GRAND CHAIR... Mrs. Mary Allen, the principal's daughter, and Mrs. A. E. Waller and Mrs. A. E. Waller, Jr., were hosts to a party for Mrs. Waller's daughter, Miss Mary Allen, who will leave for New York on Wednesday.

When Mrs. Allen and her sister arrived, the guests were already present, and the party began with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres. The banquet was followed by a dance, and the night ended with a final toast to the hostess.

The guests included members of the Waller family, as well as friends and acquaintances from the social scene.

TO YOUTH ON OLD AGE

If there is any care for old age which quacks cannot merchandize, it is compounded in the pharmacy of youth.
The ingredients are simplicity, sincerity, self-control, a little local color, money money, and the right dialect.
Primarily, the right dialect is the language of the neighborhood in which the child grows up.

The first problem of the aged is the problem of organization. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged are by no means a monolithic group. They have as many problems as the young. They have as many organizations as the young. They have as many groups and clubs as the young. The problem is organization.

The second problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as much self-control as the young. They have as much willpower as the young. They have as much self-discipline as the young. The problem is self-control.

The third problem of the aged is the problem of organization. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as many organizations as the young. They have as many groups and clubs as the young. They have as many clubs and organizations as the young. The problem is organization.

The fourth problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as
much willpower as the young. They have as
self-control.

The fifth problem of the aged is the problem of organization. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as many organizations as the young. They have as many groups and clubs as the young. They have as
problem is organization.

The sixth problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as
much willpower as the young. They have as
self-control.

The seventh problem of the aged is the problem of organization. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as many organizations as the young. They have as many groups and clubs as the young. They have as
problem is organization.

The eighth problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as
much willpower as the young. They have as
self-control.

The ninth problem of the aged is the problem of organization. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as many organizations as the young. They have as many groups and clubs as the young. They have as many clubs and organizations as the young. The problem is organization.

The tenth problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as
much willpower as the young. They have as
self-control.

The eleventh problem of the aged is the problem of organization. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as many organizations as the young. They have as many groups and clubs as the young. They have as many clubs and organizations as the young. The
problem is organization.

The twelfth problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as
much willpower as the young. They have as

The eighteenth problem of the aged is the problem of self-control. This is a basic problem, not a special problem of the aged. The aged have as
much willpower as the young. They have as
self-control.
DiMaggio Heads Easter Seal Drive

One of America's most famous athletes will head the 1956 Easter Seal campaign in the Greater Boston area to aid crippled children and adults in Massachusetts. George M. Richout of Weddall, Mass., president of the Bay State Society for the Crippled and Handicapped, the Easter Seal society, said today.

He is a director of the American Society of Well-\lev, president of the American Bar Association, former Massachusetts Federation Law, Finance, and former Selected Serviceman Credit Union. He will address the annual state-wide Easter Seal appeal as campaign chairman, hoping to "get the effort going to maintain and promote greater services for the crippled in Massachusetts."

DiMaggio, a native of San Francisco, played on the San Francisco Baseball Team before joining the New York Yankees in 1946. He is a member of the corporation of the Greater Boston Community Fund, the Cleveland Foundation, the Law Society, and of the Bay State Society.

Easter Seal Day will be Lenore Ramsey of King's Norton, England, who will be in town for a football trip just missed winning the V.A.A. schoolboys' classic 600, and Art Washington, Boston Trade, expediter, who also has no relatives turn out.

Till Case Hearing

For the first time in its history, the International League for Peace and Freedom Against the War and the Preparatory Committee to a General Anti-Defamation League of Massachusetts, under Executive Director, Mrs. Gabriel, executive board member, has called for a national conference on the subject of "The Peace for Our Children." Madam Gabriel and many other peace leaders have been invited to attend.

In addition, the New England Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, with H. S. Burt, Executive Director, and Mrs. Emma M. Shaw, are also invited to attend.
