Treasurer Francis X. Flannery said the program has also been made available to students at Northeastern, Boston College and Bentley. He said Suffolk will be offering the program to students each year to relieve them of some of the burden of coming up with a large amount of money in a short period of time. Flannery added that the University is not abandoning any one program for paying tuition but is simply making available to its students programs open to them.

Applications should have been sent to the National Shawsheen Bank before April 15. Payments would then begin May 5.

Turning to a related matter, Flannery said the $200 tuition increase for next year was made as he put it, "in order to keep the University in the black." He explained that Suffolk has a salary base of $7 million and with maintenance costs continuing to rise and a lack of endowments coming into the University the increase was adopted in order to keep the school on an even keel. The treasurer also said he is hopeful that a bill granting state aid to private institutions would be passed by the Massachusetts legislature before May 4, alleviating some financial difficulties.

Concerning the overcrowded condition of the school, Flannery observed, "If Suffolk was not crowded, it would really be in financial trouble." He explained that the University, unlike some others, is utilizing practically to its fullest extent. Suffolk is open weekdays from 8 A.M. to 5 P.M. and even a few hours on Saturdays.

Flannery said the $2 million renovation of the Dewar street building is almost completed. In addition he added, "The physical plant of the whole school is just about in a 4 condition."

Nevertheless, the University still hasn't given up hope for expanding its facilities, as the search for additional space continues. The building at 56 Temple Street is being renovated and when completed, will include the Athletic office, Development Office, Alumni Office, the Building Superintendent's Office, Public Relations Office, and Law Placement Office.
The concert, also called a "spring celebration" or an "all university celebration with music," has met with enthusiasm from all parts of the University. It is not intended for the Suffolk community alone, but the surrounding neighborhood as well.

The Consort is a young group of ten instrumentalists and five singers who perform "popular" music from 1500-1971, including music from Germany, England, France, Italy, Spain and the Americas.

The group feels especially that a musical experience should not have the usual barriers created by separating performers and audience, as it prefers often to leave the stage and go out into the audience in the hope that the listener will become as involved as the performers in the joy of music.

In the words of Malcolm Montgomery, Consort founder and director: "We approach the audience as equal partners in the experience of performance."

In an interview with the "Harvard Independent" last September, she adds, "Medieval music is usually performed in isolation today; it is like going to a museum. We are getting further and further away from that sort of thing; people want to get involved in what they hear. Each performer in the group tries to reach somebody in the audience. We are trying to show them that you can feel the same way about music as was written in 1200 as something written today."

The average age of the members is 23. All of the instrumentalists teach privately at Boston area schools, and many of them are music students at the Long School of Music in Cambridge and the New England and Boston conservatories. The wind players study with Miss Montgomery.

Some songs study privately, some with teachers at the New England Conservatory, and some play instruments as well as sing. The instruments played are the following, all types of recorders and krummhorn, a shawn, rautschnelle, sackbut, korthals, voile da gambe, medieval vielle, Irish harp, psaltery, rebec, medieval fiddle, bowed lyre, guitars, lute, portative organ, bells and various percussion instruments. They are all reproductions of museum instruments and are purchased by the group with the proceeds from their concerts. Admission will be free and refreshments served.

The organizing committee for the concert is made up of members of the faculty of the University. They are:

- Modern Language Club \(\text{Prof.}\) Claire Mohler, Ingmar Bonati, Rynck Bak, Robert Kassian and Jill Sullivan of the Humanities Club.
- Faculty members are Dr. Florence Pethrick, professor of humanities. Associate Professor of Mathematics William J. Burdick and Dr. Lisa Yang, assistant professor of German, and Miss Ann MacPherson of the speech department.
- Dames Neville, Mary Ann, Richard Jones and R. Worn of the administrative branch of the University make up the rest of the committee.

The committee on Lecture Series, headed by Dr. Dion J. Archon, chairman of the government and economics department, is sponsoring a concert of the Quadrivium Consort of Cambridge, Friday April 30 at 8 p.m. in Room 311.

Applications for Journal Editorship Due April 22

Applications for the position of editor-in-chief of the Suffolk Journal are due no later than Thursday, April 22. The applications must be typewritten and delivered to the Student Affairs Office by that date or a candidate will not be considered for the editorship.

At a meeting of the Joint Council on Student Affairs March 2, Journal editor Edward Wickham proposed a method of selecting the editor-in-chief of the school newspaper. He noted that such a uniform method would be implemented that week in the hope that a uniform method would be implemented that week. He also noted that the method in the past had not been consistent and with a few modifications, an agreement was reached.

The procedure for applying for the editorship is as follows:

ELIGIBILITY FOR SELECTION

To be a candidate for the position of editor-in-chief a student must be enrolled as a full-time undergraduate. The candidate must not major in academic or disciplinary probation at the time of application: selection or during the tenure of office. However, disciplinary probation for ten days or less shall not be cause for dismissal of the editor-in-chief once elected.

The candidate must not also be a candidate for an office in the Student Government Association.

METHOD OF SELECTION

The editor-in-chief will be selected by a seven-man committee, the chairman of which is the president of the University who shall have final approval of the candidate. The other six committee members, who will in effect do the actual nominating of the candidate, they should be the next editor are: the Dean of Students, the Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Publications, the Director of Student Activities, the Editor-in-Chief of the Suffolk Journal, the President of the Student Government Association and the President of the Senior Class.

If the President of the Student Government and the president of the senior class are one and the same, he shall vote as the president of the senior class and the vice-president of the Student Government shall become the seventh committee member.

Each candidate must submit a resume outlining the candidate's editorial policy of elected as well as all other information relevant to the position of editor-in-chief. When the deadline for applications arrives, the candidates will meet separately with the committee to elaborate on their resumes and answer all questions that the committee deems important.

With the approval of the University president, a simple majority of four members is sufficient for selection of editor-in-chief.

The actual selection of an editor-in-chief this year will be May 6, the last Thursday of classes.

Suffolk awarded Sigma Xi Charter

Suffolk has been awarded a charter to establish a chapter of the Sigma Xi Society.

Formal installation will take place Friday, April 22, at 4:30 in the President's Conference Room, the chairman of the National Charter Program, who will be installing officer. The purpose of Sigma Xi, founded in 1866, is the encouragement of original research. The scientific equivalent to Phi Beta Kappa, chapter members and clubs are bound by leading universities throughout the country.

Dr. Arthur J. West, chairman of the biology department, is president of the Suffolk club while Dr. Maria Bonaventura of the chemistry department is secretary-elect. Committee members are Miss Beatrice L. Know, assistant professor of biology, and Dr. William E. Good Jr., assistant professor of chemistry.

The chapters in Massachusetts include such schools as Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston College, Amherst, Wellesley, Smith, Harvard and Bowdoin University while the clubs comprise such institutions as Holy Cross, Emmanuel, Williams, and Lowell Institute.

Following the April 23 installation, there will be a banquet in the evening at 7 o'clock at the Parker House. Dr. Seeger will address members and guests who have an address, "The Humanism of Science."
Course Advising

One of the longest running jokes at Suffolk is the matter of course advising. Technically every student is supposed to have an advisor to help him plan his curriculum and generally advise him in his major field. More often than not, the student has his course card signed any way he can.

Many students would claim that they can’t take the matter of course advising seriously because few faculty members know the requirements well enough for a student to plan his academic career securely.

We understand that this problem has become a source of great concern in the business school, especially in the fields of marketing and management. One faculty member, Assistant Professor of Business Administration Rager K. Shawcross, has decided to do something about it and we feel he should be commended, regardless of how successful he is.

Starting today, Professor Shawcross is meeting with a test group of marketing and management majors to show that course advising doesn’t have to be a joke. The object of the meeting would seem to be simple (to check off courses already accomplished against those listed in the catalogue to prevent problems that might prevent graduation), but Professor Shawcross intends to go beyond that.

He hopes to take twenty of these students in the test group and make bonafide course advisors out of them. We don’t see how he can fail. It’s a superb solution to a very real problem. At worst, he’ll find some mistakes in his plan, but that will undoubtedly lead to progress in the end.

If the successful, we hope that other departments will adopt more effective means of course advising. It’s not enough to tell students to sign up for the board card: a student must feel that he will get good advice.

This is not to say that all of the other departments have poor advising or that there aren’t any capable faculty members to do the job, but rather that too many students are wary and confused about the whole matter of course advising.

As Professor Shawcross holds his meeting today with his test group, we remind all students that from now to May 7 has been set aside for course planning and advising. Take advantage of the opportunity.

A Lesson in Politics

Over April vacation a small news story appeared in the Boston Herald Traveler. It said that John E. Powers, an alumnus of Suffolk University and the clerk of the Superior Court, has asked for recognition of the Suffolk Alumni Association by the University.

That’s a very well and good and the Journal hopes that the alumni will get the recognition they deserve. However, there’s more behind that news story than the recognition of the Alumni Association. Mr. Powers was speaking at the hearing of Senate Bill 1274, which proposes a modification in the election procedure of the board of trustees and to which the Student Government Association had proposed an amendment with the hope of getting student representation on the board.

It’s practically all over now. Mr. Powers was the only one who spoke in favor of the bill. The opposition was adequately represented by President Thomas Fyiham, board of trustees Chairman John E. Fierb, and Mr. John Griffin, another board member.

We understand Mr. Powers’ testimony before the joint House Senate Committee on Education was basically that 1274 would “democratize” Suffolk University, in accordance with the design of the bill, the recognition of the general Alumni Association is necessary, hence the article in the Herald Traveler.

So where was everyone? The Student Government was still waiting for a promised meeting of students, faculty and alumni on the matter which has yet to happen. It is interesting to note that faculty representatives have already met with the administration on the proposed amendment to Senate Bill 1274, but reportedly one of these faculty representatives was also aware of the proposed past meeting with the students.

We also understand that the Student Government President received a phone call the day after the hearing from the president of the Alumni Association, who was quite “put out” about not being aware of, or informed as to the hearing date. He shouldn’t be surprised; the date was scheduled as early as March 29.

And where was the “1274 Committee”? Were they also ignorant of the hearing date? The Student Government Association had earlier been in contact with Representative Mike Daly of Boston, chairman of the House Committee on Education. He was personally surprised there weren’t any students at the hearing.

The proposed student amendment to Senate Bill 1274 was tabled due to lack of representation on the bill. Hence, any proposals were postponed until the matter which has yet to be resolved.

As a matter of fact, he was surprised, there weren’t more people than Mr. Powers speaking in favor of the bill, let alone a proposed student amendment.

He had even gone so far as to arrange for a larger hearing room to accommodate a larger group than he anticipated.

At what happened to this a final vote on the part of the proponents of Senate Bill 1274? Is this a series of student representation mistakes? Or is it that past that we wonder about the student representation on the board.

Regardless of what happens or how many mistakes the fact remains that student representation on the board stands very little chance.

As a result of the hearing, the Alumni Association may be, is a lesson too being recognized. That’s good. We feel that is something worthy of bringing up for its own sake. But all the talk that we hear wanted to be heard. And more. And practically no one shows up.

The students have undoubtedly had a lesson in politics.

It’s Election Time!

The question is, how many of those people can actually accomplish these goals. How many of them are capable? It is the only indication of the future, their chances are very few of those running, very few of those who are actually elected, will be worth anything significant.

Student Government is not much known for not doing anything as much as it is for either not seeing a good thing when they have it or turning up (or “copping out”) on those worthwhile projects that they do begin.

For example, take the “investigation” of the Bookstore. They started off great. Recovered a good sum of money for the students.

Yet, when the going got good, they stopped cold. They simply ceased doing their job as they began to look into prices, policies, and the possibility of a student run on-campus bookstore.

What’s important to note here is that student government can be effective. The problem is that too many times those few capable people on the body do all the work and as it all gets heavier, the accomplishments get lighter. If the next election produce at least a higher percentage of capable people in the past, something might get done next year.

What is a capable person? The most obvious answer is a person who is hard-working, enthusiastic and sincere. That’s three years ago. Those many posters do you need to make? A capable person to us is one who is creative and most of all, has some idea on how to solve real problems of Suffolk and have some idea on how to correct them.

We see the Student Government as a lobbying force for students more than anything else.

It is the only organization that the administration recognizes as the official representative of the student body. At times the administration doesn’t seem to respect SGA too much, but how can you respect a bunch of people who can’t even get a phone on a two-week order? This is the problem.

If you’ve heard the speech "day" in Ridgeway Lane for those running for office. We not only urge all students to attend but to ask questions of the candidates, especially the incumbents. Ask simple questions like "how have you done?" or "what is your plan?" Don’t vote for someone if they don’t have a plan. Don’t vote for someone if they don’t have a plan. Don’t vote for someone if they don’t have a plan. As a result of the hearing, the students have undoubtedly had a lesson in politics.

Applications for the editorship of the SUFFOLK JOURNAL are due April 22

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

With all the fire bombings, assaults, demonstration demands in the schools today I wish to share with you and your readers, if I may, the memory of a very pleasant evening I had.

On Saturday night March 27th at Suffolk University I saw students perform in a musical comedy version of the famous romanesque drama "Ten Nights in a Barracks" by William Pratt. I would like to congratulate the students on their professional like presentation.

What is it that only the bad deeds of some students are so often publicized? I usually consider myself "silent majority" but would like to take this opportunity to speak out and say I am very thankful to see that the money from our taxes that go toward education is not being spent in vain.

It is also very reassuring to know that some of our students are not only interested in gaining an education but are also willing to spend their spare time to work together as a group to bring pleasure and laughter to other people of the community.

There was also a great deal of enthusiasm bubbling over from these students that I reached across the stage into the audience. The closing number, "Look at the Silver Lining," had not only me but most of the audience singing along spontaneously.

For one beautiful evening I was impressed by that special kind of magic that came from the "hearts" of these young people and found its way in the hearts of the audience.

I went backstage afterward and congratulated everyone I had a chance to speak to and I was not alone in my appreciation shown in their eyes and voices and I couldn't help being aware of the great feeling of togetherness that filled these young people. I truly envied them.

Once again, I would like to say, "Congratulations and thank you" to all the members of the Suffolk University Art Players and to all those who made and outside of the University who encourage and support these students. They worked hard and put the play into the eyes of the public. Let's give them the credit they deserve and with more power to them for all the laughter and joy and love they communicate to others. May they be blessed with further magics of entertainment.

The Student Elected to School Committee

by Barry Brody

Had Suffolk University's latest issue had a story on two Suffolk students, Ron Gold and Joe Shanahan, who ran for political office in their hometowns, it would have been more issue-oriented than ever. They're more concerned with taxes and quality of education than with a person's personality.

Gold had been through the entire school system and was familiar with its problems. Born and raised in Hull, he had been attending public schools his entire life and was familiar with its problems. Born and raised in Hull, he had been through the entire school system and was familiar with its problems.

He has hopes of future political campaigns, but said, "I believe I should hold out one full term on the school committee before I go into anything else.

The Journal's latest issue had a story on two Suffolk students, Ron Gold and Joe Shanahan, who ran for political office in their hometowns. A third student, Neal Brown, not only ran but won a seat on the Hull School Committee.

By winning, Brown became the youngest person ever to hold an elective office in his town. The 23-year-old senior is a Business major and a transfer student from Cape Cod Community College, where he served on the student senate and was vice president of his class.

Brown ran because of his active interest in politics and because "it was the right time to make a move. - the 15-year-olds had the vote and people were looking for a new politician." Born and raised in Hull, he had been through the entire school system and was familiar with its problems.

Student involvement in politics is a necessity," he said. Next year Brown hopes to form a third party in Hull designed to have a candidate under 30 run for every elective office available. He doubts if many will win but feels it important that youth have a voice.

Brown has been putting in 50 hours a week on the Committee to get acquainted. He is currently treasurer of the Democratic Men's Club and was Plymouth County coordinator for the Boston Mayor Kevin White's successful gubernatorial campaign.

After graduation Brown hopes to attend Boston University Graduate School of Urban Affairs at night while working days at a legislative aide to a U.S. senator. He has hopes of future political campaigns, but said, "I believe I should hold out one full term on the school committee before I go into anything else.

Brown resides in Hull, he had "A lot of people asked me to run because I've been so vocal," Brown has a reputation for speaking out at town meetings and has written editorials in his

Brown is married and has two his campaign because "it made

"I won't write a letter to the boss condemning

Students Encounter Ex-Addict During Drug Education Day

by Kent Jarrett

A drug education day at Suffolk March 25 featured an afternoon-long presentation by Marathon House, a Rhode Island-based drug rehabilitation program.

During the activity period, an eight-member cast, all ex-addicts from Marathon House, put on a psychodrama in the Auditorium. The performance involved the transformation of a junkie, Phil Morrow, to a member of Marathon House. Morrow was given a simple choice by the courts, either a five-year sentence in prison or director of the Coventry, RI, house stressed that things and hard drug use was not the problem, but the complex of the addict's main problem. Wheeler said that he could not communicate with the people around him. Most Marathon House residents are partly forced to join the program through th"

Michener on Kent

The photographed was taken by Beverly K. Knowles, a Kent State student from Alliance, Ohio, from an upper window of Prentice Hall. It shows the Guardmen kneeling on one knee and assumed a firing position.

At this point, Michener notes, many reports have told of a constant shower of rocks and "mad, screaming masses of students encircling the Guards, attacking them on all sides." But those reports are evidently unfounded, according to photographic evidence. The photograph was taken by Beverly K. Knowles, a Kent State student from Alliance, Ohio, from an upper window of Prentice Hall. It shows the Guardmen kneeling on one knee and assumed a firing position. At the far end of the practice field, Michener writes, "there were no students for at least 200 yards. Not one student is visible outside the fence."

In the area directly between Prentice Hall and the fence where the mob was supposed to have been, there was empty space for nearly 40 yards, then the Prentice Hall parking lot. On it could be counted a total of 22 students, five of them walking away from the Guard with books under their arm.

The Rocks for homosexuality are complicated, said Mrs. Williams, it is a problem in which familial love breaks down, heterosexuality is not communicated and this results in behavior deviating from the norm.

It is fairly obvious, that ignoring any problem does not dismiss it and emotional reaction does not significantly change it. What, then, must be done? Mrs. Williams strongly asserts that we must aid in the homosexual adjustment to society and study it further from this point. The most recent work in this regard is Martin Hoffman's "The Gay World," which takes a fresh look at this age-old topic.

Written by a physician who studied homosexual life in the San Francisco area, the emphasis is, as Mrs. Williams reemphasizes, one of tolerance.

What is at stake is summed up by Mrs. Williams - intolerance seriously threatens the creative power of all of us.

VA News

The Veterans Administration has announced standards for its mobile home program which guarantees up to 30 percent of home purchase price, up to $17,500 if the loan is also for a fully developed lot.

The mobile home program was established by FY 91 506 and VA has prescribed regulations to govern such homes as mobile home sites, construction standards and warranties.

There are also qualifications for mobile home park locations, basically the same as those for an average subdivision on which single family homes are built. They must have the same facilities, such as proper geographical locations, water, sewage, electricity, etc.

The new law empowers VA Administrator Donald F. Johnson to set interest rates at levels to ensure adequate capital for mobile home loans made by lending institutions. He set the interest rate at 10.75 percent.

The interest rate for money used to purchase a lot and to make improvements was set at 7 percent.

The VA also explained that mobile homes purchased under its program must be at least 40 feet long and 10 feet wide, with a minimum of 400 square feet.

Applicants should obtain their certificates of eligibility from the nearest VA regional office, issue a mobile home they like and meet VA standards, settle the details for rental or purchase of a mobile home, and then apply to a lender for a loan.

School Benefits

The VA reported 175,000 widows of veterans who died in service-connected disabilities and 65,000 wives of veterans totally disabled in service are eligible for generally up to 36 months of education.

VA noted that 8,324 widows and 1,960 wives have already received such benefits with December 1970 as the peak month when 4,582 were in training. The number of participants is expected to be higher in the current year.

Eligible for benefits under a law which became effective December 1, 1968, are widows of veterans who were disabled or died from causes related to service-connected disabilities, and total and nonservice-connected disabilities.

VA officials also pointed out that Public Law 91 584, the law which the VA announced in December, made a small number of additional waves eligible for educational benefits.

Meanwhile, the VA regional office in Boston reports that Massachusetts had 704 veterans, taking pensions and freemen on the regional basis in January under the GI Bill.

VA officials said 104 veterans were preparing for careers as

Psych. Prof. Discusses 'Normal' Sexuality

by Steve Fraher

One of the most emotionally exploitable issues confronting man in modern society seems to be the definition of normal sexuality. This is the subject of a brief interview with Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, associate professor of psychology, and psychological and psychiatric services at Suffolk.

Mrs. Williams has recently done research work in the field of homosexuality and has spoken before a meeting of the Student Homophile Association during the interview, she emphasized, not the lecture aspect of that meeting with this group, but the encounter value. "I went to ask questions, and learned a lot," she said.

Citing the work previously done in the sex research field, she concluded that a change in public awareness concerning homo sexual behavior is necessary. Developments in the field of sex research were achieved by the Kinsey report and the work of Masters and Johnson. Both have contributed to enlighten the public concerning human sexuality, but more enlightenment must follow concerning the social implications of human sexual response, especially in the vein of homosexual activity.

The work of Dr. Evelyn Hoar and research conducted by the New England Psychopathological Association have also served to focus attention on this field.

Homosexuality must be seen, said Mrs. Williams, as a sexual preference not a disease. We must not apply many of the same laws which have been applied to homosexuals so living is society without the obstruction imposed by the so-called 'strait' community. Abuse of treatment by government and the business community is frequently encountered by the homosexual and even the medical community is lax in recognizing the need for understanding and open-minded action in their field.

The reasons for homosexuality are complicated, said Mrs. Williams, it is a problem in which familial love breaks down, heterosexuality is not communicated and this results in behavior deviating from the norm.

It is fairly obvious, that ignoring any problem does not dismiss it and emotional reaction does not significantly change it. What, then, must be done? Mrs. Williams strongly asserts that we must aid in the homosexual adjustment to society and study it further from this point. The most recent work in this regard is Martin Hoffman's "The Gay World," which takes a fresh look at this age-old topic.

Sports

By Ken Masson

Sports is the password this spring at Suffolk. Three of our intercollegiate teams are in action season. They are baseball, golf and tennis.

With their spring depth and looks strong. It should prove to be one of the most interesting sports seasons. Suffolk has ever had.

Baseball

The team is already five games deep into a fifteen-game season. There is high hopes of continuing the success of past seasons with good indications that this could be the best team yet Jim Nelson is the coach.

Tennis

After a winter of preparation. the team began its spring season last Friday. The winter's hard work should pay off in a ten

Upcoming Sports

For baseball, golf and tennis fans, the following may interest you.

On April 22, the baseball team will play Clark University at 3 p.m. On April 23 the golf team will play Curry College at 1 30 p.m. On April 24, the tennis team will play Merrimack at 2 p.m. For places on the above see athletic director Charles Law.

NCAA

The NCAA baseball championships will be held at two places this year. The first three 3 5 will be at Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield, Missouri. The other, on June 11-16, will be at the Robert C.0. Reynolds Municipal Stadium, Omaha, Nebraska.

Opinion

Why doesn't Suffolk have an intramural program? In the past, the excuse has been that student participation would be too small. The success of last season's intramural basketball teams has disproved that theory. In this program 130 students participated.

The sports department should seriously consider this success as a stepping stone for the future. Just because a student doesn't have the time for intercollegiate ball doesn't mean that sports is not part of his or her life.

A good intramural program should encompass many sports. The complete program might consist of football, bowling, basketball and softball. Is this too much to ask of a school that is a University?*

Pro-Draft takes Dalton

Suffolk basketball captain Allan "The Dart" Dalton has been drafted by both the Memphis Pros to the American Basketball Association and the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association.

Dalton is the first player in Suffolk's 25-year basketball history to be drafted by a professional basketball team. He was chosen by Memphis on the 20th round and by the Celtics in the supplemental phase of the NBA draft.

Suffolk basketball captain Allan "The Dart" Dalton has been drafted by both the Memphis Pros to the American Basketball Association and the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association. Dalton is the first player in Suffolk's 25-year basketball history to be drafted by a professional basketball team. He was chosen by Memphis on the 20th round and by the Celtics in the supplemental phase of the NBA draft.

Daltom has been a standout player for two and one-half seasons at Suffolk. A year ago he averaged 20.2 points a game and during the past season his average was 21.4 points per contest. He has also been Suffolk's leader in assists for two seasons.

Among the basketball honors accorded him this season were selection to the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference all star team for Division III, a member of the University of Hartford's all-division team, and a member of the third team of the United Press International Coaches All New England College division team.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dalton, now of 132 Tusco Dr., Brookline. Dalton is presently undecided on which league he will try.

"I would actually like to try out for both the Celtics and the Memphis team," Dalton said. "Realistically, my chances are probably better in the ADA, but it would be a tremendous challenge to try out for the Celtics, a team I've followed since I was a kid, and an even bigger thrill to make the club."

Dalton's coach, Charlie Law, who's been coaching basketball at Suffolk for 25 years, thinks Allan has a good chance of catching the eye of one in either league.

"Allan's got as much talent as any player around this area," says Law. "He's a lot quicker than most players and there are few boys who love to play basketball in spend as much time at it as Allan. I think he could surprise a lot of people."

which led to the top in management have developed skills that are simply not taught by formal education.

The solution: "To reduce the burden on educational credentials as admission tickets to the universities," states the editorial, "a revolutionary change in the educational system must open up alternative routes to educational opportunities."

Regional Examining Universities, where exams without courses certify one's academic program and grant degrees, "Regional Television Colleges" which provide access to taped lectures, "large colleges" like those already existing "free universities" and tutors, all these ideas, the task force says, could complement "campus" education.

6. Racial and sexual discrimination can be overcome in education only with the combined change in the attitudes of the public and educators. For racial minorities, the report recommends that "educators must begin to understand what it means to be a minority student."

"More opportunity and effort must go into developing forms of education that adapt to the needs of minority students." New kinds of inner-city institutions must be created with special curriculum and faculty. As for ending discrimination against women, the task force—does include Audrey Cohen, president of the College Employers' Association—challenges graduate schools to make affirmative action not merely neutrality—to recruit minority women. "Women should receive equal pay for equal faculty rank," and calls for consideration of the special problems of those who are responsible for students' educational experiences. The solution to this problem, the task force recommends, is the hiring of minority women.

policemen, while 100 others were training to become policemen. Nationally, 8,000 veterans were engaged in OJT for careers in these fields - 6,200 as policemen and 2,000 as firemen. This was a 51 percent increase over the 5,500 veterans in training a year earlier.

VA explained that before a veteran can participate in police training OJT, the veteran must have served at least 12 months in the armed forces and then been discharged for physical disability.

During the veteran's training period, VA supplements earnings from his police or fire department and requires that at the program's start he be paid at least 50 percent of the salary of the job for which he is training.

By the veteran's last month of training, he must be paid a minimum of 85 percent of the salary he would receive as a regular employee.

VA pays training centers a minimum of $75 per month for each new student for the first six months of training, $85 for the next six months, $95 for the last six months, and $75 for the seventh and eighth months.

Basic hiring requirements for policemen-trainees generally include a personal interview, character investigation, and a driver's license.

VA urged veterans interested in taking on the job training for policemen or firemen to contact their local police or fire department.

Training Program

A two-year radiological technology training program conducted jointly by the VA and Northeastern University has been opened up to Vietnam veterans and recent high school graduates.

The training consists of two phases, according to Dr. Francis B. Carroll, Director, Boston VA Hospital. For the first year, training is mainly in the classroom. During the second year, classroom work is supplemented with practical experience and the VA hospital.

Successful completion of the training course makes the student eligible immediately for an unlicensed number of jobs in an understaffed profession.

Continuous vacancies exist at VA hospitals and clinics as well as other public and voluntary hospitals.

Miss Jeanne Gallivan, director of the Hospital School of X-Ray Technology, reports that new classes will begin July 1 at Northeastern Tech. $1,000 a year VA pays a stipend to cover the student's living expenses. Vietnam veterans may attend under the G.I. Bill.

Taking a giant leap from the rear expression, analyzed the present "homogenized" state of higher education and warned the nation that "simply expanding the present system will not provide meaningful education for the ever broader spectrum of students gaining entrance.

The 139-page report looks in its entirety at a variety of college collective tenant admissions, curriculum faculties. Bureaucracy, credentials, and discrimination. For every point there was a solution proposed:

1. Admissions policies, while encouraging more and more high school students to attend college, perpetuate a "socially conditioned reflex" to continue in school because "it's the thing to do.

2. The longer students remain in the academic atmosphere, the more some become dependent upon it because of the only life they know. With the exception of summer jobs, most young people in college have no first-hand knowledge of any occupation save that of being a student.

3. More male veterans refuse to encourage admission of older students after they break up their years of schooling for at least two years.

4. Curricula at most colleges and universities reflect "the growth of federal support that has enabled them to expand into graduate education and to hire talented personnel oriented to academic disciplines rather than career- oriented programs.

No longer is there a choice among different modes of learning but between institutions which differ in the extent to which they conform to the model of the prestige university.

People beat a thousand, Seattle Ranger Shan a burned out forest. Once they're done and black and blistered, forest take forever. It's a long and ugly process.
The baby seal. A photo was one of 50,000 killed in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, one of over half a million seals clubbed, speared, shot, and harpooned during the 1970 Canadian-Norwegian slaughter in the Atlantic.

Don't believe hunters who would persuade you that Friends of Animals has been "misleading" you, that any slaughter anywhere is done for the benefit of the seals.

On March 21, 1970, the second day of the Canadian seal hunt, I saw the same brutal massacre against which Friends of Animals, of which I am president, has been protesting for years.

As the bubble-domed helicopter flew low over the first day's kill, I saw mother seals, feeding the skeletal corpses of their babies, standing ten feet away from the killers on the ice floes, barking miles out in the Gulf, I saw baby seals, cold and hungry, lose their heads as they were bludgeoned open. Other babies were bashed as many as fourteen times where the motion washed them in blood and slime.

If you are one who cannot be indifferent to the suffering of other creatures,

YOU CAN HELP

First - by refusing to buy yourself in the agony of another, by refusing to buy the skins of wildlife.

Second - by calling this advertisement to be inserted in your local newspaper. (A list will be sent upon your request to Friends of Animals, Inc.)

Third - by sending a tax-deductible contribution to Friends of Animals, Inc., a non-profit organization that intends to pound on the world's conscience until sentient men and women everywhere are made aware of the unnecessary cruelty and destruction being inflicted upon animals. Your contribution will be used to plead for those creatures who cannot speak for themselves but who surely implore us all.
