1998 Commencement
By Donald Martelli

Former United States Vice President Dan Quayle and former Chief of Staff of the Clinton Administration Leon Panetta spoke at the University’s commencement exercises on Sunday, May 24 at the Fleet Center in Boston. Over one thousand students were awarded degrees at the ceremonies.

Leon Panetta, who was appointed by President Bill Clinton to be his chief of staff in 1994, addressed over 400 graduates of the Law School at the 10 a.m. ceremony. Prior to his White House appointment, Panetta served as director of the Office of Management and Budget where he helped develop the President’s economic plan which reduced the deficit for four consecutive years. He also served as the U.S. representative from California’s 16th (now 17th) Congressional District from 1977 to 1993.

Suffolk President David Sargent commended Panetta for his “distinguished service to his country as a public and private citizen,...” and his strong belief in equal justice, equal rights, rights of workers and education. Sargent awarded Panetta with the honorary degree of doctor of public administration.

Also receiving honorary degrees at the Law School ceremony were Professor Lillian R. BeVier, University of Virginia Law School; the Honorable Roderick L. Ireland, Associate Justice, Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts; Mrs. Victoria Reggie Kennedy, attorney at law; and the Honorable John Murtha, United States Representative, Pennsylvania.

College of Arts and Sciences and Sawyer School of Management graduates had the distinct honor of receiving their commencement address from the 44th Vice President of the United States, Dan Quayle. Winning the national office at the young age of 41, Quayle was a strong advocate for family values and became one of the most active vice presidents in history. His previous experience in public service comes from his eight years as a U.S. Senator and four years as a U.S. Congressman.

Quayle, a native of Indiana, joked with the Boston crowd saying that they (the state of Indiana) only lent Celtic legend Larry Bird to Boston for a few years but “now he is back where he belongs.” Bird is now the head coach of the Indiana Pacers. Quayle was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of public administration.

Also receiving honorary degrees during the afternoon ceremony were Herman Cain, chairman and chief executive officer of Godfather’s Pizza, Inc.; Leonard Florence of Wallace Silversmith International Silver; Terrence J. Murray, chairman and chief financial officer of Fleet Financial Group, Inc.; and Jerome Lyle Rappaport, chairman of New Boston Fund, Inc. ✡
Commencement Pictorial —

George Comeau, UMS, with former Vice President Dan Quayle at the Summa dinner.

Jack McCarthy, Registrar's Office, does his best John Travolta impression upon receipt of his degree.

Nghi Quach, of the Business Office, receives her BSBA degree from Dean John Brennan.

Don Martelli from Public Affairs, Susan Donoghue from Alumni Relations, Trustee Michael Gillis and his wife Julie enjoy the Summa dinner.
Commencement Pictorial —

Diana Gonzalez, of the Mailroom, receives her MFA degree from Dean John Brennan.

Nakisha King, Registrar’s office, waves to the crowd upon receipt of her B.S.

Dorothy Zahir, Office of the President, helps former Vice President Dan Quayle with his regalia.

Jean Neenan and Jeff Foss, both from Development, at the SSOM Hooding ceremony. Jeff received his MPA degree.
Sawyer School Bids Farewell to Professor Corman with Style
By Teri Malionek

On May 14, the Sawyer School of Management concluded its yearlong 60th anniversary celebration by honoring the 30-year service of Professor Joel Corman to Suffolk University. Dean John F. Brennan began the program by remarking that he “could not think of a more fitting way to celebrate the Sawyer School’s 60th anniversary than to celebrate a faculty member’s career as a symbol of the Sawyer School’s achievement”.

Vice President Flannery extended greetings from the University and publicly thanked Dr. Corman for all of his hard work and dedication through the years. He specifically mentioned his work on the Sawyer School’s initial attempts for AACSB accreditation remarking that “we were successful and our success was due to the efforts of Joel Corman.”

Joel Corman was surrounded by family, friends, Sawyer School faculty, University administration and Trustees for this picture perfect day overlooking the Boston Harbor at the Exchange Conference Center. Notably, Professor Corman’s wife, Paula, a 1980 graduate of Suffolk’s MBA Program, and daughter Bicky, a graduate of Suffolk Law School, and her husband Gerald were joined by close friends of the Cormans’, Philip and Susan Weinstein and Law School Professor Jack Nolan. In addition, three of Professor Corman’s former graduate assistants attended the party: Neil Hunt, Lori Millett and Gina Spaziani.

Unquestionably, the climax of the event included the presentation of a variety of humorous and serious mementos for Dr. Corman given by Associate Deans C. Richard Torrisi and Susan C. Atherton, Management Chairperson Daniel Sankowsky, MIS Systems Administrator Peter Porcello, and on behalf of past Corman graduate assistants, Neil Hunt.

Joel and Paula Corman plan an active retirement and are looking forward to spending time sailing.

Tragic Accident Befalls Faculty Member

The entire Suffolk community was saddened to learn of the death of Melanie A. Brown, adjunct professor in the Law School. Brown, 37, died from injuries sustained in a motor vehicle accident while traveling with her family in Ohio on May 21.

Brown attended Wellesley College as an undergraduate student where she was a Rhodes Scholar finalist. After graduating from University of Virginia School of Law, she accepted a position as assistant attorney general in the criminal bureau of the Boston office of the attorney general.

In addition to her teaching abilities, Brown was an accomplished pianist and composer. She performed with several area orchestras including the MIT Symphony and the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra. On April 25, Brown gave a benefit concert at the C. Walsh Theatre to assist in fundraising efforts for the new Law School building. Brown performed a full-length concert of classical works and original compositions for 300 guests.

Brown gave selflessly to Suffolk University. The entire University community mourns her passing. We respectfully extend our sincerest condolences to her husband, Ethan, and daughter, Elissa Rose.
IS Improvements Underway
By Toni Tinberg

The Datatel Colleague system is used by most administrative offices at Suffolk to manage student, financial and human resource system needs. This integrated database is critical to the admission, financial aid, registration, and billing processes for CAS, SSOM and the Law School. A major revision to the Datatel Colleague student systems software is underway. The revision will build on our 18 year investment with our software partner Datatel and will result in improvements to the academic information system.

Over the next few months, many members of the Suffolk community will be required to contribute their time and expertise to this implementation project. The project, nicknamed "Release 14+", is chaired by Bob DiGuardia, director of administrative computing, and Mary Lally, college registrar. Other members of the Release 14+ Steering Committee are Lorraine Cove, law registrar; Paula Fleck, bursar; Cathy Harris, associate director of Enrollment Research and Planning; and Toni Tinberg, associate director of Human Resources.

Over the summer, the Steering Committee will be busy preparing the Release 14+ implementation schedule. Watch future issues of the SUN and for the new Release 14+ newsletter for further information about this exciting project. *

New Program Director for International Student Enrollment

Marco Rodriguez has been appointed the Program Director for International Student Enrollment. Marco brings to Suffolk over eight years of experience in international education. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Texas Tech University.

Prior to his appointment at Suffolk, Marco was the administrative coordinator for the International Office of The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas. He also spent six months in Brazil teaching English as a Second Language and two years in Jamaica as part of the U.S. Peace Corps.

Marco's primary responsibility is to assist students who are attending Suffolk on an F-1 visa. His goals for the department are to increase the number of services offered to international students and to streamline those services already in existence. He and his assistant, Sandy Lo, are working with various departments to insure that they have accurate information to give to students in order to avoid confusion.

Most importantly, Marco wants our international students "to know that the International Student Office is available to them for any adjustment issues they may have, whether they be on or off-campus." Marco and Sandy can be reached at ext. 8154. *

Joan MacVicar Retires from Counseling Center

After 25 years of dedicated service to Suffolk University, Joan MacVicar is retiring from her position as a professor in the Counseling Center. Joan began her career at Suffolk in 1973 as an assistant professor. Prior to that, Joan had received her Ph.D. in clinical psychology from Boston University and had worked at the South Shore Mental Health Center.

During her years here, Joan has been the director of training for the Counseling Center interns. She played the most significant role in updating the internship program and having it accredited by the American Psychological Association (APA) in 1996.

Ken Garni, director of the Counseling Center, hired Joan 25 years ago. He states that she is "quite simply the best therapist I have ever known" largely due to her ability "to balance theory with practice." Joan plans to spend some of her time in retirement on consulting work but is also looking forward to traveling. *
Thirty Employees Graduate

Thirty University employees received degrees from Suffolk at the commencement exercises held May 24 at the Fleet Center.

They were: Wilma Celestine, President's Office, master of education; Heather Clark, UMS, bachelor of science; Christine Colbert, Physics and Electrical Engineering, bachelor of science; Stephen Creamer, Student Accounts, master of public administration; Tahira Delaine, Mailroom, bachelor of science; Kelly DeLuca, registrar's office, master of education; Melissa Fletcher, Law Library, juris doctor; Jeffrey Foss, Development, master of public administration; Diana Gonzalez, Mailroom, master of public administration; Ruth Hegarty, Communications & Journalism, bachelor of arts; Darwin Hernandez, University Police, bachelor of science; and Tyrone Johnson, University Police, associate of science.

Also graduating were: Nakisha King, Registrar's Office, bachelor of science; David Latessa, Financial Aid, master of education; Margaret Lourie, Sawyer Library, master of business administration; Alexandra MacMurdo, Deans' Office - SSOM, master of arts; John McCarthy, Registrar's Office, bachelor of science; Erin McDonough, Education and Human Services, master of public administration; Aeri Meyers, Dean of Students Office, bachelor of science in business administration; Kellye Nelson, Deans Office - SSOM, master of science; Tracey Palmer, UMS, master of arts; and Derek Pearson, UMS, bachelor of science.

Other graduates were: Nghi Quach, Business Office, bachelor of science in business administration; Beth Ross, Registrar's Office, master of education; Lisa Slusza, Business Office, bachelor of science in business administration; Molly Sparhawk, NESAD, bachelor of arts; Dawn Sullivan, Associate Deans' Office - Law School, master of education; Meg White, Career Services and Co-Operative Education, master of education; Celeste Wilson, C. Walsh Theatre, master of business administration; and Laure Zarriello, Humanities and Modern Languages, master of science.

Yellow and blue Suffolk corsages were delivered to the graduates to wear on their commencement robes. Congratulations to all.

SSOM Hooding

By Teri Malinek

Approximately 1200 students, their families, and SSOM faculty were in attendance at the Sawyer School of Management's annual Master's Hooding Ceremony on May 24 at the John Hancock Hall in Boston.

Edward F. McDonnell, president of the Premier Group, LLC and Suffolk University Trustee delivered the keynote address. In his address, McDonnell mentioned the beliefs and rules he has adhered to throughout his career. Specifically, he advised students not to limit their thinking and to be persistent and to be dissatisfied until they achieve their goals. McDonnell holds an undergraduate degree in business administration and an honorary doctorate degree from Suffolk University. He is also Chairman of the Sawyer School of Management Trustee Committee.

The Hooding Ceremony formally recognizes a student's completion of academic achievements at the master's level in the Sawyer School of Management. During the ceremony, the master's hood is placed on the shoulders of each graduate by Associate Dean Torrisi and Associate Dean Atherton. The most colorful piece of the academic regalia, the master's hood represents Suffolk University and the student's graduate degree program.
NESADSU Holds Diploma Programs Commencement Exercise
By Sara Chadwick

Students receiving three-year diplomas in Interior Design, Graphic Design, and Fine Arts were honored with a graduation luncheon on Sunday, May 18 at Boston's Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Twenty-two graduates, along with family and friends, were treated to a social hour and sit-down luncheon in the hotel's Petite Ballroom on Arlington Street.

After welcoming remarks from Bill Davis, NESAD SU Chairman, the graduates heard from John Hoy, President of the New England Board of Higher Education, who spoke of the significant role played by the arts in education and the economy in New England. Hoy also discussed his role as sponsor of the April 1998 conference entitled "The Arts of New England Higher Education: Assessing the Cultural, Economic, and Social Contribution of College and University Art Programs on America's Smallest Region." He asserted that the arts offer the graduate, through imagination and creativity, a virtually unlimited professional future.

Following the talk, diplomas were awarded by Davis and the three program directors, Audrey Goldstein (Fine Arts), Laura Golly (Graphic Design), and Karen Clarke (Interior Design).

Twelve of the diploma program graduates were also awarded bachelor of fine arts degrees at Suffolk's commencement on May 24 at the Fleet Center, along with three students who earned diplomas earlier and who had since completed additional academic requirements.

Behind the Scenes at Commencement
By Kimberly Hall MacMillan

Have you ever wondered how the commencement exercises come together without a hitch? Well, it is due, in large part, to the collaborative efforts of several departments under the leadership of the Dean of Students office.

Believe it or not, coordination begins in September for the following year's event when contracts with the Fleet Center are cemented. Also in September, the Registrars' offices compile information on students who completed their degree requirements over the summer sessions and are considered September graduates. The Dean of Students office begins communication with CAS and SSOM students almost immediately while the Law Registrar coordinates for the law students.

The next major step in the process is a meeting in February which brings representatives from all key offices together, including: both Registrars' Offices, University Police, Public Affairs, Office of the President, UMS, Student Accounts, the Bookstore, and CAS and SSOM Deans' Offices. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss progress to date and timelines for planning.

Obviously, all of these offices and many others are engulfed in commencement planning for the few weeks before the event. Most daunting used to be the task of checking student eligibility to walk in commencement. That process has been significantly improved by a computer process, designed by Aeri Meyers, Dean Nancy Stoll's administrative assistant, and implemented with the assistance of MIS. This system allows electronic communication between offices; it replaces an antiquated paper process. What is even more remarkable, however, is the amount of effort expended during commencement weekend.

On the Friday before commencement, crews from the Dean of Students office and UMS shuttle back and forth between campus and the Fleet Center setting up lights, sound, and signage. They also do a run-through of the short video that opens the ceremonies. On Saturday, once again, numerous employees spend all day at the Fleet Center setting up. Professional movers are hired to transport furniture and equipment to the Fleet Center while the professional florists come in to create their displays on site. Student speakers are also rehearsed that day.

Commencement day functions at a frenzic pace but is very well-organized, due in large part to the step-by-step itinerary for the day, written by Meyers. The day begins at 7:00 am with a VIP breakfast. The Law School commencement begins at 10:00 am. As soon as the guests are ushered out, preparation begins for the afternoon ceremony for CAS and SSOM which starts promptly at 2:30 pm. The 45 staff and student volunteers usually have one hour to ready the Fleet Center for the afternoon before those guests begin to arrive. Meanwhile, a VIP luncheon is held at the Fleet for approximately 120 people. Following the afternoon ceremony, there is an international student reception at 6:30 in the evening.

Dean Stoll and Aeri Meyers, who were interviewed for this article, make the whole event sound quite overwhelming; but, it is obvious that the event is in good hands. "This year went very well" says Stoll but adds that commencement rides on the work of her office and that of every office coordinator. There are, of course, so many people to thank for their efforts, far too many to mention in one small article. Hopefully, this gives each of us an appreciation for the amount of effort required to coordinate commencement and an understanding of the laudable collaboration of many departments throughout the year.
On Retirement
By Toni Lenz Tinberg

Effective June 1, 1998, the University is making some changes to the loan provision in our retirement plan. Retirement plan loans generally are not appropriate to meet short-term financial needs because of the potential for long-term lost interest. They may be critical, however, in meeting long-term goals such as the purchase of a home.

Previously, loans were available only through Lincoln Life. Effective in June, loans will be offered directly from TIAA-CREF Retirement Annuity contracts. Loans from a TIAA-CREF Group Supplemental Retirement Annuity, or SRA, have been available for several years.

TIAA-CREF Retirement Annuity loans require that the amount to be borrowed, plus 10% collateral, be transferred from CREF into a Retirement Loan Contract. This Loan Contract is a TIAA Certificate paying 3% interest. Interest charged on the loan is variable quarterly based on Moody’s Corporate Bond Yield Averages. Loan repayments are directly billed by TIAA-CREF quarterly; quarterly electronic transfer from your checking or savings account is also possible. As the loan is repaid, the amount exceeding any required collateral is transferred back into the CREF Money Market Account under the original CREF certificate. When the loan is fully repaid, the separate TIAA loan certificate will be canceled.

Please call TIAA-CREF at 1-800-842-2776, or call Toni Tinberg at extension 8415 if you’d like further information.

Featured Benefit: Long-Term Care Insurance

An accident, illness, or the effects of aging may prevent an individual from being able to function independently—this is where long-term care insurance can help. Long-term care insurance provides financial assistance for custodial care to people who are unable to care for themselves over a prolonged period of time. This care includes assistance with bathing, food preparation and eating, and other “activities of daily living”. It may also include nursing home care. Custodial care is distinct from medical care and is generally not covered by traditional medical insurance.

Suffolk University offers long-term care insurance through TIAA, a company you may recognize from our Long-Term Disability, Supplemental Life and retirement plans. Teacher’s Long Term Care provides benefits for Home Health Care, Adult Day Care, Nursing Home Care, and Respite Care. All levels of care are covered. The plan’s flexibility allows you to choose how your policy’s benefits are spent. The policy is fully portable, meaning that you may keep coverage regardless of any change in your employment. Employees of Suffolk University may choose to pay for their monthly premiums through payroll deduction.

All current and retired Suffolk University employees, their spouses, parents and parents-in-law are eligible to apply for Teacher’s Long Term Care insurance, provided they are age 18 through 84. Your family members may apply for coverage even if you choose not to apply.

Contact TIAA at (800) 223-1200 for more information, or Toni Tinberg in the Human Resources office at (617) 573-8415 for an application.

New Employees

Todd Brown, clerical assistant, Health Services.
Wai-Hing Cheng, staff accountant, Accounting.
Henry Garzon, utility helper, Physical Plant.
Johnny Leon, clerk, Mailroom.
Julissa Peguero, evening supervisor, Undergraduate Admission.
Marco Rodriguez, program director, Enrollment & Retention Management.
Susan Swan, assistant director, Ballotti Learning Center.
Rita Tzimoranas, manager of student loans, Student Accounts.
Hong Wong, secretary, Law School.

Appreciation Day

Over 100 employees braved the elements on a chilly June afternoon to celebrate the University’s 11th Support Staff Appreciation Day. The event is held annually to honor and thank staff who work hard all year providing high quality service to students, assisting faculty, administrators and other staff in a wide variety of functions.

This year Human Resources hosted a Wednesday afternoon cruise around Boston Harbor on the M/V Freedom. The hour and a half cruise featured a buffet. A good time was had by all.
Fred Marchant, professor, English. Last semester, he conducted a series of eight poetry workshops at Algonquin Regional High School in Northboro, MA, and was a featured speaker at the Boston Writing Project at UMass-Boston. His essay on Vietnamese poets of the war era was published in Humanities, the journal of the National Endowment of the Humanities. He also published poems in a number of nationally recognized literary journals in the past year, including AGNI and Ploughshares.

Marilyn Jurich, associate professor, English. In March, she presented a paper at the International Association of Fantasy in the Arts conference. Entitled “The Thorn in the Rose and the Terror of the Vine,” the paper explores the mythical world experienced by schizophrenics and particularly as realized in the novel, I Never Promised You a Rose Garden.

Sharon Kurtz, associate professor, Sociology. She was promoted to associate professor. She was also the recipient of this year’s Women’s Leadership Faculty Award from the Women’s Center as well as the faculty award from student leaders for Students with Disabilities.

Janice Fama, staff assistant, Sociology. She was the recipient of an award from student leaders for Students with Disabilities in appreciation of her continued support.

David Yamada, associate professor, Law School. In his capacity as co-chair of the Mass. Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild, he was part of an advocacy team that organized a May 12 press conference in front of a major supermarket chain’s corporate headquarters on behalf of “Jane Doe,” who was raped and beaten in 1990 by a supervisor at a store now owned by the company. The press conference was held to urge the company to drop its appeal of a workers’ compensation awarded to Doe. The event attracted coverage by all local television stations and many local newspapers. Professor Yamada developed materials for dissemination to the media and moderated the press conference.

Carl Merrill, associate professor, Biology. He reports that the Biology department was well-represented at both the 56th Eastern New England Biology Conference (ENBEC) held at Stonehill College on April 18 and the Northeast Direct One Convention of the Beta Beta Beta Biological Honor Society (BBB) held at Worcester State College on April 25. Paul Beglane, Susanne Hoeppner and Tracy Sisco presented papers at ENBEC. Also present at the conferences were Dr. Beatrice Snow (Permanent Secretary of ENBEC), Dr. Peter Burn, and Dr. Merrill.

Jack Demick, professor, Psychology. He has been given three new book contracts: a handbook of adult development and aging, theoretical perspectives on environment-behavior research, and clinical psychology: toward integration.

Paul Tanklefsky, director, Career Services and Co-operative Education. He was a panelist at the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) spring workshop, “Getting Published: Writing and More.”
Michael Rustad, professor, Law School. He received the Moynihan Award for excellence in teaching as presented by the Student Bar Association. In May, he was a panelist at a discussion on "Legal Issues in Electronic Commerce", sponsored by the Massachusetts Electronic Commerce Association.

Melissa Haussman, assistant professor, Government. She received a Library Grant from the government of Canada for academic year 1997-98. The matching grant is intended to strengthen the holdings of U.S. libraries. This grant, which has already helped to augment the holdings of the Sawyer Library, will provide resources for the Government department's undergraduate International Relations concentration and graduate concentration in North American Politics.

C. Richard Torrisi, associate dean, Deans' Office - SSOM. In June, he attended a global forum on Management Technology hosted by AACSB and the Graduate Management Admissions Council Annual Meeting as the Sawyer School representative.

Wilma Celestino, assistant director, Office of the President and Multicultural Affairs. She received her M.Ed. at commencement. She was also honored as "Club Advisor of the Year" by the Student Government Association at their leadership banquet in April.

Krisanne Bursik, professor, Psychology and director of Women's Studies. Her paper, "Moving Beyond Gender Differences: Gender Role Comparisons of Manifest Dream Content," was recently published in the journal, Sex Roles (1998, Volume 38, Nos. 3/4.)

Wilma Celestino receives her master's hood from Dean Michael Ronayne.

Becky Nies, assistant director of Sawyer Library, accepts grant check from Dean Sherratt, Consul, Canadian Consulate General of New England.
Potpourri
By Kimberly Hall MacMillan

As has become custom here in Potpourri, we will begin with a report on the Baby Watch! We've had a very busy couple of months in the Suffolk community. Kicking off the list of new babies, Dolores Pariste, Health Services, gave birth to a baby girl, Amanda Mede, on March 25. Amanda weighed in at 6 lbs., 10 oz. In April, we were blessed with five new babies, three girls and two boys. Helen (Ellen) Keating, biology, started us off with Lily Ann, born on April 10. Lily weighed 6 lbs. 15 oz. At the same weight, Justin, son of Glory Peguero-Gonzalez, Undergraduate Admission, was born on April 25.

Earlier that same week on April 20, new employee, Marc Miller, Budget Office, and his wife, Heather, became the proud parents of their first child, daughter Monique. Monique weighed 6 lbs., 9 oz. at birth. Just a few short days later, Brenda Amorin, Law Faculty, and Jeanne Aversa, Undergraduate Admission, welcomed their new arrivals. Brenda had a baby girl weighing 6 lbs., 6 oz. Caitlin Elizabeth Amorin, their first child, was born on April 24 to Brenda and her husband, Manny. Jeanne Aversa greeted her new son, Joseph Thomas, on April 27. Joseph was by far the biggest baby of the bunch, weighing in at a healthy, 8 lbs., 12 oz. Congratulations and best wishes to all our new parents!

On April 29, Bill Coughlin, Undergraduate Admission, hosted 12 seventh graders from The Academy of the Pacific Rim, a charter school in Hyde Park. One of the subjects that they study is Mandarin. The first part of the program consisted of a discussion of their school, the students' career hopes and interests and general information about college life. This talk was followed by a slide show of China and other far eastern countries. The program concluded with a tour of the State House...

Congratulations to Marie Pagliarulo, Payroll, who received the award for the Highest Scholastic Achievement for a sophomore this year...

The Business Office reports that the Safe Harbors Parking Garage has suspended their discount parking coupon program due to their recent change in management. Existing coupons will still be honored, however, no new coupons will be issued. The Business Office does not know what, if any, new programs will be available, but promise to keep the campus community informed. If you have any questions, please feel free to call Lisa Sluszka at ext. 8405...

Congratulations to our newest police officer trainees, Duc Tran and Sean O'Brien! John Pagliarulo, also asks that we wish best of luck to officers Sidarith Hing and Duane Keegan. They are attending an 11-week Campus Police Academy. Chief Pagliarulo also reports that University Police will be initiating bicycle patrols this summer. Officers Maureen Brown and Ramon Nunez recently completed an intensive three-day program on "Policing Via a Bicycle"...
Yesteryear

In honor of Ted Hamann's retirement from Suffolk, we thought it only appropriate to feature Ted and his cohorts from the Sawyer Library in this issue's yesteryear. This photo was taken at Lieberman Field on the Charles River in Boston on June 27, 1991 just after Ted had completed a cross-country bicycle ride. Pictured (l to r) are Kathleen Maio, senior reference librarian; Jim Coleman, former associate director of the library; Ted Hamann, director of the library; Cathy Boyle, manager; and Elisa Mc Knight, former librarian.

(Each issue of The SUN will dig into the past for some photographic Suffolk memorabilia. If you have an historic or memorable photo send it to us at One Beacon Street.)

* The Suffolk University Newsletter

Attention: Kimberly Hall MacMillan, Human Resources
8 Ashburton Place, Boston, Massachusetts 02108-2770

Visit our web site at:
http://www.suffolk.edu/admin/hr