You must remember this ... an internship at KISS

In Bob Harris' office, the phone was ringing. "It's a slow day, but I'll answer it anyway," Harris said, lifting the phone to his ear.

"Hello? Hello?" he said, waiting for a reply.

"Hello? Bob?" a familiar voice asked.

"Hello, Harris!" replied Bob, recognizing the voice.

"What are you up to today?" the caller asked.

"I'm working on the KISS radio network," Harris said, "What about you?"

"I'm doing some research for a story," the caller replied. "I was wondering if you could help me with some information about the network."

"Sure," Harris said, "What do you need?"

"I need to know about the history of the network, its founders, and some key events in its early years."

"I can help you with that," Harris said, "But I need to check some things first. Can you give me some time?"

"Sure," the caller said, "I'm free tomorrow morning."

"Great," Harris said, "I'll be there at 10 a.m."

The caller said goodbye and hung up the phone. Harris smiled, knowing that he would have a busy day ahead.
Women's basketball loses two in a row

by Calvin Neely

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. - The Wesleyan women's basketball team was unable to come back from a 12-point halftime deficit against Amherst Saturday and suffered a 57-42 loss at Woolsey Hall.

The score of 12-3 was barely a game at first, and only good things were being said about Wesleyan by the Amherst players. Amherst's Mary Jo Davis was in her usual work, and a Wesleyan guard was also working just as hard.

But the Wesleyan offense seemed to slow down as the game progressed, and Amherst's defense stepped up. Wesleyan's 15-point lead was cut to one with 9:30 left in the game and was tied with 7:30 left, but Wesleyan finally held on to win by a narrow margin.

Wesleyan was not at its best against Amherst, but the defense held Amherst to a 39-point total. Wesleyan struggled with the Amherst defense and was unable to get past it. Wesleyan's 57 points were the lowest total of the season.

by Dan Kramer

STOCKTON, Cal. (AP) -- The Stockton Rams had to settle for a 70-62 loss to the UCSD Tritons Saturday, as the Rams failed to hold off the Tritons in the final minute.

The Rams were not able to score in the final minutes, allowing the Tritons to win by eight points.

Hackford’s fallen Idolmaker: a faulty fantasia

by Jeffrey Tatman

The idea that the directorial debut of Michael E. Tatum, a 29-year-old visual-effects supervisor, could be the cause of a critical sensation was one of the more remarkable speculations of the year. The film, which was released in late 1978, was a scathing satire of the Hollywood film industry, and it quickly became a box-office hit. But as the film’s success grew, so did the controversy surrounding its production. The director, who had previously worked as a visual-effects artist, had自分で語る。

After almost three years of study the Curriculum Committee has nearly completed its review of the degree program. During this time, members have lovingly and minutely considered the history of Suffolk University’s undergraduate program, and how the college has grown and changed over the years. After much consideration and debate, the Curriculum Committee determined that the college should approve a new degree program in 1981. The new degree program is expected to be in place for the fall of 1981.

The Curriculum Committee’s efforts will be appreciated by all those who have contributed to the establishment of Suffolk University. As the college moves into its next phase, it is important that we all celebrate together. The Curriculum Committee will be meeting this week to discuss the new degree program, and how we can best support the college in its efforts to develop and improve the undergraduate program.

Rat’s fate up to president

by Nancy Braune

When Suffolk University’s rat was faced with the possibility of being removed from the campus, the president of the college, Richard T. Farmer, stepped forward to protect the rat. He stated that the rat was an important part of the university’s tradition and that it should be allowed to continue living on the campus. The rat has remained on campus and is now a popular attraction for visitors and students alike.

Degree requirements nearly complete

by Nancy Braune

The Degree Requirements Committee has nearly completed its review of the degree requirements for all undergraduate programs. The committee has been working diligently to ensure that the requirements are fair and reasonable for all students.

The degree requirements include a general education core, a major concentration, and electives. The general education core includes courses in English, mathematics, and the arts. The major concentration includes courses in a specific field of study, and electives are offered to allow students to explore other areas of interest. The degree requirements are designed to provide a solid foundation for all students and to prepare them for success in their future careers.

Suffolk University takes a new direction

The Suffolk University Board of Trustees has approved a new direction for the university. The new direction is focused on providing a more diverse and inclusive educational environment for all students. The university will continue to offer a wide range of undergraduate and graduate programs, and it will also invest in new facilities and technology to support the new direction.

The new direction for Suffolk University reflects the commitment of the university to provide a high-quality education to all students, regardless of their background or circumstances. The university will continue to work to create a welcoming and inclusive community for all students, and it will remain committed to excellence in teaching and learning.

Reactions to former minority advisor’s claims

by Nancy Braune

The former minority advisor at Suffolk University has recently made some controversial statements. Some students and faculty members have expressed support for the advisor, while others have criticized the statements. The university is currently investigating the matter and will take appropriate action.

The former minority advisor stated that the university has failed to provide adequate support for minority students. He said that the university should do more to address the needs of minority students, and that it should provide more resources and opportunities for them.

The university has responded to the advisor’s statements, and it has stated that it will continue to work to support all students, regardless of their background or circumstances. The university will continue to provide resources and opportunities for minority students, and it will work to create a welcoming and inclusive community for all students.
