Dean Puts Watergate in Perspective

By Bob Carr

Defining Watergate as the corporate use of power by government officials for personal purposes, John Dean III told a large Suffolk audience that he believes the form in which it was put into the perspective of what we can learn from it, and that colleges are the best places to talk about it.

Dean addressed a capacity crowd at Suffolk's auditorium on Friday.

Calling Watergate the worst and the best experience of his life, he said that though he is so uncommon about his convictions but among others andattaching the president, he learned a lot about himself because of the ordeal.

Dean said he was involved in the cover-up process because of his loyalty to the president and involved because of personal ambition.

He said he would like to see the case brought to trial.

Dean maintained that the loyalty that spawned Watergate was loyalty to the office rather than to the man and that people he knows whom he admires are reluctant to admit to the same loyalty.

He said most people who came in contact with the presidency are dazzled by the power of the office and the trappings of power. "I was surprised how well I was treated when I started working for the White House."

There was a balance in the White House that somehow, some way, he would go on.

Dean said the Watergate investigation has been a matter of the public interest for so long that there was not enough time to bring the case to trial.

Dean said he was apparently convinced that every administration used the power at hand to "scare the opposition."

Dean said Nixon wanted an inside job and was skeptical of Democrats, but the White House staff was convinced Nixon would use the power of the office to counteract his administration.

In his investigation of past administrations, John said he found that the Nixon administration had a better system of controls, but he did not think the Watergate scandal was anything quite as serious as what the nation was facing then.

Dean said he was involved in the Watergate scandal because, "They began believing their own press. I couldn't do anything to worry about."

Dean put Watergate into perspective by saying that the Watergate scandal was not as serious as the conspiracies of the past, but that the nation was facing something more serious than the Watergate scandal.

Dean also believes that the Watergate scandal will eliminate "the political activities' of both parties."

When asked if he was still interested in politics, Dean said he had no interest in elective office but that he was more interested in the Watergate scandal.

Dean said that President Ford's pardon of Nixon was a mistake and that it was not a fair exchange.

But he went on to say that Mr. Nixon will remain damaged as a political force as long as he remains silent.

Flynn Call Bomb Threats To School a Hoax

By L. L. Havas

Public radio station WGBH broadcast a bomb threat at West Newton high school yesterday, causing the school to be evacuated. The school was later determined to be a hoax.

Flynn, a junior at the school, called in the bomb threat over the school's intercom system, causing an immediate evacuation of the building. Police were called to the scene, and a thorough search of the school was conducted, resulting in no bomb being found.

The school was later closed for the day, and Flynn was arrested and charged with making a false bomb threat.

The incident caused a great deal of panic among the students and faculty at the school, who were worried about the possibility of a real bomb being placed on campus.

Flynn has been a consistent troublemaker at the school, and this is the third time he has made a false bomb threat at the school. The school has had to be evacuated twice in the past due to his threats.

The school administration has called for the prosecution of Flynn, and the parents of the students at the school have expressed their outrage at the incident.

Flynn has been suspended from school for the remainder of the academic year and will face charges in court.

Cavalier Releases Statement Concerning Charges

I would like to explain in the most clear and unambiguous terms the circumstances surrounding the incident that occurred during the past month that led to a call for my resignation and the charges brought against me.

I was notified of the charges on January 20th, and I was subsequently barred from the campus. The charges were related to an incident that occurred on campus on January 10th.

According to the university, I was found to be in violation of the university's code of conduct, and I was accused of making racist comments.

I maintain that the charges are baseless, and I am appealing them through the proper channels.

I would like to take this opportunity to apologize to my friends, family, and fellow students for any hurt or inconvenience that may have been caused by my actions.

I am committed to working towards a more inclusive and respectful community, and I am looking forward to the opportunity to clear my name and continue my education at the university.

I appreciate your support during this difficult time, and I look forward to updating you on the progress of my case.

Chess Anyone?

By Leonard Murray

The Newton High School Chess Club has been invited to participate in the tournament at the upcoming chess club meeting.

The tournament is set to take place on the afternoon of May 15th at the high school. The tournament will feature a round-robin format, with each participant playing against all other participants.

The tournament is open to all students, and the club is actively seeking new members to participate. Anyone interested in joining is encouraged to contact the club sponsor, Mr. Thomas, at the school.

The Chess Club is looking forward to the tournament and hopes to see a strong turnout from the club members.

Malpractice: Never Saying You’re Sorry

by Bruce McIntyre

It has become apparent, over recent months, that even a government of men, not laws. This is one of the main lessons that we have learned from Watergate under the direction of Judge Sonza's courage and independence not to mention our media resources. The law in its various forms has not become more clear due to the actions of Sonza, at least release of John Dean. But Judge Sonza's actions have been imputed for that crime rather than for seeking retaliation and legally raising campaign funds—crimes that every administration has been praised for. Now it has been exposed that the administration has been involved in this.

Indeed, it should seem to be the ultimate goal of the judge to be the weakest on the altar of defense to the Nixon adage and to seem to have done little else except to try to save himself. Should have been made to serve his correct work sentence. And so, having avoided by bringing the former of the鬃r, greatly obstructing justice, could have been imputed for that crime rather than seeking retaliation against the Nixon's efforts. Sonza has been praised for the work sentence, but in the past he was praised.

Photosions: ’75: Variations

By Bruce McIntyre

Last week for the arts presented “Photosions: ’75,” a film projected on the campus station. The event was much anticipated, and many professional photographers were present to discuss the photography of various items, such as still life, portrait, and abstract. The audience was enthusiastic, and the discussion was lively.

In a question and answer session with the photographers present, the attendees of the event expressed their appreciation for the quality of the work displayed. The photographers were encouraged to continue their artistry and to explore new techniques and styles.

Beatty Knows For Sure

by Mark Rogers

As part of the Thomas Mann International Work Stuflks presented a film interpretation titled: “Beatty Knows For Sure.” The film was directed by Thomas Mann and was based on the novel by the same name.

The film interprets the character of Beatty, a woman who possesses supernatural abilities. Throughout the film, Beatty is shown to possess the ability to predict events, read minds, and manipulate objects.

The film was well-received by the audience, who were captivated by the performances of the actors and the intricate plot. The film was a great success, and the audience left the theater with a deeper appreciation of the power of the imagination.

Other photographers participating in the event included Bill Burke, Bobbi Carney, John Lane, Elaine Fisher, James Baker Hall, Judy Jacobs, C. Nelson Baker, and Evan O’Toole, each of whom presented a collection of their work on display.

The Boston Center for the Arts is presenting an excellent opportunity to see the latest in photography and visual art, with a focus on exploring the boundaries of the medium.

George Harrison, An Aging Rock Star

By Paul Atterbury

His February 29th. George Harrison celebrated his 52nd birthday. Like most aging rock stars, the “quiet Beatle” is finding that it increasingly difficult to appeal to all of the people all of the time. For one thing, his recent tour, the first such endeavor undertaken by a former Beatle, was constantly under fire by the critics. From the audience reaction at times it was less than enthusiastic.

His latest album, Dark Horse (Apple/ASAP 1974), has also been taking some hard knocks. However, despite what others may say, it does contain some very fine moments. It definitely has more personality than Long & Winding Road (Island 1973) and, although it doesn’t match his “best,” it does stand up as his best album to date. Brothers in Arms (1973) is the title track of the fourth album, which highly recommends itself.

The album begins with the song that George opened up his concert with, called “Here’s the Lord (I Praise)” It is a vibrant organ instrumental with Harrison playing a very good pedal steel guitar. The song includes his fan-in volition to thank you for the beatles and for the millions who have provided him with financial, artistic, and emotional support. He is a master of modulating his tone and inflection to emphasize the entire phrase. The song is a follow-up of sorts from “Here He Comes,” a song from the “Beatles” that was also a master of modulating his tone and inflection to emphasize the entire phrase.

The song opens with an almost comedic style, “Combustion” and “New Year specials specifically called “Dark Horse.” In dark horse we are told to “Ring the bell on the old ring of strain and ring it with the old ring of strain.” The idea of the phrase is that heavy metal is a dark horse. The phrase is a song about the darkness and the mystery of the world. The phrase is a song about the darkness and the mystery of the world. The phrase is about the darkness and the mystery of the world.

The first line of the song is “The sound of the bell on the old ring of strain and ring it with the old ring of strain.” The phrase is a song about the darkness and the mystery of the world. The phrase is about the darkness and the mystery of the world. The phrase is a song about the darkness and the mystery of the world.
