Declaration of IMPEACHMENT

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these Rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Powers from the Consent of the Governed. Whenever Any Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its Foundation on such Principles, and organizing its Powers in such Form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Pray for the President of the United States, Richard Milhous Nixon, a man of integrity, to fully comply with this mandate.

The American People by the authority vested in them, do ordain and establish a Constitution for the United States of America. The Congress, which shall consist of Representatives from the several States of the Union, and of Senators from the same, shall have Power to make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by the Constitution in the Government of the United States, shall be deemed and taken to be granted by the people of the United States to this Government, for the benefit of all the People. No Person holding any Office under the Government of the United States, shall be a Candidate for any other Office under the same Government.

Justice Douglas Asserts, ‘America Has Been Subverted’

In New York

Justice Douglas addressing the National Press Club on Wednesday, October 25, before the House, Senate and Supreme Court of the United States. He said that the President had violated the Fourth Amendment by obtaining information from the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. He had violated the Fifth Amendment by obtaining information from the Constitution. The Justice is objecting to the establishment of absolute tyranny over these states.

To prove this let the facts be submitted to a tribunal. He was now ready with others to supersede the 1787 Federal Constitution by committing acts of espionage and sabotage under the guise of the opposition candidates. He has systematically obstructed the administration of justice by attempting to bring down the Federal Judge in the Pumpkin Peanut and its attempt on his life by the House of Representatives and the Senate with all the means at his disposal.

Section 1 Clause 1 of the Constitution (right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness) has been violated. The President has violated the right of speech, opinion and the press to publishing surveillance reports critical to private citizens respecting the operations of the Administration, policy, and by establishing a living, breathing, organ of surveillance from the Constitution. This form, his stubborn refusal to investigate the history of the high court. The Nation has been injured. The people can not be the public and by the people. None of the constitution, the law, or the hands of corruption. No power at all can corrupt them and change the influence on the judicial system. Douglas asserted that the President has misused the power of the budget to dominate independently represents the environment, the elderly, or you. The Nation has moved away from its normal, constitutional, and economic ways to seek the greatest profit for the corporation. ‘It keeps 40,000 soldiers employed in the idealization of the environment.’

Douglas urged active participation by the public to save the environment. ‘Picket, Parade, lobby, and initiate laws to make your own hearts’.

Another government agency, the AEC has deep, dark secrets. This is an age of unknown detection, but do you know how radioactive the city of Boston is, how much

N.S.A. Holds Regional Conference

by Bob Stackbeck

On the weekend of October 27, 28, and 29, the Hotel Roosevelt in Manhattan, New York, hosted the annual National Student Association Regional Conference. It was attended by more than 125 student leaders from colleges and universities in New England and New York.

Highlighting the list of events and workshops held at the conference was the keynote speaker, Michael Harrington. Harrington, an accomplished author, lecturer, professor and editor of the News Letter of the Democratic Left addressed the conference on the importance of the student movement and its relationship to the possible imprisonment of President Nixon.

Harrington stated that several years ago when hostilities and military action were prevalent in Vietnam, that the student movement was the strongest it has ever been. But some said that the major reasons for the extreme fervor of the movement was the inequity of many related issues. Harrington discussed in detail the US Draft. He cited his reasoning on the change of classes and black minority young men. This inequality was one of the major influences that caused the black working class and black minority young men.

This inequality was one of the major influences that caused the black working class and black minority young men to rise up and join the movement. This movement was the youth movement that has ever known.

Harrington then took a negative viewpoint on the decline of the student movement. Stating it on the president's action of validating the draft and initiating the volunteer army. This action had a profound effect on the continued existence of the student movement. When the draft was abolished the draft was taken away the very issue that the movement had centered around. He eliminated the prestige and existence of the problem virtually putting the plug of the student movement.

The student movement has not seen the extreme zeal and political change that this time not just a student movement but a peoples' movement. People of every walk of life, from labor to religious groups, from students to faculty, all getting together to improve the deprived conditions in our society.

The impact of movement is the only starting point for what Harrington hopes will be the extension into other areas of governments and all levels of student movement. The new President is in a position when the President has been impeached but will be building the movement, opening up communication lines into other areas of national and international importance that will use the help of the educated and concerned college students.

Registration will take place only on the dates indicated.

Representative Government?

by Poole T. Will

During a 15 minute SGA meeting on October 30th, a motion was passed to invite comedian David Frye to speak for $3,000.

On October 28th, the Guest Speaker Program, chaired by David Cavalier, presented the results of its inquiries to available speakers. After some discussion, it was decided that all speakers on the list were to be invited, should the available budget permit. It was then proposed that the committee should look into David Frye's availability. Subsequently David Frye was found to be available. An agreement with Mr. Archer, Chairman for the University Lecture Series Committee, was made that the cost of the action be divided between that committee and Student Government Association. Under the proposed schedule, Frye would speak for only $500 for future speakers. The motion was put and carried, however, and at the following meeting Jim Peterson, Director of Student Affairs, mentioned that David Frye's current rating was not good. According to a newsletter published by The National Entertainment Conference, ratings from an appearance at New Hampshire College suggested "suggestions (they were not recommended)." Out of the first four categories, Frye was placed as follows: (15 being the highest recommendation) Cooperation & Attitude: 3

On questioning Dave Cavalier, I asked what was his basis for supporting Frye's invitation? Cavalier said: "I thought he would have decent power." When I asked how he reached his conclusions if New Hampshire College gave Frye a rating of 3 in that category, he tried to explain that he thought that New Hampshire College was more "liberal" while Softick was more "conservative.

Discussion was ended on the 7th when the motion was passed. Once again, Frye's proposal was signed a "Contract Rule." On calling to Peterson, I found that if Frye agreed with Softick it would not be reconciled to pay the proposed fee. As other things the art was drunk of its performance was out of the length stipulated in the rule.

In conclusion, student government feels that David Frye, and $500 to other speakers, may not be up to the standards of SGA sponsored lecturers. Yet, it should be remembered that student government sponsored Bishop, Bosley, and Kurt Hoi.

At the time, I had no idea what I was doing, but I do know that it was not a good idea. My mind was racing as I tried to think of a way to get my point across. I knew that if I could just reach her, I could tell her how I felt. But how could I do that? I was frozen with fear. Then, out of nowhere, she reached for me and gave me the most unforgettable hug of my life. It was as if she could feel my pain and was trying to comfort me. She held me tightly, as if she was the only person in the world. And for that moment, I felt safe. She was my rock in a world of uncertainty. I will never forget that moment. It was a turning point for me. It taught me that I was not alone and that there were others out there who cared. From that day on, I stepped out of my shell and started to live my life to the fullest. I will always be grateful to her for that hug, and for everything she did for me. She changed my life forever.

Liberation & Religion
A Woman's View

By Raye King

Carol Burns, 27, dropped, with early golden locks, in the Protestant chapel on campus, she teaches a Thursday evening course, "Religion in the U.S. and the Suffragist Women's movement" as an unordained minister, and representative of the Boston, Cambridge, Charles Women's movement, in conferring conversations with 3 men and 3 women. Carol was invited to lecture on the topic of miss of minister as involved with people on a person to present her. Carol's bond of religion is growing, personal and public. "I see where there is suffering and address myself to that suffering," said Carol.

As a child and young adult in Kansas, Carol belonged to rural Methodists, religions in the traditional way. She dropped out of the traditional church to become a civil rights worker and later a social worker. In St. Louis Carol began to realize how oppressive her role as social worker was. She wanted her clients, mostly welfare women, to live like she did, they couldn't because the represented a demanding welfare system.

Now, as a campus minister, Carol, a graduate of B.U. with a degree in Social Ethics, has found her way to be involved in political issues through moral, and social activism. She feels "political and social issues are where liberation is taking place." Relations with people with same life experiences is important to Carol. She expressed concern for other women attempting to liberate themselves and for the person "I am working at liberation myself. The political person, however, is the whole person, there is also a responsibility to show others what I am working to define."

Carrol, in asking questions, one important question is whether another one a religion is a supernatural need, but a basic ethical need.

I asked Carol what faith meant to her.

I think about faith too much, we might become too much about it, but I feel there is an ultimate meaning to life, I am skeptical about the traditional church and at the same time find it hard to separate religion from society. There are enough people, however, who think the church is valuable and are working within it with a new vision of what the church should be.

"Do you offer your female experiences to your ministry?"

"Yes, and more women are needed in the church. I don't mean that men cannot work with women, but it is difficult for men to work with women." Carol continued, "My ministry works well where I find the strongest identification with other women, I find I am most effective there."

"What do you like about the film, "How to Make a Man"?"

"Although I find it hard to say to the film, it has made a conscious effort to rule women in the film. I do agree and see that a great deal has gone beyond the point of making women's role. But it continues to deal with men and women as sex, but not in the context of liberation."

"No, men are suffering from the oppression of women."

"Yes, and there has to be a significant force to make the other one feel the, and feel the oppression. It is hard to recognize parts of this, we have been subjected. Many men don't like the rules they have been put in, but it is not the man's movement, knowing it will help them too. It's a political battle, the other must work for himself."

Present political, social, and economic structures are oppressive. One may deal with the oppressions likely to take broader political change of the same freedom for both sexes."

As I am writing this, several editors of this journal are standing over me threatening my future as National Affairs Editor. Their anger is caused by the fact that I wandered into the office on Thursday with an article and virtually no preparation. After several moments of intense screaming and yelling, they led me to atypesetter and told me to write 6000 words and sufficient backing. For the past few months I have been suffering rude and unsolicited remarks of the type discussed here. Poor Melkis has been wandering around in a haze ever since he came back and took the lead role down to the Office. I am writing in response to a comment in the page directly. I have a strong suspicion that a nation is given the choice between its science and its security, they'll choose security every time. But as I am writing this, my nation offers some sort of version of this. People like me don't respond to that offered by a rapist. He'll rape you but not kill you, as long as you submit to his demands.

SIGHTSEEING

By Joe Garagnone

The D Street project in South Boston is a collection of black buildings surrounded by crumbling asphalt and garbage-strewn streets. The whole neighborhood appears even poorer than you enter the Doctor's office. The walls of all these can be seen on a boarded-up window and huge bunches of trash are piled on the sidewalk. The spring snow two white storks stood on the nest of one of the buildings and garnered down a black resident of the project. The names are not really important. The fact that this building didn't receive much after it was calling itself in South Boston. In a photo where shootings are fairly common occurrences, it's hard to work up any sympathy for a kid who gets shot in the head. People feel that he must have deserved it. Good people who send their children and keep them that don't get shot. "Common street children, good and riddance" is a rule of thumb and usually applied across the board.

The black kid was 17 years old. He had a girlfriend who he's now married to. Mary is all he has a memory and a past that he'd be proud of.

The two whites were in the races. They liked good times for both of us and we're kind of shooting the D Street project. They night they shot a human being they altered the course of our lives. The media, each received 20 years of parole. The odds were on the runners that the white kids would off. The police had that the black kid had the gun. He was black. The white one was well received when the murders were discussed.

South Boston is a white community and taken as a whole it has every intention of staying that way. The people don't really see themselves as much, they merely want the neighborhood to remain the way they've always known it. Sure, the discourses of the race may usually draw some violent contents but it's still worth it in itself and mostly a part of the ad.

Someone should have told the two ambient riflemen that there is no such thing as a real gun. They took empty dixie cups and add them upon them. As a result an innocent person was murdered for no apparent reason other than that hatred. After the youth was shot, a young boy ran up the hole, and went through the pockets that strewn the street. That same youth testified at the trial and he testified credibly in the two convictions. As around the boy, was, and is, in protective custody.

Several people who allegedly witnessed the murder agreed to testify at the out-of-the-court investigation. By the time the trial began only 14 of the old men (Continued on Page 2)

Editor Dear editor, I personally feel it is time to shed some light on a subject that is now very controversial, but somehow not very often discussed within the confines of the Suffolk University, that of male gender expression. The University, for those who are not aware, is the only one in the country. It has been a known fact that I am dealing generally with intelligent and mature adults and therefore I am asking for some amount of consideration for gay people who are continually suppressed and discriminated against. It is important that this brief letter be published, for it is one alternative that gay people may use to express themselves without being discriminated against. It is imperative that people become aware of the fact that gay people are tired of being always feared rejection and ridicule should they be told that they are gay. We are living in 1973, so wake up and get it because you can do more than think some of your best friends are. A Suffolk University Business Student Name Withheld for Obvious Reasons.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS DECK

Yes folks, King Dick may fall off his throne yet. He's already fallen off and we are going to wait him time again and now they are up. The question is, so we lay aside enough to demand impeachment? Personally I don't think it. Someone else may say that a nation is given the choice between its science and its security, they'll choose security every time. In this direction. Now it looks like Nixon may be going down the same route. His claim that two of the new Warren tapes are not even in existence is a bit far fetched. It just so happens that the tapes involving Mitchell and Dean are missing. Come on, Dick, you don't really expect us to believe that, do you?

Dear Editor

I have experienced, in and out of the classroom, several derogatory remarks towards gay people. I have found this to be next to impossible and can only deal with it by realizing that much has to be done to be free of homosexuals from straight society. It has been my honest impression that I am dealing generally with intelligent and mature adults and therefore I am asking for some amount of consideration for gay people who are continually suppressed and discriminated against. It is important that this brief letter be published, for it is one alternative that gay people may use to express themselves without being discriminated against. Plywood Prudence

By Marshall Brooks.

It was not nice.

The Mad-Fast was skillfully filling American bars over the weekend. Richard Nixon was in the middle of the unprintable parody of his "Watergate Crisp," while Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas told his fellow audience that the United States was a country of the corporation, by the corporation, for the corporation.

The 75-year-old Justice did not make a canny lead-up to the audience. Douglas declared, in compound, instead of the necessary spirit of unity into the bafaloo of political democracy, until freedom is restored in this country.

In the course of his address, the audience was arrayed to do right and that many more have been needed to fight Dildog Americans' most crucial war for the preservation of its liberty.

The notice, spoken randomly from notes, in a soft, gentle voice, occasionally using his glasses. His words often drew laughter from the audience.

The presence of Justice Douglas embodied the notion of hard work and the ideal of Aristotle's individual freedom.

"We are in the age of spiders," Douglas commented, using problems to exemplify the ideal of individual freedom. "If you want something done, you have to go out and participate actively.

Douglas further declared the "success business is government is not healthy. We believe in participation as being part of an indispensable doctrine."

In the closing moments of his talk to students, Justice Douglas mentioned destination, and faculty members in answering questions raised by the audience. He mentioned the problems he had encountered in the courtroom. It was clear with whom the responsibility rested for those matters. As in a world of Tony Boyle, 111, and political philosophy, this is not easy task.

"Our corporation is wrong, and its implications have rippled right down to country right or wrong."

G. Coldwell

I've heard it said that you haven't really lived until you've been to a rally for Louise Day Hicks.

Since I've just reached 21, I figured it was time to find out what life was all about. On Veterans' Day, I attended a rally "in honor of" Ms. Hicks in South Boston.

I have never been particularly fond of the Great Lady. In fact, every time I pass by in the annual parade, smiling heartily at her bowing subjects like a big green Buddha, I fervently hope maybe next time Ms. Hicks won't be elected.

Since I do like parties, and this one was free, I managed to suppress my squeamishness and proceeded to rub elbows with the masses.

The crowd at a Hicks rally is usually female, with an average age somewhere on the shady side of forty. There was one young fellow in the audience that she was having a blast! (When a guy takes you to a Hicks rally, you know he's got a bone!)

The whole gang was decked out in polyester pantsuits and, of course, green was the color of the night. It was a great night for the flesh.

I'm still trying to figure out the band which provided the entertainment. They were playing Hawaiian music while two little old ladies did the polka together. Southie is a very musical place.

Mr. Hicks hadn't arrived when my paranoia began to creep in. I had visions of hidden cameras and secret agents of me at Hicks' party and coming my way. The friend accompanying me began to comprehend my principles by being there.

We left as early as two of the Ms. Hicks' fanatics began to line up to the stage. The first direction when we refused to get in line, the little bulldog emblazoned "HICKS"

We were then being handed out at the door.

I never did get to see the "Great White Hope" herself arrive. I'm told she made a grand entrance as the band played "Every little breeze seems to whisper I'm coming!"

Oh, well. I guess I'll meet you next St. Patrick's Day. Ms. Hicks escape me if I don't remember.

The Big Screw Is Coming!

It must be that time again. The first mid-term is over and the results are back. You thought you should have gotten an "A" but instead you got a "D." Or maybe you feel that he or she doesn't deserve their paycheck. Well, the Big Screw is coming and it presents you with the opportunity to get even with him or her. You can also get even with the administrators of the university, bookstore, etc. Preliminary voting is November 8 & 9. Votes are a penny per vote and you can vote as many times as you like. The top ten will be in the finals on November 13 & 14, and votes will be ten cents a vote.

The voting will be held in the lobby and the cafeteria between 9:00 A.M. and 3:00 P.M., so don't forget to exercise your right. Vote for the candidate of your choice.

It was not just The Mad Max that skillfully telling American lies over, was Richard Nixon was in the midst of the unprecedented spectacle of his Watergate Committee, Senate Watergate Committee, William O. Douglas, told his Sjolik audience that the United States was a country of the corporation by the corporation for the corporation.

The 75 year old senator did not make it easy. Indeed it is up to the audience Douglas declared to unrumple and inject the necessary strain of sanity into the tepid body of sexual democracy if freedom is to prevail in this country.

In the course of his address it was apparent that the notion was one man trying to do right and that many more were needed to fight, and America's task most surely, to preserve the justice at home.

The press was unusually busy. Women, who are usually trying to be gracious, he worked double

In recent months, the Boston music scene has been catching the imagination of the entire nation. With the success of groups like The J Early Band\n
The evening was a great night for the friens. I'm still trying to figure out which hand which provided the entertainment. They were playing Hippocrates while two little old ladies did the polka together. Southie is a very unfriendly place.

We left in a taxi when two women at Hicks' tables began to cast questioning glances in our direction when we related to wear the little badges embossed "HICKS" (green to what is being handled at the door.

I never did get to see the "Great White Hope" herself. Sitting in a taxi with a friend as the band played "Every Little Bit of Everything" seems to whisper Louise.

Oh well, guess you are Stjorics. My Brother's Doc Dr. Hicks! Excuse me if I don't understand.

Day For Night

By Gail Loof

Fascinating, unique, first-rate, newest, film "Day For Night" has recently opened at the Charles Theater East. Perhaps if you are not familiar with the brilliant French director you can still enjoy the film. Some of his other films such as "A Man Escaped" could be seen before this one.

It is not necessary to be an action-type person for "Day For Night", to enjoy this director. He is a film director who, in the making of a movie entitled "Day For Night", actually takes the audience into the making of a film. For the first time in the history of cinema, he allows the audience to share the experience of a film maker and a film crew. The plot of "Day For Night" is important, the story behind the scenes are even more important.

For "Day For Night", the filming of a scene for "Day For Night", the making of the scene, the making of a movie, the making of the film, the making of the movie scene is all important.

The scenes, the sets, the wardrobe, the make-up, the props, the director, the camera, the editor, the actors, the actresses, everything is important. Everything is part of the film, part of the movie, part of the story.

Day For Night
By Godard

France's Godard's newest film, "Day For Night" has recently opened at the Charles Theatre. Perhaps, if you are well versed with the brilliant French director you can still recognize the theme and the several other films such as "A Man Lovers" about the "Director" and "I Doughnut Tell". It is not the story about an absent-minded character of Godard as making a film. However, if you know what Godard looks like then you will also be able to identify him in "Day For Night" as the film director, whom he is all interpreting the film's objects. It is an alluring film, treating several scenes with a film director.

"Day For Night" is about the making of a movie shot. The plot of "Day For Night" is important, the people who are in the story are all the characters in a film, the film crew, the make-up artist, the producer, the director, the actors, and the viewers.

Then there is the question of the number of scenes. The important being the director, you gather his information and information from everyone, and at the same time you are making up the set. The question, what is the idea for the film, where is the scene, and if it is a reference, are the important, the director dealing with them during the filming after the filming keeping them on boundaries trying to make the film a success memorable remembering the day.

The director now works hard to make sure that he is at all the time. Here is where you learn of several new scenes and the director's new work is with him at all the time. Here is where you learn of the scenes of the film. Also, several other scenes are the scenes where the scenes are from Godard's films such as "A Man Lovers" and "I Doughnut Tell". As far as the acting is concerned, you are making it on your own. The film is not always filled with a lot of shots. It is an attempt to make the film a success and being one of the greatest directors, the scenes are filled with action from the beginning.

If you want to laugh, learn, and set a warm handshake, the few scenes which you don't know, you can look at "Day For Night" and "I Doughnut Tell".
IT IS NECESSARY TO IMPEACH PRESIDENT NIXON

HERE’S HOW IT CAN BE DONE

Richard Nixon has not left us in doubt. He means to function above the law if he is able to continue. The destruction of the rule of law begins with the arrogance of those on the Marble Steps, among them Nixon. Happily, we allow him to continue, we accept him at his declaration that he would destroy the rule of law if he could.

Consider what has already happened:

1. On Jul 22, 1972, the President personally approved the "Watergate plan" for illegal surveillance by break-ins and bugging, and went on to order the FBI and other law enforcement to aid and abet. These depredations were carried out against political opponents, news reporters, and government employees.

2. In Dec 1972, the President established within the White House a personal secret police (the "Plumbers") for the destruction of the rule of law, and engaged in illegal bugging, breaking and entering, and perjury.

3. While Daniel Ellsberg was being tried for his psychic insults to the President and his agents, the PresidentIVEI. NSA, and the FBI, the President himself was discussing the destruction of the FBI with the judge presiding over Ellsberg's trial.

Private detectives were hired by White House aides to spy on the press, the judiciary, the Congress, the White House and its personnel.

"Supporters of legal procedures as the means to end our "revolution," and Comrade Richard Nixon was refused the protection of the draft law.

"During many days in Nov 1972, over 10,000 people were illegally arrested in Washington, D.C. The illegal arrests were groundwatered from the evidence, and then used to justify the arrests. A White House official, and one of the agents, is quoted by the author to have said:"

"The President has transformed grand jury into instruments of illegal surveillance and harassment, and caused falsely indicted employees to cease.

"The President has attacked the freedom of the press and subverted news reporters to illegal activities and demanded FBI investigations.

The doctrine of "inherent power"

Richard Nixon is not the first president to violate constitutional rights and he will not be the last. But no president has ever before committed more than the acts of rights, which limits other government officials. The President has not even the President in his agents.

Since the very beginning of the Constitution, he claimed an "inherent" power to do so.

When he secretly bundles Congress, he claimed an "inherent" power to do so.

When he directed the innocent people of thousands of Americans in Washington, he claimed an "inherent" power to do so.

If the President is permitted to use the doctrine of "inherent" power to impede the Bill of Rights and the press, and even the Constitution itself.

The President of the United States should subscribe to the system of individual rights under law, for the President is to be safe under law, as the Constitution requires. If the President is to be safe under law, and the President is to be safe under law.

The United States Constitution says that the President must be safe under law, for the President is to be safe under law, as the Constitution requires. If the President is permitted to use the doctrine of "inherent" power to impede the Bill of Rights and the press, and even the Constitution itself.

In a government of laws, obedience of the government will be engrained if it fails to observe the law consistently. Our government is indeed more a government of laws than a government of men.

To preserve and protect our system of individual rights under law, to recover the integrity of the Bill of Rights for us and our children, and to make the United States of America a republic where words we place our lives, Richard Nixon must stand trial before the Senate. If he does not stand trial, what he has done will be done by others.

How to Impeach President Nixon

In order to succeed the Senate, where a two-thirds vote is necessary for conviction, the President must first be accused by a majority of the House of Representatives. This accusation by the House is called impeachment. Impeachment itself does not result in the removal of the President. It is as absolute a means logical a trial of impeachment is what the House of Representatives does, the actual trial in hand by the Senate. We believe such a trial must take place, however unpopular.

The country can withstand the re-election of the Vice President. The country can withstand the impeachment of the President. The country cannot withstand a president of presidential power unlimited by the Bill of Rights.

If you believe that President Nixon should be brought to trial before the Senate for his violations of civil liberties, join the campaign for impeachment. Make your voice count in defense of the Bill of Rights.

Write your representative in Congress now. The issue is squarely before the Senate. There must be no wavering. The President must be prosecuted by a massive public outcry from all of us.

Cross Country

by Joe Magneros

Suffolk's cross country team, 2-6, had a few bright moments on October 20 when the men's runner Bob Boudreau found a way to lead the Rams over Emerson and Nichols in the Bellingham Invitational Meet.

Although Suffolk finished eighth in the ten school meet, the highlight came in the five-mile run. In a field of 63 runners throughout, John Connolly finished third, Jeff Stangos was fourth and Ben Borden finished in the 30th position.

October 24, the Rams lost to Framingham State 19-46 at Framingham. In a field of 15 runners, Connolly finished fourth in the 5.3 mile course. Connolly's time was 30.32 sec.

October 29, Suffolk travelled to Lowell State as a meet which resembled a comedy of errors. The meet which consisted of a 5.2 mile run through the woods, started late. That scheduled because several of Lowell's runners were late. With darkness descending and the rain being a factor, two runners wound up in the woods.

Connolly, who was an second place in the last three-quarter mile run took a wrong turn and got stuck in the woods. "John, where are you?" When John found out where he was he stumbled back to finish next to last. Lowell all but counted the seconds. His fate was sealed until at least a half later, he apparently hiked back to the finish line. Suffolk lost the meet 7-29.

Carol E. Nelson said everyone is returning next year. He added with the emergence of John Connolly the future looks bright.

Tennis

The Tennis program at Suffolk University is presently underway with two tournaments being run simultaneously. The first is the "Team Tennis" Tournament which is open to anyone. Many players have already advanced to the quarter final round while others have not played their first round. Those who haven't played their first round should do so with expediency.

The second tournament is the Suffolk Open Tennis Tournament sponsored by the members of the Suffolk Men's Tennis Team. Students are eligible to enter. This tournament is limited to doubles and there are some doubles teams entering.

Cavanagh on Cavanagh

By Dave Gilmartin

First of all, let's set the stage with Dr. John Cavanagh in the form of a typical interview taken from the usual method of learning.

As with John Cavanagh, a bright, well-informed student, it is important to note that the end of the term is approaching and students are in a rush to complete their assignments. The interviews are conducted in the hallways and in the student lounge. Students often come by to express their opinions and share their experiences. Many of them have been asked to give their feedback on the classes they have attended. Some of the interviews are quite lengthy, but they provide valuable insights into the teaching methods used at Suffolk University.

The interviews are conducted by students who are interested in sharing their experiences and insights. They are often conducted in groups, and the students are encouraged to share their opinions and ideas. The interviews are quite informal, and the students are free to express their views. Some of the interviews are quite lengthy, but they provide valuable insights into the teaching methods used at Suffolk University.
