Suffolk Will Host International Conference on Eugene O'Neill May 11-14

Suffolk University will be the setting for another international conference on playwright Eugene O'Neill, which is entitled "O'Neill's People," and will be held May 11-14. English Department Chair Frederick C. Wilkins will be cohostalong with the Eugene O'Neill Society.

This will be the third such conference to be held at Suffolk. Two others were held in 1984 and 1986 and were extremely successful attracting attendees from all over the world. This year's conference will be no exception as participants have registered from Russia, England, China, France and India.

Barbara Gelb, co-author of a definitive biography on Eugene O'Neill entitled O'Neill, will give the opening address. Bronze medals will be awarded to a number of individuals including Gelb and her husband, Arthur Gelb of the New York Times, director Jose' Quintero and actors Jason Robards and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

There will be a number of paper presentations, discussion panels and theatrical presentations during the fourday conference. "What we are intending to offer is a mix of academic and theatrical experiences," explains Prof. Wilkins. "It is our fervent hope that this conference will be inviting to a wide variety of O'Neill lovers."

The theatrical presentations will include a performance in Russian of Eugene O'Neill's most famous play, Long Day's Journey Into Night, by the Gogol Theatre of Moscow. According to Wilkins, "They put a Slavic spin on the O'Neillian ball that is both startling and ultimately deeply moving."

In addition, there will be presentations of the first staged reading ever of O'Neill's early play, The Personal Equation, by members of New York's Actors Studio; a solo show by actress Marla Collins on the women in O'Neill's life, The Lovers and Others of Eugene O'Neill; and

Mary Ferris Elected Alumni Trustee

Mary R. Ferris of Winchester, a past president of the General Alumni Association, has been elected an alumni trustee for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Ferris, an auditor for the Department of the Treasury in Boston, won a seat on the board after defeating Ralph C. Ferragamo, B.A., '64 of Barnstead, N.H., founder and CEO of SoftLine Information in Stamford, Conn., and Roland E. Vanaria, B.S. '70, of Hopkinton, a dentist with a private practice in Newton.

The Board of Trustees confirmed Ferris' alumni election to a three-year term at its February meeting. She succeeds outgoing CLAS alumni trustee Anthony F. Farma, B.S. '77, M.Ed. '82.

Mary Ferris has a long association with Suffolk University, notably in alumni activities. She received her bachelor of arts degree Magna Cum Laude in 1973. She was an alumni association director for nine years and is a former member of the Suffolk University Alumni Council.

Active in her community, she is an elected town meeting member in Winchester, president of the Winchester Friends of Recreation and Community Education, trustee and treasurer of a 319-unit condominium complex and recent chairperson of the Treasury Department's Native American Committee.

Board Chairman James F. Linnehan, in announcing Ferris' election, praised her commitment to Suffolk University. "Mary Ferris has had a long and dedicated association with the University both as a day and evening student, as an active alumand as someone who worked at the University and is familiar with its history. All of these attributes should make her an asset to the board." *

Admissions' Bill Coughlin to Retire in June After 29 Years of Service

William F. Coughlin, long-time director of admissions for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and School of Management, has announced his retirement effective June 30.

Coughlin, who turned 65 in November, is completing 29 years as a member of the University's administration. One of Suffolk's most popular personalities, Coughlin joined Suffolk in 1966 after serving as director of guidance for the Canton School System for five years. He also taught English and social studies at Sharon High School and Putnam, Conn. High School.

An honor graduate of the College of the Holy Cross, who holds a master in education degree from Boston University, Coughlin directed admissions during a period of great growth for Suffolk in the 70s and 80s. Personable with a rich sense of humor, Coughlin worked effectively in recruiting students and is well respected by colleagues in the admissions and guidance counseling fields.

"When I came here in 1966 I was the only administrator in Admissions," Coughlin recalled. "I was in charge of both undergraduate and graduate admissions. Back then two-thirds of the enrollment were male. Today we have slightly more women than men enrolled."

Coughlin pointed out that person to

person contact was the big factor in recruitment in the late sixties and seventies long before advertising and marketing came into

"I was fortunate to have a solid staff," Coughlin observed. "Ed Saunders did a terrific job recruiting, particularly from the Catholic high schools and later Nancy Fine and Joe Walsh joined us to strengthen the staff."

Coughlin takes particular pride in the fact that the 1981 freshman class numbered 613 students, still a record for Suffolk admissions.

"Reviewing the years, I'd say the thing that pleased me most is that we responded to people promptly and complaints were few, and that's a tribute to the staff, both administrative and secretarial," Coughlin pointed Coughlin, who over the years served as a "toastmaster general" for a number of Suffolk activities, says the thing that he will miss most is the day to day contact with people in the University community.

"As for the work, what I'll really miss is the interview. That's admissions with person to person contact. I loved talking with potential students."

A long-time jogger and bicyclist, Bill will keep busy in retirement hoping to do volunteer work in the schools and is planning a trip to Ireland. He'll also spend a lot of time with wife, Marion, and his children. Three of his daughters, Sue Coughlin, Maureen Mulvey and Joan McGreal, attended Suffolk and Maureen and Joan married Suffolk graduates.

Marguerite J. Dennis, dean of enrollment and retention management, lauded the veteran administrator.

"It would be impossible to count the number of students that Bill Coughlin interviewed and counseled over his 29 years as director of undergraduate admission at Suffolk University," she said. "Throughout all this time, Bill never lost the personal touch that made the admission process at Suffolk a pleasant experience. In a time when many admission offices assumed an inflexible and rigid posture with students, Bill never forgot that the student is our most valued customer. His kindness and wit will be missed." * an O'Neill one-act monodrama, Before Breakfast, performed by actress Mary Wadkins.

"Eugene O'Neill is the only American playwright to receive the Nobel Prize for literature," pointed out Wilkins. "These conferences are an integral part of keeping O'Neill scholars in touch with one another in a personal way, creating opportunities for new and innovative scholars to present their work on O'Neill, and offering an interplay of old and new ideas which help to keep O'Neill both international and universal."

CLAS to Offer Its First Ph.D. Program

Suffolk University will institute its first doctoral program in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences when it introduces a Ph.D. degree in clinical psychology beginning in the Fall semester.

The program will lead to a doctor of philosophy degree after five years of fulltime study, reported Prof. Jack Demick, chair of the Psychology Department. Degree requirements include completion of 96 academic credits; practicum experiences; teaching assistantships in an undergraduate psychology course during the first three years; masters thesis; comprehensive examination, doctoral dissertation; and internship.

Based on the "Boulder Model" of clinical psychology, it will emphasize that students acquire both strong scientific research skills as well as strong practitioner skills.

Dean Michael R. Ronayne said "to establish this degree as our first step into the Ph.D. arena is a positive and natural move for the University."

CLAS has also expanded its graduate course offerings to include a master of science in international economics and a master of science in political science. ❖

S.U. Received $650,000 in Gifts And Bequests in December

Suffolk University received nearly $650,000 in planned gifts and bequests in December, reports Diane Spence, director of special gifts. All were appreciated property gifts.

Mrs. Margaret Geraghty of Milton deeded to the University seven condominium units located at 14-16 Grove Street on Beacon Hill. The property has been valued at $420,000. Mrs. Geraghty's son, Thomas J. Geraghty Jr., (B.S. '86), and a nephew, Patrick Geraghty, (B.S. '92), are Suffolk graduates.

According to Spence, the University plans to sell the property and the proceeds will be used for the purposes designated by Mrs. Geraghty: to benefit the Irish Studies Program, establish a scholarship fund for CLAS and SOM undergraduate students, establish an endowed book fund at the Sawyer Library and support the new Law School building project. These gifts are all made in the name of Mrs. Geraghty and her late husband, Thomas J. Geraghty.

In addition to the Geraghty gift, Mrs. John Gifford of Duluth, Minn. established an endowed scholarship fund in memory of her husband, John A. Gifford, a 1936 graduate of the Law School. Income from this fund will provide scholarship assistance to Law School students.

Suffolk also received a gift of 55 series E Savings Bonds from the estate of Mary Inguanti of West Roxbury. Her bequest, worth $125,000, was used to establish the Santi and Mary Inguanti Scholarship Fund, which will provide financial aid to Law School students. ❖

Tuition Rates Set for '95-96 Academic Year

Suffolk University's Board of Trustees has approved a 6.6 per cent increase in its undergraduate full-time tuition for the 1995-96 academic year. The action raises tuition to $11,300 and is the lowest percentage increase in 21 years.

The board voted the increase at its February meeting upon the recommendation of President David J. Sargent, Vice President/Treasurer Francis X. Flannery and the Board's Finance Committee.

President Sargent, in announcing the rates to the University community, said that Law School tuition will increase 7.04 per cent to $16,580 for Day Division students and 7.02 per cent to $12,436 for the Evening Division.

Sargent said that full-time graduate tuition in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the School of Management will have increases ranging from 4.90 to 9.47 per cent. There will be no increase in tuition for the full-time graduate MPA program.

"While the University recognizes the impact of these increases upon students and parents, they are necessary if we are to continue to offer a high quality education to our students," Sargent said.

"Overall tuition at Suffolk University continues to be among the lowest of any independent university in the region," Sargent pointed out. "Suffolk University remains committed to its mission to provide a quality education at an affordable cost." *

8 Turkish Grad Students to Study at Suffolk

The Center for International Education has announced that the Turkish Ministry of Education will sponsor a group of eight students to study English as a foreign language at Suffolk University.

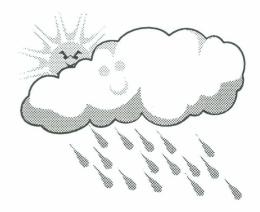

The participants, who arrived in mid-February, will continue with the English courses through August.

The Center for International Education also announced that Suffolk has received two USAID grants for training foreign professionals. The grants cover costs of instruction and internship for two bank executives from the Czech Republic and Slovakia, coming here under the auspices of the Partnership Training Project for Central and Eastern Europeans.

According to Marguerite J. Dennis, dean of enrollment and retention management, the training will include information on new bank product development, securitized debt issues, structured financing, risk management and private banking services.

"The project is designed to provide training to Central and Eastern Europeans who can help lead their countries through current political, economic and social transitions," Dennis pointed out. Shahriar Khaksari, chairman of the Finance Department, will direct the training program. •

Newsmakers

John Pagliarulo, captain University Police. He's still receiving accolades for his heroic revival of 70-year old Edward O'Donnell who had collapsed outside the Sawyer Building on Nov. 30. The Board of Aldermen in Pagliarulo's hometown, Somerville, presented him with a citation Jan. 26 "in recognition of his prompt, timely and professional assistance responding to a crisis situation in reviving a heart attack victim thereby saving his life." Pagliarulo, on hand with his family, still communicates with O'Donnell. They plan to get together in the Spring.

Kenneth F. Garni, director of the University Counseling Center. The Council for the National Register of Health Service Providers in Psychology has awarded him the 20th Anniversary Platinum Certificate for two decades of listing in every edition since its inception. The National Register was created to identify licensed psychologists who meet its definition of health service provider.

Clarence Cooper, Public Management. He was the kickoff speaker, presenting part one of an evaluation of the Ryan White CARE Act in Metropolitan Boston to the HIV Services Planning Council on Jan. 19 at Harvard's School of Public Health. The evaluation project is supported by a contract between SOM's Public Management Department and the Boston Department of Health and Hospitals. Other participating Suffolk faculty include Richard Beinecke, Marie Matava and David Pfeiffer.

Charles Kindregan, Law Faculty. He moderated a Mass. Bar Association meeting on the probate and family court in January at the Copley Marriott. Panelists included Chief Probate Judge Mary Fitzpatrick, Gov. Weld's legal counsel Brackett Denniston III, State Rep. Robert DeLeo of Revere, Suffolk J.D. '76, and Judge David Sacks of Hampden Probate Court, Suffolk J.D. '74.

Celeste Kostopulos-Cooperman, Humanities and Modern Languages. Her translations of several Latin American women poets and her afterword to the text appear in These Are Not Sweet Girls, White Pine Press, New York, 1994. In addition, translation excerpts from Marjorie Agosin's A Cross and a Star, to be published by the University of New Mexico Press, appear in Bridges, Volume 4 Number 2, Winter '94 '95.

Susan Thayer, Learning Center. She is editor of the recently published "Self-Evaluation Guides: Models for Assessing Learning and Assistance/Developmental Education Programs."

Jack Demick, Psychology. He and Theresa Lavoie, a senior psychology major, will present "Young, Middle-aged and Older Adults Cognitive Representations of the City of Boston" at the Environmental Design Research Association annual conference in Boston March 2. And on March 3l, Demick and Leo McNiff, a senior psych major, will present "Role of Identity Status and Parental Values in Late Adolescent Adjustment" at the Eastern Psychological Association annual meeting.

Marilyn "Midge" Wilcke, Media Services. She gave a presentation entitled "Walking Tour or Marketing Tool: The In- House Campus Video" at the North Atlantic District conference of CASE (Council for Advancement and Support of Education)

held in Providence Jan. 29-31 with some 800 participants attending.

Margaret Collins Weitz, Humanities and Modern Languages. The professor was honored for 10 years devoted service organizing academic and cultural exchanges between sister cities Boston and Strasbourg. In mid-December, Weitz, vice president of the Boston/Strasbourg Sister City Association, was invited to that city by its mayor, Catherine Trautmann, who is also a delegate to the European Parliament and a former French deputy minister.

Saroj Sawhney of Economics has had a research paper "Family Structure and Economy: Perspectives from Neoclassical and Gandian Economics" for publication in Social Engineer, the journal for the Association of Social Engineering Research and Training in Patna, India.

Magid Mazen, Management. He conducted a four-day workshop in Cairo, Egypt on total quality management for 26 top Middle Eastern managers from nine countries. The workshop was followed by a public forum broadcast on Egyptian television. ❖

Personnel

Harvard/Pilgrim Merger Won't Affect Coverage

As has been communicated to the University community, the Harvard Community Health Plan and Pilgrim Health Care are merging. Toni Tinberg of Human Resources says the consolidation should take about a year, but the plans will be operated as separate health plans.

"Our goal is to make the transition as smooth as possible for you and your employees," Tinberg reported. "We are firmly committed to not just maintaining, but continuously improving the quality, service and efficiency of both HCHP and Pilgrim during the integration process."

Tinberg stressed that members will not notice any immediate changes nor will the merger affect any aspect of the present coverage or the way they get care.

"Once our health plans have been fully combined in about a year, we will be able to offer even more choice and geographical coverage," she noted. She said it is hoped that a merger will be completed with New Hampshire's Matthew Thornton Health Plan which will include more than 16,000 of the region's finest physicians and more than 110 community and teaching hospitals.

Tinberg said members will still get their care from their personal physician in the setting that best meets their needs whether it is a multi-specialty health center, a physician group practice or an independent physician's office.

"The merged organization will maintain the best features HCHP and Pilgrim now offer and allow us to maximize quality, service and efficiency," she said.

Fitcorp Offers Reduced Rates

Fitcorp is once again offering Suffolk University employees the opportunity to utilize their health club facilities at a reduced cost.

The initiation fee for joining either a Boston or suburban center is $50. The Boston annual fee when paid in full is $675 while suburban clubs charge $420. Human Resources 'Toni Tinberg says it is possible to spread payments out over a monthly schedule at a slightly higher cost. Call Tinberg at 8415 for further information.

Staff Development Programs Set

Managing People in a Changing Workplace, a special program for department heads, associate directors, and assistant directors with supervisory responsibilities, will resume on March 24 with a session Defining the New Workplace and on April 12 Managing in the New Workplace. This is a series on structured discussions and activities on the most recent thinking and research about new management needs.

Dr. Alexandra Todd, chair of the Sociology Department, discussed alternative methods to cope with illness as considered in her new book, Double Vision-an East West Collaboration, in the Well-Being Series Feb. 28.

The Spring sessions will conclude with a special presentation on June 19 by Loretta LaRoche, M.D. (Mirth Doctor). She believes laughter is the most effective tool we have to overcome stress and the limitations it places upon us.

To participate in any of these programs, complete the form in the back of the booklet mailed to all administrative and support staff on Feb. 1 or send a memo to Human Resources.

Promotions, Tenure Approved by Board

The Board of Trustees, at its February meeting, approved the following promotions in CLAS effective July 1: James Hannon, assistant professor of Sociology to associate professor; Celeste Kostopulos-Cooperman, assistant professor of Humanities and

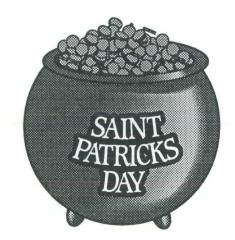

Kostopulos-Cooperman

Modern Languages to associate professor; Gerald Peary, associate professor of Communication and Journalism, to professor; and Dan Stefanescu, associate professor of Math and Computer Science, to professor.

Tenure was granted to Leslie Croxford, associate professor of Humanities and Modern Languages and Irina Peterburgsky, associate professor of Math and Computer Science.

In the School of Management, Ki C. Han, assistant professor of finance, was promoted to associate professor. He was granted tenure along with Denis Lee, professor, CIS, and Associate Professor of Finance Alexandros Prezas. One-year sabbaticals were granted to Murat Tarimcilar, associate professor of Management, and Magid Mazen, associate professor of Management. ❖

Finally, is there a law school around that can top this? Sara Tolosa of Arlington gave birth to triplets (girls) last fall, but it hasn't stopped her from continuing her day classes at Suffolk Law School and she'll receive her juris doctor degree in May. And if you think that's something, Brian Burke of Worcester, a third-year evening student in the Law School, and his wife, Carolyn, became parents of quadruplets (two boys, two girls) in October. Quintuplets anyone? Keep warm, we'll see you in Fort Myers, replacement players or not... *
