Hastie Seen To Succeed Minton

By Conrad Clark

WASHINGTON—Within a fortnight, after Justice Sherman Minton's resignation from the nation's highest tribunal becomes effective, it is expected that his successor, Circuit Court Judge William H. Hastie will have donned his robes and been seated.

Here in the nation's capital inspectors have given Judge Hastie the edge on the noon-to-be-created vacancy, not merely from a political viewpoint, but from a practical and judicial angle.

One of the most learned in his profession, the Judge is no stranger in Capitol circles, dating back from the days of his service as a school teacher through the President Truman's era.

The former Dean of the Law School of Howard University, Justice Hastie took a leave of absence from Howard University during the Roosevelt tenure of office, and became a civilian Aide to the then Secretary of War.

Hastie is credited for much of the War Department's integration program during World War II, and after successfully carrying out the duties of his office, was appointed as the first Negro Governor of the Virgin Islands.

One of his major programs given to Congress as Governor was the proposal to have the people of those islands be given the right to vote for their Chief Executive.

The last and highest offices given him was that of a jurist on the Federal bench in 1949, with offices in the Federal building, Philadelphia, Pa. The appointment, second highest and next only to that of a U.S. Supreme Court Justice was made by former President Harry S. Truman.

In addition, a native of Tennessee, has already received the endorsement of a fellow-Judge William H. Benham of the U.S. Court of Appeals of the Ninth Circuit.

Last week the Chief Judge advised President Eisenhower to make Hastie's Senate successors.

Most spectacular, invigorating, and last but not least of all the results of last Tuesday's primaries was the victory of Lincoln G. Pope, Jr. who won the Democratic nomination for state representative from Ward 9 center of Boston's Negro population. Against him was a well rounded and proper challenger for the post, Mr. Benjamin A. "Billy" Glenn polling only 472 votes. Results for the other candidates were:

SATISFAC'TION

Little Allen Baker put away his rag over his eyes, picked up the table scraps and reached for the coffee cup. "Do you mean the way I was today," he muttered, "the way you found me, or the way you left me?"

As he did the same job again, two hands grew up to grab at the coffee cup. "You must tell me," he said, "the way I was, or the way you left me?"

"I'll do the best I can," he said, "but I'll tell you the story."

"The story," he said, "is the story of a man who was found by a man, and then left by a man."

"The story," he said, "is the story of a man who was found by a man, and then left by a man."

WASHINGTON, D. C. — More than 1200 Catholic teachers were told last week that "Negro segregation is out of place in education," by Most Rev. John K. Munden, Bishop of Steubenville, Ohio.

The teachers were attending a pre-convocation session for the opening of parochial schools in the Archdiocese, and the bishop said the mission of St. Joseph Calasanctius, founder of the Order of the Friars of the Third Order of St. Francis of Assisi, was "to provide education for every child without discrimination as to social class, religion or race.

"The public school system (be founded)" the bishop continued, "was to care for the child of every age, and some respects remains of Boston is the only place in the concept of St. Calasanctius. A Spanish educator, the saint and a public school in Boston, in 1897, and also founded the order of Pious Schools, a teaching order that functions in 21 nations.

Boston, the bishop said, was guests of the Order of Friars of the Third Order of St. Francis of Assisi.

THE CELEBRANT was the Most Rev. Amleto Cipriani, Apostolic Delegate in the United States. The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Apostolic Administrator of the Archdiocese, addressed the gathering, and in his address, the bishop said, "Please, God, we hope this number will increase as the years go by.

On Monday evening the program will address the meeting of the Chadacros Mutual Society.
