The Boston Chronicle
WASHINGTON, D.C.—South- ern Senators who still live in the pre-Civil War age, are plan- ning to talk to death the civil rights of Negroes. When it appears next week on the calendar. Already evidence of their misgivings is apparent. The spirit of desperation is shown in the first attempts by Senator [pick] Russell of Georgia, who attacked President Eisenhower, and is afraid that the present course to protect voting and other civil rights may be enforced by the Federal government at the point of bayonets.

The remarks in the Senate plainly showed the spirit of des-peration which haunts the South- ern senators.

In part, Senator Russell said and did so unhesitatingly as to that section of the bill which deliberately strives to enable the use of military forces to destroy the spirit of segregation in the state, because at the point of a bayonet, if he be re- quired, the United States will not stand up for the Constitution.

"The unpalatable powers of this bill will be utilized to force the white people of the South at the point of a bayonet to conform to almost any conceivable effect directed at the destruc- tion of local custom, law, or opinion," the senator declared, urging enforcement and enacting a censure of the races.

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell Jr., who is well known for his outspokenness and is often considered one of the most articulate members of Congress, has been re-elected to a seventh term. Powell's most recent re-election campaign was marred by controversies and allegations of corruption.

The events in Harlem, where Powell's district is located, have once again brought attention to issues of police brutality and racial profiling. Powell has spoken out against these practices, calling for the establishment of a national police review board.

Powell's re-election victory is significant not only for his political career but also for the ongoing struggle for civil rights and social justice in the United States. His leadership and activism have been crucial in advocating for the rights of marginalized communities.

Despite the challenges he faces, Powell remains committed to fighting for equality and justice. His dedication to public service serves as an inspiration to many, and his impact on American politics and society cannot be underestimated.

In summary, the re-election of Congressman Adam Clayton Powell Jr. underscores the persistent struggle for racial equality and the importance of continued advocacy and leadership in the fight for justice. Powell's commitment to his constituents and his unwavering stance on issues of social justice makes him a role model for future generations.

Kid Matthews Robbed
June 25 in Manchester, Conn., Charlie Gould — a schoolmate of every Bobby Bolton in ten rounds.
The Lightweight powerhouse of the race, Kid Matthews, lightweight sensation of South St. was among those well-known New Yorkers waiting to see if the boastful and cocky Kid Matthews was as light as he had claimed. Despite his boastful words, Matthews faced a tough crowd, led by the likes of Charlie Goodman, Matthews' manager, who, according to reports, promised the Kid would be defeated. Ding, ding, ding — the battle was on. Matthews scored a smashing victory, proving to the world that he could handle the pressure of fighting against top-level boxers.

Look Homeward Angel—And

By Martin Kison, Jr.

Since the outbreak of World War II, the young, the old, both kind and sort of problems and, to put it mildly, all kinds of other things. And, of course, at some time or other, every one of us is increasingly being drawn to the realization that we cannot escape by simply burying our heads in the sand. This is especially true for those of us who are increasingly aware of the dangers of a world that is becoming more and more complex and uncertain.

Yet we of the Harvard community must not be disheartened by the problems with which we are faced. We must not lose sight of the many good reasons for being here. We must believe in the value of higher education and in the potential of the human mind for solving social problems. We must also try to understand and to deal with many of the problems at Harvard.

One very pressing problem that is often overlooked by students (as well as some number of the Harvard faculty) is the Harris race discrimination and housing discrimination. These problems are not unusual to the Cambridge-Harvard community, and they are not unique to Phillips Brooks House. Housing Bureau at Harvard. Harvard students have consistently attempted to solve this problem in the past years (as it may, be noted, with a greater degree of success), and this amount which re- mains to be done. A student body that is more interested in these problems may point more fully.

At the beginning of the current school year, a young Negro student was named Christian Aseley, returned to Harvard from the West Coast to continue his studies in the Harvard professional schools. Arriving in Cambridge racially hostile and without family, he was later told that we shall call him (who is a student of this school) at any time and place. He is a member of the student body and has been invited to discuss his problems with the student body. We hope that the student body will take this opportunity to discuss the problems of racial discrimination.
