Perlman invited to SGA meeting

BY JOHN DEAN

SUNY Southampton's Commencement speaker and Author of "Shooting Straight with Bill," David L. Perlman, was invited to attend the SGA meeting this past Tuesday. While this should attract the attention of the student body, Perlman said, "It's only the first step in my efforts to help the students." Perlman also said that the SGA should consider offering financial aid to the students who want to attend.

The Meeting

The last time I was at the University of Houston, I was a freshman in 1980. I was a member of the University of Houston Men's Club, which was a group of students who went to basketball games and other events at the university. I was a member of the group because I wanted to have fun and meet people. I was also a member of the group because I wanted to be involved in the university community.

The group was made up of about 200 students who went to games and other events at the university. We would meet up before the game and then go to the game together. We would then meet up again after the game and have a drink or two. We would then go back to campus and hang out.

The group was very active and we would often go to other events at the university. We would also often go to other events around the city. We would often go to parties and other events.

The group was very different from other groups on campus. We were not interested in politics or other issues that were often discussed on campus. We were interested in having fun and meeting people.

The group was also very diverse. We had students from all over the country and from all different backgrounds. We had students who were rich and students who were poor. We had students who were from different ethnic backgrounds.

The group was also very active. We would often go to other events around the city. We would often go to parties and other events.

Facts From The Financial Aid Office

Do you know how a financial aid "package" is constructed? Although you are intimately involved in some parts of the process, you probably are uncertain how the final award has been determined, or how your family information has been analyzed in the award decision.

Institutions which participate in the SEOG, NSLL, and CWS programs must use a federally approved need analysis system to determine an "expected family contribution." The FAF from the College Scholarship Service is one of several approved systems, and we use the FAF at Suffolk so that our students can apply for State Scholarship money at the same time as they apply for Suffolk financial aid.

The FAF provides us with an analysis of your family's ability to contribute to the cost of your education, considering such factors as income, assets, family size, unusual circumstances, debts, and liabilities. The expected family contribution (EFC) also includes your contribution from summer earnings, any outside scholarships, state scholarships, non taxable benefits, and part time employment.

The EFC is then subtracted from the cost of education, and the remaining cost is considered "need." This is an example of an "average" EFC and need for a full time, dependent, upper class undergraduate for 1980-81:

- Av Parental contribution: $500
- Summer earnings/savings: $700
- State Scholarship: $900
- EFC: $2100
- Cost of education: $3000
- Less EFC: $900
- "Need": $2100

The basic Grant now Pell Grants program was designed to be the first step in a package to offset need. The average grant at Suffolk during 1979-80 was $1176.

Need
- less grant
- Remaining Need
- $3024

In an 'equity packaging system,' every student with a given need receives the same financial aid package. Some institutions have sufficient resources institutional, federal, state, and private funds, to meet 100%, of documented need, although most schools are forced to "cap" the need which they can meet. This is the situation at Suffolk.

"In no case can an institution 'over award': that is, as the need has been defined, no combination of funding sources can exceed this need.

Many factors are considered when an award is made, and changes in degree status, course load, employment, and personal situation can affect an award. Any of these conditions should be noted on your application, and if you wish to know more about your own award, please stop by our Office and request an appointment with an officer for a detailed explanation.
Director Redford's rather ordinary debut

by Joni Pappas

 erratic, violent and often underdeveloped characters. But the only way to see such a story realistic is to believe that the film can do without the usual Hollywood techniques. In The Way We Were, the director's most recent work, a young man named Ted (Robert Redford) is involved in a love affair with a young woman named Libby (Mia Farrow). In the beginning, their relationship is tense and uncertain. Ted is trying to make a living as a journalist, while Libby is a student at Columbia University. They meet at a party and fall in love, but their relationship is complicated by Libby's family, who disapprove of Ted and his lack of financial stability.
