dress maintaining health and safety issues without disturbing the revenue of the homeless.

Student Government Association (SGA) member Denise Casey did a survey of buildings on campus with the exception of the Donovan building. Casey counted a total of eight can recycling bins that were visible. Many locations were not strategic, including one can bin in the Sawyer lobby, across from the library that she literally bumped into noting, "It was completely obscured."

According to a February 19, 1991 flyer from the SGA Legislative University Affairs Committee (LUAC) subcommittee at the start of the original recycling effort, there were 22 can and 25 paper bins on Suffolk's campus.

Casey also found six places on campus were boxes and other receptacles to recycle. She was also surprised that there wasn't a can collection bin in the Sawyer Cafeteria. She did note the paper recycling bins were in "perfect locations", near printers and copiers in the library. Ann Lyons of the law school environmental society suggested in the future there should be more bins in the library, aside from the ones in the Sawyer lobby, across from the library that she literally bumped into noting, "It was completely obscured."

Scanlon described past problems with leaking bin liners, insects, and other concerns that were the result of many of the collection bins being removed. She was unaware but estimated, "A company that used to pick up cans Container Services, I don't think they've been here for several years."

Matt Leonard, the operations manager of Consolidated Waste Services, Inc. (formerly Container Services) told the Journal in December he estimated that the last actual pickup on campus was sometime during the 1992-1993 school year.

Scanlon continued saying, "They were giving us four cents a can for them. My intention is to call them and explore that." On the paper side, Scanlon said she would be looking into the Sterling contract and the actual number of pickups.

She also mentioned that Suffolk's trash contractor, Waste Management, Consolidated Waste Services, Inc. and asked for other suggestions on companies to approach for recycling proposals. Currently Suffolk pays a fee for monthly trash pickup, not by the ton.

Both former SGA recycling committee member Chris Shipps and Business Manager Paul Ryan told the Journal in December that Suffolk does not pay a fee for Sterling to pick up the paper waste for recycling. However, Sterling's sales literature states the company charges a fee for a pickup and for leasing the paper collection bins.

Scanlon said this summer she will be requesting storage space for the cans to keep them secure. She noted that ABM, the university's cleaning company will continue to bring the bags of cans from the collection bins to a central location.

Scanlon also reported the university is taking a recent initiative in the effort to recycle aluminum cans, by purchasing ten new can collection bins. These bins were chosen for "athletic issues" due to their locations in lobbies and reception areas. These collection bins do have locks, although it was unclear if the locks came with the bins or were an additional expense.

The new bins were to be placed around campus by the Physical Plant Department within the following week. Ideas for locations were discussed, and Scanlon commented, "Eventually I'd like to see one on every floor of every building, but that will take awhile."

Director of Physical Plant, John Collins, pointed out the materials the bins are constructed of and had concerns about cleaning. Collins suggested consulting the Department of Environmental Protection regarding designs for indoor collection bins.

Scanlon also mentioned old bins, that are still functioning will still be used in the new recycling program. Other questions discussed included if ABM would be replacing the plastic, bin liners on a regular basis. Another outstanding issue is structure and monitoring a plan. Many options were thrown around, but Scanlon noted, "The issue is, we'd like to get some revenue back."

She stressed it could feed the recycling program and be put back into student activities. One option that was further explained by Morehouse is the Next Step program, a job program for the homeless with physical and mental illnesses. These people run a service collecting, rasing, and redeeming cans, they keep a portion or all of the profits, depending on their contract.

Another option discussed would be to form some sort of grass roots organization of students, and this would be helpful in collecting and redeeming all types recyclables including glass and plastic bottles besides cans.

Currently, another major issue is that ABM does not return the bins to their collection locations. Scanlon reiterated the new effort would be in stages by saying, "To start out small with a few types of material like paper, cans, and cardboard. Then expand."

Another facet of the new program...

SGA addresses teacher evaluations

By Ron Vieira
JOURNAL STAFF

Concerns regarding how instructors have been administering student evaluations surfaced on Feb. 7, as the chairman of a Student Government Association (SGA) committee and a senior class representative discussed the progress of inquiry into the matter.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences/School of Management (CLAS/SOM) committee, headed by Chairman David Tam, has pursued the matter of instructors remaining in the classroom while students are asked to evaluate them. In the SGA meeting of Jan. 24, Ombudsperson Keith Hagg brought the issue to the attention of student representatives.

According to Hagg, the way some instructors are administering evaluations is a problem because they are in violation of university policy. In addition to giving students the opportunity to evaluate an instructor’s performance, Hagg advised instructors to assign a student to collect the evaluation forms and for the instructor to leave the classroom.

Hagg, recently appointed as senior class representative, described the problem as a pervasive one. “Upon asking a number of students around the school, it seems as though, in every case, not all five professors, if they’re full-time students, are doing this,” Hagg observed. “Some professors don’t even hand it out.”

Although a Student Evaluation Handbook, outlining course content and instructor performance, is currently in the works, Hagg believes this does not completely address the issue at hand. “Dave Tam is working on another system, where students would get a profile of what the professor is like, or what the class is like by reviewing all of their evaluations at the end of the semester. But that doesn’t stop the problem of professors just not doing it, or not doing it properly.”

Not that there is any intimidation or malice intended on the part of the instructors, cautioned Hagg. Often instructors are busy with a number of things, especially around finals. Nevertheless, Hagg said that a instructor lingering during evaluation time can be, in his opinion and others, “very intimidating” for the student doing the evaluating.

The first thing that SGA will do, according to Hagg, will be to “realize that this problem is here, and then write or draft a letter to all department chairpersons, notifying them of this problem.”

According to SGA President Erika Christenson, Hagg is working with CLAS/SOM committee Chairman David Tam on this issue. However, Tam stated that there was no progress on the issue because “Erika wanted Keith to get the names of the professors. I don’t know if he has given them to her.”

When asked about the existence of such a list, Hagg answered that “actual names were not given,” while Christenson denied any knowledge of such a list.

David Tam, president of the Class of 1996, along with Diego Pontillo, president of the International Students Association (ISA), have designed a questionnaire that will be distributed to students during finals week. The questionnaire is the same as other questionnaires filled out at the end of the semester, except that when the data is compiled, it will be used by students for students.

“The student evaluation is a good way for students to evaluate their education on its merits,” said Tam, adding that “when this comes out, students will be able to view the demands of their course before they evaluate it.”

Recycling program re-start underway

On Wednesday, February 1, 1995, a meeting was held to discuss the future of recycling at Suffolk University. Safety Officer Judy Scanlon opened the meeting stating good environmental citizenship and university stewardship of the environment, “promote education, opportunities, and raise levels of awareness.”

The Massachusetts program regarding land fills and recycling efforts to reduce garbage with rising costs due to the lack of space, was also pointed out by Scanlon, and a handout was distributed. She also mentioned that a campus-wide program would transcend students’ consciousness in the business world. The need for increased community relations, especially on Beacon Hill was also touched upon, “A successful recycling program will not be successful if people don’t participate.”

Scanlon stressed a key factor in an upbeat recycling effort will be a cross-campus policy and getting university management to commit to a program. An official committee will be appointed by Vice President Flannery, and he is currently open to volunteers interested in being involved and nominations for serving on the committee.

Tufts University’s recycling plan was distributed at the meeting, as an example of a current program. Tufts University’s recycling plan was distributed at the meeting, as an example of a current program. She noted that she, and law school office manager of support services Marilyn Morehouse had been researching past recycling efforts at Suffolk.

Morehouse noted many of these attempts were “student-driven,” in consequence, when student efforts tapered off, recycling activities dwindled. She also noted much campus recycling has been an “office by office” effort in many cases.

Director of Student Activities Donna Schmidt praised the initial recycling effort started by a former biology student as an independent study project back in 1991. She noted, “At that time Mr. Flannery allocated funds for some of the black, plastic cans.”

Schmidt also conceded that the collecting system for recycling cans, “Broke down at some point.” However, she did stress, “After 1991 there was a continual effort on the paper side of it.” Schmidt was referring to the grey, paper collection bins around campus for pickups by Sterling Packaging of Londonderry, NH.

She also noted Suffolk’s effort to start a recycling program should ad-

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — A University of North Carolina law school student opened fire on a street near campus on Jan. 26, killing two people and wounding three others before he was shot by police.

Wendell Williamson, 26, a third-year law student, began shooting at random while walking in downtown Chapel Hill.

Williamson killed a man who was standing in front of sorority house and then continued down the street until he fatally shot a UNC lacrosse player, who was trying to ride his bicycle away from his residence hall.

Chapel Hill police say that Williamson fired 10 to 15 rounds from a semi-automatic M-1. So far, police say they do not have a motive.

It was noted that the recycling program at One Beacon Street, run by Sterling (which is not affiliated with Suffolk’s current program) for the R.M. Bradley Management Company, has a baler and a compactor.

Ryan suggested the new committee contact Jim Foxx of the R.M. Bradley Management Company to learn more about their program, and estimated it saves about $40,000 a year.

However, the Journal spoke to Diana Mix, the recycling coordinator for One Beacon Street and R.M. Bradley. She clarified the program Sterling runs for the management company is for paper only. Other recycling is done on a “tenant by tenant basis” and she could not confirm the savings figure.

In closing Scanlon said she was encouraged by attendance at the meeting, and again welcomed additional comments and suggestions from the Suffolk community.

Hollywood promises an unusually strong spring season at the movies

By Justin Griceo

Usually, this is the time the studios dump the films which were not suitable for holiday release and which would get crushed by the summer’s up coming heavyweights. This does not look like the case-to-be during the new spring.

Already, Hollywood has unleashed a handful of post-Christmas hits including the Brad Pitt chart topper “Legends of the Fall.” Paul Newman’s critically acclaimed “Nobody’s Fool,” director John Singleton’s third effort “Higher Learning” and the surprise hit Sinbad family comedy “Houseguest.”

Now it looks as if Hollywood is strategically releasing a wide variety of potentially strong films to attract movie-goers to the theaters and prepare them for a power packed summer.

Topping the list of releases for the spring season is the Sharon Stone shoot ’em up western “The Quick and the Dead.” Fresh off this fall’s high camp, entertaining, trashfest hit “The Specialist,” “The Quick and the Dead” is the period drama “Restoration” including Mary Stuart Masterson, Kelly Lynch and Lois and Clark’s Teri Hatcher.

For mystery lovers there is “Heaven’s Prisoners” which teams Alec Baldwin with a strong trio of women including Mary Stuart Masterson, Kelly Lynch and Lois and Clark’s Teri Hatcher.

On the obscure side there is the period drama “Restoration” featuring Robert Downey Jr., Meg Ryan, Sam Neill and Hugh Grant.

Grad student goes from collector to producer

By Marco Buscaglia

But while the Northwestern University graduate business student found that he was bored with his 9-to-5 accounting job, he decided to put his hobby to work for him. His idea: seek out the best college bands and put their recordings together on a compilation disc.

“I had a pretty huge collection of CDs, mostly from bands that nobody ever heard of because it was hard to find their stuff,” says Latterman, who is now 26. “But when people heard the music, they liked it, so I was always making these tapes for my friends.”

Latterman quit his accounting job in Boston and moved to Vail, Col., to work as a ski instructor. He worked the slopes during the day and watched live bands at night.

“If I saw something I liked, I tried to contact the band to see if they wanted to get involved with the project.”

“Deciding on the bands was pretty easy compared to the next step,” he says. “I didn’t realize how hard it would be to get all 10 bands, and all their representing attorneys and management companies to agree to the terms.”

After the final contracts were signed, Latterman hit the recording studio to oversee the production of the CD. Four weeks later, the first copies were delivered to his door.

Instead of pitching the CDs to stores at the local malls, Latterman set up an 800 number (1-800-AWARE-65) and waited for the calls to come in.

And they did. Relying primarily on word-of-mouth publicity and a few independent distributors and sales representatives on various campuses, Latterman sold thousands of copies of his CD in the first year.

Latterman, who is currently pursuing his MBA at Northwestern, says that most of today’s bands realize they need to put their music out on CD, even when they’re just starting out.

“You can get a following from live shows, but once your music is out there on CD, people can pass it around to their friends,” he says.

Like any good entrepreneur knows, one good idea deserves another, so Latterman began work on “Aware II.”

“Aware II” features a fairly diverse group of bands, including Hootie & the Blowfish, Breiter than Ezra, From Good Homes, The Emptys and more.

Despite his full schedule of classes, Latterman still finds time to sample bands for “Aware III,” which he plans to release as soon as he gets the music.

“Whenever you hear a good song or band, you want other people to know about it,” Latterman says. “That’s what the ‘Aware CDs’ are all about. This is music I’ve heard that I know other people will like.”

"Tom Thumb" Fascinates Audiences with Eerie Animation

By Kevin Sweeney

College Press Service

Bristol, England, hardly strikes one as the Mecca for European animation. The scenic seaport, about 100 miles from London, is known primarily, if for anything, as a center of electronics manufacturing. But the past few years have seen an influx of adventurous young animators who have emigrated and advanced the art with such superior experimental works as the Oscar-winning "Creatures Comforts," the video for Peter Gabriel's "Sledgehammer" and "The Secret Adventures of Tom Thumb."

The latter, now playing around the United States and seemingly destined to become a midnight mainstay and cult video, is an eerie and perverse post-punk fantasy where the past meets the future. Mixing human actors with minutely detailed, stop-motion latex puppets, the film's strange images recall "Easerhead," with bits of "Brazil," "Pinocchio" — even, in the-born-again finale, "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Billed as "a nursery crime of epic proportions," Tom is a tiny mutant child accidentally born to a poor couple in the sleaziest part of town. Snatched by sinister government agents who later murder his mother, Tom is taken to a high-tech lab filled with other mutant beasts. He escapes with the help of one such creature, and finds other "little people" such as himself living in a surreal existence in a toxic dump. He's taken in by Jack — as in Jack the Giant Killer — a fearless and formidable 6-inch terminator who dresses like Robin Hood and is determined to fight back against the encroaching "giants."

Despite his mistrust of the giants, Jack helps Tom reunite with his grieving father. But more tragedy follows, and Tom must eventually leave the lab to confront the energy source of the evil scientists. Surreal and unsettling imagery abounds — a caged rat wearing high heels; Santa Claus on a crucifix; insects in every shot, crawling up walls and scuttling across tables. Tom himself looks like a sad-eyed Mr. Potatohead in a yellow jumper. To top it off, the musical theme is by none other than John Paul Jones, though not the score you'd expect through not the score you'd expect — what you see on screen is it."

"We animators are a weird lot, even among filmmakers," he acknowledges. "People wonder why we do it, put so much time into moving puppets a fraction at a time. But there's a purpose, if you will, to this animation. There's no trick photography, no computerized images, no splicing. "This animation is the real thing — what you see on screen is it."

IMBOLC, THE FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS, CELEBRATED IN MEDFORD

By Christina Tealdo

JOURNAL STAFF

The circle is open, but not broken...

The Council of Uranus, in conjunction with Of All Ages new age store in Medford, held an open gathering. The Gathering was held at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Medford in celebration of Imbolc. Imbolc, also known as Candelmas, Imbolc Brigantia, Lupercus, Candelaria and Disting, is the Festival of Lights for those who practice pagan and neo-pagan religions.

Candelmas falls in the beginning of February, and is a celebration banishing winter and heralding the entrance of spring. It marks the rebirth of the sun, the change of the old to the new, winter to spring. It is a celebration of fertility and of all that is yet to be born.

Imbolc is a sabbat, a ritual designed for groups. Sabbats are what would be considered major holidays by those who follow magical traditions. The theme of Imbolc is the Goddess' recovery, the coming of spring.

The ritual began Sunday evening at 9:15 p.m. with the forming of the Circle. All members form a big circle and begin the ritual specifically designed by the Council of Uranus for Candelmas. There are as many rituals as there are groups for the various sabbats, for there is no one correct way to celebrate. All Imbolte rituals incorporate the use of candles to encourage the sun's return. During the Circle, there is energy raising and coming, which brings the energy to a peak. The energy raised is healing energy, energy of the white light. Its purpose is to aid in restora-tion and healing of others and of the earth.

After the raising, coming and release of the energy, members need to be grounded. This is done through the sharing of what is referred to as "cakes and wine." In this instance, cookies were used. All rituals are based on the use of energy for positive, beneficial outcomes, to aid all.

Of All Ages and the Council of Uranus will be scheduling future open circles, open to anyone interested in the practice of magic.

The voice of experience

As small a school as Suffolk is, word of mouth can only go so far. Sure, everyone has received advice on this teacher or that one, which ones to avoid and which ones to sign up quickly for, but most of that advice is subjective. One person’s interesting can be another’s pedantic.

The Student Evaluation handbook being readied by Dave Tam and Diego Portillo is a good idea, one that should have become a regular thing years ago.

The law school already has just such a handbook available for its students, a breakdown of all student evaluations for every professor. CLAS, being much larger and more diverse, would benefit even more so from this idea.

Every Suffolk student, from the newest of rosy-cheeked freshmen to the most grizzled veteran senior, could benefit from the evaluations of all Suffolk students, compiled in one place. Which professors are easier, which ones are better at presenting information, which ones are easier for homework assignments, which ones are just more fun.

This idea, which had been in place before, should have continued on. Let’s hope that when it is completed this time, it is maintained for the benefit of all future Suffolk students.

Airing Jim’s dirty laundry

Dear Editor,

The only garbage in Jim Behrle’s pathetic entry in the Jan. 25, 1995 issue of The Suffolk Journal wasn’t a “white-haired bag of Georgian garbage,” actually it was the content of the article itself.

I did find the first few paragraphs of nonsense to be somewhat amusing, and I’m sorry that his personal life is so pathetic. Hey, if it makes him feel any better to air his dirty laundry in public, so be it.

However, to suggest that Newt Gingrich and Phil Gramm are evil and that they have a deal with the devil, well, that’s just too much for me to stomach.

Jim, what do you actually know about Newt Gingrich or Phil Gramm? Have you taken the time to research their track records? Have you heard or read any of their speeches? Do you know where they stand on important issues? Hey Jim, you called the Contract with America “The Contract with the demon,” have you taken the time to actually read the Contract with America or was your opinion fed to you by the biased, mainstream, liberal press.

Jim, you called Newt Gingrich “a white-haired bag of Georgian garbage.” Pretty harsh words; you wouldn’t catch me using that kind of language to describe that fat-headed, drunken, womanizing, murderous, hypocritical abomination of a senator that is our very own Jim Behrle.

Give me MTV or give me brain-death
Mike Shaw

I was snowed in last Friday night, the roads being much too slippery to drive into town to meet my friends, so I decided to plop down in front of the television and do some serious channel surfing. And while skipping between A&E’s special on the Titanic, the Soloflex infomercial, and “Bikini Summer II,” I came across my old couch-mate MTV.

I stuck with it for a while, hoping to regain a small vestige of my bygone years of watching TV all day, and MTV and Nickelodeon were my stations of choice. After I had watched a few videos, one of those station IDs came on. But instead of seeing something cool like the guy with the nervous breakdown in the restaurant, or Jimmy The Cab Driver, I saw something that was more Ronnie and downright insulting.

The commercial contained pictures of books. Oh, but that wasn’t the insult part. The announcer then started saying what a waste of time all books were, and that we should all watch MTV instead of reading. I was also told to believe that books were nothing but a “Big waste of time”, and that my evenings would be better spent if I were sprawled out in front of the television bazinga mindlessly at the screen, instead of getting part of it. The announcer continued:

Now I can understand that this was all a big joke...just like most of their other stations. And while skipping between the commercials for gavel coverage, and getting up the murders. O.J. Simpson might be one of the few who had nothing to do with these horrible murders.

Well, I got news for you folks. Here comes the Behrle bomb! The disco is over. America’s going to get a mouthful of the truth, courtesy of yours truly. You all better run for the border. When the rest of the DNA comes back from Fotomat, you kids are going to be about as popular as head parasites.

Think Finland, you pathetic little fugitives! The jury will convict themselves, they’re all as guilty as sin! The truth will set you free, as they say. And the truth will set O.J. free. The truth, coincidentally, will also make me richer than God.

My advice? Curl up by the fire, slip on the gavel-to-gavel coverage, and get yourself a little popcorn — ‘Cause honeypie, it’s going to be some kind of show! Even I don’t know what I’m going to say, baby! Stay tuned America.

OK, O.J., I’ll be your witness, says Jim
Jim Behrle

I was smoking some Sanka and had just slipped into some Huggies when my doorbell rang. Ain’t that always the way? I pretended not to hear it, and with my remote control I cranked C-Span up to jet engine levels.

A couple minutes later there was a tapping at my door. It was that damn O.J. Dream Team of lawyers, Bobby Shapiro, Dershowitz, Johnnie C. — you know, the whole crew.

Yes indeedy, Suffolk. Me and O.J. go way back. And I know that he’s been framed. Framed like a bad Picasso. I was with him the whole night. We were at Walmart the entire time, making out with the girls in the bra department. O.J. couldn’t possibly have done it.

From the very beginning, I’ve been reluctant to come forward. I mean, I’m not a materialistic kind of dude. Money can’t buy me love.

Why would I betray O.J. for a few thousand dollars? I mean, sure, that Mertcard bill ain’t gonna pay itself. But I could always use a few extra VCRs. Some drug money. And Hard Copy’s been buying me hookers for months.

But, O.J. means the world to me. I couldn’t betray him, even if it meant my very own silicone and a record contract for my garage band “Crying Wife of the Mountain.”

Bobby Shapiro sat me down, and over a couple glasses of Pinot, he quietly convinced me to come forward. To do the right thing. To see that justice wins the day. To sell my story to the highest bidder.

I’m gonna take the stand, baby. I’m going to set the record straight. After my testimony O.J. will be as free as a bird. Judge Ito will shave his beard! Marcia Clark will quit her job and take up scuba! Dan Rather will finally sleep with Connie! I watched them. The entire Los Angeles police department as they were planning to frame my pal. In fact, my testimony will implicate half the population of California and most of Oregon. It’s going to be earth shattering! An 11.3 on the Richter scale.

I can’t really get into the specifics. Then, who would buy my book, “O.J. didn’t do it” It was President Clinton" (available from Harpercollins real, real soon).

In it, I’ll show how the Clinton Administration, in co-operation with NASA, the former Soviet Union, the Menendez brothers, the Sandinistas, the Ku Klux Klan, and the Osmonds, have taken a Heisman Trophy winner and made him into Public Enemy #1.

Big Bubba Clinton. Newt Gingrich, Hillary, Chelsea, Socks, Governor Weld, Mr. Spock, Tom Petty, Beavis, Butthead, Pearl Jam, Deng Xiaoping, Student Body President Erika Christianson, the Pope — they were all in on it! No one is above suspicion! Get the witch trials cranking!

By my calculations, over 17.4 million Americans helped plan, execute, and cover up the murders. O.J. Simpson may be one of the few who had nothing to do with these horrible murders.

Well, I got news for you folks. Here comes the Behrle bomb! The disco is over. America’s going to get a mouthful of the truth, courtesy of yours truly. You all better run for the border. When the rest of the DNA comes back from Fotomat, you kids are going to be about as popular as head parasites.

Think Finland, you pathetic little fugitives! The jury will convict themselves, they’re all as guilty as sin! The truth will set you free, as they say. And the truth will set O.J. free. The truth, coincidentally, will also make me richer than God.

My advice? Curl up by the fire, slip on the gavel-to-gavel coverage, and get yourself a little popcorn — ‘Cause honeypie, it’s going to be some kind of show! Even I don’t know what I’m going to say, baby! Stay tuned America.

An open letter to Suffolk students from Student Government

At this point in time, the members of the Student Government Association (SGA) are submitting their mid-year reports. As the secretary of the board, I thought it would be a good idea to let you all know what we have been up to this year.

The first thing I want to tell you about is the Student Advantage Card. It is here! We are really proud to offer the card to you. Recently, SGA has purchased a large number of Student Advantage Cards. These cards will give you anywhere from 10%-20% off of purchases in some of Boston’s most popular stores and restaurants. We are still in the process of giving them out. To get yours, look for our tables in the cafeteria and the Fenton lounge or stop by our office on the third floor of the Student Activities Center.

Our year to date has been a busy one. As you may recall, we kicked off the year with the best election in recent years. The freshman class brought enthusiasm to the polls during their first election. At the same time, we also held special elections to fill a few more positions. The results of the special election were just as impressive as the freshmen’s. As a new member of the executive board, I couldn’t have been happier.

Our Legislative University Affairs Committee — School of Management/College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Committee — Student Judicial Review Board — Financial Aid AD HOC — Student Relations — Executive Board
— Finance Committee — Recycling Committee These committees cover and deal with almost any problem a student may have.

So far this year, we have assisted with Alcohol Awareness and AIDS Awareness Weeks. Also, we sponsored the “Open Forum on Tuition” with President Sargent, Vice President Flannery, and a representative from the Board of Trustees. Many of you turned out to ask questions. Our Legislative University Affairs Committee has been working with VP Flannery to revise the snow closing policy. Another project which we are working on is a faculty evaluation publication. The SOM/CLAS committee is currently doing research on the evaluations.

During the first semester, SGA gave a presentation to the Trustees’ Student Affairs Committee to push for a “low or no” tuition increase. Our main point was to inform the administrators of some of the financial responsibilities Suffolk students have. Some of the administrators present said we gave them some figures and pointed out some problems which they will be taking into consideration when the tuition discussions begin.

In closing, I would like to thank all of you for supporting us this year. Also, I invite all of you to sit in on one of our meetings or stop by the office. We meet every Tuesday at 1 p.m. in Sawyer 423.

Hopefully, we will see you soon.

Mark DiFraia
SGA Secretary

CORVALLIS, Ore. — They lift and separate, support and titilate. But whether it be boxers or bras, jock straps or G-strings, rarely has the subject of undergarments received much exposure in the academic world.

Until now. Recently, researchers at Oregon State University received a $10,000 grant to look into the wide world of undergarments.

With the grant, OSU faculty members Nancy Bryant and Elaine Pedersen plan on chronicling the 20th-century history of undergarments, in hopes of gaining insights into fashion, practicality and culture.

To further their study, Bryant and Pedersen will collect literary pieces, news stories, television and film clips and ads featuring underwear—and of course, as many bras, jockstraps, boxer shorts, girdles and briefs as they can get their hands on.

Bryant and Pedersen, both members of OSU's Department of Apparel, Interiors, Housing and Merchandising, say that the research will help them to design them.

"This is a growing market," says Bryant. "More college graduates who are looking to break into the fashion industry are considering the undergarment industry. Look at Victoria's Secret. There's a newly developed market for a lot of these products, and there will always be a need for people to design them."

The study is being funded by The Under Fashion Club Inc., a not-for-profit organization made up of more than 300 intimate-apparel industry executives.

President

To pass the time we played games such as "I spy a Secret Service guy" and "What happens if you say you're going to kill the President?" Then the time had arrived. At 3:45pm the motorcade began to come up Beacon Street. There were a lot of "oohs" and "ahhs" and one "im­peach" as the President's limo was getting closer to us.

Then, there he was, inside that limo. Now, when you think of the President, what is the first thing that comes to mind besides, "Inhale"? Well, for me, it will be, "Wow, he's got a big-ass head!" I mean this sucker was BIG -- like conehead big. His head was so big that the Secret Service used his head to duck from any stray bullets or any flying boxes of McDonald's fries.

After the President passed by, the first thing that everyone said was, "Wow! That guy has a big head!" We stood there in amazement for a few minutes. This was not what I expected to see. I thought that I would see a President who was slightly pudgy and was smiling and waving at the crowds. Instead, all I got to see was the back of Bubba's head. And that's the way I saw it...

Jim, if you want to pick on some­one, how about Barney Frank? Are you aware that Mr. Frank was involved in a scandal several years ago? It was the "Hot Buns" scandal; the way I remember it, there was a male prostitution ring being run out of Mr. Frank's home. How, if my memory serves me correctly, Heidi Fleiss was sentenced to jail for a similar offense.

What happened to Barney? Well, I'll tell you — nothing. Barney got

How can anyone condone the decision to put this spot on the air? And furthermore, why was it put on? Were all of the executives high? Had they all been hitting the pot a little to early that day? Why do they bother to put on news stories about young thinking for themselves, and stand­ing up against authority, and the sys­tem in general, if they are going t go ahead and tell those same youths that they are actually wasting their time thinking?

Who could possibly have the balls to stand up in front of a group of young people and tell them that they should all forget about reading because it is a big waste of time? Can any of these executives show their own faces on these ads? When have we ever seen such a person before? someone who wanted everybody to listen only to him because everything else was a big waste of time? He died just fifty short years ago, and his name was Adolf Hitler.

The Rams returned to hoop ac­tion on Tuesday evening at home against Babson College. The contest is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m.

An embarrassing moment for the Rams was in the second half when they closed to within two points of the lead, yet missed a wide-open dunk by a factor of 10.

The Rams opened the game with a 26-11 lead, but the state house workers and die-hard state fans decided to move and find a better spot to see the President and leave Chris Wooton there on the roof? As the crowd began to look up my friend Chris replied, "Oh, those are snipers." Everyone in the crowd began to look up at the guy on the roof.

This is the rest of us de­cided to move and find a better spot to see the President and leave Chris Wooton behind with the secret service.

The rest of us, including the state house workers and die-hard state fans were completely ticked off that their own little Boston Marathon course was being altered all because of the President.

Lady Rams dealt a knock-out punch

By Ryan Foley

BOSTON — From the keen observer's point of view, using the game's 14-12, the Rams have also nabbing two of her team-high 17 points, but for all purposes of intention, the teeth that had been taken from Suffolk's bite. That traveling call had been a game's deciding point. "No one works harder than them," said Coach Ed Leyden on his team's difficulties. "Even in a situation like this (being down by 17 points, 45-28) they never complain."

The contest commenced somewhat positively. Suffolk leaped to a quick 10-8 lead, boosted by four points from McBride and the strong rebounding of Noto. But Framingham was to show they were just as fleet, and Suffolk's lead was swiftly vaporized under a 10-0 run.

Framingham's quick three-point shooting was braising the Lady Rams' transition defense, and it was the brazen play underneath by Michelle Kelly and Jennifer Verlisco that kept Suffolk close at half-time, 29-21.

"A lot of people may overlook them (Verlisco and Kelly) because do not score a lot of points," commented Coach Ed Leyden, "but they do hold players to well below their scoring average."

Opportunities to rally did present themselves in the second half in the form of numerous Framingham turnovers, but Suffolk had difficulty penetrating their opponents' defense and not lengthy offensive run materialized.

That ref's whistle voided Noto's fieldgoal and fouled undoubtedly dealt the Lady Rams the knock-out blow, for they never got closer than 15 points for the rest of the game.

McBride would finally break the drought at 9:34, though the defeat dropped Suffolk's overall record to 8-24.

Rams return home on a sour note

By Ryan Foley

The Rams concluded a three-game excursion on the road Sunday (2/5) with a bitter 92-82 loss at the hands of area-rival UMass/Boston. Though the defeat dropped Suffolk's lead was swiftly broken the double-digit barrier in points. Ace accrued a dozen, while freshman Ed Hurley came off the bench to score 11 to complement his 4 rebounds.

"We did not get off to a good start," noted Nelson on his squad'splay. "And this really hurt us because on an individual standpoint, WPI had many outstanding performances."

In a rare move, Nelson substituted all five starters nine minutes into the game, and in return, received strong performances.

Around the Campus

By Ryan Foley

The men's basketball team has undoubtedly seen its portion of milestones the past few weeks. Besides Suffolk's Mike Vieira notching his 1000th point on Jan.19, the Rams have also witnessed various opponents record their own statistical landmarks.

Last Thursday's game in Worcester saw WPI standout Chris Dunn nail his 1000th career point, while teammate Jim Naughton broke a school record with his 24 boards.

On Jan.28 versus Tufts, Suffolk was also on hand to see Jumbo Head Coach Bob Sheldon earn his 100th career victory. Some side notes in Vieira's crossing of the 1000-point threshold on Jan.19.

The first Suffolk basketball player to break the millennium mark was Jay Crowley, who accomplished the feat in 1968. Sitting atop the Ram's all-time scorers list is Donovan Little, a forward who amassed 2033 points during a Suffolk career that ended in 1979.

Nor'easter '95 caused plenty of weekend cancellations region-wide and Suffolk was no exception. The hockey team's contest versus Assumption College was postponed due to the harsh conditions and rescheduled for Feb.20 at BU's Brown Arena. Starting time for the game will be 9:30 a.m. The women's basketball game versus UMass/Boston was also rescheduled. A makeup day and time has yet to be determined.
