1997 Commencement
By Lori McCormick

United States Senator John F. Kerry of Massachusetts and former United States Senator George J. Mitchell of Maine spoke at the University's commencement exercises on Sunday, May 25, at the Fleet Center in Boston. Over one thousand students were awarded degrees at the ceremonies.

Addressing over 400 graduates of the Law School at the 10:00 a.m. ceremony was Senator John F. Kerry, of Massachusetts, who has been a member of the United States Senate for over ten years. A former Naval Officer and decorated Vietnam War veteran, Senator Kerry has shown independence and leadership in challenging Washington to respond to the concerns of all Americans.

Suffolk President David J. Sargent, who presided over the commencement exercises, cited Kerry as "one of the most respected and influential leaders of the United States Senate—one whose life and career provide a unique role model of public service and political independence." President Sargent then awarded the Senator the degree of honorary doctor of laws.

Also receiving honorary degrees at the Law School exercises were Akhil Reed Amar, Southmayd Professor of Law, Yale Law School; The Honorable Nancy J. Gertner, Federal Judge, U.S. District Court; The Honorable Martin T. Meehan, U.S. Congressman; and The Honorable William J. Tierney, Chief Justice, Boston Municipal Court Department.

During the afternoon ceremony for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the Sawyer School of Management, Senator Mitchell delivered the commencement address to over 630 graduates, before being awarded an honorary doctor of public administration degree.

In praising the Senator's achievements, President Sargent referred to Mitchell as "one of America's most distinguished political leaders whose entire life has been based on responsible citizenship and democratic ideals."

Receiving honorary degrees at the afternoon exercises for the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the Sawyer School of Management were Coretta Scott King, wife of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King, Jr. and the founder of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change, doctor of humane letters; Charles "Chad" Gifford, CEO of Bank of Boston Corporation, doctor of commercial science; John L. Harrington, CEO of the Boston Red Sox, doctor of commercial science; and Kip Tiernan, president and founder of Rosie's Place in Boston, doctor of humane letters.

William J. O'Neill, Jr., Esq., chairman of the Board of Trustees delivered the call to commencement. Serving as commencement marshals were 25th anniversary class members George K. Regan, Jr., BSJ '72, founder and president of Regan Communication of Boston, and Peter Aloisi, JD '72 of Aloisi Attorneys of Law of Lynnfield.

Marketing Hosts College World Series

The Marketing Department hosted the 1997 district College World Series of Advertising on April 26 in the Sawyer building. This competition, sponsored by the American Advertising Federation (AAF), provides undergraduate marketing/advertising students with a realistic problem that can be solved through team effort, knowledge and creativity.

Students are assigned to research, plan and execute an integrated multimedia advertising, public relations and promotion plan for a particular client. In essence, each college team is an advertising agency vying for the account. Over 150 colleges compete each year from fifteen districts nationwide. The winner in each district competes in the national finals.

The other participating schools from this district were Emerson College, Northeastern University, Quinnipiac College, Salem State College, University of Bridgeport and University of Hartford.
Coretta Scott-King, wife of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King, Jr., receives an honorary doctor of humane letters degree from President David Sargent.

Pam Gaudiano, assistant director of UMS, receives her master of arts degree from President Sargent.

Michael Arthur, professor of management, congratulates his son Peter who received his master's degree.

MIS automation assistant, Lisa McGlone was awarded a bachelor of science degree.

Laurie Yoto of Alumni Relations waves to the crowd upon receipt of a B.S.

Mary Hefron looks on as Dean Ronayne presents Dayna Antenucci of the Business Office with her degree.

Shahriar Khaksari, professor of finance, helps James Angelini, associate professor of accounting, prepare for the SSOM hooding ceremony.

A proud father: Associate Professor Tony Eonas, Business Law, poses with daughter Nicole who received her undergraduate degree.

David Caristi, CLAS Deans' Office, makes his way to the stage for the presentation of his juris doctor degree.
Lectures

Suffolk University was visited by several diverse lecturers throughout the spring semester.

On Thursday, April 24th, the Sawyer School, in conjunction with the Ford Hall Forum, co-sponsored a lecture by economist and MIT professor Lester C. Throow. The event, held at Faneuil Hall, was videotaped for later broadcast by Boston Cable Television. SSOM also sponsored a reception prior to the event for Professor Throow in the Trustees Conference Room.

Former governor and presidential candidate Michael Dukakis spoke to a group of students and faculty on May 1 as a guest of the MPA Association. The governor talked about his experiences as governor for the Commonwealth and the "state" of Massachusetts government in general. John Nucci, city clerk and adjunct Suffolk faculty member, moderated a panel discussion. Sandy Matava, coordinator in the Public Management Department, served as Governor Dukakis' commissioner for health and human services.

In March, Attorney Charles L. Kingson addressed Suffolk law students on the topic: "Taxing the Future: Taxation of Electronic Commerce." The lecture was held in Professor Anthony Polito's Taxation of International Transactions course. Kingson, a noted international tax scholar, is currently a partner at the New York firm of Willkie, Farr and Gallagher. Prior to private practice, Kingson held the position of international tax counsel for the United States Treasury Department.

Also in March, The New England School of Art & Design at Suffolk sponsored a lecture lunch featuring sculptor and puppet master Pat Keck. She spoke with students and gave a slide presentation of her work. Keck and her work were the cover story of the March issue of Sculpture magazine. Additionally, Keck was the cover artist for the December/January issue of Art New England and had a recent exhibition at the DeCordova Museum.

Summer at Suffolk

By Sherry Mattson

Suffolk's new state-of-the-art residence hall overlooking Boston Common will be available this summer for educational programs and conferences. From early June until the third week in August, the 408-bed residence hall will house not only Suffolk University summer school students, but also several Elderhostel programs, pre-conference workshops for a major management organization, and several other events. Elderhostel is an independent, non-profit organization offering short-term academic experiences for people ages 55 and over. Over a quarter of a million people participate in Elderhostel programs every year. Suffolk will sponsor programs July 6-12, July 20-26 and August 3-9. Tentative courses to be taught by University professors and local scholars include the following: Politics and Film, Landmarks and Personalities of Boston, The Kennedy Presidency and Boston Sports: Visit Our Fields of Dreams.

A special invitation is extended to parents and grandparents of Suffolk employees and alums. For more information or to receive an Elderhostel catalog call Elderhostel at (617) 426-8056. Specific questions about Elderhostel at Suffolk can be answered by the Office of Enrollment at (617) 573-8647.

Off-Campus Student Housing

The University's Off-Campus Housing Office maintains a listing of rental apartments, rooms for rent, and students seeking roommates to assist students in their search for off-campus housing. Listings are updated biweekly and are available to all Suffolk University students. The office also has information about local real estate agents and other housing resources.

In addition, the office provides maps of Boston and the surrounding neighborhoods, Just Rentals apartment guide, and Boston's Roommate Magazine guide. Students looking for a roommate, an apartment or both, are invited to stop by 20 Beacon Street on the 2nd floor to complete forms to be included in the database. More information can be obtained from the Off-Campus Housing Office at (617) 573-8647.
Army Corps of Engineers Collaborative

The University has joined a new program sponsored by the Federal Women's Program (FWP) at the Army Corps of Engineers. The program is designed to help Army Corps employees in lower paying jobs receive a college education in preparation for job advancement.

Participants in the program attend class for three hours several times a week. They work toward a Certificate in Environmental Science from Suffolk. Two faculty members from the University, Robert Howe, associate professor of Biology, and Lisa Shatz, assistant professor of Electrical and Computer Engineering, are currently involved in the Waltham-based program.

The Corps' employees utilize their training immediately because Suffolk and the FWP have specially tailored the educational program to suit the Corps' environment. FWP manager Joanne Barry remarked, "We hope to give participants a taste of education and a gentle push to continue to pursue their degrees after receiving their certificates. It is integral to have this be an accredited program and we are thrilled that Suffolk would work with us."

Upcoming Events

There are several on-campus events sponsored by the Office of Undergraduate Admission in the near future:

Junior Visit Program:
Wednesday, July 30, 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon
Wednesday, August 13, 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon

Saturday, October 25, 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon

Any questions should be directed to Undergraduate Admission at ext. 8460.

On Retirement

By Toni Tinberg

My prior columns have been geared primarily for enrollees in the University's 403(b) retirement plan. In this issue, I'd like to address directly those who are eligible for the Standard Retirement Plan but who haven't enrolled. I encourage you to enroll now!

In discussions with several of you, I have heard a variety of reasons for not enrolling. I'd like to rebut some of those reasons.

1. "I can't afford the 5% required contribution." While 5% of your gross salary may sound like a significant financial commitment, in the long run it's easier to contribute than you might think. First, your contribution is a pre-tax contribution. That means that the net reduction in your pay is actually going to be closer to 4%, and your tax bill for the year is going to be lowered. Furthermore, on a per-paycheck basis, a 5% contribution really isn't that much. Calculate it for yourself. And, remember your 5% contribution is matched almost two-fold by the University's contribution of 9% — which is immediately "vested," meaning owned by you. That's free money totaling $1.80 for each $1.00 that you contribute.

2. "I don't plan to be employed at Suffolk for very long." Regardless of how long you remain employed at Suffolk, when you leave everything in your retirement plan belongs to you — your contributions, the University's contributions on your behalf, and any earnings. Especially if you're planning on changing jobs soon, that nest egg will come in handy. When you do leave Suffolk, you can choose to leave your money in your Suffolk retirement account, roll it into an IRA, or cash the account out (paying any necessary taxes and excise penalties, of course).

3. "The plan is too confusing. I don't know where to put my money." The Human Resources Office has a variety of material to help you better understand your choices under the plan. We have printed material, videos, and helpful internet web sites that may provide guidance. Please don't let a lack of investment education prevent you from making the right financial decision to join the plan!

If I've convinced you, just call me at extension 8418 to schedule an appointment to enroll in the Standard Retirement Plan.

Featured Benefit: WarmLines

Some of you may be familiar with WarmLines Resource and Referral Service as an advisor for parents of pre-teen children seeking appropriate child care. If you need assistance in locating the right day care situation or preschool, a horseback riding or computer camp, or even dance or foreign language classes appropriate for your child, just call WarmLines and identify yourself as a Suffolk University employee. The service is available at no cost to you.

In addition, WarmLines provides Suffolk employees with an equally important and quite different benefit — elder care resource and referral services. Elder care issues are frequently more complex and long-term than child care needs, and carry with them a more loaded emotional component. WarmLines offers access to a nationwide listing of care options ranging from elder day care to in-home assistance to nursing home care. WarmLines can help you find transportation or companionship for your parent, grandparent, or in-law. Often, elder care needs increase dramatically over time with little advance warning. WarmLines can help you anticipate the next level of need you may reach, and can help you to plan for that need — logistically and financially. Please call WarmLines at (617) 244-6843 for more information on either service.

$100 Referral Bonus

We encourage employees to refer applicants for administrative, staff and technical positions. Employees who refer an individual who is hired receive a $100 bonus after the referred employee has completed three months of employment. Of course, the referring employee must still be employed by Suffolk. To take advantage of this program, be sure that the referred applicant includes your name on the employment application form. Contact the Human Resources Office at ext. 8415 to refer an employee or with any other questions.
New MBA Director

The Sawyer School of Management is pleased to announce the arrival of its new MBA Director, Lillian Hallberg. Lil will be working in the Deans' Office to enhance services for part-time and full-time MBA students.

According to Associate Dean Richard Torrisi, Lil brings to Suffolk a wealth of academic and professional experience as well as "a very collegial, enthusiastic and engaging style." She has two masters' degrees and a Ph.D. in Communications Studies from the University of Iowa. For the past eleven years, she has held a number of academic and administrative positions at the University of Iowa. She has taught business and professional communication and served as a program administrator for the graduate program in Hospital and Health Administration.

Most recently, she has been Director of the Executive MBA program, where she supervised all aspects of the program and successfully increased enrollment and corporate linkages. The Deans' Office is looking forward to having Lillian as part of their administrative team and asks everyone to join them in welcoming her to the Suffolk academic community.

Appreciation Day

Over 125 employees braved the elements on a chilly June afternoon to celebrate the University's 10th Support Staff Appreciation Day. The event is held annually to honor and thank staff who work hard all year providing high quality service to students, assisting faculty, administrators and other staff in a wide variety of functions.

This year Human Resources hosted a Wednesday afternoon cruise around Boston Harbor on the M/V Freedom. The hour and a half cruise featured a buffet. A good time was had by all.

For Your Health: High Blood Pressure?

By Steve Vinitsky

High blood pressure or hypertension affects 15-25% of the adult population in the United States. Among the elderly, the prevalence is even greater. Often referred to as the "Silent Killer," hypertension has no symptoms, with few exceptions. The natural history is one of insidious damage that is most often clinically silent for a decade or more.

There are many risk factors associated with hypertension. Blood pressure rises steadily with age into the fifth and sixth decades, when the increase levels off. Males in all age groups have a higher prevalence of hypertension than females. The ratio decreases with advancing age, so that by age 60 there is only a slight male predominance. There is also a marked increase in prevalence among African-Americans. Obviously, you have no control over these factors, however you do have some control over the risk factors.

High blood pressure, if unrecognized or untreated, significantly increases the risk of developing coronary disease, heart failure, kidney failure and stroke. The American Heart Association (AHA) recommends the following "TEN COMMANDMENTS":

1. Know your blood pressure. Have it checked regularly.
2. Know what your weight should be. Keep it at that level or below.
3. Don't use excessive salt in cooking or at meals: avoid salty foods.
4. Eat a low fat diet according to AHA recommendations.
5. Don't smoke cigarettes.
6. If you are taking medications, take them exactly as prescribed; don't run out of pills for a single day.
7. Keep your appointments with your primary care provider.
8. Follow your primary care providers advice about exercise.
9. Live a normal life in every other way.
10. Make certain your parents, brothers, sisters and children have their pressures checked regularly.

Have a healthy summer!

HR on the Web

Earlier this year, Human Resources launched a home page on the World-Wide-Web. The page is divided into three sections: Welcome to Human Resources, Job Opportunities, and Benefits. The Welcome section provides a guide to "who does what" and links to the e-mail addresses of the HR staff. Job Opportunities is a weekly-updated listing of current administrative, staff, service and technical openings at the University. The Benefits section provides a basic overview of employee benefits and links directly to some vendor sites, including Harvard Pilgrim, Fidelity and TIAA-CREF. These links can provide a wide range of information from choosing a health center to reallocating your retirement contributions. We encourage you to check out the site through Suffolk's main page (www.suffolk.edu/). Click on "Contents" then to "Departments".

Also, in an effort to expand recruitment sources, we have begun to use the Internet to recruit new employees. This process supplements the more traditional avenues, such as newspaper advertising and job fairs. Internet recruiting is in its primary stage and Suffolk is taking an early lead by using it to attract applicants and gain a competitive advantage. Some of the Internet sites that Suffolk University jobs are listed on include: Higher Ed Jobs On-line, The Black Collegian and JobSmart.
Krisanne Bursik, professor, Psychology and Director of Women’s Studies. She recently served on the New England Association of Schools and Colleges accreditation team to Burlington College in Vermont. She also presented her research “Gender and Gender Role Comparisons of Manifest Dream Content” at the April annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in Washington, DC. Dr. Bursik also received the award for 1997 Outstanding Faculty Member of the Year at Suffolk’s Leadership Awards Dinner.

Susan Atherton, associate dean, SSOM Deans’ office. She participated in a peer discussion group at the annual meeting of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). The Sawyer School of Management hosted the opening reception at the JFK Library for the annual meeting. Over 800 deans from business schools around the world were in attendance.

Morris McInnes, professor, Accounting. He was elected an officer of the Boston Chapter of the Financial Executives Institute (FEI) at its Annual Meeting on April 9. Professor McInnes will serve as an officer for three years, including serving as president for 1999-2000. He will be the first academic member of the chapter to serve as an officer and president. FEI is the premier professional organization of the chief financial officers of large companies in the U.S. and Canada.

Michael Duggan, director, Office of Enrollment Research and Planning. He has been awarded a scholarship to attend the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES)/National Science Foundation (NSF) Database Institute.

Nancy Croll, director of academic computing, SSOM. She co-chaired a session called “Making the Case for Additional Resources and Dealing with Other Constraints” with Andy Covell, director of information technology at the Syracuse University School of Management. The session was part of the New Learning Technologies Workshop sponsored by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) and the European Foundation for Management Development (EFMD) in Boston on May 29-31.

Marsha Ginn, director, Graduate Admission. She recently recruited graduate students at the GMAC MBA Forums in Paris and Frankfurt. Lyn Fulton John, associate director, Graduate Admission.

She joined the Graduate Admission staff in April and will serve as liaison to the SSOM graduate programs. While Marsha was traveling through Europe, Lyn recruited at Forums in the Far East including Hong Kong, Tokyo and Seoul, Korea.

Mawudur Rahman, professor, Accounting and Clarence Cooper, associate professor, Public Management. They have received a research grant from the Massachusetts Office of Business Development in conjunction with the Cambridge Business Development Center(CBDC) and Cambridge Cable Television. This $75,000 grant is for their project, “Computer Access and Computer-aided Business Training for Cambridge Minority Entrepreneurs.”

Several Accounting Department faculty members including Professor Jim Angelini and Professor Morris McInnes have been participating professors in the CBDC training program for the last three years.

Robert DeFillippi, associate professor, Management. He presented a paper entitled “The Development and Performance of Opto-Electronics in the UK, Germany and the USA” at the Eastern Academy of Management International Conference in Dublin, Ireland in June. The topic of the conference was “Managing in a Global Economy.”

John E. Fenton, Jr., dean, Law School. He was awarded this year’s Tikkon Olam (“To Repair the World”) Award by the Center for the Study of Jewish-Christian Relations at Merrimack College. The award was established to honor an individual whose professional life serves as an inspiration to both faiths in their efforts to improve relations. The award ceremony was held in May at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Jim Nelson, director, Athletics. He was named the winner of the New England Basketball Coaches Association annual Doggie Julian Award for his service to New England college basketball. Coach Nelson received the award at halftime of the annual all-star game at Holy Cross College in April. The award was named for the late Celtics, Dartmouth and Holy Cross basketball coach.

Potpourri
By Kimberly Hall

Nancy Stoll, Dean of Students, along with the Student Services Staff (Athletics, Campus Ministry, Career Services and Cooperative Education, Health Services, Residence Life and Student Activities) participated in a two day staff retreat. Beginning with student focus groups on campus, the staff moved to Rolling Ridge Conference Center in North Andover for sessions on strategic planning, improving campus life, collaborative efforts with faculty, and goal setting for next year. The group reportedly engaged in a viciously competitive volleyball game and several bowling matches, and consumed large quantities of cookies, m&m's and potato chips...

Exciting changes in Enrollment Research. As of early June, they have expanded to become the Office of Enrollment Research and Planning. Director Michael Duggan remains at One Beacon while Associate Director Cathy Harris (x1912) and Assistant Director Tara Mahar (x1913) can be found at 20 Beacon...

John Pagliaro reports that Suffolk has been rated the "Safer University in the Nation" according to the Chronicle of Higher Education. He also sends congratulations to Mike Crowley, Steve Materazzo, Darwin Hernandez and Orlando Tirella for their graduation from the Campus Police academy. Orlando graduated with top honors. Best of luck to Patty Lio, Renee Lehmann, Mark Kelleher and Kevin Rooney as they venture off to the academy. Kudos and keep up the good work...

While we're doling out best wishes it seems only appropriate to send congratulations to all of our new parents and grandparents. Carol Maggio, Athletics, and her husband Richard have a new granddaughter, Alexis Crimson, born on April 7th. Only two days later, David and Judi Scalley, Computer Resource Center in the Law School, were blessed with a healthy baby girl, Teresa Marie. Patrice Foggarty, Graduate Admission, had our first May baby. She and her husband David are the proud parents of Jessica Marie born on the 2nd of the month. Rosanna Cavallaro, associate professor in the Law School, also had a baby girl in May. Sophia Catherine Poole was born on May 18 to Rosanna and her husband, David Poole...

Kudos to Associate Bursar Stephen Creamer for surprising former Student Accounts employee, Deanna Flynn, with an engagement ring while the two were vacationing in Hawaii this past March...

While we're on the subject of milestones, congratulations go out to Aine Cullinan, Graduate Admission, who ran this year's Boston Marathon in April...

On the academic side of things, several employees deserve praise for receiving honors at the Evening Division Student Association's Recognition Event. Receiving awards were Gina Baker, CLAS Deans' office; Margaret Codianni, Math & Computer Science; Geraldine Colangelo, Development; and Dorothy Zahir, Office of the President. Also honored during the Sunday afternoon brunch cruise were Mary Hefron, registrar; who was named EDSA's Outstanding Administrator, and David Silverstein, professor of Business Law, who was given the MBA Association's Outstanding Faculty Award...

Also honored during the Sunday afternoon brunch cruise were Mary Hefron, registrar; who was named EDSA's Outstanding Administrator, and David Silverstein, professor of Business Law, who was given the MBA Association's Outstanding Faculty Award...

Dean John Fenton, Law School, presented the 1997 Patricia I. Brown Law Library Service Award to Ajaz Fiazuddin on Monday, May 19. Ajaz graduated from the Law School in May. The award is given annually to a student employee in recognition of significant contributions as a member of the law library staff...

Rosemarie Sansone, director of public affairs, received an honorary doctor of fine arts degree from the Art Institute of Boston at their commencement exercises in May...

FYI, believe it or not, the Public Affairs office STILL has photos from the 1995 and 1996 Holiday Parties. If you or any member of your family was photographed with Santa and you did not pick up your pictures, check with Lori McCormick in Public Affairs, ext. 8508. She may have them...

SAVE THE DATE! The annual Deans' Reception has been scheduled for Saturday, September 27th at the Museum of Fine Arts. The celebration will once again honor those individuals who have given significant years of service to Suffolk. The event will be held in conjunction with the MFA's Picasso exhibit. All staff, administrators and faculty will receive invitations later in the summer...

Best wishes for a happy and healthy remainder of the summer! *

Overseas Seminars

This spring, the Sawyer School of Management offered two graduate overseas seminars for MBA students. The MBA Seminar, Doing Business in Italy, was taught at SDA Bocconi in Milan, Italy's premier business school. Thirty students accompanied Professor Alberto Zanzi on the trip. Associate Dean Richard Torrisi led a group of thirty-five Executive MBA students at Institut d'Administration des Entreprises of Universite in Aix-Marseille, France. The seminar was entitled Change Management in the European Community. *
