Increased Operating Expenses Cited

Tuition Increased

By $200.

In Press Conference Provides Information For Students

By Roi Bar-Natan

An idea suggested by Richard Britton and Steven Fisher, which was implemented four years ago at Suffolk and others at Emerson by chieftains ofPhi Alpha Eta, the Communications Fraternity, was adopted on November 7 in the Suffolk University Student Assembly.

Mr. Britton, Dr. Richard S. Carlsen of the Foundation Department introduced the gentleman William B. Fagin, Director of Administration, Charles Law, Athletic Director, Mary Helton, Registrar, Dean Robert Rotch, Dean Joseph Stearn, Dean Jack Worthington, France Flannery, Treasurer, Thomas Fallah, President, Dr. Bradley Sullivan, Dean of Students, James Matthews, Director of Development, and Louis Connolly, Director of Public Relations.

Questions were submitted to all new students by the administration, collected by Phi Alpha Eta and presented to the administration by Dr. Fagin.

"The Press Conference, which drew approximately 1000 students, opened with a question directed at France Flannery, "Will the financial records of the University ever be made available to the students?"

"That question would have to be made by the Board of Trustees, he answered."

"What is the backlog on Faculty Evaluations?"

"The administration has nothing to do with it, it's handled by the Student Government," answered President Fagin.

"Why do some professors have the option to not participate in the evaluations?"

"Fagin, and that he could not give any different answer to that question.

Dean Rotch added that the evaluation has been done by evaluating students, which is not available to the faculty. (A specific cooperation, an understanding, exists in the MBA program.)

When asked about a Kelleher, President said he was not available to work on the appropriate location of a counseling center. (It will be for any students and staff who are interested by a Kelleher on the Cambridge Street.)

Dean Rotch added another fact, Fagin suggested a Kelleher after attending the December 7th board meeting.

Why is there a lack of education on the Board of Trustees?

"An effort is being made to add education to the Board. Fallah's account: A present Vincent Fuller, Secretary of MFL, is a member of the Suffolk Board of Trustees."

When questioned about the increase in activities fees, Fallah said, "Strategic plans for next year's budget."

Dean Sullivan informed that France Flannery stated that tuition would be $125 per semester, and that the area has been a top priority.

The Rodriguez Building is considered a degree and evening attendance by many students at the University. Who will comment on that?"

Dean Sullivan ended the press conference.

FAMILY MAN NAMED TRUSTEE

Nationally honored trial lawyer Paul E. Smith of Boston has been named a member of the board of trustees of Suffolk University. Judge John D. Fento, chairman of the board, announces.

Smith, whose famous cases include defense of the socks bundle, was elected to fill the seat of retiring trustee Richard A. Sprague, which expires in June, 1978. Smith was elected at the September meeting of the board of trustees.

As Smith's alma mater, the University, in 1937 and an LLB in 1940, the University conferred on Smith the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

He is a past president of the Suffolk Law School-Alumni Association and member of Suffolk University Law School Scholarship Fund.

Smith has lectured at Suffolk University Law School and Boston College Law School. He is a past president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, a member of the board of regents of the National College of Criminal Defense Lawyers, and a member of the Judicial Council of Massachusetts.

For Students: "I find it significant that in an era of considerable rising costs, the upcoming law graduating class of the law school will have gone through their law school careers without an increase in tuition," Flannery noted.

Tuition Increased

By $200.

As for law schools, he said RC's up went 133 percent. Boston University 107.5, Harvard 92 percent. New England Law School 137.6, and Western New England 181 percent. Suffolk Law School's increase was 66.7 percent.

For Students: "I find it significant that in an era of considerable rising costs, the upcoming law graduating class of the law school will have gone through their law school careers without an increase in tuition," Flannery noted.

"Getting the seat is important but the seat is also important because it is a great opportunity," Smith said. "It is an opportunity to contribute to the University and its programs." The University has been committed to excellence in education and service to the community.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has taught at Suffolk University and Boston College, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.

Smith has served in the United States Army in Vietnam and has been a member of the American Bar Association, where he has been involved in various committees and task forces. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Bar Association and has been active in the legal aid society, where he has served on the board of directors and has been involved in various committees and task forces.
SGA Show Apathy

by Timotheo Lenard

At the university press conference on Nov 27 the acting chairman of a delegation of students, one of the most notable absences was that of Kevin Lenard, SGA President. After the conference he answered questions on the telephone.

(To whom you spoke with)

Loren: "Yes, I was busy.
Journal: Don't you feel that there was a lack of representation at the conference?
Loren: "No, there were highly elected members of SGA at the conference.
Byrd: "I don't mean it in that way. There were people that were there from the conference.

The Ford Idea

by Arthur B. Stone

It is often said of a Congressman that he is elected to the House of Representatives, to represent the people, and any example of this would be Representative Gerald Ford. In the 1972 congressional race, Ford was the leading candidate for his party, and the most accurate number of the votes he received is the total vote for the ticket which comes from the Congress of Representative.

Knowledgeable source (Not printed at Government House)

May 7, 1973: Confirming is a press release of the Ford campaign.

"I have long favored tax reform with emphasis on simplifying the tax code and the very wealthy. I do not believe that the very wealthy should escape paying any income tax." May 13, 1973: The Representative's comments on the House White House congressional relations bill reported. Mr. Ford was prompted to attend White House meetings and to support these with other campaigns.

"I have long favored tax reform with emphasis on simplifying the tax code and the very wealthy. I do not believe that the very wealthy should escape paying any income tax." May 13, 1973: The Representative's comments on the House White House congressional relations bill reported. Mr. Ford was prompted to attend White House meetings and to support these with other campaigns.

White House, Federal, and public accounts.

"I have long favored tax reform with emphasis on simplifying the tax code and the very wealthy. I do not believe that the very wealthy should escape paying any income tax."
Editorial:

An Avenue of Communication

The press conference that was held on Tuesday, November 27, was a step in the right direction for the Suffolk community. It consisted of some genuine press of communication that enabled students to directly confront members of the administration with their questions, complaints, and suggestions.

It is almost a tradition in colleges and universities that students build a lot of their troubles and worries on the shoulders of the press. This verbal battlefield rarely gets heard by the people who care about the problems; and, as a result, nothing ever gets done and the student frustration increases.

The editors of the Phi Alpha Theta Communication Fraternity deserve a hearty thanks from the students at Suffolk for the immediate service they performed in conducting the press conference.

Mr. Kanen’s well-planned attempt to advertise the event Attendance was estimated at about 150 people. The student organization which regards this number as a rather poor showing. There are more than 150 people at Suffolk who complain or question concerning university matters and policy.

Most remarkable in his absence were Ken Larson, President of SGA. His absence at a news conference of this nature is quite understandable. He had scheduled an SGA meeting for Tuesday at 1:00, the same time slot as the press conference. He was denied from holding the meeting only after Mr. Ferguson, Director of Student Activities suggested that the Press Conference be postponed for greater importance.

Larson’s absence was a great blow to the Press Conference, which he can afford. He will be present for the next one.

The Press Conference was a step in the right direction. In order to maintain the news flow of information and ideas motivated at the conference, it will be necessary to keep the lines of communication open and in use. The JOURNAL will do everything it’s power to foster the procedure of this event. The JOURNAL and all other concerned students to do likewise.

A.M.A.
S.A.M.

Proudly Presents:

Mr. Dave Andrews
Sales Manager of the N.E. Whiners

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Editor:

The readers of your excellent magazine, "The Great American Dream," by Ray King, are greatly interested in following your article. It is, indeed, a very fine piece of writing. In my opinion, you should continue this series of articles, as it is of great interest to the readers of your magazine. Your articles have been very informative and have helped me to better understand our country's problems.

I am a subscriber to "The Great American Dream" and I always look forward to reading your articles. They are well written and provide a lot of useful information. I would like to express my appreciation to you for your dedication to this important work.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Dear Editor,

I was very interested to read your article about the current political situation in our country. It is obvious that the country is facing some extremely challenging times. The economic situation is deteriorating, and the political scene is becoming increasingly polarized.

I believe that the government should be doing more to address these issues. The country needs strong leadership, and it is time for the politicians to put aside their differences and work together for the betterment of all Americans.

I look forward to reading more of your articles on this important topic.

Sincerely,

[Signature]
SIGHTSEEING

by Dave Gilmar

In a small city about 50 miles west of here, a group of former sailors around the station hearing the effects of the energy crisis. The alternatives to petroleum were being discussed at length, and then one of the men said that the city fathers, in their wisdom, had long ago stored some of their precious little puff of air. 70 years before trying to pull up a steep hill in 1973.

While the men mentioned above might wave the argument to great lengths, the fact remains that the energy crisis, whatever its real or apparent causes, is going to make its effects felt in all corners of America this winter. As the Congress continues to chide with Watergate and the television commissaries repeat stories with give each newly-uncovered document of America. He represented many things, things that were good, or at least seemed good, away at the time. Now 10 years later, the concept I helped America is gone forever.

It would seem that the man who had dreams for America all these years, ended during the war. Now all we have left are the dreams and the secret remedy of what might have been.

Walden 6 minus 1

by Bob Carr

"Let's go to a movie," I said, above a salvage pizza to my country cousin. He looked up and grinned at a tomato sauce spot at me. "A skin movie?" he asked.

"That wasn't exactly what I had in mind," I said. "I was thinking more in terms of The Deadly Trackers" or The Long Good Friday. That's really my cousin; he's just some kid from a little (erk) town in a state where folks who follow me around.

I was thinking in terms of a skin movie," said my CC.

"Look, it's Friday night. It has been a bad week. I want to see something excepted like a western or a private eye movie, you know, maybe watch around the city, pretending I'm a detective or something.

A skin flick would be fun for me. Then I could climb aboard the city pretending Tin Tin knew"

We stepped over a vine near that Broadway Street subway entrance and entered the street at Brigham.

"In this we they call the Combat Zone," said CC.

"This is my son, Six City, home of pornographic vice, vice, gambling, and illicit alcohol," the city telling you kicking back into the bath.

We wandered up and down Washington Street, checking out the signs. Every now and then, CC would point out some of the interesting things. We were looking for books with pictures of men holding whips and fraternity paddles. CC and I went over to where

Rip-Off

Suffolk to Co-Sponsor Debate Competition

Suffolk University's Walter M. Burns Debate Society and American College's Forensics Society will co-sponsor the third annual high school debate tournament at Suffolk on Dec. 15 and 16.

Some 42 two-man teams from 25 New England high schools will participate in this interscholastic event according to Dr. Alan K. Leeds, professor of communication sciences of the University and tournament director. The topic will be a resolution that Federal Government Should Guarantee Minimum Annual Income for Each Family Head.

There will be six preliminary rounds to be played over eight minutes, two minutes for preparation time and one minute rebuttal. A banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m. the final day of the tournament.

by Joe Gavaghan

What was killed in Dallas was not only the president. The heart of the Kennedy legacy has been broken. What was killed in Dallas was not only the president. The heart of the Kennedy legacy has been broken.
Suffolk University's Bureau of Insignificant Statistics

ATTENTION STUDENTS

MANY PROFESSORS ARE BEING EVALUATED THIS WEEK. ATTEND YOUR CLASSES. ONLY YOU CAN MAKE THE FACULTY EVALUATION A SUCCESS.

UP TEMPLE STREET

December 10, Monday

MODERN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT AND THE ACTIVITIES CONCERNING HAITIAN LIFE, CUISINE, CULTURE AND ART ON DISPLAY ALL WEEK AT DONAHUE BUILDING. LIVELY AND DRAWING AND SKETCHES BY "MODERN HAITIAN ARTISTS IN AMERICA" ARE BELIEVE FOR OTHER DETAILS

December 10, Monday

Modern Language Club sponsors a "SAMPLING OF HAITIAN CUISINE" along with Haitian traditions. FREE of charge. All are welcome.

12:00 noon

December 11, Tuesday

Student Government Association and the Department of Student Activities sponsors the annual "Wine and Cork" Social at Donahue Building. All are invited to try your own and join in on eye and holiday spirit.

1:45 pm

Modern Language Club presents a lecture on "Haitian Culture." 50 Donahue Building Everyone is welcome.

1:00 pm

Accounting Finance Club presents Mr. Jack Vergain, Tax Specialist from Coopers & Lybrand International CPA firm, topic: "Taxation." Open to all.

3:30 Business Building

December 13, Thursday

Modern Language Club presents Mr. Pare Frege-Jaques discussing the Haitian Revolution at the Donahue Building. All are invited to attend.

5:00 pm

12:00 midnight

Student Government Association sponsors an annual "All-University Christmas Celebration" at Student Hall, Dedham, MA. The celebration will include a free buffet at 6:30 pm, two (2) free drinks to each person among those of appropriate age, two games, music, and dancing. This event is open to Suffolk Undergraduates and their guests. WIT ION T OF FREE ADMISSION $1.00 per person.

10 pm

7:00 pm

Modern Language Department and Modern Language Club present a "Haitian Folklore" song and dance, including live presentation of Voodoo ritual. This event is open to the entire community free of charge. All are invited to attend.

December 14, Friday-Saturday

SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY'S WALTER M. BURKE CENTER FOR UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH AND EMERSON COLLEGE'S FORBES' SOCIETY WILL CO-SPONSOR THE THIRD ANNUAL "HATIAN STUDIES UNDERGRADUATE TOURNAMENT" AT Suffolk on December 14 (2:00 PM) and December 15 (9:00 AM - 5:00 PM). TWENTY-SIX SCHOOLS FROM FIVE STATES WILL BE BRINGING IN TOTAL BOUND PICTURES WILL TAKE PLACE ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

December 17-22, Monday-Saturday

FINAL EXAMINATION PERIOD

December 18, Tuesday

1:00 pm

Suffolk University Annual Faculty-student Night Party will take place in the University Cafeteria and Faculty Diningroom. All members of the faculty and staff are cordially invited to attend with their spouses and children. Winter will be present to help celebrate the approaching holiday Seasons Greetings!!

January 24, Thursday

3:00 pm

Soccor Department presents the third lecture in a series entitled "Correctional Reform. The Agency of Change." At this time, Mr. Richard J. Hughes, former S.J. governor and currently chairman of the ABA Commission on Correctional Facilities & Services will discuss "The Federal Government & Correctional Reform." The lecture is open free of charge to all.Suffolk-Time Audium.

January 29, Tuesday

1:00 pm

SGA Class Film Series presents Douglas Fairbanks in the original "Mark of Zorro." FREE ADMISSION. Open to all students.

January 31, Thursday

1:00 pm

SGA sponsors "The Propolessian," an original musical review by Edward Albee. S.U. Auditorium. Open to all to the entire Suffolk University community.

In its continuing effort to explore student body to different cultures the Department of Modern Languages is sponsoring the Haitian Week similar to last year's American week of cultural activities. Following is the week's activities:

Monday to Friday, Dec. 10-14

Haitian sponsored by the Modern Language Club.

Tuesday, Dec. 11, Discussion of Haitian Culture.

Wednesday, Dec. 12, Haitian Festival of Folklore songs and dances, including presentation of voodoo ritual. Audition at 7:30 P.M. First
What can just one private citizen do?

Ralph Nader urges you to become a Public Citizen

Dear Fellow Citizen:

Imagine that 25 or 30 years ago citizens concerned about the future quality of life in America had gotten together to do something about it. Suppose they had begun an effective citizen's campaign to make government agencies and industry management sensitive and responsive to the needs of the people. The real needs, of all the people.

Think how much that was already wrong would have been corrected by now. Think how much that has gone wrong since then would never have been allowed to happen.

If the public had acted years ago, we would long ago have reduced or minimized the unacceptable pockets of poverty in our land of plenty, the vile and violent contaminants that pollute our air and water; the ravaging of our land by inexcusable corporate and government forces; the sickness, often lethal, chemicals, gases and dust in many of our factories, homes, and mines; the uncontrolled power and expenditures of our military establishment; the inequalities in taxation that take 20% of workers' wages while many work with enormous incomes pay little or nothing.

Our people would not be disenchanted and disillusioned. And the prevailing mood in America would not have turned from confidence and pride and hope to growing feelings of frustration and outrage and hopelessness.

What if we don't act now?

In another 30 years our population will have doubled. What if our rampant economic "growth" is allowed to continue in disregard - mindlessly of the public's hopes and indifferent to their problems? What if we continue to face a situation where others are taking care of these problems.

Who is taking care of them?

It is clear that our institutions, public and private, are not really performing their regulatory functions. They tend not to control power democratically, but to concentrate it and to serve special-interest groups at the expense of voiceless citizens. Almost all of the organized legal representation in our country is working to protect private interests and private wealth.

Who represents the citizen? Only ourselves. And that is why we urge you, as a citizen concerned about your community and your country, to support Public Citizen.

If we do not speak up for the public interest now, if we allow the problems to multiply, life in America could be intolerable. Perhaps impossible.

Citizen Advocates - Citizen Supporters

A Cause for Optimism

We have seen how one determined citizen can overcome overwhelming odds to better her communities. What has been accomplished so far is but the work of one person but of men and women lawyers, other professionals and students. If more valiant and dedicated people are able to work on a broader scale, think how much more could be accomplished.

Thousands of graduate students in science and engineering school and other long hours, at night, to inform the public about what the century problems of all of the scientific professionals work for private business or government agencies.

If these selfless people are willing to sacrifice conventional rewards to pioneer the future, other public spirited citizens will surely want to make it possible for them to do so.

Through Public Citizen, we ask concerned students to contribute $5.00 (non-students are sending $15.00 or more) to support a brain trust working group of these citizens advocates.

Through published studies and publications, they will help to sharpen public awareness of our problems. Public awareness leads to public action.

Historically, the idealism and energy of students has been a potent force for change. We hope to provide a dynamic vehicle and clear goals for those hopeful qualities by organizing student supported public interest groups throughout the country to work for the lasting change through an orderly, democratic system.

They will represent disadvantaged minority groups, before the various regulatory agencies of state and federal governments. They will seek to temper the actions of large corporations that have acquired power far out of proportion to the contributions to society.

In some important way, every major company touches on the lives of those among us - employees, customers, retailers, taxpayers and whole communities. Shouldn't these people have a voice about policies that directly affect them? Must not the last legal system accord victims the ability to deter forces that tend to victimize them?

A way must be found to make a real impact on corporate boardrooms - and on government agencies that often serve as protectors, even service arms, of the industries they are supposed to regulate.

Bureaucrats cannot easily resist the overwhelming pressures of special interest lobbies in Washington and state capitals. But there can be a greater countervailing pressure - the determination of citizens lobbying for the public interest.

Drew a year, as a Public Citizen supporter, you will receive a report on significant new citizen involvements that have been effective in achieving reform or relief at the local, state, or national level. Hopefully, you will apply them in the areas of your own commitment to action. Citizen skills must be continually sharpened and used if we are to succeed in preventing or diminishing injustices.

Potentially, there are 200 million of us, unable to work full-time for the public interest but with a full-time anxiety about it. Think how much can be accomplished if enough private citizens become public citizens.

Please mail the coupon and your check for $5 or more to help Public Citizen continue and expand the work that is already under way.

Let it not be said by a future, second generation that we wasted and lost our greatest potential because our despair was so deep we didn't even try, or because each of us thought someone else was worrying about our problems.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Public Citizen, Inc.
P.O. Box 19404, Washington, D.C. 20036

I am a Public Citizen. Enclosed is my

□ Student contribution of $5.00.
□ Additional contribution of $5.00.

Please don't waste any of it sending me a thank-you letter, a membership card or literature. I know what's wrong. What I want is to see something done about it.

Name:___________________________
Address:_________________________
City:_____________________________
State:___________________________
Zip:_____________________________

Please make check payable to:
Public Citizen, Inc._________102
Our institutions, public and private, are not really performing their regulatory functions. They tend not to control power democratically, but to concentrate it and serve special interest groups at the expense of voiceless citizens. Almost all the organized legal representation in our country is working to protect private interests and private wealth.

So we are left to better our communities. What has been accomplished so far is not the work of one person but of more than 30 young men and women, lawyers, scientists, professionals and students. If more valiant and dedicated people were able to work on a larger scale, think how much more could be accomplished.

Thousands of graduate and professional schools and other disciplines want to work in the same cause, in the public interest. They know that we need a system of public spirited professionals work for private industry or government agencies.

But these selfless young people are willing to sacrifice conventional rewards to pioneer the future, other citizens will surely want to make it possible for them to do so.

Through Public Citizen, we ask concerned students to contribute $2 or more to help Public Citizen continue and expand the work that is already under way.

Let it not be said by a future, forlorn generation that we wasted and lost our great potential because our despair was so deep we didn't even try, or because each of us thought someone else was worrying about our problems.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

---

Public Citizen, Inc.
P.O. Box 19404, Washington, D.C. 20036

I am a Public Citizen. Enclosed is my

$1

Student contribution of $2.00.

$2

Non-student contribution of $2.00.

$3

Addition contribution of $3.

Please don't waste any of it sending me a thank you letter, a membership card or literature. I know what's wrong. What I want is to see something done about it.

Name:
Address:
City:
State:
Zip:

Please make check payable to:

Public Citizen, Inc.

---

by D. H. Law

You wake me from deep sleep to say goodbye. There was a knock on the door, then in the gray morning light, footsteps and voices from hundreds of miles away. Stumbling to the door, you asked if I was ready for the day. I was tired.

Wept was not a word used. I was cold.

Finally, taking my arm, you led me out the door. You don't know the meaning of the grayness that rumbled by. You can't see over our radar.

It was then that I knew

Because you were the words that I could not say, and only in this moment did I know

How much I wanted to love you both.

And I had the courage to tell you so.

Even when I thought that in that place before the end, you did not have the courage to tell me, either.

Thank you

For you woke me from sleep to say goodbye.
that takes 20% of workers' wages, while many with enormous incomes pay little or nothing.

Our people would not be disenchanted and disillusioned. And the prevailing mood in America would not have turned from confidence and pride and hope to growing feelings of frustration and out rage and hopelessness.

What if we don't act now?

In another 20 years our population will have doubled. What if our rampant economic "growth" is allowed to continue in a discriminating—mindless—fashional of the public's hopes and indifferent to their problems?

What if we continue to do nothing because we assume that others are taking care of these problems?

Who's taking care of them?

It is clear that our institutions, public and private, are not really performing their regulatory functions. They tend not to control power democratically, but to concentrate it and to serve special-interest groups at the expense of voiceless citizens. Almost all the organized legal representation in our country is working to protect private interests and private wealth.

professionals work for private industry or government agencies.

If these selfless young people are willing to sacrifice conventional rewards to pursue the future, other public spirited citizens will surely want to make it possible for them to do so.

Through Public Citizen, we ask concerned students to contribute $5.00. Non- students are asked to contribute $15.00 or more to support a lean, hard working group of citizen activists.

Through published studies and documentation, they will help to sharpen public awareness of our problems. Public awareness leads to public action. Historically, the dedication and energy of students has been a potent force for change. We hope to provide a dynamic vehicle and clear goals for those seeking high quality and public interest groups throughout the country to work for lasting change through an orderly, democratic system.

They will represent disadvantaged minority groups, before the various legal agencies of state and federal governments. They will seek to temper the actions of large corporations that have acquired power far out of proportion to their contributions to society.

In some important ways, every major company touches on the lives of thousands of people—employees, consumers, retailers, taxpayers and whole communities. Shouldn't these people have a voice about policies that directly and adversely affect them? Must not a just legal system accord victims the ability to deter forces that tend to victimize them?

by D. L. A.

You asked me from deep to say goodbye
Shame, how sad

I'm gone, on the horizon there is a grey morning light
I answered your questions from thousands of miles away
Standing to go to members and addresses that you asked for Wishing I'd put my bathrobe on

Wondering what time it was

Funnily, hanging up
I know it under the warm covers and let the meaning of the night

the meaning of the heights that doubled by footsteps overhead.
It was then that I cried.

Because you asked me from deep to say goodbye,
and only in that moment did I know how much I wanted to love you briefly and I looked and the courage to tell you so.

Even when I knew, that is that pains before the end
You never let the courage to tell me, either
Thank you
For you asked me from deep to say goodbye.

Public Citizen, Inc.
P.O. Box 19404, Washington, D.C. 20036

I am a Public Citizen. Enclosed is my

[ ] Student contribution of $5.00.
[ ] Non-student contribution of $15.00.
[ ] Additional contribution of $______

Please don't waste any of it sending me a thank-you letter, a membership card or literature. I know what's wrong. What I want is to see something done about it.

Name ________________________________
Address ________________________________
City __________________ State _______ Zip _________

Please make check payable to:
Public Citizen, Inc.
by D. H. Lawrence

You woke me from sleep to say goodbye
Shaking your head
Kneeling on the kitchen floor in your green morning light
I followed you down the stairs into the darkness of silent winter
Standing in a niche, for another and address, that you held for Standing I'd pass my bathrobe on
Wondering what time it was Finally, hunching up
I saw blood under still warm covers
And hand to the pressing of the cards
The meaning of the height; that concealed by
Feet steps overhead
It was then that I cried
Because you stood me from sleep to say goodbye
And only in that moment did I know
How much I wanted to love you there
And I had the courage to tell you so

I saw when I knew that in that pause before the end
You did not have the courage to tell me either
Thank you
For you woke me from sleep to say goodbye

Ripley day Mama
Alas my life is a shrew
With your stormy eyes ever
And sandreached mouth
The sun never knew your hair
Or kissed your lips with
The sweetness of warm joy
The causes of your body
Must fit some lust soul
On this planet
You wear your days
With infinite care
The tears seem into the tapestry
With trembling hands

My mind rides the wind
The horizon tells me
Of hidden shadows
Already on the fold of my eyes
The fatigue of the journey
Weighs but my soul sticks to my flesh
Vibrating to the echo of hope

Fredo Jucquo
(Trans. by Charles A.)
A TRIBUTE

So can an inward grace.
And in the soul's core, the endless flame.
Your hope and dreams
true, pure, and worth more than man now can see.

Hopefully, some day will spark each heart and mind.
And there the eternal flame will multiply a hundred times to make the dreams
you dared to dream REALITY.

Grilled bars
that hide
the sun.
Odor of the garden
beyond the real.
The plants are free and green
beyond the wall.
Say, where is freedom
when she is not at my side?
Don't you know it, friend,
she is at this moment
flirting with her twin lazily asleep
in Pandora's box.

Frede Jacques Pierre
David Frye

In Phyllis Baccus' "Marriage, Money, and the Cost of Living," one of my better stories, you have correctly placed your name in the proper place. However, the story was not a result of my own effort; I am not one of the authors of that article. I believe you meant to credit Phyllis Baccus. If you need any further assistance, please let me know.

Christmas

(Continued from Page 11)

I know no one loves me but
I'm a good boy.

Kenton State

(Continued from Page 5)

Voter turnout was sufficient because the center had an opportunity to appeal whether the judge could decline a grand jury investigation, a judgment which could produce substantial equal protection to the upcoming Watergate investigation.

According to the English Court's "New Islands," the President's judgment is the centerpiece of the collegial independence of the Court. The president's judgment rests on two principles: the independence of the collegial independence and the principle of independent judgment. The president's judgment is consistent with the concept of independent judgment and the principle of independent judgment. This is the president's judgment.

Correction

In "From War" (Continued from Page 5)

We gathered up to a lucky little theater. There was a meeting looking middle-aged woman at the ticket booth. She thought of being broke. Come on, dad's your gun the far you are only a few short steps from psychological gratification. I walked up to the booth. "Two, please." I said. The woman looked at me suspiciously. "How old are you?"

"Twenty-four," I said.

"And how old is your dad?"

"He's over 60," I said. She took out money and gave it to the ticket seller. We entered a small smelling lobby, surrounded the ticket seller to a man who looked like an unshaved exhibitionist and walked into the theater itself. There were 30 or 40 men scattered throughout the room. Every time somebody entered the theater, they all turned to look, then dozens lowered in their seats. There were two naked women in a bathrub on the stage.

We sat in the back row. There was a man at the far end of the row. He looked up and pulled his overcoat across his lap, I smiled pleasantly.

"Enjoying the feature?" I asked. He smiled weakly. "No, I hope not," he said. I began shifting nervously in my seat.

"No gun," I said. To the boy in the wisps of some sort of athlete. There were three movies, we sat through two of them. The films were very short. We were in the theater for an hour and a half. In the next period of time, we witnessed in assisted ceasing, toppling and qualifying. Once a man who searched of moment was down next to CC and said: "You think this is good? This ain't the place down the street. There's a coffee shop, I saw her, looking at man with tall in a man with tall, broad woman. I used to. The smell of coffee was sweet. I got a cup and sat at a booth across the road from her. The man with tall gave me a dirty look, but I really didn't see her then. But the glass a cheer of the coffee shop, her blush was white and she looked sad. The warm, expanding feeling in my chest, without and I was left with only coffee to warm me. I went out that night, wishing I'd gone home by another route.

Walden

(Continued from Page 5)

I'm a good boy, I'm a good boy. I wouldn't make me do anything because nobody wants my mom to have to gr

George Walcutt with a good laugh and told her that I wouldn't mind opening the light for her. Then I walked out the theater and into the lobby. I saw the ballet dancer walking down the street.

The show turned out to be excellent. I walked out of the theater with my good mood.

The show turned out to be excellent. I walked out of the theater with my good mood.

For Ridgeway Lounges

Walden

Theodore Frye

(Continued from Page 5)

I'm a good boy, I'm a good boy. I wouldn't make me do anything because nobody wants my mom to have to gr

George Walcutt with a good laugh and told her that I wouldn't mind opening the light for her. Then I walked out the theater and into the lobby. I saw the ballet dancer walking down the street.

The show turned out to be excellent. I walked out of the theater with my good mood.

CORRECTION

In "From War" (Continued from Page 5)

We gathered up to a lucky little theater. There was a meeting looking middle-aged woman at the ticket booth. She thought of being broke. Come on, dad's your gun the far you are only a few short steps from psychological gratification. I walked up to the booth. "Two, please." I said. The woman looked at me suspiciously. "How old are you?"

"Twenty-four," I said.

"And how old is your dad?"

"He's over 60," I said. She took out money and gave it to the ticket seller. We entered a small smelling lobby, surrounded the ticket seller to a man who looked like an unshaved exhibitionist and walked into the theater itself. There were 30 or 40 men scattered throughout the room. Every time somebody entered the theater, they all turned to look, then dozens lowered in their seats. There were two naked women in a bathrub on the stage.

We sat in the back row. There was a man at the far end of the row. He looked up and pulled his overcoat across his lap, I smiled pleasantly.

"Enjoying the feature?" I asked. He smiled weakly. "No, I hope not," he said. I began shifting nervously in my seat.

"No gun," I said. To the boy in the wisps of some sort of athlete. There were three movies, we sat through two of them. The films were very short. We were in the theater for an hour and a half. In the next period of time, we witnessed in assisted ceasing, toppling and qualifying. Once a man who searched of moment was down next to CC and said: "You think this is good? This ain't the place down the street. There's a coffee shop, I saw her, looking at man with tall in a man with tall, broad woman. I used to. The smell of coffee was sweet. I got a cup and sat at a booth across the road from her. The man with tall gave me a dirty look, but I really didn't see her then. But the glass a cheer of the coffee shop, her blush was white and she looked sad. The warm, expanding feeling in my chest, without and I was left with only coffee to warm me. I went out that night, wishing I'd gone home by another route.

Walden

"I'm a good boy, I'm a good boy. I wouldn't make me do anything because nobody wants my mom to have to gr

George Walcutt with a good laugh and told her that I wouldn't mind opening the light for her. Then I walked out the theater and into the lobby. I saw the ballet dancer walking down the street.

The show turned out to be excellent. I walked out of the theater with my good mood.

The show turned out to be excellent. I walked out of the theater with my good mood.

CORRECTION

In "From War" (Continued from Page 5)

We gathered up to a lucky little theater. There was a meeting looking middle-aged woman at the ticket booth. She thought of being broke. Come on, dad's your gun the far you are only a few short steps from psychological gratification. I walked up to the booth. "Two, please." I said. The woman looked at me suspiciously. "How old are you?"

"Twenty-four," I said.

"And how old is your dad?"

"He's over 60," I said. She took out money and gave it to the ticket seller. We entered a small smelling lobby, surrounded the ticket seller to a man who looked like an unshaved exhibitionist and walked into the theater itself. There were 30 or 40 men scattered throughout the room. Every time somebody entered the theater, they all turned to look, then dozens lowered in their seats. There were two naked women in a bathrub on the stage.

We sat in the back row. There was a man at the far end of the row. He looked up and pulled his overcoat across his lap, I smiled pleasantly.

"Enjoying the feature?" I asked. He smiled weakly. "No, I hope not," he said. I began shifting nervously in my seat.

"No gun," I said. To the boy in the wisps of some sort of athlete. There were three movies, we sat through two of them. The films were very short. We were in the theater for an hour and a half. In the next period of time, we witnessed in assisted ceasing, toppling and qualifying. Once a man who searched of moment was down next to CC and said: "You think this is good? This ain't the place down the street. There's a coffee shop, I saw her, looking at man with tall in a man with tall, broad woman. I used to. The smell of coffee was sweet. I got a cup and sat at a booth across the road from her. The man with tall gave me a dirty look, but I really didn't see her then. But the glass a cheer of the coffee shop, her blush was white and she looked sad. The warm, expanding feeling in my chest, without and I was left with only coffee to warm me. I went out that night, wishing I'd gone home by another route.
Unrest In Poland

By L M Colvert. Britain's junior minister to the Warsaw Pact member state Poland has arrested a student suspected of involvement in a student protest, according to a BBC news report. The student, identified as a member of the radical student movement, was arrested last night in Warsaw.

The BBC reported that the student was arrested after police received a tip-off about his activities. The student, who has been identified as Jacek Kowalski, is accused of organizing demonstrations and rallies in support of student rights.

The arrest comes amid a wave of protests across Poland, as students demand greater freedoms and political reforms. The protests have been met with a heavy police response, with reports of arrests and injuries.

In a statement, the Polish government denied any involvement in the arrest and said that it was acting purely on the basis of evidence.

The news of the arrest has sparked outrage among student activists, who accuse the government of using violence and repression to stifle dissent. The European Union has called for a peaceful resolution to the protests and for the release of all arrested students.

The situation in Poland remains tense, with student protests continuing across the country. The government has promised to hold a dialogue with student leaders to address their concerns.
HOT TUNA

At Boston Garden

by Joe Garagash

The crowd was restless in between sets. The warmth-up group was poor and the people didn’t want to hear them anyway. During the first set several people kept yelling for Hot Tuna instead of applauding. Despite this vocal protest the band members went out from off stage to get a better feel for the crowd. They were on a short run but were hanging around outside the stage tuning the instruments. The kid sitting in front of us turned to his buddy and said, “Who are these guys, they’re not Hot Tuna, that’s sure.”

They were Hot Tuna, halfway through the first number there was no longer any doubt. Most bands open with well known numbers to stir the pot, but Hot Tuna opened with a new piece from their new album that will be out in January. Called “See the Light” it was a fusion of blues and Jorma Kaukonen’s unique folk style. They followed up with a group of old and new songs all performed to perfection. Several of the new numbers were “In The Kingdom,” “Lovin’ Pain For You,” and an old Rev. Gary Davis tune called “10th Angel Someday.”

Anyone who has studied the trio Tuna and Kaukonen will find here the huge amount of improvisation that occurred during the concert. Both Jack Kaukonen, the lead guitar and Jack Bruce, the bassist are so thoroughly involved and animated in the music that they play that improvisations comes as almost second nature.

The two have been together since the second Airplane album and their time together has forged a musical sensibility that has to be heard to be believed. They play into each other so well that often the music goes in directions that defy description. It forms a spiritual structure that swells upward until one, or both, of the musicians are totally exhausted. Twenty minute jams are not uncommon and the quality of the music gets better as the night progresses.

Both Casey and Kaukonen attribute their band formation to the old, black blues guitarists who tolerated the blon gits of the younger days both men listened to the rhythm-and-blues radio stations and that background is evident in their music. Hot Tuna closed the concert with a half hour encore that brought the crowd to its collective feet. That set all the premises and the audience to see what a wide open jam in really like. Casey went into a long into something almost unheard of in a rock concert. Most bands open with a warm up to get the pot stirred but Hot Tuna opens with a new piece from their new album. Jack Bruce played an improvised solo that proved his absolute mastery at the art of improvisation.

Backstage after the concert, Jorma fell into the arms of his lady and disappeared into a dressing room. Jack hung around to pack instructions. He is supersively soft spoken for the thundering music he plays. He begged off an interview saying he was “too wound up” to talk. That was understandable since the concert that had just taken place.

In recent years the trend in rock and roll has been to travel extensively. Touring has become a way of life with the tour bus, the nightly newspapers, and the TV shows. That was not the case with Hot Tuna. Their latest album “Quadruphonia” is their latest album. You, probably could call another rock opera, but it does adhere to the strict form that was characteristic of “Tommy.”

The story is set in 1965. It deals with a young man named Tommy. He is embroiled by the four personalities of the Who, “Quadruphonia.” He is assigned to represent the four latest extremes with the combination of various bands like the Who, the Stones, the Beatles, and the Animals. They incorporated the wonder of quadruphonic sound, utilizing sets of sound at the rear of the arena, as well as those that fronted the stage. The whole spectacle was quite impressive and the setting of Townshend’s latest achievement was more grandiose.

The show started with “Bull Boy” which featured the Who, the Animals, The Kinks, and “Down and Out in Beverly Hills.” with singing vocals by Roger Daltrey and the album’s finale “Love Reign Over Me,” which is Peter Townshend’s theme after the group exploded into that summertime hit of 1968, “Won’t Get Fooled Again.” The Who, the Stones, and the Beatles have combined a summertime adventure in the crowd as well as on the band. There is still much “Ferndale,” and Townshend’s springboard like leap across the stage with Peter hanging on his knees and riding the very ride.

The Who had the audience right there, but the opening numbers played by “Phatband Wizard” were the sign that the Who were not quite finished playing their enthusiastic audience.

The theme of this song is linked with the familiar, yet still moving sequence from “We’re Not Gonna Take It.” “Hurricane City, Me. Touch Me, Hey Man.” As the song progressed, the visuals enacted a behind the band, framed by a video screen with the authentic version of the arrangement that appeared on “Tommy,” but the band was the best for the night.

At this point, Townshend announced that the combo was going in to play “Quadruphonia.” Their latest album “Quadruphonia,” their latest album. You, probably could call another rock opera, but it does adhere to the strict form that was characteristic of “Tommy.”

The story is set in 1965. It deals with a young man named Tommy. He is embroiled by the four personalities of the Who, “Quadruphonia.” He is assigned to represent the four latest extremes with the combination of various bands like the Who, the Stones, the Beatles, and the Animals. They incorporated the wonder of quadruphonic sound, utilizing sets of sound at the rear of the arena, as well as those that fronted the stage. The whole spectacle was quite impressive and the setting of Townshend’s latest achievement was more grandiose.

The show started with “Bull Boy” which featured the Who, the Animals, The Kinks, and “Down and Out in Beverly Hills.” with singing vocals by Roger Daltrey and the album’s finale “Love Reign Over Me,” which is Peter Townshend’s theme after the group exploded into that summertime hit of 1968, “Won’t Get Fooled Again.” The Who, the Stones, and the Beatles have combined a summertime adventure in the crowd as well as on the band. There is still much “Ferndale,” and Townshend’s springboard like leap across the stage with Peter hanging on his knees and riding the very ride.

The Who had the audience right there, but the opening numbers played by “Phatband Wizard” were the sign that the Who were not quite finished playing their enthusiastic audience.

The theme of this song is linked with the familiar, yet still moving sequence from “We’re Not Gonna Take It.” “Hurricane City, Me. Touch Me, Hey Man.” As the song progressed, the visuals enacted a behind the band, framed by a video screen with the authentic version of the arrangement that appeared on “Tommy,” but the band was the best for the night.

At this point, Townshend announced that the combo was going in to play “Quadruphonia.” Their latest album “Quadruphonia,” their latest album. You, probably could call another rock opera, but it does adhere to the strict form that was characteristic of “Tommy.”

The story is set in 1965. It deals with a young man named Tommy. He is embroiled by the four personalities of the Who, “Quadruphonia.” He is assigned to represent the four latest extremes with the combination of various bands like the Who, the Stones, the Beatles, and the Animals. They incorporated the wonder of quadruphonic sound, utilizing sets of sound at the rear of the arena, as well as those that fronted the stage. The whole spectacle was quite impressive and the setting of Townshend’s latest achievement was more grandiose.

The show started with “Bull Boy” which featured the Who, the Animals, The Kinks, and “Down and Out in Beverly Hills.” with singing vocals by Roger Daltrey and the album’s finale “Love Reign Over Me,” which is Peter Townshend’s theme after the group exploded into that summertime hit of 1968, “Won’t Get Fooled Again.” The Who, the Stones, and the Beatles have combined a summertime adventure in the crowd as well as on the band. There is still much “Ferndale,” and Townshend’s springboard like leap across the stage with Peter hanging on his knees and riding the very ride.

The Who had the audience right there, but the opening numbers played by “Phatband Wizard” were the sign that the Who were not quite finished playing their enthusiastic audience.

The theme of this song is linked with the familiar, yet still moving sequence from “We’re Not Gonna Take It.” “Hurricane City, Me. Touch Me, Hey Man.” As the song progressed, the visuals enacted a behind the band, framed by a video screen with the authentic version of the arrangement that appeared on “Tommy,” but the band was the best for the night.

At this point, Townshend announced that the combo was going in to play “Quadruphonia.” Their latest album “Quadruphonia,” their latest album. You, probably could call another rock opera, but it does adhere to the strict form that was characteristic of “Tommy.”

The story is set in 1965. It deals with a young man named Tommy. He is embroiled by the four personalities of the Who, “Quadruphonia.” He is assigned to represent the four latest extremes with the combination of various bands like the Who, the Stones, the Beatles, and the Animals. They incorporated the wonder of quadruphonic sound, utilizing sets of sound at the rear of the arena, as well as those that fronted the stage. The whole spectacle was quite impressive and the setting of Townshend’s latest achievement was more grandiose.

The show started with “Bull Boy” which featured the Who, the Animals, The Kinks, and “Down and Out in Beverly Hills.” with singing vocals by Roger Daltrey and the album’s finale “Love Reign Over Me,” which is Peter Townshend’s theme after the group exploded into that summertime hit of 1968, “Won’t Get Fooled Again.” The Who, the Stones, and the Beatles have combined a summertime adventure in the crowd as well as on the band. There is still much “Ferndale,” and Townshend’s springboard like leap across the stage with Peter hanging on his knees and riding the very ride.

The Who had the audience right there, but the opening numbers played by “Phatband Wizard” were the sign that the Who were not quite finished playing their enthusiastic audience.

The theme of this song is linked with the familiar, yet still moving sequence from “We’re Not Gonna Take It.” “Hurricane City, Me. Touch Me, Hey Man.” As the song progressed, the visuals enacted a behind the band, framed by a video screen with the authentic version of the arrangement that appeared on “Tommy,” but the band was the best for the night.

At this point, Townshend announced that the combo was going in to play “Quadruphonia.” Their latest album “Quadruphonia,” their latest album. You, probably could call another rock opera, but it does adhere to the strict form that was characteristic of “Tommy.”

The story is set in 1965. It deals with a young man named Tommy. He is embroiled by the four personalities of the Who, “Quadruphonia.” He is assigned to represent the four latest extremes with the combination of various bands like the Who, the Stones, the Beatles, and the Animals. They incorporated the wonder of quadruphonic sound, utilizing sets of sound at the rear of the arena, as well as those that fronted the stage. The whole spectacle was quite impressive and the setting of Townshend’s latest achievement was more grandiose.
The Rational Therapist

by Joseph Luft

The Rational Therapist was produced by Josse Age that published 292 pages in 1925.

The book discusses the techniques of rational thinking and how they can be applied to real-world situations. It also introduces the concept of the "therapeutic relationship," which is a crucial element in successful therapy.

The Prologue introduces the idea of "rationality" and its importance in everyday life. It sets the stage for the rest of the book, which is divided into two parts: Part I, "The Nature of Rationality," and Part II, "The Application of Rationality." Each part is further divided into sections, each focusing on a different aspect of rational thinking.

In Part I, the author explores the nature of rationality, discussing such topics as the nature of the mind, the role of reason in decision-making, and the importance of intellectual honesty. He argues that rationality is not just a matter of intellectual correctness, but also of moral integrity.

In Part II, the author applies these ideas to practical situations, showing how rational thinking can be used to solve real-world problems. He discusses such topics as the nature of decision-making, the process of problem-solving, and the role of the therapist in guiding the client towards a rational outcome.

The book is well-organized and easy to read, with clear examples and illustrations to help illustrate the concepts. It is a valuable resource for anyone interested in understanding the nature of rational thinking and how it can be applied in practical situations.

December 10, 1973/SUFFOLK JOURNAL/Page 13

Graduate Study In Business

Admission Test Review

6 Thurs. 6:30-10 p.m.
Dec. 6, 13, 20, Jan. 10, 17, 24

Bentley College

Waltham, Mass. 02254

Commencement Blues

by Timothy Leonard

The Board of Trustees voted to maintain the policy of holding a single commencement for the Law School and the undergraduates on Monday. A meeting was held in President Farmer's office on Monday. The vote was 5 to 3 in favor of the motion. The vote was taken in the Law School on the matter showed 32 students for a separate exercise and 24 for the combined one. "The major reason for seeking a separate graduation for the graduate students was that the university, which is served by the law school as a regional center for the legal profession, is interested in the fact that the graduate students will be served by the law school," said President Farmer. "The vote was taken by the Board of Trustees." The Board of Trustees at Suffolk Law School has been considering the possibility of a separate commencement for the graduate students. The vote was taken by the Board of Trustees.

Comprehensive Blues

by Bethany Leonard

The Board of Trustees voted to maintain the policy of holding a single commencement for the Law School and the undergraduates on Monday. A meeting was held in President Farmer's office on Monday. The vote was 5 to 3 in favor of the motion. The vote was taken in the Law School on the matter showed 32 students for a separate exercise and 24 for the combined one. "The major reason for seeking a separate graduation for the graduate students was that the university, which is served by the law school as a regional center for the legal profession, is interested in the fact that the graduate students will be served by the law school," said President Farmer. "The vote was taken by the Board of Trustees." The Board of Trustees at Suffolk Law School has been considering the possibility of a separate commencement for the graduate students. The vote was taken by the Board of Trustees.
Sports Light

Football

The Suffolk Flag Football season was successful this year because of the excellent fall weather and the large turnout of students. Adding to the success of the season was the Athletic Department and their officiating staff. Dave Athletics Director, John Assistant Director, Joe Sheehan, Head Office, Joe Walsh, Head Referee, Joe McCauley, Line Referee, John Abshire, Assistant Referee, Gary Whitecamp and staff. The team recorded a 7-1-0 record.

The Suffolk Flag Football season was successful this year because of the excellent fall weather and the large turnout of students. Adding to the success of the season was the Athletic Department and their officiating staff. Dave Athletics Director, John Assistant Director, Joe Sheehan, Head Office, Joe Walsh, Head Referee, Joe McCauley, Line Referee, John Abshire, Assistant Referee, Gary Whitecamp and staff. The team recorded a 7-1-0 record.

Joe Belt Stackelberg

The 1973 Suffolk Flag Football season ended last Monday, November 20, with the playoff game between Temple Mount Social and the Patriots. The Patriots won by Temple Street Social, a hard hitting and tough ball game. The floor was Temple Street and the game was on a wet surface.

The scoring started early in the game with Cockler's opening a 2-point conversion and returning the ball for a Temple Street touchdown. The pick after the attempt failed and the Patriots came back with six points of their own with a pass from Emanu to Belt.

The Patriots added on their extra point conversion and the game was tied at 11. The game was not long before Temple Street connected for another touchdown with a pass from Belt to Emanu, and the Mascot Belt to Belt (or that extra point conversion was made to the score)!

There were many excellent defensive plays with standout performances in the defensive secondary and running back STEVE McCARTY and Belt both turned in fine defensive efforts. In a vain attempt to defeat Temple Street, Faves, Social, Kelly and Belt each supplied strong pressure for the Patriots, but with the absence of the expected effort of Cockler the results probably would have been different.

One of the best times I have seen in football resulted in the final touchdown for the Patriots. It was Belt to Belt running the quarterback, swept around the let end and with a fake handoff and a fake block of blockers the ball to the goal and unoshined and made open that was dived and scored. The score was Belt's 5th of the Temple Street Series this year.

The two teams met again on Monday, November 27, and Tuesday, November 28, with the elimination of two of the four teams in the league. Temple Mount Social won easily over the Mighty Mires 36 to 0. The game between the Patriots and the Lams was the closest game of the entire season. At the end of the game the score was the Patriots 20 the Lams 13.

The Mighty Mires played well, but unfortunately the Lams were up by a large score in the first half, making the endgame a little tiresome. The Mighty Mires played well, but unfortunately the Lams were up by a large score in the first half, making the endgame a little tiresome.
Ms. Hester: Lieutenant - Governor?

CPA: Ms. Fea H. Hester, niece of the late Massachusetts Democratic State Chairman William P. Lamont, announced her candidacy for lieutenant governor. Ms. Hester is a woman in state history for her lend of young. The first was Mrs. Katherine Arnold, who sought the office in 1974. Ms. Hester was defeated at the Democratic state convention by her Rep Michael Addicks, D-Brookline, who is now running for governor.

Ms. Hester, who decided to give her name, said she does not support Addicks or Attorney General Robert H. Quinn, an announcement candidate for governor. She said, "I'm not a woman lieutenant governor in the nation." It is interesting to note that the Independent Democratic Party, which was constituted under Addicks' leadership, is now the largest of the two parties in the state. Quinn's campaign was simple another reporter.

In a related development, attorney David English has been named as a special assistant to the Attorney General to head a major investigation into the incident. English, attorney for the parents of the four slain students and two of the wounded students, urged the appointment of an immediate hearing on the matter. He said, "There is nothing more important than to get to the bottom of the facts as quickly as possible."

Conflicting Claims Surround Kent State Shootings

There were conflicting claims surrounding the Kent State shootings. The Popular Front, a left-wing group, claimed that the students were killed by the National Guard. The Ohio National Guard, on the other hand, claimed that the students were killed by a right-wing group. The Popular Front claims were supported by four former Kent State students, who said they had been beaten, tortured, and killed by the National Guard. However, the Ohio National Guard denied these claims.

THE SUFFOLK JOURNAL

A PHOTOGRAPHER FOR NEWSPAPER AND MAGAZINE WORK

DARKROOM EXPERIENCE DESIRED ALSO

CONTACT THE JOURNAL OFFICE

Big Screw Results

Fulham

1702

West

1624

Hartmann

164

Kiley

137

Burler

273

Petridis

261

Cavanagh

142

Mendez

136

Ford

(Continued from Page 31)

Quinn

(Continued from Page 31)

Middle Class Money Crunch

NEW YORK - Best kids and rich kids can get in college of their choice, Middle-class kids can't. That's why, and why many colleges face financial difficulties, will be presented in "The College Money Crunch," a Sunday after WWI, policy of protection which has never been tested before. The best deterrent to enemy aggression in military strength, I believe that we are in a period of military preparedness that has kept the peace in Europe throughout the past year.

The conclusion is that the article is left to the reader, for its purpose is to provide an undertaking of the man who put no doubt it be worn as in Vice-Presidential and probably by a leading figure in the 76th Presidential Campaign.

Quinn

(Continued from Page 31)

(Continued on Page 10)

THE DORMITORY FINANCIAL SITUATION was so bad that the dormitory had to be closed. The president of the college had to make a decision on what to do with the remaining students. He decided to close the dormitory, but he promised to reopen it as soon as possible. The students were able to find accommodations elsewhere, but they were still faced with high tuition costs.

Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flourishing high schools with distance-learning promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We operate almost like college football coaches making attempts to recruit the best high-school athletes," says one administrator. "It's almost like selling soap." Tax-supported state universities can also offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily-increasing enrollments, some schools are already city-size and will grow. By 1983, they may have to raise up to 8% of the college tuition costs.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as Newman interviews students, their parents and administrators. Many colleges too have been caught between rising costs and shrinking enrollments. Eliot Frankel, executive producer of the Xerox special, says it will focus in part on little Bucknell College in New Hampshire, which "goes out of business" at the end of the current semester.
Paul! Suffolk Journal

Contact the Journal Office

NEEDS

A PHOTOGRAPHER
FOR NEWSPAPER
AND MAGAZINE
WORK

DARKROOM EXPERIENCE DESIRED ALSO

CONTACT THE JOURNAL OFFICE

RL-9
TEL 723-4700
EX 388

Big Screw Results

Middle Class Money Crunch

Fredrick, executive producer of the Spanish TV show, says it was held in part on Little Rock College, which gets out of business at the end of the current semester.

Some private institutions are flooding high schools with direct-mail promotion literature and recruiting high-school students via telephone. "We almost have college football coaches staking to recruit the best high-school athletes," says a private administrator. "It's almost like selling soap.

Tax supported state universities can offer much lower tuition costs, but have their own problems. Anticipating steadily increasing enrollments, some schools are already in the red and still growing. By 1983 they may have up to 81% per cent of the college student group.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, as National interview Students, their parents and school administrators.

Page 16/SUFFOLK JOURNAL/December 10, 1973

I'm Randy,
HARTMANN

Riley

BRENNER

PETERSON

CANAAN

NIBEL

HANNON

Ford

(Continued from Page 3)

Ford's policy of internationalism which I believe led to world War II. The most difficult to convey expression of solidarity strength I declared that we continue the policy of isolation unless prevented that has kept the peace in Europe throughout the Fost era.

The conclusion to this article is left for the reader, for its purpose is to provide an understanding of the man who will no doubt be sworn in as Vice President and most probably by a leading figure in the upcoming campaign.

Quinn

(Continued from Page 2)

Quinn's crowning speech, Quinn offered greater use of computers as a solution. "This, together with prided that civil procedures could be made easier." He then questioned the legality and the Attorney General subsequently stated that an independent study of closing down of death or closing of a plant.

Suffolk Career Institute

723-4700

You don't have any skills, right?

We just make money.

Suffolk Career Institute

723-4700

That's right! Suffolk Career Institute in 4 years full-time or 6 to 8 weeks part-time and you too can become a member of the Suffolk Corps.

Suffolk Career Institute

723-4700

Ya mean... just by going to S.C.I. I'll get POWER, PRESTIGE and RESPECT.

Money Crunch

NEW YORK. This is not the time to cut off college opportunities for students in middle class kids alone.

That parallels and why many colleges face financial difficulties will be posted in The College Money Crunch articles. The first will be sponsored by New York University and the New York College Network.

It will mark the first of a number of special programs that News plans to bring to the nation's owners during 1974.

Edward Newman, reporter for The College Money Crunch, will point out that the cost of higher education is soaring up to $5,000 yearly at some schools.

Very rich parents can afford such costs. The very poor can qualify for financial aid. Many middle-class parents, eliminated from the guaranteed loan program by the government's recent budgetary cutback, can no longer afford to enroll in the highest-cost private colleges or universities.

Many college towns and cities administrators agree.

The special is being filmed at a number of locations across the country, in Newman interviews students, their parents and other administrators.

Page 16/SUFFOLK JOURNAL/December 10, 1973

Buffet at 6:00 P.M.

Two free drinks
I'm Randy,

Buffet at 6:00 P.M.
Two Bands

Two free drinks
Dancing

Fly me.
I'm Randy Reindeer.
Fly me to SCA.

Annual Christmas Party on Thursday, Dec. 13 at Florian Hall
Dorchester

OPEN ONLY TO S.U. UNDERGRADS and their dates
$1.00 per person  S.U. i.d. Required