SU ROTC program being investigated

by Kim Todd

Biology Chairman Arthur West and the Curriculum Committee are investigating a possible Reserve Officers Training Corp (ROTC) exchange program with Northeastern University at Suffolk.

This would grant Suffolk a new department under the Department of Military Science. West says, "It's basically a good idea. There's a military identity that a very popular and top-tier; this is an opportunity for students who have ambitions for that type of military experience."

The program would offer students comprehensive training in military history and basic military skills. West feels the ROTC program is an opportunity for students to gain valuable experiences in a military environment.

The program would be available to all Suffolk students, regardless of major. Immediate concerns and questions include:

1. adequate space to accommodate;
2. tenure, rank and benefits for military; and
3. the status of Military Science in regards to its being an addition to the 122 credits towards a degree, as included in the current academic catalog.

The ROTC was created by the National Defense Act of 1946 as an effort to bolster national morale. The growing responsibility and prestige of the unit added military training a popularity on many college campuses.

Language requirement debated in policy comm.

by Janice Carson

The Educational Policy Committee (EPC) debated on the proposed curriculum change to add a requirement for a language requirement, requiring all students to take a language course.

While most EPC members agree that a language requirement is a useful idea, they desire on not being a prerequisite requirement. At Suffolk.

To date, Suffolk has no such language department, so students must take courses at other universities in the area.

If the Senate and Senate Finance do not agree to the new requirement, students will not be required to take a language course.

Elaine Noble: a strong woman

by Allen Whelley

"You have to be as strong as possible."

CORNER VIEW

Although Elaine Noble was speaking about the greatness that the United States had to offer, she had every reason to feel that the United States was truly superior to any other nation in the world. As a result, she was forced to speak to others about the ways in which we could improve the world and make it a better place.

STUDENT TRUSTEE BILL WORKED ON

Although Elaine Noble was strong, she was also very intelligent and capable. She was a professor of political science and a member of the American Political Science Association. She was also a member of the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus and a legislator who was personally responsible for all of the legislation passed during her time in office.

Although the language requirement is a useful idea, it is important to note that the current policy is to allow transfer students to take a foreign language course at Suffolk University.

‘Top priority’ bill not tops to SGA members

by Janet Constantakes
Planning state representation, billing, and having a leukemic student on board were not the top priorities this week for Student Government Association (SGA) members. The Student Government Assembly (SGA) members met this week and voted to pass a resolution expressing disapproval of the state legislature’s bill, which would cut public financial aid to college and university students having a student on the board of trustees.

House Bill 2054 was the subject of some controversy at this week’s SGA meeting. Although it was given top priority, only three of 24 SGA members said they would work on getting it passed.

The resolution included the following statement: “The SGA does not support House Bill 2054 which would cut public financial aid to students having a student on the board of trustees.”

SGA President William Sutherland tried to get more support, explaining the group’s failure to follow through on the bill, since it was given top priority.

The vote resolved that other members said they would not give it more effort because most were busy with other goals and did not have much time.

SGA Vice President Robert McCarthy said he did not agree, “They pass (House Bill 2054) top priority, in name only.”

Sutherland said that the bill, which was also given top priority by the SGA last June, didn’t fail directly within the goal that the SGA set at up.

A hearing on the bill in the state legislature is set for April 3.

The SGA also noted in its minutes an open meeting proposal that would set uniform guidelines for the press to attend meetings, that affect school policy and to report on issues relevant to students.

The proposal was presented by Journal Editor-in-chief Ann Brown. Following the vote, Brown discussed with SGA members the relationship of student government and the press. Charges of inaccuracy and insensitivity in news stories were reported by SGA members. Brown said that she had to explain the situation and that stories were different than what she said.

In other ways, the SGA agreed to allocate $800 to create a combination bag and freshman yearbook, with freshman pictures, names, and memories, and allocated $1,000 to be used for course evaluation computer cards.

LibraryHamman impressed with ‘Shhh’ efforts of SGA

by Maris Aola Mhunen
College Librarian Hamman impressed and thanked the Student Activities Office for organizing an effort to quiet the library.

“I think that it’s fantastic, the students to organize an effort to quiet the library. It’s not something we ask for, but it’s nice to have the students come forward and do something about it.”

Hamman renewed on substituting the noise in the library with less noise. He said that “the physical set-up of the library is conducive for quiet but we can’t do something about it.”

He added that one of the administration’s main concerns is to get enough seats. “The more we can make people feel comfortable and able to study, the better.”

Hamman thanked the Student Activities Office for organizing an effort to quiet the library. “It’s fantastic that the students are organized enough to do something about it.”

Prizes eliminated from talent show

A prize of $500 has been eliminated from the spingfield talent show following a vote by a group of sponsors and sponsors that will appear in the contest.

"From the point of view of the audience this will add a lot but from the point of view of the performers it will produce a better show because they'll work on a timer," said Springfield Committee Chairman and Language Professor Albert Mendes.

According to Mendes, the money will be used for travel purposes to benefit the school.

After April 9 and 10 auditions, staff members will assist in directing and "helping out" other units and Mendes, "before you couldn't touch an art form."

Ridgeway Lane plays musical rooms

Ridgeway Lane offers have been canceled since the fraternity alpha Phi Omega was forced to vacate their offices last week.

Consulting enter New Directions has moved out of the office it shared with the Women's Program Center in the office previously used by President's Council (R610). President's Council moved to APO's old office (R54).

APO President Robert Kim said that their lack of an office will not prohibit them from future plans. "We've still located in Ridgeway Lane with temporary quarters in Gamma Sigma Sigma," said Kim. "Actually all we really needed was filing space and they have offered to share that with us."

Richards said that APO has been placed on the waiting list for a Ridgeway office but doubts APO will get another campus office until the AUBurn building is ready for student offices to move in.

However, Rich said that they intend to send a memo every month to Dean of Students D. Bradley Sullivan reporting on the fraternity's activities. He also said that their fraternity banquet, scheduled for April 18 at the hotel in Everett, will go on as scheduled with Sullivan and President Thomas A. Fulham invited.

APO lost their office space because of excessive noise which prompted complaints from profession. APO has been on probation since May 3, 1978 when they were told that any violation of their probation would result in "immediate expulsion."
APO's eviction is no solution

Suffolk's role service Fraternity Alpha Phi Omega's (APO) recent eviction from its Ridgeway building office is not, and will not be, a satisfactory solution to the issues of hazing and irresponsible behavior on the part of APO members.

APO was removed from the campus because of what Assistant Director Activities Brian G. Larras termed an increasing number of problems in that building, which was permitting complaints from professors teaching in Ridgeway's two classrooms.

The removal of APO from their office will not present these same problems entirely in the Ridgeway lounge or the Ridgeway hall, but it will not stop the behavior from happening.

Yet this is not a call for further penalties against the fraternity, but rather for a reevaluation of the administration's already heavy-handed measures. The Journal does not take APO's behavior, but feels that it is a result of the incompatibility of classrooms and activities with the rest of the campus' environment.

The Ridgeway building should be set aside solely for activities, and the presence of classrooms is an inconvenience to the administration, ultimately and temporarily. The unfortunate members of APO, who are also students, are faced with the task of finding new quarters and a new approach to the issues at hand.

The Journal's lack of concern for the welfare of both students enrolled in Ridgeway classes and student organizations whose only place to meet is in the Ridgeway. Suffok has driven out a fraternity that has done much for the university. Every year it has had a new office, a new staff, and is often remembered in various affectionate terms by the accounting and registrar's office.

The Naked Truth'

Jean Kilbourne reveals "The Naked Truth".

The Naked Truth is a book by Jean Kilbourne, which exposes the ways in which advertising manipulates women and men. Kilbourne uses a combination of personal anecdotes, research, and analysis to show how advertising uses fear, guilt, and other emotions to persuade people to buy products. The book is a critique of the advertising industry and its impact on society, particularly in relation to issues of gender and sexuality.
Marionettes leap into the plays of Sophocles

by Hans K. Peterson

Marionettes, little figures of wood and cloth, have existed in Europe for more than a thousand years. The word marionette comes from the French word for string or a thread, which is how marionettes are controlled. The marionette has been used in dramas, pantomimes, and other forms of entertainment. It is a form of puppetry in which the puppeteer manipulates the strings or wires that control the puppet's movements.

As the puppeteer manipulates the marionette, the puppeteer can create various movements and expressions, allowing the marionette to appear lifelike and engaging. This allows the marionette to convey emotions and tell stories, much like a human actor might in a live theater performance. The marionette's ability to move and express emotions is what makes it an effective and captivating form of entertainment.

In the plays of Sophocles, marionettes are often used as a way to represent the gods, heroes, and other characters. By using marionettes, Sophocles is able to create a more immersive and engaging experience for his audience. The marionettes move and express emotions, allowing the audience to feel as if they are a part of the performance. This is a great opportunity for students to learn more about the history of marionettes and how they were used in ancient Greece.
"Marker" a good bet

"Little Man Marker," produced by Jennings Lang and directed by Walter Burnett, starring Walter Matthau, Julie Andrews, Rosemary DeCamp, is now playing at the Broad Street Theatre for Donna Pardill.

As all star casts, otherwise child, a heartwarming and humanistic plot, plus a happy ending are the ingredients of a successful motion picture. Some of Little Man Marker, a delightful film about one young woman's realization of need to change and to love, is an effective blend of these ingredients.

Walter Burnett's film is another example of the kind of story that is a surefire hit with the public. The plot is simple, the dialogue is natural, and the acting is excellent. The performance of the star, Walter Matthau, is particularly good, and the supporting cast is top-notch. The film is a real delight, and it is sure to be a box office success.

Little Man Marker is a story of a young woman who is faced with a difficult decision. She must choose between staying in her closed-minded, introverted world or leaving it to pursue a new life. The film is a touching and inspiring story of personal growth and self-discovery.

The acting is superb throughout, and the dialogue is natural and easy to follow. The characters are well-developed, and the story is well-paced. The film is a real treat for the eyes and ears, and it is sure to be enjoyed by audiences of all ages.

In conclusion, Little Man Marker is a film that is sure to be a box office success. The acting is superb, the story is well-paced, and the dialogue is natural and easy to follow. The film is a real treat for the eyes and ears, and it is sure to be enjoyed by audiences of all ages.
Meaningless trip around
A SMALL CIRCLE OF FRIENDS. A film directed by Bob Cohen, written by Ken Sachs and starring Brad Davis, James Allen, Jameson Parker, and John Frederick. All the stars in the film are as remote from each other and from the audience as the stars in the heavens. The film is a total failure and a total waste of time. It is a film that should be avoided at all costs.

Nijinski out of step

by Greg Brown

Nijinski, the great dancer, has been out of step lately. His latest effort, a ballet called "Nijinski," has not been received very well by the critics.

Nijinski was the greatest dancer of all time, but his latest work, "Nijinski," has not been well received. The critics have been very harsh in their reviews.

But if Nijinski's work is not good, his influence has been felt in other areas. The ballet school he founded has been very successful, and many dancers have emerged from his school.

Not a very dark picture

Little Darlings, starring Katy Miller, directed by Peter O'Neal, was a failure. The acting was poor and the story was predictable.

We also saw "Meaningless Trip Around," which was a complete disaster. The plot was confusing and the acting was terrible.

Say, "pop-up!"

"Meaningless Trip Around" was a film about a group of friends who go on a trip around the world. The film was poorly made and the acting was terrible.

Rams stay strong despite loss of Donovan, Gratta

by Jim Coughlin

The Rams baseball team opened their tough 1980 schedule on Tuesday in Curry College with a good balance of veterans and rookies, which could make them a surpise team this season.

Coach Tom Walsh calls this year’s team “the best ever so far as conditioning goes.” Walsh has been happy with the practices over the past three weeks, which includes the first two weeks at the Cambridge YMCA and the M.L.T. batting cage and outside at Murray field in Brighton this past week as “everything is working real well.”

Although final cuts have not been made, Walsh feels the good balance of veterans and rookies will be the biggest strength of this team. “I think they’ll support each other and balance things out. We have a nucleus that’s that’s good.” Among those included in this nucleus are pitchers Nick Balboni and Mike Covone, catcher Anthony Gambard and Mike Romans, Doug Lennon and Ken Fellin, co-captain Larry Sain and Anthony Terca.

Like last year, hitting will be a strength for the Rams. “Traditionally, we’ve always hit well,” Walsh said, “and if we get pitching and defense we’ll do okay.”

Walsh feels the loss of two star players (Gary Donovan and Jim Gratta) will have an adverse effect upon the team. Donovan was 6-0 on the mound last season, batted .400, and Gratta was 4-2 with a 2.50 ERA. The team feels in terms of hitting that Donovan’s bat was 50% of the reason for the team’s success last year.

Injury hampers tourney effort

by Peter A. Haskin

An inglorious return of around $5 million in losses from Suffolk University at the Miller High Life One on One Tournament, held recently at the Landmark Center. The loss of the year’s gimmick, freshman Bill McCallahan (Hampton, Va.), likely insurance. At six feet tall and 180 pounds, McCallahan is a player to watch for in the years to come. The tournament was won by former Suffolk player Roger H. St. John, who defeated former Boston College, Boston State, Boston and Bentley. The tournament was won by H. St. John, who defeated former Boston College, Boston State, Boston and Bentley.

Although the latter part of the season was not as good as the former, McCallahan and Don were not disheartened. They hope the first game of the season is a good sign, with their opening game against their opponents, batting 3-for-4 in the first round of play in the first round of the tournament, was won by H. St. John, who defeated former Boston College, Boston State, Boston and Bentley.

In the second round of the tournament, Suffolk faced Bentley in the final round of play in the first round of the tournament, was won by H. St. John, who defeated former Boston College, Boston State, Boston and Bentley.

Dramatically, the final team has not been up te speed yet. Walsh believes in concentration on the game team should shape up defensively, but he did not have that 13 picture had turned out. Dramatically, Walsh believes the team “is definitely not at full strength.” Walsh said, “but we’ll still play fundamental baseball.” Walsh also feels the re-signing of high school stars Bob Williams and Larry Shain “will provide leadership for the team.”

The Rams’ aggressive throwing “should be tough,” according to Walsh, with the schedule consisting of seven games against Division II opponents, including Lowell, Newbury, Pepperdine and St. Pauli.

“We have one of the better schedules around. We still have a bit of good luck.”

The team gives a practice game at the beginning as well as for the season opener on Tuesday against Curry. Curry is a no-name because of the second round loss to Boston College, and Walsh said, “It’s not easy to practice, and if we want to play them, and if it’s not too easy, we want it much harder.” Walsh “The boys want to go over and see Bob Williams and Larry Shain.”

Although Walsh declined to predict the number of games his team would win, he did add, “I’ll be up to go out and have a good season. They’re working hard and they’ve been working a long time for the season.”

Dagle elected captain for 1980-81 season

by Stephen P. DeMarco

Junior Steve Dagle has been elected captain of the 1980-81 Rams' basketball team, head coach Jim Nelson announced last week.

This 6'3" center from Glencoe averaged 11.5 points and 7.5 rebounds this past season, but his play was at times spectacular, although he played very well against certain Mark bigger than him. Dagle has been a three-year starter.

Dagle, who is a business management major, succeeds Mike James, a transfer student from Sissonville.

Dagle is a 1977 graduate of Sissonville High School, where he also played basketball. His brother Andy played for them this year.

Dagle is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Dagle, who reside on Atlantic Road in Sissonville.

Self-structured major gets okay from students

by Alice Wadley

A majority of students agree that a self-structured major is made more feasible by Assistant History Professor Kenneth S. Greenberg and would give a purpose to a portion of the Suffolk community, according to a recent informal Journal poll.

A student involved in the program would still be required to fulfill all the requirements to graduate, but would otherwise be free to select their own course of study. This student would be closely watched by a faculty advisory board.

David McCarthy (Business Administration '81) said that the major is "dramatically different. The students in this major would not be able to graduate if they did not have a major field of study and were unable to do with it. They would have to take courses that are not related to their major.

Lina Wysz (Uncertainty '82) looked at the question from her own perspective. "In one way it should be more like that. In another, it should be well rounded. They should have a little bit of everything."

Stewart Dellacono (Crime and Delinquency '81) saw the merits of the major, but felt that it would only be effective for a student who had set ideas about their career. Dellacono said that "it sounds like a good idea. It would be useful to a student with a lot of courses that are not related to their major.

You feel like you're wasting your time. A major like that is hardly worth the time and effort. It's a waste of time and effort. It's a waste of time and effort. It's a waste of time and effort. It's a waste of time and effort.

Paul Franklin (Marketing '81) didn't agree with the majority. Franklin said, "I believe in a baseball game you should get a good grade. A little bit of the extras should be included in the game. You shouldn't be limited in your education. A little bit of everything is needed to make a perfect whole.

Kathy DeStefano (Uncertainty '82) had mixed feelings about the major. She said, "I think it's good and bad. It would be good because they have a lot of courses that are not related to their major. They should have a little bit of everything.

Mary Miller (Government '81) felt that the major was an excellent idea. Miller hoped that the university would also recognize "double majors." This way a good student could pass from one major to the next.

Barbara Bost (Government '81) said that it's a very good idea. "It would be very different than the present system. The kids would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want.

Mary Miller gave an example of someone who would benefit from the major. Miller said, "My roommate would like to double major in anthropology and sociology. It gives people a chance to be creative and independent. Students should always be given this opportunity.

Barbara Bost (Government '81) said that it's a very good idea. "It would be very different than the present system. The kids would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want. They would be able to do what they want.
