Government aid slashed 50%

Service scholarships in jeopardy

by Jim Hoolihan

Suffolk University's financial aid package is being tightened to make room for a new program that helps students pay for tuition.

Suffolk President Elford has announced a new program that will help students pay for tuition. The program, called the "Elford Scholarship Program," will provide students with financial assistance to help cover their tuition costs.

Suffolk's financial aid package has been under pressure due to the recent decline in state funding. In order to make room for the new program, the university is considering cutting other financial aid programs.

"We're going to have to make some tough decisions," said Elford. "But we want to make sure that every student has an opportunity to receive a high-quality education."
the need of student leaders

Should the administration have to rely on student leaders of the university to function as the face of the student body? Should the administration be the only people to speak for the students? This is the case at many universities, where the administration often represents the students. However, this approach can be problematic, as it can lead to a lack of accountability on the part of the administration.

Instead, the administration should work closely with student leaders to ensure that the needs and concerns of the student body are being represented. This can involve regular meetings and discussions, as well as providing support and resources to student leaders to help them carry out their responsibilities.

Furthermore, it is important for student leaders to have a clear understanding of their role and responsibilities. They should be provided with training and resources to help them effectively represent the student body.

Registration report due next month

by Jayne Marks

As a sophomore, I was shocked to receive a registration report due next month from my registrar. The registrar informed me that all students must report their registration in a timely manner to ensure the smooth operation of the university.

Registration reports are due by the end of next month. It is important for students to submit their reports in a timely manner to avoid any potential issues. If you are unsure of your registration status, you should contact your registrar for assistance.

Board chairman considers Suffolk’s next move

By Rick Axia

Charlie, the new chairman of the board at Suffolk, hopes to ease the pressure on the student body and the faculty, but the new challenges that Suffolk faces don’t look like they’re going away anytime soon. The system is still in its infancy, and the university is struggling to keep up with the demands of a growing student body and a shrinking budget. With a new chairman at the helm, it will be important to balance the needs of the students and the faculty while also ensuring that the university remains viable.

Library computer orders book titles at finger’s touch

By John Badman

Students and faculty can now request titles from the library’s collection by using the library’s new online catalog. This system allows users to search for books by title, author, or subject, and then place their requests through the catalog. The system is designed to improve the user experience and make it easier for students and faculty to find the books they need.

Dr. Tom Borthwick, a former administrator at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, has been named the new assistant dean of the College of Business Administration at Suffolk. Borthwick brings a wealth of experience in higher education administration, and his appointment is expected to strengthen the college’s leadership and enhance its reputation.

College bills stalled in house committee

By John Badman

The Suffolk House of Representatives has rejected a proposal to cut $3 million from the school’s budget. The proposal, which was introduced by Suffolk President William Petroski, was met with resistance from members of the Suffolk House of Representatives, who argued that the cuts would be detrimental to the school’s ability to meet its academic and student needs. The proposal is expected to be revisited in the next session of the Suffolk House of Representatives.

'Fantastic Invasion' never really gets underway

MOVIES
by Dan Tapley

A new wave of science fiction comes to the screen this fall when "Fantastic Invasion" opens in theaters nationwide. The film, directed by the renowned Peter Tash and produced by the powerhouse Tash Entertainment, follows the story of a group of extraterrestrial beings who arrive on Earth with the intent of taking over the planet.

As the film opens, the alien beings, led by their leader Zorg, begin to establish their presence on Earth. The humans are at first oblivious to the invasion, but as they begin to notice strange occurrences, they begin to suspect something is amiss.

Zorg and his followers begin to experiment with human beings, using them as test subjects for their latest experiments. The humans are horrified as they witness the aliens'残忍 methods, but they are powerless to stop them.

As the invasion continues, the humans begin to band together, forming alliances and working together to fight against the alien invaders. In the end, they are successful in driving the aliens back and saving their planet.

Despite its thrilling premise, "Fantastic Invasion" never really captures the imagination of its viewers. The acting is hammy and the special effects are lackluster, making it difficult to get invested in the story.

Music doldrums rocked away by a few good albums

MUSIC
by Joe DeSantos

With the summer months winding down and the fall season upon us, the music industry is feeling the effects of the doldrums. However, a few albums have emerged that have managed to keep the music scene alive.

One of the standout releases this fall is "The Sound of Silence" by the group Silences. The album features a collection of songs that are sure to please fans of alternative rock.

Another album that has caught the attention of music lovers is "Under the Influence" by the group Influence. The album features a mix of upbeat and slow tracks that are perfect for a wide range of moods.

In addition to these albums, "The Best of Both Worlds" by the group Both Worlds has also been well-received. The album features a mix of classic and modern sounds that are sure to delight listeners.

Despite the challenges of the music industry, there are still plenty of great albums being released this fall. Be sure to check out these and other releases to keep the music scene alive.

Athletic program at Suffolk:

By Tony Parada

The athletic program at Suffolk College has undergone significant changes over the past few years. The program was initially established to provide students with an opportunity to participate in extracurricular activities. At the time, the athletic facilities were basic, and the focus was on developing a sense of community and teamwork among the students.

Since then, the athletic program has expanded to include a variety of sports and activities. The addition of new facilities and equipment has allowed for more specialized training and competition. As a result, Suffolk's athletic program now offers students the opportunity to pursue their athletic interests at a competitive level.

While the athletic program has grown, it has also faced challenges. Budget constraints have limited the ability to invest in new equipment and facilities. In addition, the program has had to navigate issues of fairness and equity, ensuring that all students have access to the same opportunities.

Despite these challenges, the athletic program remains an integral part of the Suffolk experience. Participation in athletics can provide students with valuable life skills, such as discipline and teamwork, that can be applied in other areas of their lives.

In the future, the athletic program at Suffolk College will continue to evolve. The goal is to provide students with the best possible athletic experience while maintaining a focus on the overall academic and personal well-being of the students.
it's not all fun and games

Borgman Carman, in the Yorktown High School, has been teaching a class called "Fun and Games" for the past two years. The course is designed for students who are interested in learning more about the fun and games that are played in the school. The course is taught by Carman, who has a background in both education and sports. The students in the class are divided into small groups and are asked to think about the games they play and how they can be improved.

Carman believes that the students in the class are enjoying themselves and learning a lot. "It's not all fun and games," he says. "They are working on improving their skills and learning how to play games in a fun and safe way."

Carman says that the class has been well-received by the students and that they have shown a lot of interest in the course. "They are excited to learn more about the games and how they can be improved," he says. "I think they are learning a lot and having fun in the process."

Carman hopes to continue the class in the future and to expand it to include more games. "I think there are a lot of games that can be improved and enjoyed by more students," he says. "I hope to see more classes like this in the future."
