June wedding to climax affair

Korn-Blower, Betters-Reed admit to hot romance

by Joe Hayes

A literally passionate pair announced their marriage plans in a wedding ceremony to be held next June at a undisclosed location. The couple, Paul Korn-Blower and Betters-Reed, admitted that the relationship had developed rapidly.

"We met through a mutual friend," said Korn-Blower. "He introduced us at a party and we hit it off immediately." Betters-Reed added, "We knew we wanted to get married right away." The couple is planning a small, intimate ceremony.

Their words were incoherent, and all I could hear were ooohs and aaahhs.

Paul always stresses the Golden Rule, and his golden rule stands up nicely.

TKE, APO end war, bathroom walls erased

by John Bole of Tuck

The Tri-Kappa Gamma and Alpha Pi Omicron fraternities have ended a long-running feud over a bathroom wall. The wall had been the subject of a long-running dispute between the two fraternities, who had different ideas about how to decorate it.

The two fraternities decided to end their dispute by splitting the cost of the mural, with the Tri-Kappa Gamma paying for the American Revolution mural and the Alpha Pi Omicron paying for the Civil War mural.

The nice guys

The time has come for the truth. No longer will the students publish a list of the best students.
In other words, we are chipping away at the Student Handbook. Citing the one that includes the winners of the 'Best Class of 1979' and 'Worst Class of 1979', we are not against recognizing good students. However, we feel that this is a strong motivation for students to be nice and cooperative with each other.

Pass or be fired

In the past, nice guys have been praised for their cooperative and helpful nature. Some of these nice guys were even rewarded with positions of authority. Now, it seems that being nice is no longer enough. In fact, it could be a threat to your job.

Student complaints

The issue of student complaints has been a hot topic. The administration has been receiving complaints about the behavior of some students. These complaints range from学术 misconduct to personal behavior. The administration is taking these complaints seriously and is looking into the situations.

I didn't sell out

I would like to make it clear that I did not sell out to the administration. The issue of the Student Handbook has been a sensitive one. The administration has been trying to find a solution that would be fair to everyone. I believe that the handbook should reflect the true nature of the student body.

Gricks favored in cheek-to-cheek intramural games

By Dick Holm

Coach Thomas Walsh has announced that the Gricks men's Intramural Football team will be playing in the next 7 games.

"The competition has been excellent," he said. "We have been playing against some tough teams and it's been great to see the players improve." He added that the Gricks will be playing against teams that have been training hard for the past few weeks.

The Gricks have won their last 3 games and are looking to continue their winning streak. The team has been led by their star quarterback, Matt Johnson, who has thrown for over 1,000 yards so far this season.

Walsh is expecting his team to perform well against their upcoming opponents. "We have a lot of confidence going into these games," he said. "We will be playing our best football and trying to win."

Suffolk's new athletic director a real clown

The new man came from a foreign country. He was tall and thin, with a charming smile. His name was Fraser and he said he was a great coach.

But as the days went by, it became clear that Fraser was not what he seemed. He was a total disaster. He lost every game he coached and the team's morale plummeted.

One day, after a particularly humiliating loss, the players gathered around Fraser to offer their thoughts.

"Fraser," said the captain. "We understand that you are from another country. But we need to set some rules.

"First of all," said the captain, "you must never use the word 'goal'. It's not a word that we use in our sport.

"Secondly," said the captain, "you must never say 'penalty'. It's a term that we use to describe something else.

"Finally," said the captain, "you must never use the word 'substitute'. It means something different to us.

"That's it," said the captain. "If you want to coach us, you need to learn our language.

Fraser looked at us with wide eyes. He said, "I understand. I will do my best to learn your language.

But it was too late. The players had already made up their minds. Fraser was out.

To think that we trusted him. We should have known better.

But no one is perfect, right? We all make mistakes. We are human.

But Fraser was not human. He was a clown.

Ask Bonnie

Dear Bonnie,

I have a problem. I am dating someone who is very controlling. He always knows where I am and who I am with. He gets angry if I don't tell him everything.

What should I do?

Sincerely,

Anonymous

Bonnie responds:

It sounds like you are in a difficult situation. It is important to take care of yourself and to find a way to communicate with your partner.

You could try talking to your partner about your feelings and your concerns. It may be helpful to express your thoughts in a calm and non-confrontational way.

If you feel uncomfortable or unsafe, you should consider seeking support from a trusted friend, family member, or a professional. It is important to prioritize your safety and well-being.

Remember, you are not alone. There are resources available to help you navigate this situation.

Sincerely,

Bonnie

TV commercials won't cure heartbreak; they'll give it to you

As we were heading for the show, I took a moment to watch the TV commercials. I always find them interesting, especially the ones that promise to make you look younger or healthier. But I can't help but wonder if they actually work. I mean, how many times have I tried some of those products and realized they didn't deliver on their promises? It's like they're just trying to make us feel guilty about our insecurities and then sell us something that doesn't work.

real fun
by Betty Valland

Real Life is an enjoyable film about a middle-class family and their middle-class problems. Though not overly deep, it provides a good look at the values and concerns of the average American family. The acting is well done and the story is well told. The film is a good example of how a good script can be made into a good film, even if it is not revolutionary in any way.

Juggernaut is a bomb. It's a film about a man who becomes a Juggernaut. The film is poorly written, poorly directed, and poorly acted. It's a film that should be avoided at all costs.
