MOVIES

The recent release of the movie "Oh, God!" has generated much buzz and critical acclaim. Directed by Robert Zemeckis and starring John Denver and John Candy, the film tells the story of a good-hearted college professor who is visited by a heavenly angel named Muir (played by Candy). The angel is sent to help the professor resolve a personal crisis, which involves the professor's family and a number of other characters. The movie has been praised for its humorous and heartwarming moments, as well as its message about the power of faith and the importance of treating others with kindness.

The success of "Oh, God!" has continued to grow since its release, with box office receipts exceeding expectations. Audiences have been particularly drawn to the chemistry between Candy and Denver, as well as the film's comedic moments. The film's critical reception has been strong, with many reviewers praising the movie's message and its ability to entertain audiences.

Based on its box office success and critical acclaim, "Oh, God!" is expected to continue its run at the box office and possibly earn a number of award nominations. Fans of the movie are eager to see what comes next from director Robert Zemeckis and the talented cast, and it is sure to remain a favorite among moviegoers for years to come.

THE CAFETERIA IS GOING!

The administration says it's already gone... we at the Student Government Association say

HANDS OFF OUR CAF. MAFA.

We feel we can stop this atrocious policy if all of us, students and faculty, work together.

SO FOR THE SAKE OF YOUR DIPLOMA, ATTEND!
