President Thomas A. Fulham says an announcement may be made within the next two weeks regarding the purchase of a new building.

Acquisition of a new building to alleviate the space problem at Suffolk is pending a legal problem, according to Fulham.

However, Fulham stated that he is very optimistic about purchasing the new building. He feels that the problems "are not insurmountable. Negotiations are in progress," he added.

The new building will be for undergraduate use, according to Student Government Association (SGA) President John Bartley. Fullam confirmed this, saying it will be used for liberal arts and business, everyone but the law school.

SGA votes not to pay ARA $54 for Rathskellar losses

by Frank Conte

Sophomore Class President Ken Chester announced that the American Restaurant Association (ARA) has estimated its losses incurred during Rathskeller at $54, of which the Student Government Association (SGA) will pay one-half. University administration will pay the other half.

ARA had previously estimated losses at $185 per Rathskellar based on last year's financial figures.

The SGA, at its Tuesday meeting, defeated Chester's proposal to pay ARA $54 to cover the next two Rathskellers. The vote was decided by SGA President John Bartley's decision to oppose the motion after the original tally ended in a tie.

Some SGA members disapproved of subsidizing ARA. Junior Class Vice President Barry Lambo commented on the fact that ARA can validate from $85 to $27 was unreasonable, saying it would be used for liberal arts and sciences. Joseph H. Strain, Associate Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, envisions "more flexibility and variety" in the revised summer evening sessions.

Also Tuesday graduate student Perry Trilling proposed to the SGA that it fund the Constitution for executive board secretary will take place next week.

In other SGA action:
- The group passed the constitution of the Hellenic Cultural Club unanimously.
- Bartley announced plans for an SGA retreat and appointed Sophomore Representative Steve DeCosta as chairman of that committee.
- The group passed the constitution of the American Hazardous Materials Association unanimously.
- Bartley announced that the election for executive board secretary will take place next week.

  - Bartley announced plans for an SGA retreat and appointed Sophomore Representative Steve DeCosta as chairman of that committee.

The change gives transfer students and those who failed courses during the academic year a better opportunity to make up course since the two sessions are available. According to Strain, 30 to 40 percent more courses will be offered.

Thursday, Fulham said that the new building would consolidate everything. He also said that the question now will be how much student activity space there will be.

Announcement on new bldg. possible in next two weeks

by Donna Lombardi

The evening division summer session will have a new look next year.

It will begin the first of two seven-week periods on May 23, 1978, according to Liberal Arts and Sciences Associate Dean and Director of Summer Sessions Joseph H. Strain.

Traditionally, the evening term consisted of one eight-week session. According to Strain, the new calendar will "allow for more flexibility and variety." Approximately ten years ago, Suffolk began to discuss several different summer calendars. The possibility of two seven-week semesters was also reviewed.

It was not until two years ago that the board of trustees voted on the two seven week sessions. The Business School and the Medical School also voted in favor of the new calendar.

Originally, it was planned for the summer of 1977. However, a faculty vote postponed the change until this summer to allow the Registrar's Office time to adapt to the new calendar.

The change gives transfer students and those who failed courses during the academic year a better opportunity to make up course since the two sessions are available. According to Strain, 30 to 40 percent more courses will be offered.

The new sessions cause problems for the Registrar's Office, according to Registrar Mary Hefron. While preparing for the fall registration, the office is also calculating grades from the summer sessions. This has always been the busiest time at the Registrar's Office. But because there will now be two sessions extending late into August, it will be even more time consuming, according to College Registrar Mary Hefron.

"I foresee some problems, definitely," said Hefron. The main problem, said Hefron, is that there are "two procedures going on at the same time and both are time consuming."

Hefron is most concerned with graduate students in education. It is vital that they have the material for certification sent to the schools early in September. "I know how important it is for them to keep their jobs," said Hefron.

The new mail registration may also affect the situation. But Hefron says there is no way to tell what that influence will be.
Earth Mother is leaving. We are going to miss, perhaps more than anything else in this university, the kind of love and guidance that Earth Mother Pam Strasen, Pam, "secretary" of the Student Activities Office, is leaving Suffolk to become (and we don't mean to reduce her to a maternal mom).

One of the most difficult questions we have had to answer since 1972 is "what is an Earth Mother?" At the sake of using prose akin to the people at Hallmark or American Greetings, we could write, "Because of her presence,办公楼 never seemed more than a home." Through the years Pam has become the source of information at Suffolk. Freshman learn quickly that whatever they want to know "just ask Pam." Even the stoic seniors who sometimes have to doublecheck information "just ask Pam."

To list on paper all the things Pam means to all the people at Suffolk, we calculated, would blow our budget. Suffice it to say Pam Strasen means good things to everyone. We wish you good things, Mom, always. And, although we know it's tough raising over 6,000 kids, we thank you for helping us grow. We love you.

Library compiling list of consortium's holdings

by Lynne Pomella

The Suffolk College Library is presently compiling a "union list" which would help students obtain information through the Fennery Library Consortium (FLC). The FLC was incorporated "to provide students with a broader collection of educational materials than any one institution could possibly afford," said College Librarian Edmund Hamann.

The FLC is a group of libraries serving institutions similar in size and educational goals to Suffolk. There are 11 libraries in the FLC, all within close proximity to one another. They are: Boston State College, Emmanuel College, Hebrew College, Massachusetts College of Art, Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Museum of Fine Arts Library, Simmons College, Suffolk University, Wentworth Institute, and Wheelock College.

The consortium's initial program is a walk-in inter-library loan service (WILL) which allows students from each college to borrow books, periodicals, and other educational materials with little inconvenience. The student has to fill in a two-part form and show his ID. In a case where a student fails to return a book or the book is stolen, his college library is held responsible.

The only problem with this set-up, says Hamann, "is that we don't know specifically what is available in the other libraries."

Hamann feels there are two possible solutions to this problem. The first is an idea "to compile a union list of periodicals which would include the compiled holdings of the 11 libraries in the FLC, with copies available in each library. The second deals with the investigation of membership in the New England Literary Information Network (NELINET)."

immigration officer says paperwork causes delay

by John Sullivan

Nationalwide backlogs in paperwork of the Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) have caused problems in handling affairs of foreign students, a top regional service official said Tuesday.

However, the problem is not critical in Boston, according to Timothy Whelan, INS deputy district director.

Whelan addressed about 40 persons in the Fenton Building, including foreign students and university administrators, as guest of the International Students Association.

"We are not able to operate as efficiently as we would have liked because of the backlog," he said. In order to stop delays, Whelan said officials have been relocated to help in hard pressed areas.

He added that there were no problems in this district with lengthy delays.

Whelan said, however, that where there are delays, foreign students are sometimes forced to accept jobs without first obtaining proper authorization. This can damage their immigrant status. To obtain a job while in the United States, a foreign student must be certified first by the school and then be authorized by the INS office.

Hastings lectures on French life in Tues. speech

by Carla Barros

Dr. Marshall Hastings gave Suffolk University credit for presenting its students with good courses dealing with the French heritage, during a lecture sponsored by the Modern Language club Tuesday.

Hastings, a Suffolk language professor, talked about the French heritage in North America and its influences. He covered the themes and historical framework of France before and after World War II.

He focussed on Canada and the pockets of French heritage scattered across the nation, according to Whelan, are a relationship of the job with his educational goals. Whelan said that foreign students are "normally required" to pay all educational costs, but if his source of financing has been removed, that is taken into consideration.

Problems encountered by INS across the nation, according to Whelan, are a lack of manpower and automated equipment. He said the service handles millions of files and "every entry is done by hand."

The INS office, according to Whelan, admits better than 100,000 foreign students per year, and handles 28,000 employment applications, of which 28,000 are approved.

"We have endeavored to be as liberal as possible in accepting applications for employment," he said.

Qualifications for employment include the need of the foreign student and the relationship of the job with his educational goals. Whelan said that foreign students are "normally required" to pay all educational costs, but if his source of financing has been removed, that is taken into consideration.

Problems encountered by INS across the nation, according to Whelan, are a lack of manpower and automated equipment. He said the service handles millions of files and "every entry is done by hand."

Moreover, Whelan said the INS will issue new permanent residence identification cards to all aliens. "We hope this will eliminate the counterfeiting and sale of the cards," he added.

Foreign Student President and Coordinator Mohamed Barre, who organized the lecture, said he would like to have an INS representative visit the university each year to discuss new rules and regulations affecting foreign students.

Whelan's appearance marks the second year in a row that an INS official has spoken here.
Typewriters are reported to be in poor shape in the Oral Study Room of the College Library.

Four typewriters broken in library study room

Other machines in school available for student use

by Lynne Pomella

Only one out of five typewriters in the college library's oral study room is in proper working condition. One has no margin system, one has no ribbon, and on the two keys stick.

College Librarian Edmund Hamann said, "All the typewriters have recently been deep-cleaned. The typewriter with no ribbon is being picked up to be repaired. I was informed by the Royal repairman that all the others were in fine working condition."

The four disc jockeys, Gerry Doberty, Ed O'Connor, Vic Fiore, and Hugh McGonough said their reasons why they have not yet obtained the license.

"I don't believe they had to get a handbook for the FCC license, but none of the places where he went had any available. Doberty said he was going to borrow the book from another disc jockey and get his license by next week. "I will need the license eventually, since this is going to be my field. I know the radio station can get in trouble for putting non-licensed people on the air."

Cousins said that he and Bonvicini are good friends, but he is not going to get the license. "I don't think the station is being run professionally enough to tell me I have to get a license," he said.

Hamann feels that the biggest problem with the upkeep of the typewriters is that they are "used heavily by students of various dexterity levels." He does not think it has anything to do with vandalism.

Hamann said that there were only five typewriters in the room because of "the general space and fund shortage at Suffolk. The typewriters we have now are discarded department typewriters."

Four manual and one electric typewriter are available for student use in the law library. Senior Law Librarian Assistant Helen Horden says, "Any student can use the typewriters. There are two upstairs and two downstairs."

Daniel Petipas of WSUB says, "Any student can use WSUB's typewriter with permission as long as it's in use."

Sophomore class President Kenneth Center says, "The SGA typewriter can be used by the students with permission from the secretary of the SGA, Eileen Lambert."

Journalism Department Chairman Malcolm Banach said, "Only journalism students can use the typewriter in the Mount Vernon Workshop, and only with my permission." He added, "They aren't in very good working order now, and will ultimately have to be thrown out."

Journal News Editor Joseph A. Repucci stated, "Anybody is welcome to use them if they're not being occupied by the Journal staff, but the Journal has first crack because we need them." He added that they were in use "almost all the time."

Presidents Council Chairman Mohamed Barrie said, "We desperately need a typewriter for the organization. We have news and correspondence that must be typed. We need a typewriter. New Directions Coordinator News Clerk added that she felt they "needed a typewriter also."

Failure to get licenses takes DJ's off airwaves

by Nina Gaeta

Four WSFR Disc Jockeys have been taken off the air for failure to acquire Federal Communication Commission (FCC) licenses by the Oct. 20 deadline set by Station Manager Ted Bonvicini.

FCC licenses are necessary, Bonvicini said, for professional broadcasting. Oct. 20 was actually the second deadline for the licenses according to Bonvicini. He said they had until the end of last spring semester and the summer to turn in the license.

Station Manager Tad Bonvie, in turn, was "very impressed" that the four WSFR Disc Jockeys have been taken off the air for failure to acquire FCC licenses by the Oct. 20 deadline set by the former Suffolk trustee in the fields of Management and Research.

His topic will be "The Growing Conflict between National Governments and International Corporations." His talk is sponsored by the College of Business Administration.

Marketing Club cancels plan for a career day

by Lynne Pomella

The Suffolk Marketing Club-sponsored career day have been canceled, according to club president, Susan E. Peterson.

"We were informed by the student activity office that Phi Chi Theta has one every year so we therefore must cancel our plans," she said.

Instead, the club will plan an advertising symposium to be held next semester. Alyson Miller, a journalism major, who volunteered to edit and coordinate a newsletter.

A date is being planned with the Accounting and Finance Club and the Society for the Advancement of Management sometime in December.

by Susan E. Peterson

The Photography Club is looking for new members.

Club President Konrad Schoen said, "We're always looking for more people. We are now getting materials to help beginners, and we'll teach them how to do pictures."

The four members present at the Tuesday meeting, Schoen told the Suffolk Art Federation Office in the club's mailroom.

"We are looking for new members who wish to have a public relations photography of their activities or for their records are urged to contact the club."

The State Health Department recommends the shot for people over the age of 40 and anyone who has a chronic medical problem. This vaccine will also be available to any member of the Suffolk community who wishes to have it.

The cost of the shot will be $1.50.

Bookstore return to textbooks to publishers, Peters says

Bookstore manager Lou Peters announced last Wednesday that all college textbooks are being returned to the publishers before the second semester.

"We recommended that all students who live close to the bookstore and obtain books by this deadline. Peters said that he is planning to have more room for college textbooks for the second semester."

"He said that there are a few exceptions to the deadline since some professors have requested that the bookstore hold certain books that are being used in sequence throughout the first semester."

Giving out their "arms" and "hearts" in blood drive

by Carolyne Daly

Two metal folding beds were neatly arranged in the center of Ridgeway 3. To front was a stack of refrigerated boxes piled with grate pans, small plastic bins, and boxes of cassettes. Behind them was a woman in a white coat, with her arms outstretched, standing in front of an audience of people. The crowd had come to hear about the upcoming blood drive.

At the end of the speech, the woman introduced her successor, Fran Pimentel, who walked up to the microphone and began to talk about her experience with blood drives. She mentioned how important it was to give back to the community and how fulfilling it was to help others.

Pam Strassen, assistant to Student Activities Director Bovina Battersfield, will leave Suffolk for, perhaps, the final time.

Last shift for the guide of the myriad

by Joe Hayes

The average Suffolk student who walks into the Ridgeway Building now has to buy his ticket for the upcoming academic year. Pam Strassen is "Shopper of Tickets" and "Ticket Clerk of III." To the continued freshmen, she is the person who gives directions. In the myriad of people passing by, Pam's job is to see that there is no one left behind. She is a teacher and a friend.

Monday, 4:30 p.m., Pam Strassen, the secretary in the Student Activities Office, will count out her last, and a melancholy last, at the height of the people she is leaving. The people she has known throughout her last two years at Suffolk are leaving to pursue their own goals. She who will miss them, shuffles down the stairs on her last day, along Cambridge Street, and about jovially, "I'm free at last."

Pam will be missed on one side or Suffolk. As a general rule, a student who has associated regularly in the Ridgeway Building when Pam Strassen was there, will never do so again. It is hard to imagine walking into the Student Activities Office without Pam there. Something like the Pope not being in Rome. You know that Pam is really there somewhere. It is hard to imagine that anyone more than two, three, or four years of constant association by people, speech, and presentation, could have been left only in the Ridgeway Building, but Pam has done the same, the same for all people, every student, every teacher, every faculty member, every student association, every habitant. Pam first came to Boston seven years ago to attend Brandeis University in the College in the Black Box, where she first heard about employment at Suffolk University. For a period of time, she has been the assistant photographer in the Student Activities Office for a period of time, and then it was the Student Activities Office.

On October 22, 1977, Pam Dennin received Richard Schwartz. They met in the Student Activities Office and have been there ever since.

For many people, this was the first time they had seen her in Ridgeway Building, and it was last, especially in this building. Pam Strassen has been considered a "dispenser of tickets" and "Ex-officio member of the University's Student Activities Office." She was known for her smile and her friendly manner.

Ref. Kevin Belanger follows the action downfield.

Sports Quiz

by Jay Rosworsh

"Both passes were thrown behind the line of scrimmage," yelled Individuals' quarterback Gary Douton.

What did Douton mean, replied referee Kevin Belanger in his quiet, yet authoritative voice. "NCAA rules state that it is illegal to throw two forward passes on one play, whether the passes are behind the line or not." Douton continued to argue the point, but he might as well have saved his breath because when Kevin makes up his mind, no one can change it.

Belanger, 19, from Woburn, has already become referee-in-chief of the intramural football program during his first full season working the sport. Kevin began refereeing while working with the Woburn Recreational Leagues almost five years ago. Desperate for officials, the Rec. League appointed Kevin to referee in their basketball program. At 15, Kevin was the youngest referee, working games with other refs who were coaches of local teams. Kevin has continued to work in this program for the past four years and intends to return again this year, time permitting.

Kevin first worked at Suffolk last year, at the end of the football season, when he heard of a vacancy in the refereeing ranks. He worked the last few games of the season and was kept on to work the basketball season. Since that time he was involved with the Intramural Program has been non-stop.

"Though basketball is his first preference, Kevin is equally adept at covering all the intramural sports. To learn all the rules of football he bought, and seemingly has memorized, a book with all the rules of the High School Federation, the NCAA and the NFL. When it comes to softball the rules are similar to baseball and any differences are made clear in a pamphlet given to everyone involved in the program.

In this year's football program Kevin has worked alongside referees Larry Scara, Doug Rose and Mike Lividotti. All are fine officials in their own right, but none had the intensity that Kevin puts into his work.

"Kevin's always right on top of the plays and the rules," says Scara. "We might have another Marty Springsteen or Moody Rudolph here. Kevin definitely has the talents to go on as an official."

Though an integral part of the Suffolk sports scene, Kevin Belanger is by no means a pro. He is a Management major with a 3.6 average. Though his work in intramural sports is important to him, he always finds time to complete his other work. He was sure that he would consider officiating at the college level, probably in basketball. But for him that's a long way off. Right now, he is quite content in school and refereeing the intramural programs. It may not be the pro's, but to watch Kevin in action you'd never be able to tell.

Women's tennis loses finale

by Francine Nazarro

The Suffolk Women's Tennis Team concluded their season Tuesday night with a loss to the Stonehill Women's Tennis Team, who lost only one match this season. The season record for Suffolk was 9-15.

"Even though we didn't win one match this year we played some good games," said Coach Ann Guilbert. "The scores show how they played. This years team had cool moves," she said. "The big emphasis is that we played a lot better but we just couldn't get that one point. We didn't get wiped away like last year. We played well."

In this years team, Kevin Belanger makes his debut. According to Coach Guilbert, "Kevin is a great kid. If you make a mistake, I'm sure he will hear about it because Kevin is always checking on all of us." Kevin also has the respect of the players. Despite their earlier run-in, Individuals QB Gary Douton says of Belanger, "He's definitely an excellent ref. Everything he knows that's going on he looks at the field at all times. To him every single play is important no matter what the condition is."

Intramural Referee-in-chief Kevin Belanger.

The likes, dislikes from Rams' basketball critic

by Tony Ferullo

Rams’ basketball critic Ken Arsenault controlled the defense, as Bargain led Ices to a 44-42 win in an intramural flag football game Monday night at Boston College.

Arsenault scored 90 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage and passed to Jack Relisch and Rich Martino for TD’s in the first half. In the second half, quarterback Bill Stanton ran 10 yards for another TD.

On the day Arsenault had three interceptions, which he returned for touchdowns and was consistently coming up with big plays to stall Ice Lettuce drives.

The greatest show on earth dazzles Boston

By Alice Wholey

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, At the Boston Garden October 31st

A magical spell has been cast atop the Boston Garden. A show called cotton candy is on everyone's palate there. The stern security guards and police officers at the Garden have been transformed into cheerful keepers of the castle. And there is an excitement in the air that not even a Stanley Cup playoff game could have caused.

What is causing these obscure goings on? No, the Beatles aren't coming to Boston for a one-night performance. No, Eddie Andelman and Howard Cosell are not going to go ten rounds in the Garden ring. No, Amy Carter has not decided to get married and hold the reception here. It is none of these grand events. What it is is that peculiar spectacle. The greatest Show on earth! Yes, it's the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus. And this year's show is greater than ever.

There are about thirty five other circuses that tear the country annually but they all pale in comparison to the Ringling Brothers' circus. The reason for this is that Ringling brothers has the funniest clowns, the nimblest acrobats, and the most well trained animals.

In these days of economic unstability we are usually far too busy with our personal troubles to even think of entertainment. But, even though they are so free and unencumbered existence there, there are actually people who come to see their show for every performance while we're in their city.

"I've waited ten years for this," I could never find the time. But now that I'm retired I had no excuse to put off going." After the show Mr. McCarthy said it was wonderful and well worth the wait.

Many people agree with Mr. McCarthy. The opening gala that the circus has every year is alone worth a ten year wait. The colors in this one are dazzling. Other highlights of the show are the Marriage of Michele, the smallest man in the world and the Brilliant Beams of the Arctic, a troop of Polar bears. These acts are portraits of precision and accuracy.

The performers act with such ease and casualness that they seem perfectly natural at their routines.

Clowning around hard work

by Mickey Collins

"I was always a clown when I was a kid," says Gumby, a clown with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus. "He used to say the most fun that I had was when I was eating egg McMuffin. "I was in the middle of eating when I heard this ring. That's when I decided I wanted to be a clown."

Today Kenny goes by the name of The Great Gunby. With the circus, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which visits the Boston Garden in and near Provincetown. I worked on a fishing boat and took care of a lady's stable and horses. That's when I heard from the school. My mother got a telegram from the college and she called my grandmother who called me. By the time I heard about it and called the school the dean said that they had been waiting to hear from me for three weeks!"

After going to clown college Gunby was signed on by Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey, and so began his clown career.

"There are a lot of good things about being in the circus but these same things can also be problems. (One of those is the traveling. It's fun to travel around the country but when you're miles away from your friends it get lonely."

Then there are the girls. They just don't go after the rock bands. They like the circus and will do anything that comes its way."

Ever get a clown make-up!" he asked. "When you put on your makeup you become a totally different person. It's kinda funny. It usually takes an hour to get ready for a show with the makeup and costumes, but just think it reminds me I have to get ready for tonight's show."

Hol, the clowns are the definite leaders of the circus. Whenever they are on stage they are always the center of attention. So much so that even for a clown to be chosen as ringmaster for the 60th vear of the Ringling Brothers Circus.

"It was a happening of fate that I became a clown," Wolfers says. "But, very often when a show comes to town a clown goes through."

"I've waited ten years for this. I could never find the time. But now that I'm retired I had no excuse to put off going." After the show Mr. McCarthy said it was wonderful and well worth the wait.

A trip through the wastes, hot time in Damnation Alley

Damnation Alley. Directed by Jack Smight. Starring-Michael Vincent, George Peppard, Dominique Sanda and Gary Sargent. At the Beckon Beach.

The chances of surviving a nuclear holocaust (if you aren't the President) are not too good. Damnation Alley is a small preview for those of you who won't accept the inevitable and wish to lay odds.

The ultimate-doomsday thriller, the special effect wise and includes an impressive four-channel soundtrack, but the plot is so far-fetched, so absurdly talking, that it gives you the impression that the doomsday machine simply creates cute light in the sky shows and there are carefree people who just have a great time since there is nothing else to do.

Unfortunately, none of the horrifying aspects of the ultimate-splitt-decision-are really noted after the big poop.

After the last credit the screen, it happens. You witness your world being blown to smithereens right in front of your face.

So we go on. The world, from the tremendous force of the nuclear explo-

Dr. Burton L. White, author The First Three Years of Life, feels many parents should have special training for being parents.

White says program is needed to help parents raise children

by Mickey Collins

Parents are teachers and they need training too, said Dr. Burton L. White in a lecture Tuesday.

White, author of The First Three Years of Life, and the think tank organizer is a part of a program where parents can get training and help needed to be a good teacher the children. White feels that many parents are untrained and have little knowledge of raising a child. “At least when you have a new Guismom they give you an instruction manual. With a new baby you’re on your own,” he added.

Another important thing that many people overlook is that parents are under a lot of stress, said White. “Not just from the difficulties of managing a child but also from plain worrying about what can happen to this kid.”

White’s reason for pushing this program is that he believes what is taught in the home by parents is more important than what a child (one-three years old) can learn anywhere else. He said that the Coleman Report of 1966, which studied the effects of integration, shows that family background in early education is most important to a child. White said that there are four important things that parents should try to do for their children. They should design a safe home where the child is relatively safe from harm. They should let the child come to them for advice, and they should be firm and loving with them.

“I was not surprised at all. I knew that guy had it in him. I attended several meetings with Bill when there was a need to fight possible price-censorship of the Journal in September (1976),” said Burke who is now employed by the Modern Evening News.

“There will never be another dedicated professor like Bill Ruehlmann at Suffolk University. In his two years at Suffolk, Bill urged kids to get involved with the classroom and wanted to return to the lecture Tuesday. Ruehlmann was selected from a nation-wide field of 30 advisers. Sublette said that Ruehlmann’s abilities and attitude on advising. Along with the letters of recommendation, Ruehlmann had to submit a statement on his advising philosophy to the national council. Sublette stated that Ruehlmann’s philosophy was of “great merit” and thus the seven-member council chose Ruehlmann.

The council also awards another citation in newspaper advising (5-Year-College Division) as well as citations in yearbook and magazine categories. “I encourage him to continue and stay in the field,” said Sublette about Ruehlmann.

However, Ruehlmann returned to reporting last spring, writing features and doing theatre criticism, “I felt that I started a new career,” he said to Ruehlmann. “I went as far as I could.”

Ruehlmann said that it was time for the Journal to benefit from other ideas and to listen to other people.

He said that he ran out of creativity in the classroom and wanted to return to the “street.”

Ruehlmann is waiting for his book, Nothing the Forest Never Saw, written by Writer’s Digest, to be released later this fall. Ruehlmann said that his latest assignments included a Halloween feature where he will stay in a haunted castle overnigit. He said that he has also met with former JDN advisor, Timothy Laney. He said that he enjoyed the excitement of feature writing and perhaps will return to teaching in the future.
