Student trustee hearing preceeded by poor rally

by Warren Norton and John Rham

At press time House Bill 3468, which would make it possible for the student board of trustees to conduct a hearing, was on the floor of the House. However, several student government leaders were on hand to address the hearing due to the failure of yesterday's student rally.

The rally was advertised briefly, which was supposed to have taken place the evening before, to gather students to be present at the hearing and show support for the bill.

Although an overwhelming majority of Buffalo students support the legislation, according to former President James M. Nelsen, only a handful showed up at a meeting to print future lobbying efforts for House Bill 3468.

"We didn't do a good job of promoting the rally," said Terry R. Cornell, a Sophomore representative. "The rally was supposed to have taken place the evening before the hearing, but we didn't get any support. It didn't work as planned."

They had a right to do this, he said, but "they should have all been at the rally where we did our thing." Cornell and other student trustee issues "held down on a controllable issue. It's like a tax measure without explanation," he said, "so we've just been sitting here." Cornell has been on the Board of Student Trustees since last year through the Student Government Association's efforts at last year's student support.

"Although a voucher, temporarily identified in that year's proposal was taken before COB, we talked discussion will be held down on a controllable issue. It's like a tax measure without explanation," he said, "so we've just been sitting here." Game machines removed in response to vandalism

by John A. Hayes

All coin-operated machines except a soda-vending machine have been removed from the Ridgeway lounge in response to the continuing problem of vandalism there, according to Director of Student Affairs Edward Anderson.

The machines may be returned to the lounge next summer, Anderson said, but the decision will not be made until sometime this summer.

Three last-week vandalism have been a drain on the budget, Anderson said, and destroyed the look at Coffee's WSPR radio station, according to Police Chief Edward Forne.

Anderson reports that vandals made a trip attempt at breaking into the only coin-operated machine remaining in the Ridgeway lounge before it was removed.

The decision to remove the coin-operated machines from the lounge was made jointly between the Atlantic Vending Company, which owns the machines, and Anderson.

"The vandalism was very quiet," Anderson said of the reasoning behind their removal in the lounge. Anderson said, "but it was a serious decision."

Forne said that the expanded shift schedule employed by the campus security police in response to the ongoing vandalism has had an effect on the problem, but that it is still too early to judge its success.

Vandalism, he said, "is a frustrating problem," not only for the campus police, but also for the rest of the Physical Plant crew.

Once the spring vacation, Forne explained, the maintenance department restored all the rooms and panels and patched up all the holes in the walls at the Ridgeway Lounge building.

Then, "within a day," the most recent vandalism was discovered and more holes were kicked in the walls.

"All of this," Forne said, "makes you sick to your stomach." Why kick them? Why bother fixing them at all?

ELECTIONS TO FILL next year's Student Government positions will be held in less than two weeks, but there is still time remaining for students to file nomination papers.

Elections for this year's sophomore positions will be held April 11 and 12. Elections for next year's junior and senior positions are scheduled for April 14 and 15. Nomination papers, which must be signed by 20 eligible members, must be filed with the Student Activity Office by April 7 for next year's sophomores and April 9 for next year's juniors and seniors.

Sophomore election speeches will be held April 8 and senior and junior election speeches April 15. Students must give an election speech in order to be eligible for election.

Students who have taken out three nomination papers as of yesterday may

Ireland: a new classroom for Robbins, McKinley

by Alice Whaley

If you're in the predicament that you need to study but have already filled your semester schedule with courses, you may find it too much to stand. Then it's time to consider a trip to Ireland may be just right for you.

Even if you do not need the extra time, the allure of Ireland might be just right for you.

This May, history is taught by Associate History Professors David Robbins and English 449 (English Literature) are visiting the land of Ireland, to supplement the introduction of the Irish history, literature, and legend.

Participants will be going with their families during their stay in Dublin, where the trip will be based, with tours and side trips during their two weeks. Some of those side trips will be to the ancient capital of Croke, to the walled and walled towns of the Boyne Valley, for Robbins, as well as in the royal Irish Academy, and to Leitrim House (the national museum, national Library, and national Library of Arts) until they stay in Dublin. This is but a sampling of the sights for three students who undertake this trip to the land of the Irish.

As a sight to see, "You can't limit the amount of time there is to see all of Ireland's beautiful sights," Robbins said. "Our plan is to see as much as we can before we return to the States in May.

McKinley's specialty is William Yeats and James Joyce. She feels that the Irish literature is more than that of any other country, is filled with the "passions, the society, the women, and the history of the times."

Robbins feels that, "The trip to Ireland is good, it is a change from England. Ireland also has a lot of appeal."

We also thought that since there are more people with an Irish background in this world that there would be a lot of history.

Aside from the history, there are many opportunities for students to see the world. They talk about the beauty of Ireland, the food, and the people. The students are excited about seeing the castles and the cathedrals and the history.

Before the two-week tour, from May 13-May 28, there will be a two-day introduction to the students in Ely. The students will study with Trinity and Irish history. Robbins said that "we will give the students a much better grasp of Irish culture. It will give them a feeling of what it is like to live in Ireland. The preparation we are doing will put them in a good position to evaluate." Although the next opportunity for the trip was scheduled for the April 24th, it has been moved to April 30th.

The trip for the cost of $750. This fee covers all air and ground transportation, meals and hotels. Students will be housed in Trinity University dorms and hotels in Dublin and Shannon. The tour is part of the tuition and fees, and is a part of the student's study abroad program.

The students are excited about seeing the castles and the cathedrals, and the history. They talk about the beauty of Ireland, the food, and the people. The students are excited about seeing the castles and the cathedrals and the history.

Robbins and McKinley feel that "there are so many students who want to see Ireland and they want to see it with an Irish perspective. There are still several opportunities for students to see Ireland and they want to see it with an Irish perspective. There are still several opportunities for students to see Ireland and they want to see it with an Irish perspective."

Language requirement - the 'yeahs' and 'nays'

by Alice Whockey

The members of the Educational Policy Committee (EPC) agree that the Bachelor of Science curriculum is too broad-structured while the Bachelor of Arts curriculum is just the opposite, according to Associate Professor Wayne Lloyd.

As an example for her argument, Lloyd said that the student at the foreign language requirement. Frequently the Bachelor of Arts degree requires a foreign language where the student to be of foreign derived. Something to a review of the American and Suffolk student are split in their feelings about the language requirement.

Thomas Leary (Sophomore '81) does not think that there should be a language requirement. Leary feels that the administration should "get the students a choice. They are old enough to decide whether or not they want to go.

Arthur Bernard (Government '80) said that he thinks that foreign language should be a requirement. It helps to know the different cultures of the world. He does not think that what's happening is different than what used to be the United States."

Russell Lass (Management '81) believes that "A foreign language gives personal depth and more experiences in a field foreign to them. It is taught in different language and adults are not required."

Richard Halderman (Economics '80) said, "I back to high school why should I have to take it again. I think of a foreign language is enough to have a second enough in the learning English."

Kate Alexander (Journalism '81) also does not think that there should be a requirement. "You get enough foreign language in high school. You don't learn anything if you don't practice anything."

Beverly Cline (Accounting '81) said that he disagrees with this philosophy. According to Cline, "Foreign languages are a requirement of education. A good understanding of foreign language and culture should be offered when you're signed up for high school and junior high school.

Thomas Fink (Psychology '81) said, "I don't think it should be required. It should be an elective, which is if you want it."

Laure Fosstraker (Economics '81) said, "We only should a foreign language be required. We know English, I think it that's all we should have to know."

Mark Byfield (Marketing '81) feels that "Yes, I should be required because in the future it will be a job requirement. We said that you're going to be in the United States all of the time. No one stays at the United States as far as business goes."

Looking at the issues from another perspective, Patrick Catania (Management '80) said, "with the business outlook I don't think it helps you in any way. Maybe to Japanese, it should be required. I don't think it should be a 'foreign language requirement your education.'"

Adam McNeil (Economics '81) said, "I should take a foreign language because I like it. But, I don't think it should be required for everyone.++

Knowledge fights against prejudice

Knowledge and understanding are the best weapons to fight prejudice with. Knowledge of a foreign language helps people understand others that are different from themselves, language should be taught as a requirement in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The past year has seen much racial unrest in Boston and the surrounding communities. Some of the prejudice took on literal forms and ended up in beatings or murder. There is also the subtle form that happens every day when immigrants that speak broken English are unlisted or their neighbors feel inferior.

While Suffolk cannot solve all the racial problems of the community, it can make a contribution by educating people in foreign languages so they will realize the value of other cultures. Hopefully this will rid students of the ignorance and notions that they do not speak English are inferior.

Language can also help students with grammar. Learning the grammatical structure of Romance languages helps students learn the grammar and spelling of their own language. Often sentence structure and grammar rules are is to be examined. But, if students would not make mistakes, what some innocent plans are used. Students should know what is right grammatically because they understand their language.

The Journal urges the CLAS Educational Policy Committee (EPC) to adopt language as part of required courses with various conditions. The committee realizes what on a language to enter a course or major because it could be an appropriate requirement in some students. Students should be able to take some extra courses to get a good education, but because it has the stated requirements.

Graduation — just one more expense

Seniors dig deep into their pockets this week to give Suffolk the last bit of money they would ever have to hand over — a $200 graduation cap.

There has been a lot of gloom about this fee, and it is justified. After having to shell out $3,000 to Suffolk, which cannot go on stage and receive their diplomas without first footing over $300. At this point in the year, it seems there is a severe lack of demand for more money.

There is something unexpected about spending an additional fee for one's graduation. Even if a student is not attending graduation, he must still pay $200 to get his diploma. Free hats, doesn't the university give me something?

No for this year

President Thomas A. Fulham has saved $200 and Vice President and Treasurer Frazier's by putting in the extra free space in the university.

April 3, 1963/Suffolk Journal/Page 7

SUFFOLK JOURNAL

The Educational Policy Committee (EPC) of the college should adopt a uniform policy for giving grades.

Previously, it is up to the professor to give grades for what they feel is a "B," work. Work, this has been required that a student have between a B and 100 average to graduate on a. If the student were an A, average, to receive a B or a 10. This can be unfair because a student taking an easy course with another professor could earn a B average and get an A for the course. Two students have earned the same mark, yet they are not given equal credit.

The EPC of the colleges should work out a system where students give grades by the same criterion. For example, if a student earned a 90 to 100 average, the student should receive an A. If they earned a 85 to 88 they should get a B, and so on.

This would benefit the students as well as the professors. Students would not worry away from a certain letter grade because they are afraid of not receiving a good grade.

Although too much emphasis is put on grades, the university system makes it a concern to students. With criteria for graduating with honors, freshmen and incoming students getting bigger, students who want to graduate with honors must work harder. If students need a higher average to graduate with honors, there should be a unified policy deciding how grades should be distributed.

Fair grade distribution needed

"BUT I SWEAR! I ONLY DID IT SO I COULD AFFORD TO PAY MY GRADUATION FEE!"

Fertility rites contained in Easter eggs

by Richard Robert Caputo

Easter is a time of joy and happiness for many people, a season for many religious, spiritual, and cultural rituals. For some, it's a time to reflect on the meaning of life and the cycle of birth, death, and rebirth. This is also a time for renewal and hope, as new life emerges from the earth with the arrival of spring. The Easter egg is a symbol of this renewal and new beginnings.

The Easter egg is a tradition that dates back to the days of the ancient Greeks. It is said that the ancient Greeks believed that the egg was a symbol of life, fertility, and rebirth. The Easter egg was believed to represent the resurrection of Jesus Christ, who was thought to have risen from the dead on the third day after his crucifixion.

The Easter egg craze began in the United States in the 1800s, with the introduction of the first commercial Easter eggs. These eggs were made of hard-boiled eggs, which were then decorated with various designs and images. Over time, the tradition of decorating Easter eggs grew in popularity, and today it is a beloved tradition in many cultures around the world.

The Easter egg is decorated with various designs and images, including religious symbols, seasonal motifs, and personal messages. The eggs are often given as gifts to friends and family members, symbolizing the joy and love of the season.

Colonels exert command over Rams in opener

by Joe Coughlin

Colonels, who are trying to open at Curry College 6-0 on Tuesday, despite a lineup strongly highlighted by recent Roman home-run hero. In general however, the Rams were conspicuous, leaving Coach Tom Walsh "very disappointed.

In the top of the third inning, the Rams took advantage of two Curry led errors to take an early 9-1 lead. But would have. After right-fielder Andy Schwartz bunted out to the Curry pitcher after Hughes, designated hitter Anthony Genzetti reached second base on Curry centerfielder Don Bannan’s muffed throw after finding a ground ball. Curry third baseman John Chen then made an error on a ball hit by Williams’ groundball. So with men on first and third there was only one out. Williams took a lead, after drawing a pitch from Hughes. By the time Curry had traversed between first and second, Genzetti had scored the first Rams run out of the regulation.

GRABIA IMPRESSIVE

Mike Genzetti, the hard throwing right-hander who started the game for the Colonels, had a good start in the first two innings, but ran into a little trouble to be honest, the third. Randazzolo walked and Gerald Toppiglia stole to left. Hughes then immediately doubled, getting his third hit in eight through the hole, to tie it up at 1-1.

A single hard-hitting Colonels to an early day in the bottom of the second inning, Lewis hit off timings with a double and it appeared that Genzetti might in time be able to walk away with three. In single action, Suffolk took three of six innings from the Colonels, but lost the deciding game at Charles River Park last year.

Suffolk’s Tommy Kent took the first game 2-1, 9. 6. from Boston’s Tom Nee. According to Suffolk coach Chris Post, Kent is the top player for the team. Frank Gavagno and Steve Allison also won for Suffolk, 6.3, 2 and 6.1.2 over Wade Rankin respectively. Bob Sabran led in former Hockomoka, Bob Parent to Doug Cuniallo, and Joe Vito in Chris Parenti.

Suffolk took the doubles from Suffolk’s Kent and Nee, but Joel Holland and Cometta 6.4. 8.4, Herb McMahon; and Mike Green had 6.2.4.4 and 6.0.1, 8.8, and Billy Schaus and John Kappel in doubles back and Pete 8.8. 8.8.

Coach Post felt that although the team had yet to reach a winner league in the past year, "we have good depth. By that I mean the team is composed of good players on the team. There isn’t a big difference between any one and not another.

This was Suffolk’s first and last home game of 12 matches that will be played away. The game was played on a bright sunny day and the Colonels were able to take advantage of the team the chance to play for a home Suffolk with the run scored at the end of the ninth, as the Colonels won and before the crowd of the match.

CATCHWALSH: The right eye was placed on his right face after an opening game with Curry. The Rams will be looking for their first victory against Lowell today.

A bright spot for the underdog Rams was the performance of Curry right-hander Terry Roman. Because of two runners on base, Ram took the lead, drawing a fielder’s choice from Hughes. By the time Curry had traversed between first and second, Genzetti had scored the first Rams run out of the regulation.

The defensive game of the game, however, belonged to Curry’s left-hander Gerald Toppiglia. In the top of the fourth inning, Toppiglia and Walsh walked in a run, and possibly led to being the biggest moment.

Curry’s Steve Algieri thought they were "coming off a tough loss with the Colonels. Although he felt the pitching was not as great today, he thought that the team was hitting at a great pace.

"We’ve been a better team. Maybe we were just a little off," said tenth-year-old Walsh, who was one of the players. "We were a better team. Although we lost, we feel that the Colonels are still hitting at a great pace.

Creeden predicts vast improvement from last year

by Jeff Clay

"We’ll probably beat eighty percent of the teams on a weather basis, so we’ll be playing 80 percent of the time."

There are plenty of words to come from Suffolk’s coach Bob Creeden, especially when he considers that last year’s 6-10 golf team did not even win a single match, but Creeden felt that he has a group with a great deal of potential.

"I’m expecting more improvement in the team last year from the previous season," he says. "And I’m expecting even more improvement on the level we’re operating.

How can a team that goes without an improved year? As an example Creeden notes the fact that two years ago Suffolk was last in the New England Golf Tournament, but this year they moved to 25th place out of the 36 schools that entered.

And Creeden feels that Suffolk’s showing this year is a definite improvement over last year’s. The team last year was 1-14, but Creeden believes that they are "getting a lot of business in as the year and everyone has been playing very well. I’m expecting a lot of improvement from my boys tonight.

The two area teams are being asked for their thoughts on Suffolk’s play. Creeden, who has played a part in the NCAA Golf Tournament, said: "I’m going to go with the Kenallons. They’re the only team that’s going to be playing in the Massachusetts State."

Phillips played well last year," Creeden, who was named as a participant in the NCAA Golf Tournament, said: "I’m going to go with the Kenallons. They’re the only team that’s going to be playing in the Massachusetts State."

Minihan is indispensable to women's basketball
by Dick John

The past three years, the University of Kentucky's Minihan has become one of the most colorful and controversial women's basketball coaches in the country.

Minihan and her team have been controversial because of the success they have achieved. Minihan's team has been criticized for its playing style, which some believe is too rough and physical. Minihan and her team have also been criticized for their training methods, which some believe are too aggressive and demanding.

Minihan's coaching style is known for its intensity and focus on fundamentals. Her team is known for its strong teamwork and discipline. Minihan is also known for her ability to develop and motivate her players, which has been a key factor in her team's success.

Minihan's approach to coaching is based on the belief that basketball is not just a game, but a way of life. Minihan's team is known for its strong work ethic, and her players are often praised for their dedication and commitment to the sport.

Minihan's team has had several successful seasons, including making it to the NCAA tournament in each of the past three years. The team has been known for its strong defense, and Minihan's coaching style has been credited as a key factor in the team's success.

Minihan's team has also been known for its strong leadership, with Minihan often being cited as a key leader on the team.

Minihan is a strong advocate for women's basketball, and her team has been a leader in the fight for gender equality in the sport. Minihan has been a vocal advocate for the rights of women in sports, and her team has been a role model for other women's basketball teams across the country.

Minihan's coaching style and approach to the sport have been both praised and criticized, but there is no doubt that her team has had a significant impact on women's basketball. Minihan's team has been a model of success, and her coaching style has been a key factor in the team's success.
Starving Class: a Feast, Death a Famine

Death of a Salesman. Written by Arthur Miller. Produced by George C. Kemp and the Actors Studio. At the Little Theatre, New York.

by Frank Cottrell

Sam was the king of Off Broadway. He was the king of Off Broadway. In Boston, he was the silver-haired, blue-eyed, suave, distinguished-looking man who had just bought a new car. Since then, he had been living in a hotel in Boston. But now, he had moved to New York City, where he had just opened a new restaurant. The restaurant was called Sam's Restaurant. It was located on the corner of First Street and Second Avenue, near the famous Little Theatre. It was a small, comfortable place with a cozy atmosphere.

He had been living in Boston for several years, working as a successful lawyer. But now, he had decided to move to New York City to start a new life. He had always been interested in the theatre, and he had hoped to become involved in the theatrical community. Sam's Restaurant was his way of entering that world.

The restaurant was very popular. People came from all over the city to dine there. And they always had a good time. Sam was very good at his job, and he made sure that everything was perfect. He was a perfectionist.

One day, a group of actors came into the restaurant. They were very tired after a long rehearsal. Sam welcomed them and offered them a free meal. The actors were grateful and they asked Sam if they could perform a play for him. Sam was very interested and he agreed. The play was called "Starving Class," and it was written by Benita H. Grimes.

The play was a success, and it ran for several months. Sam was very pleased with the outcome. He had always wanted to be involved in the theatre, and now he had his chance. He continued to support the arts and he became involved in many other projects. He was a very important figure in the theatre world.

Unfortunately, his personal life was not as successful. He was married to a beautiful woman, but their relationship was strained. He was very busy with his work, and he didn't have much time for his family. He loved his wife, but he didn't have enough time to devote to her.

One day, he decided to leave his wife and go back to Boston. He wanted to start a new life and he thought that he could do it in Boston. He left his wife and their son, and he went back to Boston.

The end.
Sight: a solid story despite bad timing

Hang in Plain Sight. A film directed by James Gunn, written by Spencer Eastman, starring James Gunn, Jib Edoukere, Robert Vicars, and Jeremiah Holden in the film. The film is a comedy that explores the difficult relationship between a father and his daughter.

The plot revolves around a father who is trying to come to terms with his daughter's sexual identity. Despite the father's initial resistance, he eventually learns to accept his daughter and her choices. The film's message is one of love and acceptance, and it highlights the importance of understanding and empathy in relationships.

The cast delivers strong performances, with standout moments from all the leads. The film's pacing is well-balanced, maintaining a decent level of tension throughout.

The film's themes of family, acceptance, and love are delivered effectively, making it a heartwarming watch. Overall, "Hang in Plain Sight" is a solid film that is worth a watch.

Serial very poor fare for discriminating audience

Serial is a film directed by Bill Pennick, starring Beth Allyn and Michael Allyn. The film is set in a small town where a serial killer is on the loose. The story is filled with suspense and mystery, keeping the audience on the edge of their seats.

The performances are strong, especially from the lead actors who bring their characters to life with their nuanced portrayals. The direction is tight, and the tension builds steadily as the killer's identity is revealed.

The film's themes of suspense and fear are executed well, making it a thrilling watch. Overall, "Serial" is a solid film that is worth a watch.

However, the film's setting is a bit too small-town and predictable, which might be a turn-off for some viewers. The story also feels a bit rushed at times, which might leave some viewers feeling unsatisfied.

Nonetheless, "Serial" is a well-executed film that is worth a watch for its engaging storyline and strong performances.
"Gilda Live; reruns come to the movie screen"

Gilda is the film version of Gilda Radner's stage show which was originally on Broadway. It features the popular and funny characters which Radner has made famous over the years. However, the film does not feature any new or special parts. It is only a rehash and repeat of the never-ending charm from Saturday Night Live.

The show opens with a song and dance number titled "Carried (To The Airport)." The song's second verse is the main focus of the film and has gained much attention due to the editing. The world-famous movie is entertaining to see, but it sometimes gets old and makes the movie a bore in future.

Other standout moments include a musical number against the dancing background that is performed by Robert Altman and the Kool-Aid man. The inclusion of this character in the show is a stroke of genius and brings a sense of humor that is sure to have you laughing out loud. The film also includes a scene with a famous character from Saturday Night Live, Will Ferrell, but he isn't as well-received as in the show.

"Gilda Live" is a must-see for fans of Saturday Night Live and a great addition to the film industry. It is a fun and entertaining movie that is sure to be loved by audiences of all ages.
