyer Library.

Looking into O’Donnell’s eyes, he noted that O’Donnell “wasn’t with us.” The Suffolk captain got down on his knees and applied mouth to mouth resuscitation. He was joined by Sgt. Ryan who applied chest compressions.

Pagliarulo, who is a CPR instructor, said that O’Donnell reminded him of his late father, who died in March of cancer.

“The same way I loved my dad was what I felt 100 percent looking into his eyes,” he later told the Boston Globe. “I knew he was somebody’s dad,” added Pagliarulo who implored the victim with cries of “Come on, Ed,” as he worked to revive him.

O’Donnell was taken to Mass. General Hospital after being revived and was visited that night by Pagliarulo and expressed his gratitude to the Suffolk police head. O’Donnell is recovering at the hospital.

Magistrate Judge Bowler Appointed Suffolk Trustee

Magistrate Judge Marianne B. Bowler of the U.S. District Court in Boston, has been appointed to a five-year term on the Suffolk University Board of Trustees, Board Chairman James F. Linnehan has announced.

Judge Bowler, the first woman president of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association, was sworn in at the November 9 meeting of the board.

A 1967 graduate of Regis College, she received her juris doctor degree from Suffolk cum laude in 1976, ranking fifth in her class. She was appointed to her present position in 1990 after a distinguished career of 12 years as an assistant U.S. attorney.

Her work as a trial attorney in the civil division won her wide recognition, and in 1986 she was selected by the Attorney General to direct the civil and appellate educational programs for all assistant U.S. Attorneys at the Attorney General's Advocacy Institute in Washington, D.C.

"We are honored and delighted to welcome Marianne Bowler to the Board of Trustees," said Chairman Linnehan in making the announcement. "Her deep commitment to Suffolk University Law School, to the courts, the U.S. Attorney's Office and the legal profession have earned her immeasurable respect from colleagues and we look forward to her service and association with Suffolk University."

Justice Bowler was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree at last May's commencement exercises.

Since the rescue, which was later covered by virtually all of the television and print media in the area, Pagliarulo has received letters from all over New England and from a number of present and former Suffolk employees.

President Sargent lauded Pagliarulo and his department.

"I am very proud of Capt. John Pagliarulo, Sgt. Mike Ryan and the Suffolk University police for their act of heroism in saving the life of Edward O'Donnell after his collapse outside of the Sawyer Building," said Sargent. "Their intelligence, confidence, compassion and caring in dealing with this crisis was truly commendable and admirable. I thank them on behalf of the Suffolk University community for being such wonderful representatives of the school. I also extend my sincere best wishes to Mr. O'Donnell for a speedy and complete recovery."

Fenton Addresses Law Alumni at Annual Dinner

More than 300 Suffolk University Law School alumni enthusiastically welcomed new Law School Dean John E. Fenton Jr. at the annual law dinner Dec. 1 at the Park Plaza Hotel.

Fenton was the keynote speaker and described his role leading the Law School into the 21st century as "the most exciting thing that has happened to me." He called upon the alumni to help Suffolk reach its goals and make it one of America's finest law schools.

"Suffolk has never forgotten its roots and always been the school with a heart," he observed. It is a great, great honor for me to be dean of this Law School."

Michael K. Gillis, J.D. '82, president of the Suffolk Law School Alumni Association, served as toastmaster and presented alumni awards to State Sen. W. Paul White of Dorchester, J.D. '73, and William F. Kennedy Jr., J.D. '79, chief counsel to the House Ways and Means Committee.

White received the Outstanding Alumni Achievement Award and Kennedy was cited for Outstanding Alumni Service.

Headtable guests were President David J. Sargent; Board of Trustees Chairman James F. Linnehan; Dean Fenton; Gillis; Law School Alumni Association Vice President Stephen B. Rosales, J.D. '80; and Association Clerk Anthony K. Stankiewicz, J.D. '87.
Suffolk and the City Team up to Assist High School Students

Suffolk University and the City of Boston have teamed up to provide high school students and their parents with a helping hand in preparing for college. They kicked it off with a presentation ceremony Nov. 3 at West Roxbury High School and followed it up with a visit to Matignon High School in North Cambridge as a parochial school outlet.

Mayor Thomas M. Menino, Suffolk President David J. Sargent, School Superintendent Lois Harrison-Jones and West Roxbury High Headmaster Donald Pellegrini met with students and accepted brochures and videotapes providing information on the college experience. Some 30,000 brochures entitled “Insider Guides” will be distributed to every junior and senior in Boston high schools.

The guides, prepared by Suffolk Dean of Enrollment and Retention Management Margaret J. Dennis, provide advice on choosing the right college or university, financing a college education and completing the freshman year. Each school will also be provided with a videotape version covering the material.

President Sargent, noting that Mayor Menino places highest priority on the educational needs of Boston students, observed, “The mayor has actively sought the support of Boston universities and colleges to help students go on to college and Suffolk is pleased to assist in that effort by providing these materials to students and their parents.”

Mayor Menino also appeared at Suffolk University to address nearly 200 students as part of a 10-day CareerFest ’94 program put on by Career Services and Cooperative Education. The event is designed to heighten awareness of career/job issues.

Menino, in a talk, “What Happens Next,” told of his own career history including a 20-year span between high school graduation and college. He began his college education while he was a member of the Boston City Council.

James P. Whitters III Named Services Director in Law School

Suffolk Law School has a new career services director.

He is James P. Whitters III, a partner in the Boston law firm of Peabody & Brown. The Trinity College and Boston College Law School graduate will be working part-time until February when he will assume his post full-time.

Whitters joined Peabody & Brown in 1991 after spending 22 years at the firm of Gaston & Snow. His present firm has a strong presence of Suffolk Law School alumni.

Mary Karen Rogers

The career services post had been unfilled until John E. Fenton Jr. assumed the deanship. He had made it one of his priorities upon accepting the position.

Under the new career services structure long-time assistant Mary Karen Rogers has been appointed associate director of career services and Maureen Ricciuti has been named career counselor.

Hull School Charter Gets Approval

Gov. William Weld formally awarded a charter to South Shore Charter School in Hull on Dec. 9th. The school, one of the newly created alternative public schools, will open fully in September, 1995. A number of the Suffolk community have been involved in the school’s development which will emphasize individualized project-based learning, a strong school to work component and significant involvement by parents and mentors from the community.

Back in 1992, Suffolk President David J. Sargent and Hull School Superintendent Claire Sheff formed an educational collaboration aimed at enriching educational experiences for the students.

Newsmakers

Harry Zohn, professor of German at Brandeis University and long-time Suffolk trustee. He has been awarded the Gold Medal of Honor by the City of Vienna, his native city in that Austrian capital. Zohn, who migrated to this country as a youth and received his bachelor of arts degree from Suffolk in 1946, was cited at Vienna’s City Hall for his accomplishments as an educator, author, translator, lecturer and cultural mediator. Dr. Zohn has served as a professor of German at Brandeis since 1951, and is the oldest member of its faculty in terms of service.

After completing his Suffolk education, Zohn earned a master of arts in education from Clark and an M.A. and Ph.D in Germanic languages from Harvard. A Suffolk trustee since 1983, Zohn has been honored previously abroad. He was decorated by the Federal Republic of Germany in 1960 and by the Republic of Austria in 1984.

John Berg, Government. He will be off to England next month where he will present a paper, “Prospects for More Parties in the United States in the Year 2000,” at an international conference on party politics to be held in Manchester Jan. 13-15.

Paul Tanklefsky, Career Services and Cooperative Education. He has co-authored the second edition of How to Get a Job in Greater Boston resulting in a talk show appearance on WBNW, 590 on the dial, the new all-business station with host Janine Graaf. He was also featured in the Boston Globe’s Northwest Weekly Sunday section.

Carl Merrill, Biology. He recently had a paper published in the Journal of Comparative Physiology. Dealing with the reliability of chemoreceptor cell response, it was co-authored with Rainer Voigt and Jelle Atema of the Boston University Marine Program in Woods Hole, Mass.

Alexandra Todd, Sociology. Her new book, Double Vision: An East-West Collaboration for Coping with Cancer (Wesleyan University Press) examines health care delivery as well as her son’s battle with cancer. It has been written up in both the Boston Globe and the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Gloria Boone, Communications and Journalism. Her article on intercultural religious conversion strategies is to be published in The Journal of Religion and Communication. She also presented a paper at the Speech Communication Association Conference in New Orleans in November.

Deborah Geisler and Edward Harris, Communications and Journalism. They presented a paper on trial by press (from Sam Shepard to Tonya Harding) at the Speech Communication Convention. Geisler is editor of the National Forensics Journal.

Payroll Office will begin to automatically include the value of your tuition in your salary when calculating tax withholding amounts.

IRS regulations do allow an exemption from taxation for courses which are job-related. This regulation requires that the course maintain or improve your skills in performing your present job or is mandated to meet the express requirements of the University or the requirements of applicable law or regulation, imposed as a condition of maintaining your job.

Courses taken to meet the minimum requirements of your present job or courses that qualify you for a new trade or business are not considered job-related under IRS rules. Further information about the job-related tax exemption is found on the "Tuition Free Course Approval" form available from the Human Resources Office.

Minardi pointed out that the tuition value of employee undergraduate courses and of courses taken by dependent children and spouses will not be affected by the changes. This value is not taxed. The tuition value of graduate courses taken by dependent children and spouses is fully taxed.

Child Care Resource Available

If you're looking for a pre-school for your child next Fall, WarmLines Parent Resources can help you find a program to meet your specific needs. Trained specialists will provide counseling, referrals with verified openings, and evaluation materials free of charge.

WarmLines Child Career Resource and Referral Program can also help locate family day care, child care centers, toddler programs, after school care, mildly-ill care, school vacation programs and summer day camps. If you're interested in finding someone to provide care in your own home, WarmLines offers specialized consultation and materials on in-home child care.

Any employee with children up to 10 years of age can receive a complimentary subscription to InfoLines, the WarmLines parent resource magazine published every six weeks.

To learn more about this benefit or to request a subscription to InfoLines, contact WarmLines Parent Resources at (617)244-6843 and tell them you are an employee of Suffolk University.

Charitable Giving Campaign Heads to Windup

Before leaving for vacation, don't forget about the United Way, Community Works or Oxfam as we wind up the campaign. Send your pledges to Human Resources.

To those who have already pledged to this year's Charitable Giving Campaign, our deep thanks. You have certainly helped us raise more than $21,000 to date.

This year's campaign was climaxed by the Big Scoop. Ice cream sundaes were distributed by such scoopers as President Sargent, Vice President Flannery and Deans Brennan, Dennis, Ronayne and Associate Dean Corbett.

Winners of the big prizes were: Bob Rosenthal of Communications and Journalism for dinner at the Bay Tower Room and a stay at the Meridien Hotel and Steve Ferrey of the Law School for the Captain's Chair donated by The Bookstore.

"Many thanks to all involved for making this year such a success and for providing us happy holidays and even happier days throughout the year for those who benefit from these charitable organizations," expressed Human Resources Director Judy Minardi.
and important dates from the Registrar, Financial Aid and Student Accounts offices. The system has the capacity to display video as well as text and should be a valuable alternative to posting notices on crowded bulletin boards.

The University Communications Committee has been tackling concerns raised in the most recent New England Association of Schools and Colleges accreditation report in improving communication on campus. Suggestions will be sent to the University Strategic Planning Committee and later the Administrative Council.

Suggestions include publishing the actions of each of the faculty assemblies; establishing a committee of students, faculty and staff from throughout the University to meet with the President or council to discuss policy concerns; establishing a University-wide colloquium series with presentations by panels made up of faculty from the three schools, developing a structure that can bring together certain committee chairpersons to meet annually with chairs from other relevant committees; and encouraging each of the three schools to publish a monthly newsletter for the entire community with a message from the Deans’offices.

The ADA Committee (Americans with Disabilities Act) has increased its membership to include more student and faculty representation. The group has formed task groups to address the following:

- Faculty education related to working with disabled students in the classroom.
- Assistive technology needs for students with disabilities.
- Signage across the University.
- A handbook for Law students with disabilities.
- Expanding academic accommodation options.
- Specific architectural access issues related to lifts, elevators and doorways.

Committee Reports

As the result of a recent Communications Committee meeting, an electronic message system, similar to the one in the Donahue Building, will be installed in the Sawyer Building early in January. The system will consist of large TV monitors in the lobby, fourth floor lounge and in the cafeteria.

Initially, the monitors will display daily calendar of events, lists of closed courses, notices of class cancellations, information
