Negro Strikebreakers Sought

An appeal to the Negro strikebreakers in the ports of New York and New Orleans was made by the Marine Union of America on May 18, in a letter to the Negro workers in the two ports.

The Marine Union has been trying to organize the Negro workers in the ports for several years. The union is interested in the welfare of its members and in the improvement of their working conditions.

The union's letter to the Negro workers was in response to aearlier appeal made by the Marine Union to its members in the ports. The union is hoping that the Negro workers will respond to its appeal and join the Marine Union.

The Marine Union is a union of maritime workers, and is one of the largest unions in the world. The union has been active in organizing workers in the ports for many years, and has been successful in improving the working conditions of its members.

IMPRESSIONS

Not work many young people of Providence are familiar with, and so many are in contact with the press, that the question of "What is the state of the press?" is often asked in the minds of young people. And while the answer is that the press is in a good way, it is also true that the press has not been getting the attention it deserves.

It will take hard work and much effort to get the press restored to its former position.

MOTHER'S DAY OBSERVED

The mothers of the Providence area were observed by the Rhode Island Chamber of Commerce, and the Providence Daily Journal, which is the official organ of the Chamber, issued a special edition, May 10, to commemorate the occasion. The Chamber, in a message to the newspapers, said: "The mothers and fathers of the Chamber have every reason to take pride in their children, and this is the day to express that pride.
